The security talks, scheduled for three days starting tomorrow, follow North Korea's threat that it would respond militarily to South Korea's planned participation in a U.S.-led program to seize weapons of mass destruction. Gates aims to reassure allies that the economic crisis and the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan won't dilute U.S. attention to the region or diminish security assurances under President Barack Obama.

Gates will be there "to tell them, just as he did last year, that we are fully engaged and committed to this region, if not more so," Morrell said.

Clinton Pledge

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton underscored that point yesterday, saying the U.S. "intends always to honor" its commitments to defend South Korea and Japan. "That is part of our alliance obligations which we take very seriously," Clinton told reporters.

Gates will be joined in Singapore by U.S. officials including Deputy Secretary of State James Steinberg, Director of National Intelligence Dennis Blair and Admiral Timothy Keating, head of the U.S. Pacific Command.

They will confer with officials from more than 20 government delegations of Asian and European nations.

North Korea has sent belligerent messages since its underground nuclear blast on May 25 and South Korea's subsequent decision to join the inspection effort. The regime said yesterday that it would no longer abide by the 1953 armistice that ended the Korean War.

Military Threat

"The Korean People's Army will not be bound to the Armistice Agreement any longer," the official Korean Central News Agency said in a statement. Any attempt to inspect North Korean vessels will be countered with “prompt and strong military strikes.” South Korea’s military said it will “deal sternly with any provocation” from the North.

South Korean President Lee Myung Bak ordered his government to take “calm” measures on the threats, his office said in a statement. Japanese Chief Cabinet Secretary Takeo Kawamura echoed those remarks and called on North Korea to “refrain from taking actions that would elevate tensions in Asia.”

The threats are the strongest since North Korea’s underground nuclear detonation, which drew international condemnation and the prospect of increased sanctions against the communist nation. South Korea dispatched a warship to its maritime border and is prepared to deploy aircraft, Yonhap News reported, citing military officials it didn’t identify.

Gates will stress to allies in the region that the U.S. plans to remain a presence both with troops as well as training and support, a second U.S. defense official said.

The meeting is the seventh annual Asia Security Summit organized by the London-based International Institute for Strategic Studies.

Allies Coordinate

“This is a golden opportunity to coordinate with allies and others in the region,” said Nicholas Szechenyi, a fellow at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington.

“This year, the other countries that will be represented will not only be looking for reassurance, but for U.S. ideas and initiative” in response to North Korea, said Szechenyi, who is co-author of a quarterly journal on East Asian relations.

Gates will go from the conference to the Philippines, where he is scheduled to meet with officials to discuss their joint counter-terrorism efforts. About 600 U.S. troops help train and support the Philippine army in counter-terrorism work.

North Korea to be attacked; U.S. Nuclear first strike "likely"

http://www.halturnershow.com/index.html

Washington, DC (TRN) -- North Korea yesterday withdrew from the Armistice that halted the Korean War. Today, official Washington is abuzz with not so secret "Top Secret" plans for the United States to make a limited nuclear first strike to wipe out the North Korean threat in one fell swoop.

Russia has been alerted to "make plans" for radiation fallout in its eastern border area.

In consultations with China, the U.S. Ambassador to Beijing was said to be stunned when he was told by the Chinese government "Kim Jung Il is out of control and dangerous. He has become a serious liability for China. Do what must be done, but please do it in a manner that minimizes risk to China."

China was then briefed about US plans and asked to prepare its southern population areas for radiation fallout. It is expected that prevailing weather patterns will disperse fallout over the sea, causing it to thin out dramatically before moving over land.

Worst development since World War 2

Our source in the State Department explained today why this situation got so bad, so fast. "The Korean War legally never ended." he said. "There is no peace treaty, there is only an Armistice, a formal cease-fire. When North Korea officially withdrew from the Armistice yesterday, it automatically brought us back into a hot war. "he continued.

Speaking on condition of anonymity because he is not authorized to speak to the media, the high ranking state department source told Turner Radio Network (TRN):

[/i]"Of all the scenarios involving North Korea, withdrawing from the Armistice was the one thing we thought they never would do. Since the War, everyone has known that withdrawing from the Armistice means the cease-fire is over. Today, that cease fire is over; we are back at war with North Korea and this time, the outcome will not be negotiated. Withdrawing from the Armistice was the last mistake North Korea will ever make. Their leadership must surrender now or they are nothing more than dead men walking. It's over for them" he finished.
Pentagon: Nuclear first strike "Likely"[/i]

Early in the evening on Tuesday, President Barack Obama gave permission for the US Military to airlift "Patriot Missile Air Defense" systems to South Korea and additional units to bolster 16 systems already in Japan. Those systems were airborne hours later and arrived in South Korea and Japan today.

The model of Patriot Missile systems sent is "PAC-3" and they were accompanied by M-901 control stations and AN/MPQ-53 phased array radar.

Sources with acute knowledge of the plans for North Korea have confirmed to TRN that a US nuclear first strike is going to be launched.

The first strike will be carried out through submarine-launched, BGM-109 Tomahawk cruise missiles, model TLAM/A whose explosive payload can be "dialed" to be anywhere from 100 kilotons to one point five megatons nuclear yield per missile.

There will be no warning. North Korea will not be able to track the incoming cruise missiles via radar. The only way they will know the attack is taking place is when they see a blinding white flash as the temperature rises to ten thousand degrees and the wind gusts to 650 miles per hour.

North Korean troops along the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) will be hit first to prevent them from invading south Korea. Multiple cruise missiles using Time of Arrival (TOA) control will detonate simultaneously along the DMZ, wiping out over one million North Korean troops in seconds.

Minutes later, after the U.S. National Security Agency (NSA) confirms that the North Korean leadership has been told by their own command structure that their troops at the DMZ have all been killed, Kim Jung Il will be contacted and asked if he is willing to surrender. It is expected he will not.

At that point, a B-2 Stealth Bomber will be sent in to deliver the final blow. Pyongyang will be hit with a surface detonation of a massive nuclear bomb, wiping out the entire city and the entire government of North Korea.

As soon as that surface detonation takes place, several hundred additional cruise missiles carrying conventional payloads and launched from land, air and sea sites, will hit every North Korean military facility in the entire country, instantly crippling their entire command and control system. Carrier based Aircraft will then fly in to clean up whatever resistance remains.

It is expected the war will be over within one or two days. Korea will be reunited. It's Capitol will be Seoul and its government will be democratically elected.

One strike, two purposes

This difficult decision to make a nuclear first strike was arrived at because the threat of North Korea invading South Korea once hostilities resume was too great a danger to world stability. The world does not need or want another large, lengthy war.

The decision to use a nuclear first strike serves another purpose as well: sending a clear message to countries like Pakistan, India and Iran about what they can expect if they continue traveling down the nuclear road.

The thinking in Washington, Beijing and Moscow is that the world needs to send this message and there will not be a better reason or better time to send it than now.

The Bush Clinton crime family puppet state of North Korea ordered to create tension

The desperate cornered rats of the Bush/Clinton crime family have ordered their North Korean puppet state to create tension in North Asia. Unconfirmed reports say the current North Korean psy-ops started after dictator Kim Jong Il was neutralized with a stroke inducing poison by a Western prostitute sent to service him. Since then North Korea has been firing missiles and announcing nuclear tests and doing whatever it can to create tension.

In a related development former South Korean President Roh Moo-hyun was killed by pro-Japanese politicians, according to North Korean sources. The death was revenge for Roh’s investigation and exposure of many prominent South Koreans who cooperated with the Japanese and then US occupation governments. This faction of traitors, now back in power, got their revenge. They have also provoked North Korea by cutting off financial aid as they play their part in the big fake campaign to manufacture an artificial crisis in the Korean peninsula.

Meanwhile, the North Korean network of religious cults in Japan is stepping up their campaign of gang stalking of Japanese dissidents. So far, we have been hoping the North Korean religious cults operating in Japan will stop working for the Bush Clinton crime family but, if they do not reform their ways THERE WILL BE CONSEQUENCES.

For now we will say just this: the Sarin gas that was used in the Tokyo subway attacks was manufactured in North Korea, according to a former Aum religious cult member. The Aum factory was merely producing amphetamines that were sold to a prominent gangster closely associated with the head of the North Korean cult in Japan.

Korean tension is not going to affect the results of the up-coming Japanese elections. Yukio Hatoyama, the head of the Democratic Party of Japan and likely winner of the July election made it a point recently to appear at a 911 truth conference. So Mr. cult leader, you know which way the wind is blowing.

Georgia didn't work, India/Pakistan didn't work, Gaza didn't work, Civil War just won't start quick enought for them so now they turn to Korea... we'll see

craig-oxley - May 28, 2009 01:38 AM (GMT)

Okay, for those wondering how it will unfold - this would be the worst-case (but likely) scenario.

According to treaty, the US must enter the war when hostilities break out between North and South Korea, and according to what's been coming out of Japan in recent days, it looks like Japan will then take 'defensive' measures against the North including blockades (which the North will obviously obstruct in the event of wartime), thus widening the war to include strikes on Japan itself.

That said, an all-out regional war between Asia's powerhouses (North Korea, South Korea, Japan, US) will logically force China and Russia to put their forces on unprecedented alert and mobilize (a practical national security measure).

It is natural to assume the US and its allies will not provoke China and Russia into a war against them (would anyone?). The US and South Korea will probably ensure that this time they don't push into North Korean territory like last time and force China to enter the war.

The absolute worst-case scenario is North Korea retalliating with nuclear weapons to any major offensive against it.

And this is the true risk this time. North Korea didn't have nukes in 1950. They do now. World powers are playing with fire as long as they "threaten" North Korea, even if North Korea threatens them.

Sarkozy's Karzai visit: 1,000 troops to leave by 2012

Tue Jul 12, 2011 5:37pm GMT
By Philippe Wozajer
http://af.reuters.com/article/worldNews/id...annel=0&sp=true

KABUL (Reuters) - French President Nicolas Sarkozy said during a visit to Afghanistan on Tuesday that France would pull out 1,000 troops by the end of 2012, as it speeds up its withdrawal alongside the United States.

In a surprise five-hour trip, Sarkozy met Afghan President Hamid Karzai, had a working lunch with General David Petraeus, the top U.S. commander in the country, and visited French troops in the region of Surobi, east of Kabul.

Sarkozy, who followed U.S. President Barack Obama's June announcement of faster troop withdrawal, said France's remaining soldiers would be based in Kapisa province and that all combat units would be brought home by the end of 2014. After that, some soldiers would remain in Afghanistan to train Afghan forces.

"You have to know how to end a war," Sarkozy said.

Sarkozy's third trip to Afghanistan since he came to power in 2007 coincided with the killing of Karzai's influential brother, Ahmad Wali Karzai, who was apparently shot by one of his bodyguards.

France has 4,000 troops in Afghanistan and has seen 64 of its soldiers killed since it joined the U.S.- and NATO-led Afghanistan operation in 2001. The latest casualty was killed on Monday by an accidental shot from his own camp in Kapisa.

The quicker pullout could give Sarkozy a boost ahead of the April 2012 presidential election, where he faces a tough battle from the left-wing opposition to win a second term.

An opinion poll after the death of former al Qaeda leader Osama Bin Laden in May showed more than half of French people support a withdrawal from the nearly decade-old military campaign against Taliban insurgents.

TROOP WITHDRAWAL

Facing growing political opposition to the war, Obama announced plans to pull out about a third of the 100,000 U.S. troops in Afghanistan by the end of summer 2012, faster than the military has recommended.

His announcement followed the killing of bin Laden in May by U.S. troops in a secret raid on his hideout in Pakistan.

French Foreign Minister Alain Juppe said France's withdrawal would be limited to the Surobi region, east of Kabul. "We believe this region is now secure and the time has come to pass the baton to the Afghan troops," he told France Info radio.

Sarkozy's visit followed a trip by U.S. Defence Secretary Leon Panetta at the weekend and came two days before France's "Bastille Day" national day, which marks the start of the 1789 revolution and will this year honour troops on foreign missions.

The trip also comes shortly after the surprise release of two French TV journalists who had been held hostage by the Taliban for a year and a half in Afghanistan and who were greeted as heroes on their return to France at the end of June.

The war in Afghanistan began when U.S-backed Afghan forces overthrew the Islamist Taliban government in 2001 after it refused to hand over al Qaeda militants, including bin Laden, following the September 11 attacks on the United States.

Obama's withdrawal plans call for the first 10,000 U.S. troops to leave by the end of this year. Another 23,000 will pull out by late 2012, with the goal of gradually handing over security responsibility to Afghan forces by the end of 2014.

Some U.S. military leaders worry they will not have enough time or resources to solidify headway made in pushing the Taliban out of strategic areas of southern Afghanistan.

Critics say the withdrawal plan could jeopardise the next major push of the war, to unseat insurgents in the east of the country bordering Pakistan where the situation has deteriorated.

Nearly 1,700 U.S. military personnel have been killed since the war began.

Iran moves nuclear enrichment programme to underground bunker

Iran has begun efforts to shift its nuclear enrichment programme to an underground bunker where experts warn it could stage a last dash for a nuclear weapon

Installation of centrifuge and other manufacturing equipment was at a preparatory stage at Fowrdow, a facility deep inside a mountain near Qom, the country's holiest city, intelligence reports said.

Tehran disclosed the existence of Fordow, which is designed to withstand air and missile strikes, after Western intelligence detected the covert nuclear plant.

"They are preparing (for the centrifuges to be installed) in Fordow," a diplomat briefed on the latest intelligence said.

Fereidoun Abbasi, the head of the Iranian nuclear programme, earlier this month said Iran would triple output of uranim enriched to 20 per cent, the threshold level from which a nuclear bomb - made from material enriched to 90 per cent - is relative easy to produce.

Since it raised the level of enrichment from the 3.5 per cent purity needed for normal power plant fuel to 20 per cent last year it has produced 56.7 kilogrammes, UN weapons inspectors have reported. That is about half the amount needed for a weapon.

The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) which has been notified of Iran's plans to start operation enrichment centrifuges at Fordow "by this summer" has expressed concern over continuing access to the facility.

The IAEA reported that by May 21 no centrifuges - cylindrical machines that spin at supersonic speeds to enrich uranium - had been introduced into the facility.

Intelligence reports point to Iranian scientists installing 3,000 centrifuges at the site to achieve its goals. It has almost three times as many installed at Natanz, many of which have been disabled by sabotage.

Leading experts believe that the shift to the mountain facility would increase the danger of Iran successfully launching a final push to make a bomb.

"We see Iran moving in the direction of becoming a nuclear weapons capable state," said Olli Heinonen, a former head of UN nuclear inspections worldwide.

Foreign Secretary William Hague wrote in an American newspaper this week that Iran would need less that three months to turn the enriched uranium into weapons grade material at Fordow.

"That it claims to allow International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) monitoring is not a safeguard," he warned. "Iran has a persistent record of evasion and obfuscation with the IAEA."

But Iran's foreign minister, who is in Vienna for nuclear talks, said that the country had disavowed nuclear weapons.

"Our Supreme Leader has explained that the production and use of atomic weapons is wrong, not only in terms of foreign policy but on religious grounds," Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Salehi said.

Iran says it needs 20 per cent uranium to make fuel for a medical research reactor near Tehran after the failure of talks on a deal that would have seen foreign countries supply the material.

A nine page IAEA report in May said new intelligence passed to the organisation indicated Iran was involved in studies on uranium conversion, high explosives testing and the adaptation of a ballistic missile cone that would only be useful to the production of a nuclear warhead.

The body said it had "received further information related to such possible undisclosed nuclear-related activities".

Israeli airstrike hits eastern Gaza

Israeli forces have launched an airstrike in the eastern part of Gaza city, injuring at least one Palestinian in the besieged coastal sliver.

In the incident, which occurred in the early hours of Wednesday, Israeli F-16 fighter jets flew over the coastal enclave, and fired two rockets at a car repair shop in a residential neighborhood in the east of the city.

According to a Press TV correspondent in Gaza, a 19-year-old girl was injured in the attack and dozens of people, including children, were treated for shock.

The attack also caused severe damage to the building and shattered windows of nearby houses.

Earlier this week, Israeli warplanes also killed two Palestinians and injured another one in Gaza.

There were no immediate reports of the exact number of injuries or damage to property.

The Israeli army frequently bombs the tunnel network in Gaza, claiming that Palestinian resistance fighters use the tunnels to store and smuggle in weapons. Palestinians, however, dismiss such allegations, insisting that they were forced to resort to the underground tunnels to bring in basic living supplies to the impoverished Gazans because the territory has been sealed off to the outside world by a punishing Israeli blockade for over three years.

Some 1.5 million people are being denied their basic rights, including the freedom of movement and appropriate living conditions, work, health and education.

Iraqi police say three rockets have hit Kuwait's embassy which is located in Baghdad's heavily protected Green Zone.

Two rockets fell near the entrance of the Kuwaiti embassy on Tuesday, but no casualties were reported.

Another rocket also hit the house of Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Saleh al-Mutlaq.

The assault has prompted the Kuwaiti Foreign Ministry to recall its diplomats and embassy staff from Baghdad.

Kuwaiti Ambassador to Iraq Ali al-Momen said the embassy staff are safe and will return to Kuwait to spend the month of Ramadan there.

The number of assaults on Baghdad's Green Zone has recently increased.

Drone strikes are police work, not an act of war?

http://blogs.reuters.com/afghanistan/2011/...-an-act-of-war/

Launching an air strike in another nation would normally be considered an act of aggression. But advocates of America's rapidly expanding unmanned drone programme don't see it that way.

They are arguing, as Tom Ricks writes on his blog The Best Defense over at Foreign Policy, that the campaign to kill militants with missile strikes from these unmanned aircraft, is more like police action in a tough neighbourhood than a military conflict.

These raids conducted by sinister-looking Predator or Reaper aircraft in Afghanistan, Pakistan, Yemen – and since last month in Somalia - should not be seen as a challenge to states and their authority. Instead they are meant to supplement the power of governments that are either unable to or unwilling to fight the militants operating from their territories.

They are precise, limited, strikes aimed at taking down specific individuals, and in that sense are more like the police going after criminals, rather than a full-on military assault. Ricks writes:

"Police work involves small arms used precisely. Drones aren't pistols, but firing one Hellfire at a Land Rover is more like a police action than it is like a large-scale military offensive with artillery barrages, armored columns, and infantry assaults."

It is a bit of a stretch, though, to compare a police action in a rough part of town with the kind of devastation that the laser-guided Hellfire missile can rain down when fired from unmanned aircraft as scores of Pakistani civilians in the troubled northwest region discovered in the initial days of the programme launched by the Bush administration.

Civilian casualties have dropped off since then as ground intelligence improves and drone controllers, whether they are sitting in the CIA headquarters in Langley or out in air-conditioned trailers in Nevada, acquire more experience in this type of warfare which outgoing CIA director Leon Panetta once said was the “only game in town”with regard to disrupting and destroying al Qaeda in Pakistan.

Under the Obama administration there has not only been a surge in strikes since it came to office in January 2009 but there has also been a diversification of the targets of the missile attacks as reported out of Pakistan.

Under President George W. Bush, the drone attacks were largely directed against al Qaeda and its associates, including the Afghan Taliban. Under Obama, they have also been targeting the Pakistani Taliban and its associates — particularly after their involvement in the killing of CIA officers in a suicide bombing in Khost area of Afghanistan in December, 2009. The pace of strikes against the Pakistani Taliban picked up further after it was found to have given training to Faisal Shahzad, a US citizen of Pakistani origin, to carry out a strike in New York’s Times Square last May. The car bomb failed, and Shahzad is serving a life sentence.

The idea that the United States can arrogate to itself the right of life and death of people around the world can set off a dangerous precedent. What happens if India decides to do a bit of police action of its own in next door Pakistan. Unlike the CIA, India has actually built up a legal case against the founder of the Lashkar-e-Taiba, Hafeez Sayeed, for involvement in the November 2008 attacks on Mumbai. Given the lack of action by Pakistani authorities, should India take the law into its hands and target Sayeed and his associates for the assault ?

Or as Greg Scoblete says in the Real World Compass blog, what if Iran develops the capability to fly drones of its own and blows up the suburban Virginia home of a CIA official that is suspects is instigating violence in Iran, how will America react ?

Surely it is not going to say this is police action, but an act of war, or at the very least a terrorist strike on the homeland.

The U.S. leads the world in the use of unmanned aircraft for warfare by a distance, but it can’t be very long before other nations scale up their capabilities in unmanned aerial vehicles (UAV) as they are also known.

The drone technology may be sophisticated, but it can be reverse-engineered and replicated (the Chinese are reportedly already doing it). Forty countries already have UAVs in their arsenals, as do reportedly non-state actors such as Hezbollah. Today the U.S. is able to fly its drones over Waziristan and Yemen, but it is not inconceivable that in the future others too might be able to fly their drones over New York and Washington.

Indeed, Pakistan – which has taken the highest number of drone strikes in recent years – is itself asking for these aircraft both for surveillance and to carry out covert warfare. America has so far refused.

China says US spends too much money on military

http://news.yahoo.com/china-says-us-spends...b25z%3B_ylv%3D3

BEIJING (AP) — The United States is spending too much on its military in light of its recent economic troubles, China's top general said Monday while playing down his country's own military capabilities.

The chief of the General Staff of the People's Liberation Army, Chen Bingde, told reporters he thought the U.S. should cut back on defense spending for the sake of its taxpayers. He was speaking during a joint news conference in which he traded barbs with visiting U.S. counterpart Adm. Mike Mullen.

"I know the U.S. is still recovering from the financial crisis," Chen said. "Under such circumstances, it is still spending a lot of money on its military and isn't that placing too much pressure on the taxpayers?

"If the U.S. could reduce its military spending a bit and spend more on improving the livelihood of the American people ... wouldn't that be a better scenario?" he said.

The visit by Mullen, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is the first of its kind in four years. Mullen and Chen are trying to upgrade military-to-military ties after setbacks over U.S. arms sales to Taiwan, cyberattacks traced to China and concern about Beijing's military plans.

Chen made a similar trip to the U.S. in May as part of efforts to improve often frosty relations between the militaries, especially as the economies of the countries become more codependent.

The two sides announced future exchanges, according to a statement released through the official Xinhua News Agency, with the commander of one of China's seven military regions visiting the headquarters of the U.S. Pacific Command in Hawaii later this year, followed by a return visit by the head of the Pacific Command.

It said the two sides agreed to hold more meetings in the first half of next year.

The world's two biggest economies frequently clash over financial issues, such as Beijing's resistance to exchange rate reforms and the ballooning U.S. trade deficit with China. Such issues are not usually at the forefront of military talks, though both sides chide each other for their defense spending.

China's military budget of $95 billion this year is the world's second-highest after Washington's planned $650 billion in defense spending.

Mullen acknowledged tough challenges to improving their military ties and called for more communication as well as "clearer and more pragmatic expectations."

"We need to continue to work toward an understanding as these differences continue to be out there," Mullen said. "That's why it's so important that we have a robust military-to-military relationship."

Chen said China is more than two decades behind the U.S. in terms of military technology and Beijing needs to upgrade by adding new hardware such as aircraft carriers.

"China is a big country, and we have quite a number of ships, but these are only small ships and this is not commensurate with the status of a country like China," he said. "Of course I hope that in future we will have aircraft carriers."

Chen said a former Soviet-era aircraft carrier that China bought from Ukraine in 1998 was "a valuable thing" for China and it was being used for research and development purposes.

The still-unnamed ship was bought as an empty shell without engines, weapons systems, or other crucial equipment and isn't believed to have traveled before under its own propulsion. Years of sea trials and flight training are needed before it will be fully operational.

Although no date has been set, once launched, it is expected to primarily be a training vessel for the navy and for naval pilots, while China moves swiftly to build its own carriers.

During their talks earlier Monday, Chen said he and Mullen also discussed China's development of a new missile system, the Dong Fang 21D. Analysts have said the "carrier killer" missile might threaten U.S. warships and alter the regional balance of power.

Chen told reporters the DF 21D system was "not operational yet," and was intended for defenses purposes only.

China's push to grow homegrown aircraft carrier and missile technology have raised the stakes for Washington, long the pre-eminent naval power in Asia, and jangled the already edgy nerves of China's neighbors, perceiving from Beijing more assertive enforcement of claims to disputed territories.

Over the past year, China has seen a flare-up in territorial spats with Japan, the Philippines and Vietnam and seen its relations strained with South Korea — all of which have turned to Washington for support.

Chen criticized the U.S. for its recent military exercises with the Philippines and Vietnam, saying they should have been put off due to the heightened regional tensions. Mullen defended the operations as routine.

"The timing of those joint exercises was inappropriate," Chen said. "At this particular time, when China and the related claimants have some difficulties, have some problems with each other, the U.S. decides to hold such large-scale joint exercises ... at the very least this was bad timing."

Mullen countered that the exercises had been planned well in advance and that he wouldn't describe them as "large-scale," though he was open to a debate with Chen on the matter.

The host, Chen, took the last word, saying that even if the exercises were pre-planned, they could have been rescheduled.

Panetta's Iraq Visit Reveals his Lack of Knowledge

During his first official visit to Iraq as U.S. Secretary of Defense, the former CIA director Leon Panetta told Iraqi government officials that their defense forces including their border guards must do more to stop Iranian infiltration and weapons smuggling that are contributing to the increasingly deadly attacks.

While several counterterrorism experts told the Law Enforcement Examiner that Panetta is new to the job of Defense Secretary, he should have been aware of Iran's involvement in the Iraqi insurgency over the years. His statements revealed a lack of knowledge on the subject of Iranian trouble making in the Iraqi conflict.

"It's almost absurd that Panetta should bring up the Iranian influence on terrorism in Iraq at this late stage of the conflict. He's been the Director of Central Intelligence and should be more than familiar with Iran's obvious long-time goal of toppling the fragile democracy in Iraq," according to a former U.S. intelligence officer and law enforcement official now residing in Israel, who also is a Law Enforcement Examiner source.

As far back as 2005, American intelligence officials were given information by the British MI6 indicating that Iran was operating "training camps" for bombers who carry out terrorist attacks on U.S.-led coalition forces, Iraqi security forces and civilians. It appeared even then that the training was accelerating in order to create havoc and destabilize the fledgling Iraqi government.

Previously, the British military accused Iran of being accessories in the killings of soldiers using sophisticated explosive devices. But intelligence officers went much further by saying the Iranian Revolutionary Guard, which has close links to the government, is teaching Shia fighters to make the bombs in Iran and then they're transporting them across the border into Iraq.

Those initial charges came after Iraqi and coalition forces discovered unexploded devices and submitted them to ordinance experts. A forensic examination of the bombs was made in Baghdad which military experts believe aided in devising security measures and helped to reveal evidence of an Iranian signature. The armor-piercing, infrared bombs had reportedly killed dozens of U.S. and British soldiers.

Government officials in Britain have accused the Iranians of tactical involvement in Iraq as a result of what Tehran perceives as Western bullying over the nuclear issue. It's also believed that the Iranians wish to keep U.S. and British forces tied down in Iraq to avert a possible attack on Iran.

As would be expected, Iranian officials vehemently denied the accusations and has claimed instead that the U.S. is pressuring Iran over its nuclear program by publicizing the bombing incidents.

The revelations of the alleged Iranian involvement made by defense and diplomatic sources in Iraq was compelling and detailed. The military said in a statement in 2006 that the Iranians are "trying to counter the bomb threat by training the trainers and the [Iranians] are doing the same. People are being trained [in Iran] and then slip back into Iraq, 10 at a time, to train others maybe 50 at a time."

Intelligence reports strongly suggest that terrorist training camps are being run in Iran and Lebanon, and that there is some intelligence that suggests there are camps in Syria. Forensic examinations of explosive devices shows that the technology has been "proliferating," leading to a drastic rise in attacks.

U.S., British and Iraqi security forces have uncovered caches of weapons including over 60 rockets, mortars and landmines, as well as the Iranian-made infrared explosive devices. Intelligence officers believe weapons are being stashed by insurgents throughout Iraq in the hopes of initiating a major insurgency offensive. And Iran gains time to continue their nuclear weapons program by helping to keep the few remaining coalition forces bogged down in Iraq.

Egypt army detains four US nationals: military official

CAIRO — Egypt's military on Monday detained four US nationals in the northern city of Suez after they took photographs in a restricted zone by the Suez Canal, a military official told AFP.

"Three US nationals and their translator, a US-Egyptian dual citizen, were detained in the Port Tawfiq harbour," the official said, without identifying them.

"Residents of Suez had seen the four taking pictures and informed the military authorities. They are not reporters for any media and did not have permission to take photographs," the official said.

Tensions have been high in Suez after a court last week confirmed the release on bail of police accused of killing protesters in the city during the uprising that ousted former president Hosni Mubarak earlier this year.

The army was forced to intervene on Sunday to clear several hundred protesters who were blocking a highway outside the city, while last Wednesday hundreds of people torched police cars and tried to storm government buildings in Suez.

The city is located near the southern terminus of the Suez Canal, a strategic hub of global maritime transport.

The seven police released on bail are among 14 facing trial over the killing of 17 protesters and wounding of 300 others. The other seven are on the run and being tried in absentia.

The case comes amid heightened tensions in Egypt over the handling of legal proceedings against security forces who used deadly violence in the uprising, killing 846 civilians and wounding thousands, according to official figures.

Prime Minister Essam Sharaf on Monday announced a government reshuffle within one week amid mounting pressure from protesters over the slow pace of reform.

He set a deadline of July 15 for the dismissal of police officers accused of killing protesters during the uprising that ousted Mubarak and called on the judiciary to proceed with "open trials for all former regime officials and those accused of killing protesters."

Egypt is holding Ilan Grapel, a US-Israeli dual national, on suspicion of spying for Israel.

American-born Grapel was arrested last month in a Cairo hotel. He has been accused of being an agent with Israel's Mossad intelligence agency and of sowing sectarian strife and chaos in Egypt.

China rejects Philippine proposal on Spratlys

BEIJING—China on Tuesday rejected calls by the Philippines for the two nations to bring their conflicting claims in the West Philippine Sea before a United Nations-backed tribunal.

“China always maintains that the South China Sea dispute should be resolved… through direct negotiations between directly concerned countries,” foreign ministry spokesman Hong Lei told reporters.

He added the row should also be dealt with according to “recognized international laws”.

China and the Philippines have overlapping claims to parts of the West Philippine Sea, which is believed to hold vast mineral resources, as do Vietnam, Brunei, Malaysia and Taiwan.

Philippine Foreign Affairs Secretary Albert del Rosario, who visited China last week, said he called for the dispute to go before the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea in his meetings with senior officials.

The tribunal is an independent judicial body established by UNCLOS, the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, to handle disputes.

Speaking to reporters after his visit, del Rosario said he pointed out that the Philippines’ claims over parts of the West Philippine Sea, including the Spratly islands, were “based on international law, specifically UNCLOS”.

Chinese officials however said their claims were based on “historic rights”, the secretary said.

The Philippines and Vietnam have in recent months accused China of taking increasingly aggressive actions in staking its claims in the disputed waters, including an incident where the Chinese allegedly fired on Filipino fishermen.

In April, the Philippines lodged a formal protest at the United Nations over China’s claims.

China Says U.S. Navy Drills in Region 'Inappropriate' Amid Island Disputes

http://www.bloomberg.com/news/2011-07-11/u...iate-china.html

China's army chief said the timing of U.S. naval exercises in the South China Sea was "inappropriate" given the ongoing bilateral disagreements in the region between China and other Asian nations.

Disputes over the sea's islands and surrounding waters should be resolved through "dialogue and diplomatic measures," Chen Bingde, chief of staff of the People's Liberation Army, was cited as saying by the official Xinhua News agency.

China asserts jurisdiction over most of the South China Sea, including oil and gas blocks more than 1,000 kilometers (625 miles) from its shores. The Philippines and Vietnam have in recent months accused China of incursions into sensitive areas. China has responded by accusing them of provocative acts.

Vietnam has announced joint naval exercises with the U.S. later this month, a few weeks after the Philippines completed similar drills with U.S. warships. The activities sent "mixed signals" to China, Xinhua cited Chen as saying.

China and the U.S., the world's two biggest economies, have pushed to strengthen military ties that have been strained on several occasions because of issues including a 2010 U.S. decision to sell arms to Taiwan and naval confrontations in 2009.

While some progress in improving military ties had been made, there were a number of challenges, Cheng said at a joint press conference yesterday in Beijing with Admiral Mike Mullen, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

'Absolutely Vital'

"Some existing issues have yet to be properly addressed and solved, and we are also having some new issues too," Cheng said.

Military ties with China are "absolutely vital," Mullen said in Beijing July 10, at the start of the visit that ends tomorrow. The U.S. has urged China to be more transparent about its military expansion and modernization plans.

Cheng yesterday confirmed China is developing a ballistic missile with a maximum range of 2,700 kilometers (1,700 miles) and the ability to strike moving targets including aircraft carriers, the China Daily reported. The Dongfeng-21D is undergoing experimental testing and will be used as a defensive weapon, the state-owned paper cited him saying.
Underestimated Development

In January, the Pentagon said it had underestimated the speed of China's military development, including a fighter jet with stealth capabilities that was unveiled in test flights this year. The Office of Naval Intelligence last year estimated the DF-21D missile had a range of almost 900 miles.

The weapon would be fired from mobile, land-based launchers and is "specifically designed to defeat U.S. carrier strike groups," the report said.

Kurt Campbell, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, said last month the U.S. has "no intention" of inflaming territorial disputes in the South China Sea. "We want recent tensions to subside and cooler heads to prevail," he said in Washington.

The Philippines said yesterday it is considering bringing its dispute with China over the sea's Spratly Islands before a United Nations tribunal.
'No Clear Response'

Foreign Secretary Albert del Rosario received "no clear response" when he asked his Chinese counterpart Yang Jiechi in Beijing last week if the Philippines and China could approach the UN's International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea over their disputes in the South China Sea, foreign affairs department spokesman Raul Hernandez said in Manila.

"We will have to study" whether Manila can bring the matter before the body on its own, Hernandez said.

Claims to various islands in the South China Sea have been made by the Philippines, Vietnam, Taiwan, Malaysia and Brunei. Vietnamese and Chinese boats have clashed twice in the waters since late May.

The Philippines and Vietnam have rejected China’s claims as a basis for joint oil and gas exploration, setting the stage for clashes in areas where Exxon Mobil Corp. (XOM), Talisman Energy Inc. (TLM), Forum Energy Plc (FEP) and Vietnam Oil & Gas Group, known as PetroVietnam, have operations.

Iran replaces Dollar with Euro in FX

http://presstv.com/detail.aspx?id=106669§ionid=351020102

Iran's President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad has ordered the replacement of the US dollar by the euro in the country's foreign exchange accounts.

The September 12 edict was issued following a decision by the trustees of the country's foreign reserves, Mehr News Agency reported.

Earlier, the Islamic Republic of Iran had announced that the euro would replace the greenback in the country's oil transactions. Iran has called on other OPEC members to ditch the sinking dollar in favor of the more credible euro.

Following the switch, the interest rate for the facilities provided from the Foreign Exchange Reserves will be reduced from12 to 5 percent.

Since being introduced by the European Union, the euro has gained popularity internationally and there are now more euros in circulation than the dollar.

The move will also help decouple Iran from the US banking system.

craig-oxley - September 25, 2009 03:14 PM (GMT)

Right on bloody cue, the propaganda bullshit flys out all because the U.S Dollar is dropped again. Remind you of Saddam Hussein anyone? This all aids in the taking full open control of The Golden Triangle drugs trade. This will gain acceptance via many of the nations until their assets get destroyed. Syria will be bought into the war which will escalate into the final global war to usher in a United Order world peace. Will it be peace? No because your mind will then be ravaged by cult psudeo science dribble like climate based on The Iron Mountain Report. You'll be mind screwed even more in the near future if you can possibly believe we can get even more zombified with tripe already.

Iran 'concealed nuclear facility'

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/middle_east/8274903.stm

Iran concealed the building of a second uranium enrichment plant in defiance of calls for transparency over its nuclear plans, US President Barack Obama says.

The leaders of the US, UK and France demanded UN inspectors be given immediate access to the facility.

Iran revealed the existence of the plant to the UN watchdog on Monday, saying it was not yet operational and would only be used for nuclear energy.

Iranian officials in New York and Tehran denied the plant was a secret.

Tehran has previously acknowledged it has one enrichment plant, at Natanz.

Iran's decision to build a secret facility represented a "direct challenge to the basic compact" of the global non-proliferation regime, US President Barack Obama said, making a statement in Pittsburgh, where he is hosting a G20 summit.

Despite Iran's assertions that the facility was for peaceful purposes, the new plant was "not consistent" with that goal, the US president said.

Iran now faces the prospect of tougher international sanctions if it does not satisfy Western calls for full disclosure in the coming months.

'Line in the sand'

Speaking alongside UK Prime Minister Gordon Brown and French President Nicolas Sarkozy, Mr Obama said it was time for Iran to begin meeting its international commitments.

"Iran must comply with UN Security Council resolutions and make clear it is prepared to meet its responsibilities as a member of the community of nations," Mr Obama said.

Tehran would be held accountable for any failure to meet these responsibilities, he said.

Speaking after Mr Obama, the French and British leaders used strong language to insist that Iran would now have to disclose full details of its entire nuclear programme or face new and tougher sanctions.

Gordon Brown stressed that the US, France and UK were "at one" on the issue, and accused the Iranians of "serial deception".

There was now "no choice but to draw a line in the sand" over the nuclear issue, he said.

"Iran must abandon any military ambitions for its nuclear programme."

Mr Sarkozy said the situation was a challenge to the entire international community.

"Everything must be put on the table," the French president said, adding that the world needed to see a "step change" from Iran in the coming months.

Underground plant

Iranian officials were quick to deny the latest plant was any kind of clandestine project.

"This installation is not a secret one, which is why we announced its existence to the IAEA [International Atomic Energy Agency]," Ali Akbar Saleri, head of Iran's nuclear agency, told the AFP news agency.

Iran says it does not need to inform the IAEA of any new site until 180 days before any nuclear material is place in the facility.

The existence of Iran's first enrichment plant, at Natanz, was only confirmed after intelligence emerged from Iranian exile groups several years ago.

Western governments are said to have known of the existence of the new enrichment plant for several months.

It is said to be an underground facility at a mountain on the site of a former missile site belonging to the Iranian Revolutionary Guards north-east of the holy city of Qom.

Construction on the facility started in earnest in mid-2006, diplomatic sources said.

Iran's letter to the UN watchdog, the IAEA, came as the New York Times cited US officials giving the first details of the new plant.

The IAEA confirmed it received a letter from Iran on Monday informing it that "a new pilot fuel enrichment plant is under construction".

Iran told the agency that no nuclear material had been introduced into the plant, and enrichment levels would only be high enough to make nuclear fuel, not a bomb.

In response, the IAEA has requested Iran to "provide specific information and access to the facility as soon as possible", an IAEA statement adds.

The disclosure of the new plant comes one day after world leaders stressed the need for greater co-operation against nuclear proliferation and shortly before Iran is due to resume talks with international powers on the issue.

Since taking office in January, Mr Obama has told Tehran than he is ready for direct talks on the nuclear issue, but has had no firm response from Iran.

Reports that Western officials have known of the existence of the enrichment plant for several months suggest that Mr Obama's policy was put in place even as he was aware of the new construction near Qom, correspondents note.

Earlier this month, Tehran agreed to "comprehensive" talks on a range of security issues - but made no mention of its own nuclear programme.

The talks are due to be held in Geneva on 1 October with Tehran and the five permanent UN Security Council members - US, UK, Russia, China and France - plus Germany.

Iran now faces the prospect of tougher sanctions if it fails to meet international demands for transparency.

The USS Nimitz carrier has just entered the Persian Gulf replacing the USS Ronanld Reagan.

The USS Nimitz is the oldest operational nuclear carrier at 34 years old, as the Enterprise is currently in maintenance.

So it makes sense that they sent the USS Nimitz in case it is destroyed in a war with Iran.

Interestingly:

The USS Nimitz is featured in the 1980 film The Final Countdown.

In the film, the ship and crew are thrown back in time via a wormhole storm to 6 December 1941 near Hawaii, just hours before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

So can we expect a Pearl Harbour type event with the USS Nimitz?

craig-oxley - September 25, 2009 04:24 PM (GMT)

Hows about even a nuclear detonation in Hawaii? Remember Obama's words (probably Jesuit trained Jon Favreau's) yesterday talking about a nuke in a western city. He's hinting at their near future plans. I believe something went wrong the other day as they were quite possibly about to stage something big. It was almost the exact scenario with Netanyahu as in London on 7/7 but this time on the 22nd of September the day of the Autumnal Equinox. What was worrying about this date was that it came within week 39 of the year and this number is the number for disease (bio-weapon?) Then we had Jesuit trained, Vatican assassin, Shimon Peres, the most powerful Sabbatean Frankist hofjuden of the Latin Kingdom mouthing off. This count dracula double claimed Netanyahu would make Mahmoud Ahmadinejad pay for his past comments. You can bet Netanyahu will do just that! All of course controlled and staged by the Knights of Malta and the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre. The region controlled by the Protector of the Holy Sites of Jersualem, King Juan Carlos of the Knights of Malta (Navigator) and The Order of the Golden Fleece. Incidentally Carlos is a descendant of the Ptolemaic 'grey' Jesuit bloodline of the Arcana Arcanorum, known as Farnese. You can bank on a giant war regardless if the economy is not out right collapsed from October onwards. I suggest people study 'Silent Weapons for Quiet Wars'.

Yes – SMOM is the main reason I'm telling you

Based on your research I dug deeper into the SMOM US system in the last years. In the recent days I started to focus on Germany and what I find here resembles the Jesuit/SMOM US network to the dot – except in my eyes right now their also catholic branch of the Knights of the Holy Sepulchre, which includes people that have or had important positions makes me realize that the Holy Sepulchre and the Teutonic Knights seam to have Germany in their hands, while the usA is still dominated by the SMOM.

One more reason why Bush (his pastor is Holy Sepulchre, too) and Merkel like each other so well.

The copy of the infiltration is mirror like down to all the same jobs – e.g. like Cardianl Egan (SMOM) in NY with the US Army the arch bishop of Munich and Freising Richard Marx (Holy Sepulchre) is also Military Vicar of the German Army.

Just a few of their now over 1300 members in Germany:

- Alois Prinz zu Löwenstein-Wertheim-Rosenberg (http://www.loewenstein.de/) – His wife is Anastasia Princess of Prussia, great-grandchild of Germanys last emperor – Order of Golden fleece

– Gulf Oil, Pittsburgh

– Merck Fink & Co Bank

– Liechtenstein Global Trust [private banking group of the princely House of Liechtenstein]

– Federated Asset Management GmbH

– Federation of Catholic enterprises

– activly integrating German soldiers into the US Army [it is known that German soldiers leave the German Army, join the US Army in Iraq or elsewhere and after some years come back to the German Army to jump a few ranks in their career]

- Paul Theodor Oldenkott (Adenauer family, from 1999–2006 Governor of German ethnarchy of the Holy Sepulchre)

- Hans Karl Filbinger (Prime minister)

- Hermann Josef Abs (Deutsche Bank AG)

- Kurt Hochheuser (Commerzbank AG)

- Bernd Thiemann (DG-Bank)

- Eberhard Martini (Federal Association of German Banks)

- Rudolf Terheyden (Federal Association of German newspaper publishers)

- Hubert Rohde (Director of “Saarländischer Rundfunk” – part of ARD – first Public TV and Radio network)

- Karl Holzamer (Director of ZDF – second Public TV network)

- Monsignore Martin Hülskamp (broadcasting council WDR – third Public TV and Radio network) [so all 3 mayor public networks have had their influence]

- Victor Freiherr von Baillou (Pharma giant Merck)

- Heinz Kriwet (Thyssen AG)

- Erhard Bouillon (Chemical giant Hoechst AG)

- August Brenninkmeyer (co-owner clothing giant C&A)

- Albert Falke (one of Germanys last big textile producers – Falke)

- Hans Berentzen (one of Germanys biggest Alcohol producers – Berentzen)

- Wilhelm Böhler (Head of Catholic office at the federal government in Bonn)

- Ludwig Martin (attorney general)

- Robert Nünlist (Commander of Papal Swiss Guard)

- Elmar Mäder (Headquaters of Papal Swiss Guard)

- plus many bishops and other church people etc.

They even make it into local TV news: https://www.wdr.de/mediathek/html/regional/...k_02.xml?vote=1

Foley and Sabbah have been in the Cologne dome in May 2008 for that event.

I found out that Adenauer was also made Knight of the Holy Sepulchre in 1965 shortly before his death – and Franz von Papen was a member besides his SMOM honors, too!

Dear Eric,

An important fact in addition to the Order of the Holy Sepulchre's presence in Germany.
Hitlers Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen had a mayor role in it's creation in 1933.

This is scary to see as this Order still has powerfull impact on Business & Politics in Germany to this day.

"The motto of the order „Deus lo vult" ("God wants it") for hundrets of years was the battle cry with which nonbelievers, especially Jews were murdered by knights of christianity.
The order, an official part of the catholic church, unites from leading conservatives to fascist figures from politics, culture and economy. There are to be 44 knights in leading positions in banking. Also in big German corporate groups like Daimler-Benz, BASF, Siemens and Thyssen 36 knights are active. "

http://www.nadir.org/nadir/archiv/Antifasc...n/neuerech.html

Having so many knights of the order in German banking is an important factor in controling Europe.

We all know how the FED is structured. Now remember that the German Federal Central Bank boasts of being based on the FED and the relatively new European Central Bank is proud of being based on the German system.

Franz von Papen was military attache in Washington before and during WWI. I wonder if he had Georgetown and SMOM contact.

"In 1914 Papen was sent to Washington as a military attaché. While in the United States he helped to arrange for a company in Bridgeport to produce armaments for Germany. However, in 1915 he was forced to leave the country after being accused of attempting to sabotage American armaments production for the Allies."

http://www.spartacus.schoolnet.co.uk/GERpapen.htm

I wonder if he was send home early after getting directions from the higher ranks. He worked with armaments production for WWI?

The only real big one in Bridgeport I can find is Remington. So von Papen must have made good connections as he brought business. Later right in the buildup of Hitlers powergrab the DuPont bloodline got hold of it – looks like they knew it would be worth a buy.

Dear Boris,

You are a top notch researcher!

Thanks for all your work and effort. I imagined the Order had accomplished in Germany what it had accomplished here in the American Empire. You proved it!

Sincerely in faith,

G-8: Iran has 3 months to stop uranium enrichment

By JOHN HEILPRIN (AP)
http://www.google.com/hostednews/ap/articl...FUTfwwD9ATSPH80

UNITED NATIONS — Italian Foreign Minister Franco Frattini said Thursday that the Group of Eight nations is giving Iran until the end of the year to commit to ending uranium enrichment and avoid new sanctions.

Frattini, whose nation holds the rotating chair of the club of wealthy nations known as the G-8, said the member's foreign ministers agreed Wednesday night to give Iran more time.

"It seems to me a reasonable perspective. And after the end of December, I strongly hope we will have at that time practical moves from Iran," Frattini said.

"That's why together we decided while not excluding further measures, as even Russia apparently said, we have to give Iran a serious chance," he said. "If we give a chance, let's give a chance. Don't, I would say, immediately put another option on the table. This would be counterproductive to the eyes of our counterpart. This is our strategy for the moment."

The U.S. has only just won Russian agreement to consider new sanctions against Iran to add pressure on Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, who insists Tehran's nuclear program is designed only to generate electricity.

Frattini said that the informal agreement will be re-examined each month until the end of the year.

He said the G-8 could not let the Iranians believe the world's economic powers are "relaxed" and willing to let Iran string them along.

"But we are to make it absolutely clear that our window of opportunity will not remain open indefinitely," Frattini told a group of reporters on the sidelines of the United Nations General Assembly.

Frattini said G-8 ministers — the U.S., Britain, Italy, France, Germany, Canada, Japan and Russia — also agreed that "concerning links" were emerging between Iran and North Korea.

Russian President Dmitry Medvedev opened the door Wednesday to backing potential sanctions. He moved in that direction after President Barack Obama scrapped plans for a U.S. missile shield in Eastern Europe.

While U.S. and Russian officials denied a quid pro quo, Medvedev told the U.N. General Assembly that Obama's roll-back on the missile defense plan "deserves a positive response." Obama himself has said his missile decision may have spurred Russian good will as a "bonus."

Ahmadinejad has taken a softer tone on many matters since arriving in New York for the U.N. meetings, emphasizing his interest in improving relations with the United States and expressing an openness to include nuclear matters on the negotiations agenda.

He has given no sign, however, that his country is willing to bargain away its nuclear program.

A member of the Russian delegation, speaking on condition of anonymity under ground rules set by the Russians, said Moscow's final position on the question of imposing further sanctions would be determined, to a large extent, by Medvedev's consultations here.

The U.S. and Russia are among six countries that will hold talks in Europe next week with Iran over its nuclear ambitions. Obama wants to reserve the possibility of pursuing tougher sanctions if those meetings lead to no restraint by Iran in the weeks ahead. Russia, which has strong economic ties with Tehran, has stood in the way of stronger action against Iran in the past.

Israel's nuclear programme

Israel built the Dimona plant with help from France

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/middle_east/3340639.stm

While Israel has never admitted to having nuclear weapons, few international experts question the Jewish state's presence on the world's list of nuclear powers.

Its nuclear capability is arguably the most secretive weapons of mass destruction programme in the world.

Unlike Iran and North Korea - two countries whose alleged nuclear ambitions have recently come to the fore - Israel has never signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, designed to prevent the global spread of nuclear weapons.

As a result, it is not subject to inspections and the threat of sanctions by the United Nations nuclear watchdog, the International Atomic Energy Agency.

The extent of Israel's nuclear capability has been the subject of often wildly inaccurate intelligence estimates since the 1960s, when the country's nuclear reactor, at Dimona in the Negev desert, came online.
The suspicion and fog surrounding this question are constructive, because they strengthen our deterrent Shimon Peres
Former Israeli Prime Minister

The shrouds of secrecy have lifted only once, in the mid-1980s, when a former worker at the plant, Mordechai Vanunu, gave a British newspaper descriptions and photographs of Israeli nuclear warheads.

Vanunu's evidence led to a sharp upwards revision of the number of nuclear warheads Israel was believed to possess - to at least 100 - and possibly as many as 200.

By way of comparison, India and Pakistan - the most recent members of the "nuclear club" - are widely believed to have about 20 warheads each. They successfully carried out nuclear weapons tests in 1998, leading to fears of an escalated conflict between the two rival South Asian powers.

There is no evidence that Israel has ever carried out a nuclear test, but there is speculation that a suspected nuclear explosion in the southern Indian Ocean in 1979 was a joint Israeli-South African test. Post-apartheid South Africa has dismantled its nuclear weapons programme.

Origins

Shortly after its creation as a Jewish homeland in 1948 and following the horrors of the Holocaust, in which six million European Jews were murdered, Israel began showing an interest in acquiring nuclear weapons - the "ultimate deterrent".

In 1952, the Israeli Atomic Energy Commission was formed and began working closely with the Israeli military.

By 1953, a process for extracting uranium found in the Negev desert was perfected and a new method of producing heavy water was developed - providing Israel with its own capability to produce some of the most important nuclear materials.

Mordechai Vanunu: Viewed as a traitor and a spy by most Israelis

For reactor design and construction, Israel sought and received the assistance of France.

According to Washington-based website GlobalSecurity.org, a secret agreement between the two nations saw construction of the Dimona plant begin in the late 1950s.

The complex was variously described as a textile plant, an agricultural station and a metallurgical research facility until 1960, when Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion stated that it was a nuclear research centre built for "peaceful purposes".

From its early suspicions that Israel had nuclear ambitions - overflights by U-2 spy planes revealed Dimona's construction in 1958 - the United States expressed concern.

During the 1960s, US inspectors visited Dimona several times but were unable to obtain an accurate picture of the activities carried out there.

GlobalSecurity.org says the Israelis went so far as to install false control room panels and to brick over elevators and hallways that accessed certain areas of the facility.

The inspectors were able to report that there was no clear scientific research or civilian nuclear power programme justifying such a large reactor - seen as circumstantial evidence of the Israeli bomb programme - but found no evidence of "weapons-related activities".

In 1968, a US Central Intelligence Agency report concluded that Israel had begun to produce nuclear weapons.

Years of speculation about the size of Israel's nuclear arsenal followed.

The Vanunu affair

In 1986, Mordechai Vanunu, who had worked as a technician at the Dimona complex, gave London's Sunday Times newspaper detailed information about Israel's nuclear programme that led observers to declare Israel the world's sixth largest nuclear power.

Before he could reveal more to the media, Vanunu became the victim of a classic "honey trap".

He was lured out of hiding in London by a female Israeli secret agent who persuaded him that she wanted to meet him in Rome. Once there, he was drugged by other Israeli agents and brought home.

Later that year, he was jailed for 18 years after a trial for treason that was held in secret. Viewed as a traitor and a spy by most Israelis, Vanunu remains in prison to this day and has spent most of his sentence in solitary confinement.

Israel's former Prime Minister Shimon Peres, widely regarded as the architect of Israel's nuclear weapons programme, testified at the trial that Vanunu had done serious damage to Israel's security.

Mr Peres subsequently said: "A certain amount of secrecy must be maintained in some fields. The suspicion and fog surrounding this question are constructive, because they strengthen our deterrent."

Arab anger

Other states in the Middle East, many of them strong supporters of the Palestinian cause, have expressed deep concern about the existence of an Israeli nuclear weapons programme.

They also accuse the US of operating a regional policy of double-standards, ignoring Israel's weapons programmes while insisting that others - notably pre-war Iraq, Iran and Syria - are a threat to peace because of their alleged weapons of mass destruction.

The head of the IAEA, an Egyptian, is regarded with suspicion in Israel

The head of the International Atomic Energy Agency recently urged Israel to sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and surrender its nuclear weapons in order to further peace in the Middle East.

Mohamed ElBaradei told an Israeli newspaper, Haaretz, that the IAEA operated under the assumption that Israel had nuclear weapons despite the fact that it had never officially confirmed this.

He warned that Israel's belief that it was safer because it possessed such weapons was false, as other Middle Eastern countries felt threatened by their presence.

And he urged Israel and its neighbours to begin talks on halting the spread of nuclear weapons in the Middle East.

"My fear is that, without such a dialogue, there will be continued incentive for the region's countries to develop weapons of mass destruction to match the Israeli arsenal," he said.

Iran loses its only AWACS as Ahmadinejad threatens the world

Iran's AWACS destroyed in parade collision

DEBKAfile Exclusive Report
September 23, 2009, 12:20 PM (GMT+02:00)

Up above a big military parade in Tehran on Tuesday, Sept. 22, as Iranian president declared Iran's armed forces would "chop off the hands" of any power daring to attack his country, two air force jets collided in mid-air. One was Iran's only airborne warning and control system (AWACS) for coordinating long-distance aerial operations, DEBKAfile's military and Iranian sources disclose.

The proud military parade, which included a march-past, a line of Shehab-3 missiles and an air force fly-past, was planned to give Ahmadinejad a dazzling send-off for New York and add steel to his UN Assembly speech Wednesday.

Dubbed "Simorgh" (a flying creature of Iranian fable which performs wonders in mid-flight), the AWACS' appearance, escorted by fighter jets, was to have been the climax for the Iranian Air force's fly-past over the parade. Instead, it collided with one of escorting planes, a US-made F-5E, and both crashed to the ground in flames. All seven crewmen were killed.

Eye witnesses reported that the flaming planes landed on the mausoleum burial site of the Islamic revolution's founder Ruhollah Khomeini, a national shrine. According to Western observers, no distress signals came from either cockpit indicating that the collision and explosions were sudden and fast.

DEBKAfile's military sources say the disaster was a serious blow to the Iranian Air Force not long after its first and only AWACS went into service in April 2008. It was a renovated version of the Russian Ilyushin 76, part of Saddam Hussein's air force before it was transferred to Iran in 1991 during the first Gulf War.

Tehran hired Russian technicians to carry out renovations and install up-to-date radar. At the launching ceremony of the upgraded AWACS, Air Force commander Brig. Gen. Ahmad Miqani boasted its new radar systems were made in Iran and able to spot any airplane or missile at a distance of 1,000 kilometers from Iran's borders.

The loss of this airborne control system has left Iran's air force and air and missile defenses without "electronic eyes" for surveillance of the skies around its borders.

Too late to stop Tehran, Obama aims to stifle an Israeli attack

DEBKAfile Special Analysis

September 26, 2009
http://www2.debka.com/article.php?aid=1405

Maestro Barack Obama's histrionics in New York and Pittsburgh Thursday and Friday, Sept. 24-25 - and his threat of "confrontation" for Iran's concealment of its nuclear capabilities - were water off a duck's back for Tehran, whose nuclear weapons program has gone too far to stop by words or even sanctions.

The Islamic regime only responded with more defiance, announcing that its second uranium enrichment plant near Qom would become operational soon.

The US president's tough words and willingness to step out of his axiomatic insistence on dialogue and turn to economic warfare against Iran may be impressive but it is no longer effective. Tehran is too close to its goal of a nuclear weapons capability to be deterred by offers of engagement or economic penalties.

Obama certainly knows this. He also understands that Iran is now unstoppable except by force. His performance was therefore directed at another target: Israel, whom he is determined to dissuade from resorting to military action against Iran's nuclear installations.

Defense secretary Robert Gates hit the nail on the head when he said Friday: "The reality is there is no military option that does anything more than buy time. The estimates are one to three years or so."

Iran was allowed to reach the point defined by Gates thanks to the permissiveness of two US presidents George W. Bush and Bill Clinton and two Israeli prime ministers, Ariel Sharon and Ehud Olmert. They had no illusions about the deterrent value of the three sets of UN Security sanctions imposed to punish Iran, but held back from pre-emptive action on the pretext that there was still plenty of time before Iran was in a position to destroy Israel.

In any case, Israeli leaders argued, Iran's nuclear ambitions were a threat to the whole world and it was therefore incumbent on the "international community" to take care of them.

This of course did not happen. Iran carried on exploiting international inaction, finally capitalizing on Obama's foot-dragging in his first nine months in office.

By now, Iran has used the gift of time to process enough enriched uranium to fuel two nuclear bombs and is able to produce another two per year.

Its advanced medium-range missiles will be ready to deliver nuclear warheads by next year.

Detonators for nuclear bombs are in production at two secret sites.

And finally, a second secret uranium enrichment plant - subject of the stern warning issued collectively in Pittsburgh Friday by Obama, French president Nicolas Sarkozy and British premier Gordon Brown - has come to light, buried under a mountain near Qom. Its discovery doubles - at least - all previous estimates of Iran's nuclear capabilities.

Caught red-handed yet again in massive deceit, the Iranian president Mahdmoud Ahmadinejad had only more defiance to offer. America owes his government an apology, he told interviewers in New York Friday, because the new plant would not be operational for 18 months, and Tehran had therefore not violated International Atomic Energy Agency rules requiring notification.

He was soon caught in another lie.

Saturday, the Iranian news agency was informed by an aide of supreme leader Ali Khamenei that "the new plant would become operational soon."

Iran's published concealments and deceptions are disquieting enough. But a whole lot more are undoubtedly buried in fat intelligence dossiers on Iran's nuclear program - plutonium production, for instance. The progress made in its plutonium-based weapons program was never mentioned in the stern condemnations of the last few days, except indirectly in a quiet comment from an anonymous Israeli official Friday night.

He said Iran operates on two hourglasses and both were running out fast. He was referring obliquely to the enriched uranium and the plutonium tracks.

Sarkozy was clearly thinking about those undiscovered Iranian secrets and evasions when he declared in Pittsburgh:

"Everything - everything must be put on the table now" (at the October 1 meeting of the Six Powers with Iranian negotiators). Obama too urged Iran "to come clean."

All the powers concerned - the US, Russia, France, Germany the UK and even China - have the same information as Israel and are fully aware that Iran has already crossed a number of red lines this year and will cross more in 2010. The more time allowed for diplomacy and engagement, the greater Tehran's defiance. Meanwhile, world powers will argue - not over futile sanctions, but on how to stop Israel, so wasting several more months.

DEBKAfile's sources note that the Gates assessment and the cooling note he injected into the US president's oratory came after Israeli defense minister Ehud Barak visited the Pentagon. The visit clearly did not change Gates' view that the Iranian nuclear program was now too advanced to stop, while the use of force would only gain an interval of up to three years, after which Tehran would pick itself up and start again. Therefore, according to Gates, diplomacy remained the only viable option.

The answer to this argument is simple: It is exactly this approach which gave Iran 11 quiet years to develop its weapons capacity. For Israel and Middle East, a three-year setback is a very long time, a security boon worth great risk, because a) It would be a happy respite from the dark clouds hanging over the country from Iran and also cut back Hamas and Hizballah terrorist capabilities, and B) In the volatile Middle East anything can happen in 36 months.

But the US defense secretary believes Israel, like the rest of the world, must accept life under the shadow of a nuclear-armed Iran and make the best of it.

This view is shared by the Kremlin. It was advanced by prime minister Vladimir Putin to Binyamin Netanyahu during his secret trip to Moscow on Sept. 7.

According to DEBKAfile's Russian sources, when the Israeli prime minister tried to counter Putin's thesis and explain what restraint meant for Israel, the Russian prime minster became impatient and told his guest to leave.

After that interview, the Israeli government can no longer avoid appreciating that Gates and Putin talk the real talk for Washington and Moscow, while their leaders' moralistic condemnations of Iran are mainly hot air for public consumption and for maneuvering Israel into a position where a military strike would be hard to conceive.

Netanyahu's Sphinx-like silence on the nuclear to-do in the US this week was apt. But it is hard to tell what he is hiding. Will he succumb to the world powers' pressure to sit tight while Iran goes all the way to a military nuclear capability - or face up to it and act?

This is the most important decision of Netanyahu's political life as two-time prime minister of Israel. It will also determine Israel's future.

kalongi - September 26, 2009 08:58 PM (GMT)

The Iran Attack Plan

Iran's acknowledgment that it is developing a second uranium-enrichment facility does little to dispel the view that the regime is developing a weapons program. Israel must consider not just whether to proceed with a strike against Iran—but how. By Anthony H. Cordesman

http://online.wsj.com/article/SB1000142405...3806271306.html

When the Israeli army'sthen-Deputy Chief of Staff Dan Halutz was asked in 2004 how far Israel would go to stop Iran's nuclear program, he replied: "2,000 kilometers," roughly the distance been the two countries.

Israel's political and military leaders have long made it clear that they are considering taking decisive military action if Iran continues to develop its nuclear program. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu warned at the United Nations this week that "the most urgent challenge facing this body is to prevent the tyrants of Tehran from acquiring nuclear weapons."

Reporting by the International Atomic Energy Agency and other sources has made it clear that whether or not Iran ties all of its efforts into a formal nuclear weapons program, it has acquired all of the elements necessary to make and deliver such weapons. Just Friday, Iran confirmed that it has been developing a second uranium-enrichment facility on a military base near Qom, doing little to dispel the long-standing concerns of Britain, China, France, Germany, Russia, and the U.S. that Iran is developing nuclear weapons.

Iran has acquired North Korean and other nuclear weapons design data through sources like the sales network once led by the former head of Pakistan's nuclear program, A. Q. Khan. Iran has all of the technology and production and manufacturing capabilities needed for fission weapons. It has acquired the technology to make the explosives needed for a gun or implosion device, the triggering components, and the neutron initiator and reflectors. It has experimented with machine uranium and plutonium processing. It has put massive resources into a medium-range missile program that has the range payload to carry nuclear weapons and that makes no sense with conventional warheads. It has also worked on nuclear weapons designs for missile warheads. These capabilities are dispersed in many facilities in many cities and remote areas, and often into many buildings in each facility—each of which would have to be a target in an Israeli military strike.

It is far from certain that such action would be met with success. An Israeli strike on Iran would be far more challenging than the Israeli strike that destroyed Iraq's Osirak reactor in 1981. An effective Israeli nuclear strike may not be possible, yet a regional nuclear arms race is a game that Iran can start, but cannot possibly win. Anyone who meets regularly with senior Israeli officials, officers and experts knows that Israel is considering military options, but considering them carefully and with an understanding that they pose serious problems and risks.

One of the fundamental problems dogging Israel, especially concerning short-ranged fighters and fighter-bombers, is distance. Iran's potential targets are between 950 and 1,400 miles from Israel, the far margin of the ranges Israeli fighters can reach, even with aerial refueling. Israel would be hard-pressed to destroy all of Iran's best-known targets. What's more, Iran has had years in which to build up covert facilities, disperse elements of its nuclear and missile programs, and develop options for recovering from such an attack.

At best, such action would delay Iran's nuclear buildup. It is more likely to provoke the country into accelerating its plans. Either way, Israel would have to contend with the fact that it has consistently had a "red light" from both the Bush and Obama administrations opposing such strikes. Any strike that overflew Arab territory or attacked a fellow Islamic state would stir the ire of neighboring Arab states, as well as Russia, China and several European states.

This might not stop Israel. Hardly a week goes by without another warning from senior Israeli officials that a military strike is possible, and that Israel cannot tolerate a nuclear-armed Iran, even though no nation has indicated it would support such action. President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad continues to threaten Israel and to deny its right to exist. At the same time, President Barack Obama is clearly committed to pursuing diplomatic options, his new initiatives and a U.N. resolution on nuclear arms control and counterproliferation, and working with our European allies, China and Russia to impose sanctions as a substitute for the use of force.

Mr. Ahmadinejad keeps denying that Iran is seeking nuclear weapons, and tries to defend Iran from both support for sanctions and any form of attack by saying that Iran will negotiate over its peaceful use of nuclear power. He offered some form of dialogue with the U.S. during his visit to the U.N. this week. While French President Nicolas Sarkozy denounced Iran's continued lack of response to the Security Council this week, and said its statements would "wipe a U.N. member state off the map," no nation has yet indicated it would support Israeli military action.

Most analyses of a possible Israeli attack focus on only three of Iran's most visible facilities: its centrifuge facilities at Natanz, its light water nuclear power reactor near Bushehr, and a heavy water reactor at Arak it could use to produce plutonium. They are all some 950 to 1,000 miles from Israel. Each of these three targets differs sharply in terms of the near-term risk it poses to Israel and its vulnerability.

The Arak facility is partially sheltered, but it does not yet have a reactor vessel and evidently will not have one until 2011. Arak will not pose a tangible threat for at least several years. The key problem Israel would face is that it would virtually have to strike it as part of any strike on the other targets, because it cannot risk waiting and being unable to carry out another set of strikes for political reasons. It also could then face an Iran with much better air defenses, much better long-range missile forces, and at least some uranium weapons.

Bushehr is a nuclear power reactor along Iran's southwestern coast in the Gulf. It is not yet operational, although it may be fueled late this year. It would take some time before it could be used to produce plutonium, and any Iranian effort to use its fuel rods for such a purpose would be easy to detect and lead Iran into an immediate political confrontation with the United Nations and other states. Bushehr also is being built and fueled by Russia—which so far has been anything but supportive of an Israeli strike and which might react to any attack by making major new arms shipments to Iran.

The centrifuge facility at Natanz is a different story. It is underground and deeply sheltered, and is defended by modern short-range Russian TOR-M surface-to-air missiles. It also, however, is the most important target Israel can fully characterize. Both Israeli and outside experts estimate that it will produce enough low enriched uranium for Iran to be able to be used in building two fission nuclear weapons by some point in 2010—although such material would have to be enriched far more to provide weapons-grade U-235.

Israel has fighters, refueling tankers and precision-guided air-to-ground weapons to strike at all of these targets—even if it flies the long-distance routes needed to avoid the most critical air defenses in neighboring Arab states. It is also far from clear that any Arab air force would risk engaging Israeli fighters. Syria, after all, did not attempt to engage Israeli fighters when they attacked the reactor being built in Syria.

In August 2003, the Israeli Air Force demonstrated the strategic capability to strike far-off targets such as Iran by flying three F-15 jets to Poland, 1,600 nautical miles away. Israel can launch and refuel two to three full squadrons of combat aircraft for a single set of strikes against Iran, and provide suitable refueling. Israel could also provide fighter escorts and has considerable electronic-warfare capability to suppress Iran's aging air defenses. It might take losses to Iran's fighters and surface-to-air missiles, but such losses would probably be limited.

Israel would, however, still face two critical problems. The first would be whether it can destroy a hardened underground facility like Natanz. The second is that a truly successful strike might have to hit far more targets over a much larger area than the three best-known sites. Iran has had years to build up covert and dispersed facilities, and is known to have dozens of other facilities associated with some aspect of its nuclear programs. Moreover, Israel would have to successfully strike at dozens of additional targets to do substantial damage to another key Iranian threat: its long-range missiles.

Experts sharply disagree as to whether the Israeli air force could do more than limited damage to the key Iranian facility at Natanz. Some feel it is too deeply underground and too hardened for Israel to have much impact. Others believe that it is more vulnerable than conventional wisdom has it, and Israel could use weapons like the GBU-28 earth-penetrating bombs it has received from the U.S. or its own penetrators, which may include a nuclear-armed variant, to permanently collapse the underground chambers.

No one knows what specialized weapons Israel may have developed on its own, but Israeli intelligence has probably given Israel good access to U.S., European, and Russian designs for more advanced weapons than the GBU-28. Therefore, the odds are that Israel can have a serious impact on Iran's three most visible nuclear targets and possibly delay Iran's efforts for several years.

The story is very different, however, when it comes to destroying the full range of Iranian capabilities. There are no meaningful unclassified estimates of Iran's total mix of nuclear facilities, but known unclassified research, reactor, and centrifuge facilities number in the dozens. It became clear just this week that Iran managed to conceal the fact it was building a second underground facility for uranium enrichment near Qom, 100 miles southwest of Tehran, and that was designed to hold 3,000 centrifuges. Iran is developing at least four variants of its centrifuges, and the more recent designs have far more capacity than most of the ones installed at Natanz.

This makes it easier to conceal chains of centrifuges in a number of small, dispersed facilities and move material from one facility to another. Iran's known centrifuge production facilities are scattered over large areas of Iran, and at least some are in Mashad in the far northeast of the country—far harder to reach than Arak, Bushehr and Natanz.

Many of Iran's known facilities present the added problem that they are located among civilian facilities and peaceful nuclear-research activities—although Israel's precision-strike capabilities may well be good enough to allow it to limit damage to nearby civilian facilities.

It is not clear that Israel can win this kind of "shell game." It is doubtful that even the U. S. knows all the potential targets, and even more doubtful that any outside power can know what each detected Iranian facility currently does—and the extent to which each can hold dispersed centrifuge facilities that Iran could use instead of Natanz to produce weapons-grade uranium. As for the other elements of Iran's nuclear programs, it has scattered throughout the country the technical and industrial facilities it could use to make the rest of fission nuclear weapons. The facilities can now be in too many places for an Israeli strike to destroy Iran's capabilities.

Israel also faces limits on its military capabilities. Strong as Israeli forces are, they lack the scale, range and other capabilities to carry out the kind of massive strike the U.S. could launch. Israel does not have the density and quality of intelligence assets necessary to reliably assess the damage done to a wide range of small and disperse targets and to detect new Iranian efforts.

Israel has enough strike-attack aircraft and fighters in inventory to carry out a series of restrikes if Iran persisted in rebuilding, but it could not refuel a large-enough force, or provide enough intelligence and electronic warfare capabilities, to keep striking Iran at anything like the necessary scale. Moreover, Israel does not have enough forces to carry out a series of restrikes if Iran persisted in creating and rebuilding new facilities, and Arab states could not repeatedly standby and let Israel penetrate their air space. Israel might also have to deal with a Russia that would be far more willing to sell Iran advanced fighters and surface-to-air missiles if Israel attacked the Russian-built reactor at Bushehr.

These problems are why a number of senior Israeli intelligence experts and military officers feel that Israel should not strike Iran, although few would recommend that Israel avoid using the threat of such strikes to help U.S. and other diplomatic efforts to persuade Iran to halt. For example, retired Brigadier General Shlomo Brom advocates, like a number of other Israeli experts, reliance on deterrence and Israel's steadily improving missile defenses.

Any Israeli attack on an Iranian nuclear target would be a very complex operation in which a relatively large number of attack aircraft and support aircraft would participate.

The conclusion is that Israel could attack only a few Iranian targets—not as part of a sustainable operation over time, but as a one-time surprise operation.

The alternatives, however, are not good for Israel, the U.S., Iran's neighbors or Arab neighbors. Of course being attacked is not good for Iran. Israel could still strike, if only to try to buy a few added years of time. Iranian persistence in developing nuclear weapons could push the U.S. into launching its own strike on Iran—although either an Israeli or U.S. strike might be used by Iran's hardliners to justify an all-out nuclear arms race. Further, it is far from clear that friendly Arab Gulf states would allow the U.S. to use bases on their soil for the kind of massive strike and follow-on restrikes that the U. S. would need to suppress Iran's efforts on a lasting basis.

The broader problem for Iran, however, is that Israel will not wait passively as Iran develops a nuclear capability. Like several Arab states, Israel already is developing better missile and air defenses, and more-advanced forms of its Arrow ballistic missile defenses. There are reports that Israel is increasing the range-payload of its nuclear-armed missiles and is developing sea-based nuclear-armed cruise missiles for its submarines.

While Iran is larger than Israel, its population centers are so vulnerable to Israeli thermonuclear weapons that Israel already is a major "existential" threat to Iran. Moreover, provoking its Arab neighbors and Turkey into developing their nuclear capabilities, or the U.S. into offering them a nuclear umbrella targeted on Iran, could create additional threats, as well as make Iran's neighbors even more dependent on the U.S. for their security. Iran's search for nuclear-armed missiles may well unite its neighbors against it as well as create a major new nuclear threat to its survival.

(CNN) -- Iran tested a missile-launching system and two types of missiles Sunday, the state-run Press TV said. The missile tests come amid tension over the Islamic republic's nuclear program.

Iran test-fired a missile in May that was believed to be able to reach parts of Europe.

The missiles, fired at targets around the country Sunday, included the Fateh-110, a short-range ground-to-ground missile, and Tondar-69, a short-range naval missile, the station said. Iran plans to test the long-range Shahab missile on Monday.

The tests, which are expected to go on for the next 10 to 11 days, are codenamed "Payghambar-e Azam 4" or "The Great Messenger 4," Press TV said.

Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps had said it would stage missile exercises to promote the armed forces' defense capabilities.

The tests come after Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's disclosure Friday that Iran was building a second uranium enrichment facility.

The United States and Israel believe that Iran is seeking nuclear weapons under the guise of a civilian nuclear energy program. Iran has denied the allegation.

In May, Iran said it tested a surface-to-surface missile that is capable of reaching parts of Europe.

Merkel 'heads for' new coalition

Chancellor Merkel has vowed to get Germany out of the recession
Chancellor Angela Merkel has been returned to power in Germany, exit polls suggest, after her conservative bloc won more than 33% of the vote.

Mrs Merkel told supporters they had achieved "something magnificent", but said she wanted to be a chancellor of all Germans at a moment of crisis.

Mrs Merkel's bloc now looks set to form a centre-right alliance with her preferred partner, the pro-reform FDP.

Her rival, SPD leader Frank Walter Steinmeier, admitted a "bitter defeat".

He said his party would be "vigilant in opposition".

"The voters have decided and the result is a bitter day for German Social Democracy ... there is no way of talking it up - the result is a bitter defeat," the SPD leader said.

The BBC's Steve Rosenberg in Berlin says the result seems a disaster for the Social Democrats (SPD), who could have their lowest share of the vote since World War II.

The SPD have shared power with Mrs Merkel's CDU/CSU in an awkward grand coalition since the last elections in 2005.

Preliminary results are expected in the next few hours.

Mrs Merkel has said that her new alliance, with the pro-business Free Democrats (FDP) will get Europe's biggest economy out of its deepest crisis since World War II.

An exit poll for ZDF television gave the CDU/CSU 33.5%, SPD 23.5% and the FDP, Mrs Merkel's preferred partners, 14.5%.

This would give the centre-right alliance, with 48% in total, a narrow majority over the SPD and the two other major parties, the Greens and the Left, both of which increased their share of the vote.

"A black-yellow coalition looks set, we have reached our goal," said CDU general secretary Volker Kauder, quoted by AFP news agency.

ZDF TV EXIT POLL FIGURES
CDU/CSU: 33.5%
SPD: 23.5%
FDP: 14.5%
Green party: 10%

Exit polls in Germany, Europe's largest economy and the biggest member of the European Union, are generally considered to be extremely reliable.

The campaign has been overshadowed by security concerns following a series of al-Qaeda messages warning Germany to pull some 4,200 troops out of Afghanistan.

Iran tests longest range missiles

Monday, 28 September 2009 14:27 UKE-mail this to a friend Printable
http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/middle_east/8278026.stm

Iran has successfully test-fired some of the longest range missiles in its arsenal, state media say.

The Revolutionary Guards tested the Shahab-3 and Sajjil rockets, which are believed to have ranges of up to 2,000km (1,240 miles), reports said.

The missiles' range could potentially permit them to reach Israel and US bases in the Gulf, analysts say.

The tests come amid heightened tension with the big international powers over Iran's nuclear ambitions.

Last week, Iran disclosed it was building a second uranium enrichment plant, despite UN demands that it cease its enrichment activities.
ANALYSIS
Jon Leyne, BBC Tehran correspondent

These missile tests are being carried out as part of Iran's sacred defence week, so they were probably planned some time ago.

Nevertheless the West is likely to see this as a gesture of defiance just days after the latest revelation about Iran's nuclear programme. Iran may not mind too much about that interpretation.

Both the Shahab-3 and the Sajjil are capable of reaching much of the Middle East including Israel.

They make up what is probably Iran's strongest deterrent against any possible attack by Israel or the West.

Iran is due to hold crucial talks with the five UN Security Council members plus Germany on Thursday on a wide range of security issues, including its nuclear programme.

Iran's foreign ministry spokesman Hassan Qashqavi said the missile tests were merely part of an annual military drill, known as Sacred Defence Week, to commemorate its war with Iraq in the 1980s.

It was not a reaction to the nuclear crisis, he added.

"Many countries have these [displays] and it has nothing to do with Iran's peaceful nuclear technology," he told a news conference.

France called on Tehran to immediately stop "these deeply destabilising activities".

In a statement, the foreign ministry urged Iran to co-operate "by responding without delay to the demands of the international community to reach a negotiated settlement on the nuclear question".

But Russia appealed for restraint, saying the world should not "succumb to emotions" in dealing with Iran.

"The main thing is to launch productive negotiations [with Iran]," a foreign ministry source told Interfax news agency.

Gesture of defiance

"An improved version of Shahab-3 and the two-stage Sajjil, powered by solid fuel, were fired," the Guards' air force commander Hossein Salami was quoted as saying by the state-owned Arabic language TV channel al-Alam.

Talks herald new phase for Iran
Iran's arsenal of missiles

Footage of the test-firing of the Shahab-3 in desert terrain was broadcast by another state-owned channel, Press TV.

The Shahab-3 (Meteor-3) is classed as a medium range ballistic missile but is the longest-range rocket Iran has successfully tested in public.

Iran says the missile, which it first tested in July 2008, can fly some 2,000km, although Western defence experts have put the strike range at 1,300km (807 miles).

The surface-to-surface Sajjil is a new, two-stage missile using solid fuel, which is considered to give a more accurate delivery than liquid fuel rockets.

It has been tested by Iran twice, in November 2008 and May 2009.

The BBC's Tehran correspondent Jon Leyne says Iran's enemies might be most worried by the test-firing of the Sajjil missile.

It is more advanced, and multiple stage rockets offer the potential for longer ranges, he says.

The Shahab-3 and Sajjil rockets are currently believed to be capable of reaching not only Israel and US bases in the Gulf, but also parts of Europe.

On Sunday, the medium-range Shahab-1 and 2 missiles with a range of 300 to 700km (186 to 434 miles) were tested.

The short-range Tondar-69 and Fateh-110 type, with a range of up to 170km (100 miles), were also tested.

Although the tests are likely to have been planned in advance, Iran will not be unhappy if they are seen as a gesture of defiance by the West, our correspondent adds.

Telecoms move

Iran is under increasing pressure to co-operate fully over its nuclear ambitions - particularly since the revelation of a previously undisclosed uranium enrichment plant. The Guards now own a key stake in Iran's telecommunications

President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad has insisted that the plant, near the holy city of Qom, does not breach UN regulations and says it is open for inspection by UN experts.

But leaders of the US, Britain and France accuse Tehran of keeping the plant secret in breach of UN rules.

They have raised the prospect of new, tougher sanctions against Iran if Thursday's meeting with the so-called P5+1 (US, UK, France, China, Russia and Germany) yields little progress.

In a separate development, Iranian state media report that a consortium linked to the Revolutionary Guards has bought a majority share in the state telecommunications company.

The Revolutionary Guards led the government response to the street protests that followed the disputed re-election of President Ahmadinejad - himself a former guard - in June.

During the demonstrations, the authorities interrupted mobile phone networks, hindering the opposition movement.

The Revolutionary Guard was set up shortly after the revolution to defend the country's Islamic system.

It has since become a major military, political and economic force, with close ties to the leadership.

Iran: Attacking us will expedite Israel's last breath

Last update - 17:09 28/09/2009
http://www.haaretz.com/hasen/spages/1117345.html

Iran's defense minister warned Israel again on Monday against launching any attack on the Islamic Republic, shortly after Iran test fired missiles reportedly capable of hitting Israel.

"If this [Israeli attack] happens, which of course we do not foresee, its ultimate result would be that it expedites the Zionist regime's last breath," Defense Minister Ahmad Vahidi said on state television.

Israeli leaders have repeatedly expressed alarm over Iran's nuclear ambitions and refused to rule out pre-emptive military action to prevent Iran from developing an atomic weapon.

Israel considers Iran a strategic threat due to its nuclear program, missile development and repeated references by Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad to Israel's destruction.

Iran, which insists its nuclear work is for peaceful power generation, has often shrugged off the possibility of any such strikes.

Vahidi, a former commander in the elite Revolutionary Guards, said that in the event of an Israeli attack its "lifespan, which is today coming to an end, would be speeded up."

He added that the "Zionist regime", the term Iran uses for Israel, was on a "slope of destruction."

Iran says it tested missiles 'capable of hitting Israel'

Earlier Monday, Iran said it successfully completed two days of missile tests including the launching of its longest-range missiles, weapons capable of carrying a warhead and striking Israel, U.S. military bases in the Middle East, and parts of Europe.

Iranian state television said the powerful Revolutionary Guard, which controls Iran's missile program, successfully tested upgraded versions of the medium-range Shahab-3 and Sajjil missiles with can fly up to 2,000 kilometers. It was the third and final round of missile tests in two days of drills by the Guard.

The Sajjil-2 missile is Iran's most advanced two-stage surface-to-surface missile and is powered entirely by solid-fuel while the older Shahab-3 uses a combination of solid and liquid fuel in its most advanced form, which is also known as the Qadr-F1.

Solid fuel is seen as a technological breakthrough for any missile program as solid fuel increases the accuracy of missiles in reaching targets.

The war games come at a time when Iran is under intense international pressure to fully disclose its nuclear activities. They began Sunday, two days after the U.S. and its allies disclosed that Iran had been secretly developing an underground uranium enrichment facility and warned the country it must open the site to international inspection or face harsher international sanctions.

Gen. Hossein Salami, head of the Revolutionary Guard Air Force, said Sunday the drills were meant to show Tehran is prepared to crush any military threat from another country.

The revelation of Iran's previously secret nuclear site has given greater urgency to a key meeting on Thursday in Geneva between Iran and six major powers trying to stop its suspected nuclear weapons program.

Television footage on Monday showed a missile soaring into the sky in desert-like terrain, to shouts of Allahu Akbar ("God is Great").

Earlier in the day, state TV said Iran had test-fired other medium-range missiles, a day after the Islamic Republic's elite Revolutionary Guards launched short-range missiles as part of several days of war games.

State Press TV, Iran's English-language satellite channel, said the Guards had test-fired Shahab 1 and 2 missiles with a range of between 300 and 700 km.

"Iran has successfully test-fired medium-range Shahab missiles with multiple warheads," Press TV said, adding the drill was aimed at "boosting the armed forces' deterrent capabilities."

Iran conducts war games or tests weapons to show its resolve to counter any attack by foes like Israel or the United States.

"Iran flexes muscles ... The tests are likely to be seen as an act of defiance by Iran," daily Iran News said.

Iran tests missiles on eve of Yom Kippur

On Sunday, Iran test fired the short-range missiles, state television reported, on the eve of the Jewish holiday of Yom Kippur.

Gen. Salami told reporters on Sunday that Iran tested a multiple missile launcher for the first time.

Press TV showed pictures of at least two missiles being fired simultaneously and said they were from Sunday's drill in a desert in central Iran. In the clip, men could be heard shouting Allahu Akbar as the missiles were launched.

"The message of the war game for some arrogant countries which intend to intimidate is that we are able to give a proper, strong answer to their hostility quickly," the Web site of state television quoted Salami as saying. He said the missiles successfully hit their targets.

The missile maneuvers coincided with increased tension in Iran's nuclear dispute with the West, after last week's disclosure by the Islamic Republic that it is building a second uranium enrichment plant.

The United States, which along with Israel and other Western nations suspects Iran is seeking to build nuclear bombs, has previously expressed concern about Tehran's missile program. Iran insists its nuclear work is for peaceful power generation purposes.

On Yom Kippur in 1973, a coalition of Arab states launched a surprise attack on Israel. The ensuing conflict, the Yom Kippur War, was particularly costly and traumatic for Israel.

SAUDIS WILL LET ISRAEL BOMB IRAN NUCLEAR SITE

Sunday September 27,2009
By Gordon Thomas and Camilla Tominey
http://www.express.co.uk/posts/view/130251...an-nuclear-site

INTELLIGENCE chief Sir John Scarlett has been told that Saudi Arabia is ready to allow Israel to bomb Iran's new nuclear site.

The head of MI6 discussed the issue in London with Mossad chief Meir Dagan and Saudi officials after British intelligence officers helped to uncover the plant, in the side of a mountain near the ancient city of Qom.

The site is seen as a major threat by Tel Aviv and Riyadh. Details of the talks emerged after John Bolton, America's former UN ambassador, told a meeting of intelligence analysts that "Riyadh certainly approves" of Israel's use of Saudi airspace.

Foreign Secretary David Miliband acknowledged that the danger of a nuclear arms race in the Middle East was "particularly potent" and refused to rule out military action altogether but he insisted: "We are 100 per cent focused on a diplomatic solution."

Gordon Brown, US President Barack Obama and French President Nicolas Sarkozy have warned Iran's leader Mahmoud Ahmadinejad that he must allow in weapons inspectors or face more sanctions.

The scene is set for a showdown next Thursday when Iranian officials meet representatives of the E3+3 group of Britain, France, Germany, the US, Russia and China in Geneva.

Significantly, Russia, which has previously resisted pressure for sanctions, said it also found the latest disclosures "disturbing".

The site near Qom was detected three years ago by British, US and French intelligence agencies.

Diplomatic sources said it could hold 3,000 centrifuges, capable of making enough enriched uranium to build a nuclear bomb each year.

Now I'm no expert on foreign affairs but I do know enough about the dynamics of what would happen if Israel (or anyone for that matter) attacks Iran.

Firstly, it pays to understand what you're up against when you're going to war.

Iran is a huge country with over 74 million inhabitants. It is home to one of the worlds oldest continuous major civilizations, dating back to 7000BC. It is probably the proudest and most independent nation in the region, also being that it is considered Persian and not Arab (as is the case with the majority of other nations in the Middle East apart from Israel). Iran is also one of the most peaceful countries in the world, having not waged war in more than 300 years.

However, anyone seeking to attack it should understand that it possesses a formidable armed forces.

Iran has over 540,000 active battle-ready troops, along with more than 30 million potential troops in manpower availability (fit-to-serve males between 15-49 years of age).

Iran has over 1,600 tanks that can roar up their engines and roll into battle at a moments notice. It's also worth noting that Iran's forces aren't exactly the old Iraqi Soviet-style rustbuckets that were blown to smithereens in the first and second Gulf Wars. Iran has a modern army by any standards.

Iran's air force is also worth noting. Amongst its 450 combat aircraft are F14A-Tomcat's, SU-24's, SU-25's, Dassault Mirage's and F-4D/E Phantom's. Anyone familiar with Iran's eight-year long war with Iraq will know that they don't fair too badly in dogfights.

Iran's missile forces aren't to be laughed at either. Their Shahab-3 long-range missile can hit any target in Israel, including their Dimona nuclear plant located in the Negev desert. If given the word, Iran could launch thousands of medium to long-range missiles at thousands of targets simultaneously, nearly anywhere in the Middle East region.

As for Iran's navy, it's the smallest of their three military branches, but it does have one catastrophically powerful card in its hand – the ability to shut down the Strait of Hormuz.

For those of you who aren't familiar with this Strait, it is the gateway through which 25% of the entire world's oil has to travel through. Iran has categorically stated that it will close this gateway if it is attacked. The economic fallout from that would be instant and global. The price of oil would skyrocket to over $250 per barrel, sending most markets into panic mode.

Moreover, the measures that Israel and the West would take to forcibly repoen the Strait of Hormuz would be complicated by the fact that it rests between a heavily fortified area of water, where Iran's Chinese-made Silkworm missiles are trained. You wouldn't go wandering into an area like this without a Carrier battle group.

And that's where things can get very ugly.

Israel doesn't have Carrier battle groups. The US and Britain do – and if either (or both) of these world powers become involved, the conflict becomes a widespread regional war. US and British military bases in the region become targets. These bases are in Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Turkey, Iraq, Jordan and Afghanistan.

To make matters even uglier, Syria's wartime military pact with Iran would be activated. Syria is a major military power in the region with 400,000 active military personel, including 4,700 tanks. Syria also has a wild card, being Russia's nuclear fleet based at the port of Tartus (in Syrian waters). Any provocation of this base by Western or Israeli forces may tempt the Russians to dispatch a few of those ships. In layman's terms, that could mean the difference between a limited regional battle and World War Three.

Hezbollah would certainly also be involved. Hezbollah's 1,000 well-trained fighters (including their 10,000 volunteers) would also be swung into action. Hezbollah's Zelzal-1 missiles can reach the Israeli capital Tel-Aviv. In total, they have over 40,000 rockets capable of hitting Israel.

Anyone familiar with Iran's role in Iraq won't be surprised to know that the Iranian cleric Grand Ayatollah Ali al-Sistani oversees Iraq's Shia population which numbers at about 60% of the entire Iraqi population. The Shia army and militias would rise up in the event of an attack on their Iranian allies (at the behest of al-Sistani) and create such upheaval across the country that the term "civil war" would be be a gross understatement.

The US and Britain are well aware of this consequence and have repeatedly sited it as a part of their strategic objection to war with Iran.

But the clincher? Well that's the most disturbing part of all. The reasoning that Israel has given for such an attack against Iran is Iran's suspected nuclear weapons program. A program that in all likelihood doesn't even exist. Iran does have, however, several nuclear reactors that are operational and "hot" (hot meaning radioactive). Should anyone attack these reactors, they would spew deadly radiation across the entire region. Chernobyl would pale in comparison to the human and environmental cost. Israel itself would not even be immune.

So, let's recap.

At the least, Israel would be dealing with a three to four-front war, which it would have little chance of winning alone. With the US and Britain also involved (should that be the case), the conflict would spiral beyond what military planners would be able to control and contain. The radioactive fallout from an attack on the reactors would be just as deadly to Israel as if Israel were to nuke itself.

The human and economic cost would be incalculable, both from the above factor and the war itself.

A clear winner in such a war would be doubtful, even if just for the complexity that such a battle would demand. Multiple armies, multiple economic impacts, multiple theatres of battle, multiple consequences…multiple outcomes.

Attacking Iran is not only ill-thought, it is blatantly suicidal

Gaffney: Iran on Brink of Having Nuclear Bomb, Using It

Monday, September 28, 2009 6:26 PM
By: Jim Meyers
http://www.newsmax.com/headlines/gaffney_i.../28/265789.html

Leading national security expert Frank Gaffney tells Newsmax we could be in the "last days" before Iran obtains nuclear weapons — and he warns that if they do, they absolutely will use them.

He also said Iran's weapons program is designed for "unprecedented" destruction, and called the Obama administration's decision to scrap the missile defense shield in Eastern Europe a "major mistake."

See Video: Frank Gaffney talks about the Iranian threat and what Obama must do to stop it - Click Here Now

Gaffney served in the Ronald Reagan administration as assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy, and is the Founder and President of the Center for Security Policy in Washington, D.C.

He is also host of the nationally syndicated program "Secure Freedom Radio," a columnist for several Web sites including Newsmax, and co-author of the book "War Footing: 10 Steps America Must Take to Prevail in the War for the Free World."

Referring to several terrorist plots that were recently broken up in the U.S., Gaffney compared the terrorist threat to the swine flu. Just as it's essential to recognize that the flu is caused by a virus, it's essential to understand that the terrorist threat is the result of Shariah — what "authoritative Islam calls their program for running everything," he told Newsmax.TV's Ashley Martella.

According to Shariah, the purpose of jihad is to bring about the triumph of Islam over the entire world, and Shariah commands that the faithful must use violence where possible to advance that objective.

"You cannot treat, let alone prevent, the onslaught of these 'viruses' without understanding their pathology," Gaffney said. "And I think this is a place where we better learn quickly, because if we fail to, the next attack may well be the one we don't stop."

He added that Shariah is what rules the Iranian government, which just tested advanced missiles that Iranian TV said can carry warheads up to 1,200 miles.

"Theocratic mullahs are in charge and they are pursuing their same responsibilities to wage jihad against the infidel — the West, and most especially Israel and the United States.

"The missiles they are developing, which will soon be able to have nuclear warheads, are designed for the purpose of waging destruction, apocalyptically in fact, on a scale that is unprecedented, and that is what I think you are facing now.

"We ignore both the reasons they are doing it and even the evidence that they are doing it at our extreme peril."

Considering Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's constant anti-Israeli and anti-U. S. rhetoric, does it appear he's intent on using nuclear weapons once Iran obtains them? Martella asked.

"I think you couldn't be more clear that he intends to use them," Gaffney said.

"Going back to the '30s, people thought that Hitler couldn't possibly mean what he was saying. Today people are similarly hoping that Ahmadinejad doesn't mean what he's saying. But he certainly says it with conviction. He says it repeatedly. He says it in public. He says it to his own constituency.

"There is I think no basis to [believe] that it is responsible, let alone safe, other than to believe that Ahmadinejad and the mullahs that run him and Iran, if able to get their hands on these missiles and nuclear warheads, will indeed use them."

Asked if the Obama administration can convince Russia and China to go along with harsh sanctions against Iran, Gaffney said:

"I think it very unlikely. I think even if the Chinese and Russians agree to some kind of further sanctions, it will probably be dragged out. It will be designed to continue to do what they've been doing to date, which is to provide political cover for their Iranian clients, or allies, and to buy the time the Iranians need to finish their nuclear weapons development program...

"We may be beyond the point at which sanctions could make much of a material difference. I think we're down to the last days, certainly weeks, maybe months at the outside, before the Iranians get the bomb."

As for hopes that sanctions could stir up unrest inside Iran and perhaps foster regime change, Gaffney said: "President Obama has had ample opportunity to associate the United States with those seeking freedom in Iran, to encourage them, to say nothing of to help them. He's done none of it."

Regarding the Obama administration's decision not to go ahead with plans to build a missile defense shield in Poland and the Czech Republic, Gaffney said it is a "major mistake to avoid steps that have already been agreed on, not only with the Poles and Czechs but with the NATO alliance...

"Those missile defenses that we were planning to put into Poland and the Czech Republic were designed to protect us in the United States as well against longer-range missiles that are also now coming into the Iranian arsenal.

"It is the height of folly to be undermining our allies, emboldening our enemies, and leaving us, as well as those allies, naked to these sorts of threats."

Iran nuke chief: IAEA inspection soon

Sep 29, 2009 11:20 | Updated Sep 29, 2009 13:25
By AP AND JPOST.COM STAFF

The UN nuclear watchdog will soon be told when it can conduct inspections of a newly revealed facility near Teheran, according to Iranian nuclear chief Ali Akbar Salehi.

Salehi told the English language state-owned Press TV early Monday that Iran would soon inform the International Atomic Energy Agency about when it could inspect its second uranium enriching facility.

Revelations that Iran possessed a previously unknown site for enriching uranium have sparked alarm in the US and among its allies, days before the six world powers were set to hold talks with the Islamic republic.

The nuclear site, which is apparently still 18 months from completion, is located in the arid mountains near the holy city of Qom and is believed to be inside a heavily guarded, underground facility belonging to the Revolutionary Guards, according to a document sent by the Obama administration to lawmakers.

Sept. 29 (Bloomberg) -- Iran may end its participation in the global nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty if talks this week in Geneva fail to resolve the international dispute over the country's atomic development, Iranian lawmaker Mohammad Karami- Rad, a members of the parliament's National Security and Foreign Policy Committee, was cited as saying by the state-run Islamic Republic News Agency.

JP Morgan: New Iran sanctions may affect oil flow

http://www.presstv.com/detail.aspx?id=1074...ionid=351020103

The Strait of Hormuz is the only sea passage to the open ocean for 40% of the world's seaborne oil shipments.

Imposing more sanctions against Iran could push Tehran to retaliate by reducing its crude oil output, a global financial firm says.

According to JP Morgan, growing tensions between some Western countries and Iran over the country's peaceful nuclear program could stir up concerns over a possible interruption of crude oil supplies.

Sung Yoo, oil strategist at J.P. Morgan, a financial institute providing assessment in investment banking, said on Monday that if "there was a reduction of Iranian crude output, it would be kind of muted given that OPEC currently has over 5 million barrels per day of spare capacity."

"The biggest risk would be any retaliation to the exports traveling through the Strait of Hormuz," he added.

The Strait of Hormuz is a narrow, strategically important waterway between the Gulf of Oman in the southeast and the Persian Gulf.

According to the US Energy Information Administration, an average of about 15 tankers carrying 16.5 to 17 million barrels of crude oil normally pass through the strait every day, making it one of the world's most strategically important choke points. This represents 40% of the world's seaborne oil shipments and 20% of all oil shipments worldwide.

Iran navy launches high-tech missile boat

http://www.presstv.com/detail.aspx?id=1073...ionid=351020101

Iran's Navy has started employing the most advanced home-made missile boat named Sina in a bid to bolster its defense naval capabilities.

The Sina class warship officially set sail in the Caspian Sea in northern Iran in a ceremony attended by Iran's Defense Minister Ahmad Vahidi and commander of the Iranian navy Rear Admiral Habibollah Sayyari.

The vessel has been designed and built by experts of Iran's Defense Ministry, in cooperation with Iran's army.

It has more than a hundred radar, artillery, electronic and telecommunication systems and is also equipped with modern navigation systems.

Access to this advanced scientific and research technology carries Iran's message of peace and friendship for regional countries.

Meanwhile, a top Iranian army commander said Tuesday that the country would produce an advanced version of its Sejil missile.

"A new generation of optimized and advanced Sejil missiles will be produced," the Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) Air Force Commander Brigadier General Hossein Salami told state news agency IRNA.

"The solid-fuel long-range Sejil missile has been tested since last year and was delivered to the armed forces and the IRGC air forces in particular," he said.

"The two-stage Sejil has high accuracy and destructive capability and is amongst the most advanced missile systems that the armed forces have."

Salami stressed that Iran's missile production industry would not stop and said, "Iran's missile industry has been indigenous and is increasing every day."

On Monday, Iran successfully test-fired long-range Shahab-3 and Sejil missiles in the third and last stage of an advanced military drill named The Great Prophet IV, which was carried out by the IRGC.

The optimized Shahab-3 has a range of 1,300 to 2,000 kilometers.

The Sejil is a two-stage missile powered by solid fuel which was tested by the IRGC for the first time in the maneuver.

Both of the projectiles accurately hit their designated targets.

The IRGC successfully test-fired several models of medium-range Shahab-1 and Shahab-2 missiles during the first and second stages of the military drill in central Iran Sunday night.

Salami said the Shahab-2 missiles would hit targets at least 300 kilometers and at the most 700 kilometers away.

The missile tests come as Israel has stepped up its war rhetoric against Iran, repeatedly threatening to bomb the country's nuclear installations.

Iran has vowed a 'firm response' to any military action by Israel, which claims that Tehran is secretly developing nuclear weapons -- a charge denied by both Iran and the UN nuclear watchdog.

Report: Iran Refuses to Discuss Nuclear Program at Upcoming Talks in Geneva

Obama administration is working up plans to push for new sanctions against Iran, targeting its energy, financial and telecommunications sectors over its disputed nuclear program

http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2009/09/29...sanctions-iran/

Iran declared its refusal Tuesday to discuss its nuclear program -- including the disclosure of a second nuclear enrichment plant -- when it sits down at the negotiating table Thursday with the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council and Germany, Reuters reported. A top Iranian official told the news agency that his country will not abandon its nuclear activities, "even for a second."

Iran's nuclear chief also announced Tuesday that his country built its newly revealed uranium enrichment facility inside a mountain and next to a military site to ensure continuity of its nuclear activities in case of an attack. The revelation comes as the Obama administration works up plans to push for new sanctions against the country, targeting its energy, financial and telecommunications sectors if it does not comply with international demands to come clean about its nuclear program, U.S. officials said Monday.

The officials said the U.S. would expand its own penalties against Iranian companies and press for greater international sanctions against foreign firms, largely European, that do business in the country unless Iran can prove that its nuclear activities are not aimed at developing an atomic weapon.

Among the ideas being considered are asset freezes and travel bans against Iranian and foreign businesses and individuals who do business in those areas, the officials said. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because the measures were still under review.

The proposed sanctions would largely focus on investment in Iran's energy infrastructure and development, the officials said. Until now, the sanctions have dealt mainly with companies and people suspected of buying or selling weapons of mass destruction or their components.

Diplomats from the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council -- Britain, China, France, Russia and the United States -- and Germany meet with Iran's top nuclear negotiator on Thursday to press once again an offer of incentives for Iran to halt suspect activity.

But U.S. officials familiar with the process that dates back to the Bush administration are skeptical that Iran will agree to demands to fully disclose its intentions. Iran repeatedly has denied it wants the bomb and that its nuclear program is for peaceful purposes only.

Previous meetings -- the last in July 2008 -- have not made progress and the officials said they did not think Thursday's talks in Geneva would produce any significant developments on the nuclear front.

Instead, the officials said they expected Iran to raise a broad range of global political concerns while the other participants focused on Iran's nuclear program, including the disclosure last week of a new uranium enrichment facility.

The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity due to the sensitive nature of the talks, said they believed another round of talks would be scheduled before mid-November, at which Iran would face demands to address the international community's concerns.

If they refuse, the officials said the U.S. and its partners would move ahead with new penalties.

5 more nuke plants spotted in Iran

Intel agents describe guarded operations buried in mountains

http://www.wnd.com/index.php?fa=PAGE.view&pageId=111334

LONDON – Deep-cover MI6 agents who have described the workings of the once-secret underground uranium enrichment plant near the Iranian city of Qom now have discovered a staggering five more similar operations, according to a report from Joseph Farah's G2 Bulletin.

They, like the Qom facility, are buried deep inside the mountains of north Iran and are guarded by divisions of Revolutionary Guards.

The details were sent this weekend to some G20 leaders who met in Pittsburgh when the Qom facility was revealed to the world.

The MI6 agents have established that, like Qom, the new plants are staffed by nuclear scientists from Iran's main weaponization program. It is known by the acronym Metfaz, and is headquartered at 180 Western Avenue in the Pars district of eastern Tehran.

Keep in touch with the most important breaking news stories about critical developments around the globe with Joseph Farah's G2 Bulletin, the premium, online intelligence news source edited and published by the founder of WND.

Details of the MI6 discovery were hand-delivered to Meir Dagan, the head of Mossad, over the weekend by Sir John Scarlett. They contained a detailed picture of what was being built at the five new plants.

A senior intelligence source said the data came from "an Iranian nuclear scientist's smuggled laptop, defectors and satellite imagery."

The highly unusual indication of the source material is seen as a deliberate attempt by Western intelligence to rattle the Iranian president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, that a further vital part of his nuclear plan has been discovered.

APOCALYPTIC STORM FORMING OVER MIDDLE EAST: Joel set to address 10,000 at Liberty University on Wednesday

MEDIA ALERT: (Update on 9/29 at noon) Joel will pre-tape an interview with Glenn Beck Show afternoon to be aired later this week, probably Friday. Check back for further updates. Thanks.

http://flashtrafficblog.wordpress.com/2009...y-on-wednesday/

Events are moving so quickly in the epicenter it can be difficult to keep track of, much less understand the big picture. So here it is in a sentence: An apocalpytic storm is forming over the Middle East.

Consider the data points:

1. Iran has just been caught secretly building a 2nd uranium enrichment facilityon a military base in the religious capital of Iran, a city known as Qom;

2. A growing number of Western military analysts say the design of this new facility — and its secrecy, and location — clearly indicates it was being built by Iran for the purpose of creating nuclear weapons;

3. Iran has thus been caught in its third lie since 2002 with regards to building secret nuclear development facilities in Natanz, Arak, and now Qom;

4. Ahmadinejad refused four times during his NBC News interview last week to rule out the building of nuclear weapons;

5. A.Q. Khan — the father of Pakistan's nuclear weapons development program – has just admitted selling advanced nuclear weapons blueprints years ago to Iran for millions of dollars;

6. The latest IAEA report indicates Iran has enough low-enriched uranium (LEU) to produce enough high-enriched uranium (HEU) by 2010 to produce two nuclear weapons;

7. Iran has just spent the weekend testing "its most advanced missiles" capable of reaching Israel;

8. Iranian leader Mahmoud Ahmadinejad began his speech to the U.N. by praying for Allah to hasten the coming of the Islamic Messiah, which according to his theology requires the destruction of Judeo-Christian civilization as we know it.
Ahmadinejad spoke more openly about his End of the World theology during his U.N. speech than ever before;

9. Ahmadinejad was asked for the first time by an American reporter to describe his relationship with the "Twelfth Imam" and admitted on camera that he is communicating with this mystical Shia messiah;

10. Humanly speaking, war is coming. The West does not seem determined enough to stop Iran from getting the Bomb. So unless the Lord intervenes, Israel might soon feel compelled to launch a preemptive strike against Iran. It won't be easy, and the entire region could go up in flames.

The stakes couldn't be higher. So on this day of Yom Kippur, let us commit ourselves to prayer and fasting for the peace of Jerusalem and the physical and spiritual salvation of all of Israel and all of Iran.

Note: On Wednesday, I will be delivering an address on this gathering storm and its implications for the U.S., Israel and our allies before 10,000 students, faculty and staff at Liberty University.

Iran Sanctions: Would Blocking Gas Imports Hurt Tehran?

http://news.yahoo.com/s/time/20090929/wl_time/08599192665500

By VIVIENNE WALT Vivienne Walt – Tue Sep 29, 7:10 pm ET

Could the U.S. block sales of refined gasoline to Iran as a way of ratcheting up pressure on Mahmoud Ahmadinejad and the Iranian regime? That's a prospect U.S. politicians have talked up for months. But as the U.S., Britain, France, Germany, Russia and China prepare for crucial talks with Iran in Geneva on Oct. 1, there's a growing realization that the strategy might not work. "The hype around blocking gas is hugely overdone," says Richard Dalton, who was British ambassador to Iran until 2006 and is now an associate fellow at the London think tank Chatham House. "People use this term Achilles' heel, but it has got very little substance to it."

The idea of blocking refined gas to Iran was raised several times during last year's U.S. presidential campaign. Barack Obama described the plan in a debate with John McCain as "putting the squeeze" on Ahmadinejad. In April the U.S. Senate introduced the bipartisan Iran Refined Petroleum Sanctions Act, which would expand sanctions imposed by Bill Clinton in 1996 and give the White House the authority to sanction companies that export gas to Iran. Senator Joe Lieberman told reporters at the time that the law would "target Iran's Achilles' economic heel, which is its dependence on imports of petroleum ... most notably gasoline." (See the top 10 Ahmadinejad-isms.)

Iran sits atop mammoth energy reserves - about 136 billion bbl. of oil and some 14 trillion cu m of natural gas. But because its refineries are too few and too old, the country refines just two-thirds of the gas it needs to keep its economy working and its 65 million people lit, driving and heated. The remaining third - about 120,000 bbl. a day - has to be imported.

Blocking one-third of Iran's gasoline supplies might seem relatively simple. The country's imports come from a fairly small number of firms, including Swiss-Dutch companies Vitol and Trafigura and India's Reliance Industries. New U.S. sanctions would force those companies to choose between doing business in the U.S. or doing business with Iran - a no-brainer for most firms. "They have bigger fish to fry [than Iran]," says Mark Fitzpatrick, a former State Department official and now director of Nuclear Nonproliferation at the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London. "They all have bigger markets elsewhere, including in the U.S." Indeed, even talk of a refined-petroleum blockade convinced British Petroleum to halt its exports to Iran last year. Oil analysts believe Reliance has suspended sales to Iran too. (See pictures of terror in Tehran.)

But that early talk gave Iran time to prepare for new sanctions. Earlier this year, it began importing far more than it was using. Intelligence consultancy Stratfor noted last week that Iran has probably stockpiled at least three months' worth of gasoline. The National Iranian Oil Refining and Distribution Co. estimates that the country has some 15.7 million bbl. of gasoline - about four months' worth - stockpiled in tankers on land and off its Persian Gulf coast. After BP and Reliance halted exports to Iran, Chinese state-owned oil companies filled the gap, supplying about one-third of Iran's gasoline imports as of last month, according to the Financial Times. Lawrence Eagles, head of commodities research at JPMorgan, told the paper last week that Iran was importing

30,000 bbl. to 40,000 bbl. a day from Chinese companies. And Malaysia's state-owned oil company Petronas delivered three shipments of gas to Iran last month, each containing about 93,000 bbl., according to Stratfor. (See a brief history of sanctions.)

It is far from certain that Chinese and Malaysian companies would bend to the same pressures that Western firms have to stop exports to Iran. Even if they do, Iran has other options. For one thing, gas-guzzling Iran could cut its consumption. As any visitor can testify, driving across Tehran can take hours in clogged traffic, which barely eases up at night. That's because Iran's regime, keen to keep voters happy, heavily subsidizes gas. Iranians are entitled to 26 gal. (100 L) of fuel a month at 38 cents per gal. (about 10 cents per L) - a tiny fraction of what it costs in the U.S. or Europe. If the U. S. blocked imports of refined gas, Tehran could simply ease its subsidies while pointing to Washington as the cause of the pain. As Iranian ire and the price of a tank of gas rose, demand would dip.

And then there's smuggling. Ahmadinejad could - perhaps easily - boost his gas supplies by cracking down on rampant smuggling. About 10.6 million gal. (40 million L) of gas are smuggled out of the country daily to neighboring countries like Azerbaijan, Afghanistan and Turkey, where it is sold at higher prices, according to Iranian officials. "In some border regions, smugglers are using underground pipelines up to the frontiers," the ministry's director of economic affairs, Mohammed Reza Farzin, told an Iranian newspaper last week, explaining the difficulties of stopping the smuggling networks. (Read "Power to Chaos [EM] Tracking Iran's Four-Month Slide.")

Tehran could use all these stopgap methods to buy time - which is all it really needs to do. Chinese firms and, until recently, India's Reliance, have been working on massive upgrades of the country's refineries. "If Iran can maintain its refinery upgrades, they'll be self-sufficient in gas by 2013," says Dalton. (Watch TIME's exclusive interview with Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.)

U.S. officials believe going after oil imports may still be worth it. Rather than passing laws or attempting to push new sanctions through the U.N. Security Council - where Russia and China could veto them - officials are quietly approaching companies directly, convincing executives that the cost of doing business with Iran has become too high. In the past few months, Washington has leaned on insurance companies that underwrite Iran's shipments abroad and as many as 80 banks that handle financial transactions for the country. In January, the U.S. slapped a $350 million fine on Britain's Lloyds TSB Bank for funneling money from Iran and Sudan into U.S. institutions. "The U.S. Treasury Department has been encouraging major firms to be cautious in their dealings with Iran," says Fitzpatrick. "They are informally advising them not to be investing in the Iranian oil and gas sector."

The message seems to be getting across. The French energy giant Total recently failed to bid on a major block in Iran's South Pars field - the world's biggest natural gas field - after spending years eyeing the business. Like other energy companies, it calculated that its Iran business was becoming a problem it could live without.

Gaffney: Iran on Brink of Having Nuclear Bomb, Using It

Monday, September 28, 2009 6:26 PM
By: Jim Meyers
http://www.newsmax.com/headlines/gaffney_i.../28/265789.html

See Video: Frank Gaffney talks about the Iranian threat and what Obama must do to stop it - Click Here Now

Gaffney served in the Ronald Reagan administration as assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy, and is the Founder and President of the Center for Security Policy in Washington, D.C.

Referring to several terrorist plots that were recently broken up in the U.S., Gaffney compared the terrorist threat to the swine flu. Just as it's essential to recognize that the flu is caused by a virus, it's essential to understand that the terrorist threat is the result of Shariah — what "authoritative Islam calls their program for running everything," he told Newsmax.TV's Ashley Martella.

According to Shariah, the purpose of jihad is to bring about the triumph of Islam over the entire world, and Shariah commands that the faithful must use violence where possible to advance that objective.

"You cannot treat, let alone prevent, the onslaught of these 'viruses' without understanding their pathology," Gaffney said. "And I think this is a place where we better learn quickly, because if we fail to, the next attack may well be the one we don't stop."

He added that Shariah is what rules the Iranian government, which just tested advanced missiles that Iranian TV said can carry warheads up to 1,200 miles.

"Theocratic mullahs are in charge and they are pursuing their same responsibilities to wage jihad against the infidel — the West, and most especially Israel and the United States.

"The missiles they are developing, which will soon be able to have nuclear warheads, are designed for the purpose of waging destruction, apocalyptically in fact, on a scale that is unprecedented, and that is what I think you are facing now.

"We ignore both the reasons they are doing it and even the evidence that they are doing it at our extreme peril."

Considering Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's constant anti-Israeli and anti-U.S. rhetoric, does it appear he's intent on using nuclear weapons once Iran obtains them? Martella asked.

"I think you couldn't be more clear that he intends to use them," Gaffney said.

These Muslims are a bunch of sick puppies.

They must be stop. Gaffney is absolutely right.

Theocratic government and Shariah laws are medieval barbarians rules that have no place in our present societies.

Their nuclear sites should be bomb because these hypocrites Muslims will stab you in the back the minute they have a chance.

We are just a bunch of cockroaches and infidels in their eyes.

Russia on Wednesday said its position on Iran will depend on its readiness to work with the UN nuclear watchdog.

A spokeswoman for Russian President Dmitry Medvedev said that Moscow expects Iran to cooperate with the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Medvedev spokeswoman Nataliya Timakova also said that Russia's stance on the issue will depend on the outcome of the talks between Iran and representatives of the US, Britain, France, Russia, Germany and China. The talks begin Thursday in Geneva.

Clinton: Iran must choose between cooperation and isolation

A day before Iranian officials met with diplomats from the 6 world powers to discuss Teheran's nuclear program, US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton on Wednesday warned the Islamic Republic it will face "greater isolation" if it fails to meet international obligations.

"Iran has a choice: to comply with its international obligations and that would mean not only offering inspections [of its nuclear facilities] but ending its activities absent the kind of monitoring and supervision that would guarantee that what they are doing is solely for peaceful purposes," AFP quoted Clinton as saying.

"The alternative track," she reportedly added, was "greater isolation and international pressure."

Ahmadinejad: We'll buy enriched uranium from "whoever will sell"

Sep 30, 2009 22:11 | Updated Sep 30, 2009 22:14

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad announced Wednesday that his country would be willing to allow a third party to enrich uranium for the Isamic republic's nuclear facilities, AFP reported.

"As I said in New York, we need enriched uranium at a percentage of 19.75%, and we are offering to buy it from whoever will sell it to us," Ahmadinejad reportedly said. He added that fuel needed to be procured for a plant in Teheran, reported to be a small nuclear research facility.

The Iranian leader stated that he would raise the proposal during his upcoming meeting with officials from the five permanent member states of the UN Security Council members and Germany scheduled to take place in Geneva on Thursday.

Despite the new initiative, Iranian officials have made clear that the country's "nuclear rights" would not be up for discussion.

Britain: Iran must get serious at nuclear talks

Oct 1, 2009 14:32
http://www.jpost.com/servlet/Satellite?cid...icle%2FShowFull

British Foreign Secretary David Miliband warned Iran on Thursday that it must cooperate with international talks in Geneva about its nuclear program.

Miliband told an annual conference of Britain's governing Labour Party that discussions involving Iran, the US and five other world powers are vital to hopes of persuading Tehran to freeze its nuclear activities.

The US and allies accuse Iran of attempting to develop a nuclear weapon. Teheran rejects the claim, and insists it is constructing a civilian power program.

"Our message to Iran is simple: do not mistake respect for weakness," Miliband said, speaking in Brighton, southern England.

"After 16 months of prevarication, they need to get serious. Over the next few months, the stakes could not be higher - the Arab world on tenterhooks, Israel on alert," Miliband told delegates.

Britain has sent a senior diplomat, Mark Lyall Grant, to the Geneva talks.

U.S., Iran face off at six-power nuclear talks

Thu Oct 1, 2009 9:08am EDT
By Louis Charbonneau
http://www.reuters.com/article/newsOne/idUSDAH02494820091001

GENEVA (Reuters) - Six world powers held talks with Iran on Thursday that U.S. officials said would need to convince them Tehran was prepared to show it was not hiding plans for a nuclear bomb.

Underlining they would not threaten fresh sanctions against Tehran but had prepared them in case the talks made no progress, Washington also said there could be an opportunity for a rare bilateral meeting with the Iranians.

"This can't be a phony process," a senior U.S. official said in Washington. "It can't be a process where they go through the motions."

U.S. diplomats sat alongside those from Britain, France, Germany, Russia and China for the talks near Geneva on how to end the long-running standoff over Iran's nuclear program, which Tehran says is designed purely for generating electricity.

Tehran had said the program was not up for discussion and the talks should focus on regional issues like Afghanistan, but a Western diplomat close to the meeting said Iran's nuclear negotiator had touched on it in his opening statement.

The diplomat said it was not yet clear if the Iranians would give any signs behind closed doors that they would be open to a compromise on the issue of suspending uranium enrichment, as demanded by five U.N. Security Council resolutions.

Western diplomats said they also want Iran to allow immediate U.N. inspections of a second uranium enrichment facility at Qom, which Tehran revealed only last week, and provide access to documents and people working there.

'THE ENGAGEMENT TRACK'

In Washington, senior Obama administration officials said the United States would not threaten Iran with fresh sanctions at the one-day talks. "This is the engagement track ... not the pressure track," one senior official said.

But the official said the United States has been preparing "a range of areas" in which to pursue sanctions against Iran if Tehran ignores Western entreaties about its nuclear program.

The officials would not elaborate on the sanctions, which experts believe may be targeted at the energy sector. They said consultations had been active and sanctions could be applied through the U.N. Security Council or by individual states.

"You're in a much better position to prepare the ground on the pressure track if you have demonstrated unmistakably that you're doing everything you can on the engagement side," one official said.

The meeting at the elegant villa made available by the Swiss for decades to bring foes together was the first time a U.S. official was a "full participant" in such talks.

U.S. officials said Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs William Burns, head of the U.S. delegation, was not actively seeking one-on-one talks with Iran's chief nuclear negotiator Saeed Jalili but would not reject one if the opportunity arose.

A Burns-Jalili meeting would be the highest level U.S.-Iran talks in nearly 30 years. Washington severed relations with Tehran in 1980 during a hostage crisis in the wake of Iran's Islamic Revolution.

The administration of former President George W. Bush reluctantly began to take part in multilateral talks with Iran toward the end of his presidency. President Barack Obama, Bush's successor, has said he wants to improve U.S.-Iranian ties but Tehran has reacted coolly to his overtures.

WEST EYES RUSSIAN, CHINESE REACTION

Professor Mohammad Marandi, head of North American studies at Tehran university, said the Iranians expected the six powers to accept it had a right to a nuclear program.

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said in New York last week his delegation would ask at the Geneva meeting that Iran be allowed to buy enriched uranium for medical purposes from the United States or any other country prepared to sell it.

A U.S. official said Washington would make clear that it was not prepared to sell Iran any uranium.

The Western powers also want to gauge Russian and Chinese reaction to last week's announcement that Tehran had been concealing the uranium enrichment plant at Qom. Western diplomats said Moscow and Beijing seemed to share their concern.

"The Russians and Chinese don't want a nuclear-armed Iran," a Western diplomat told Reuters. "They've made that clear."

NATO Secretary-General Anders Fogh Rasmussen said in London he hoped Iran realized it had to abandon its nuclear plans.

"Recent events including the fact that Iran had not declared the existence of a nuclear site testifies to the importance of this issue and stresses the need for an increased international, political and diplomatic pressure on Iran," he told reporters.

The senior U.S. official said Thursday's talks could not be an "open-ended process or talks just for the sake of talks," but that the issue was likely to need more than one meeting.

Obama has said he wants progress before the end of the year. The six powers also want a clear response from Iran to their offer of economic and political incentives in exchange for a suspension of enrichment activities.

Obama: Iran must let inspectors into nuclear plant within 2 weeks

US President Barack Obama characterized Thursday's landmark meeting with Iran as a "constructive beginning," following Iran's apparent agreement to open its nuclear facilities to inspection, to meet again later in the month and in principle to have a third party provide it with nuclear energy.

"Today's meeting was a constructive beginning, but it must be followed by constructive action by the Iranian government," Obama said during a brief White House appearance following the talks held in Geneva. He gave Iran two weeks to allow IAEA inspectors into its recently revealed second uranium enrichment facility at Qom.

"Iran must take concrete steps to build confidence that its nuclear program will serve peaceful purposes - steps that meet Iran's obligations under multiple UN Security Council resolutions," said Obama of resolutions that demand Teheran stop enriching uranium. He called Iran's willingness to import such material for its research reactor "consistent with that objective - provided that it transfers Iran's low-enriched uranium to a third country for fuel fabrication."

Obama also stressed that "we're not interested in talking for the sake of talking," and warned that "if Iran does not take steps in the near future to live up to its obligations, then the United States will not continue to negotiate indefinitely, and we are prepared to move toward increased pressure."

Iran will have two weeks, Obama said, to follow through on the commitments Western officials announced following the seven-way Geneva meetings, the first in which the United States held substantive direct discussions on the Iranian nuclear program with Teheran.

Israel, though, had no expectation that Thursday's talks, which EU foreign policy chief Javier Solana said would continue with at least another session before the end of the month, would culminate in any dramatic development. Rather, one government official said, this is another round in a more than decade-old process to stop Iran's nuclear development.

While Israel is skeptical overall with regard to the talks, assessments in the IDF are that Iran, while radical, is still a practical country that would be open to the possibility of reaching a deal with the West.

The government official said the revelation last Friday of the clandestine uranium enrichment facility being constructed in a mountain near Qom, a facility Solana said the Iranians agreed Thursday to open up to IAEA inspection, had given the Western powers - at least temporarily - the upper hand in that they could say they had caught the Iranians cheating red-handed.

US State Department Under Secretary of Political Affairs William Burns held a bilateral conversation with chief Iranian delegate Saeed Jalili during the lunch break of the day-long meetings held under the auspices of the P5+1 group, which includes the US, Russia, China, Britain, France and Germany.

State Department officials said that during that conversation, Burns had reiterated America's concerns about Iran's nuclear program, as well as raised the issue of human rights in Iran and American citizens being held by Teheran.

Though Iranian officials had originally said they would not even address the nuclear issue, that subject formed the heart of the talks, according to participants.

In his remarks following the Geneva meetings Thursday, Obama said UN International Atomic Energy Agency head Mohamed ElBaradei would be traveling to Iran in a few days and had "my full support, and the Iranian government must grant the IAEA full access to the site in Qom."

The Associated Press quoted the IAEA as announcing that ElBaradei was "invited to Teheran by Iranian authorities." ElBaradei recently described Teheran as "on the wrong side of the law" regarding the second enrichment site near Qom, saying that Iran should have revealed its plans as soon as the decision was made to build the plant.

Western intelligence agencies, meanwhile, suspect that Iran likely has additional secret nuclear installations scattered throughout the country. The assessment in some Western countries is that Iran likely has additional facilities that are either connected to the enrichment center discovered near Qom or are independent.

But not everyone is convinced about Friday's revelation of the facility near Qom.

Visiting Russian Deputy Prime Minister Victor Zubkov, when asked whether the revelations of the facility would alter Russia's so-far reticent position on sanctions, told The Jerusalem Post, "There has been no proof yet or confirmation, and we need to verify and know what has been done, and since there has not been enough proof and evidence, we have to work on that. I think the rumors might be exaggerated. However, a strong monitoring mechanism should be in place."

Still, Zubkov stressed that "we in Russia cannot accept in any way that Iran could possess nuclear weapons. That is totally unacceptable to us."

White House spokesman Robert Gibbs declined to answer questions on whether the US believed Iran had additional undisclosed nuclear sites.

But earlier Thursday, Sen. Joseph Lieberman indicated that he thought the Islamic Republic could well have further facilities.

"In the wake of last week's disclosure, there is renewed urgency and imperative surrounding the question of what else the Iranians have been hiding. Given that the international community has now twice uncovered secret enrichment facilities in Iran, it is reasonable to suspect there are likely others as well," he said at an American Enterprise Institute event.

"Their past actions put the burden of proof on Iran," he said. "The only way for the Iranians to prove otherwise is for them to provide the IAEA with full, unrestricted access to every site, every scientist, every scrap of paper, and every piece of equipment that they want to see."

He stressed that "it is not enough for the Iranians to engage in a process in Geneva today. That process needs to yield results, and quickly. My own belief is that the current Iranian leadership will only consider stepping back from the nuclear brink when they are convinced that if they fail to do so, there will be consequences so severe that the continuity of their regime will be threatened."

A nuclear Iran: The world was warned

BY URI DROMI
dromi@mishkenot.org.il
http://www.miamiherald.com/opinion/other-v...ry/1262391.html

Good morning, World, Iran is ready to go nuclear!

A uranium enrichment facility nobody knew of suddenly emerges in the sacred city of Qom, Iran launches missiles that can threaten not only U.S. targets in the Persian gulf, but also Israel and southern Europe, and now the world panics.

Surprised? Not if you're an Israeli. For years we have been sounding the alarm, only to be told to stop crying wolf. Now we are asked to lie low and let the responsible leaders of the world take care of the situation.

In 1993, when I was the spokesman of the Israeli government, my boss, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, made a dramatic turn in his hitherto coherent perception about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Contrary to his previous declarations, that the PLO was not a credible partner for peace, Rabin unexpectedly gave his blessing -- albeit half-heartedly -- to the Oslo process.

I was curious to find out what made him change his mind. He was not a man of elaborate explanations. Sometimes you just had to guess from his body language what made him tick. It was in the middle of an interview when a European journalist mentioned Iran in passing, that Rabin banged the table and said in a coarse voice: ``Exactly!'' The rest came out during a later interview: We have to mend fences with our closer neighbors (the Palestinians and Jordanians), Rabin said, so that we can brace ourselves to tackle the bigger challenge rising over the horizon: Iran.

Taking the cue from Rabin, I started to talk to the representatives of the world media based in Jerusalem about the Iranian nuclear threat. I told them that it was not an Israeli issue only, that a Shiite Iran with nukes would cause havoc in the Sunni Mideast, with serious repercussions for the rest of the world.

The response was usually shoulder shrugging, glazed eyes and insinuations that Israel was trying to lure the United States into attacking Iran for Israel's interests. In short, the tail was trying to wag the dog.

I had to remind them that in 1981, when Israel attacked the Iraqi nuclear reactor, it had been condemned right and left, with the United Nations ruling that Israel should pay compensation to Iraq. Ten years later, in the wake of Desert Storm, then-Defense Secretary Dick Cheney gave a photograph of the bombed reactor to Maj. Gen. David Ivry, who commanded the Israeli Air Force during the attack, on which he wrote, ``With thanks and appreciation for the outstanding job [you] did on the Iraqi Nuclear Program in 1981 which made our job much easier in Desert Storm.''

It's not that we Israelis are smarter than anybody else, or that we are blessed with a unique talent to foresee the future. It's just that whenever there has been a threat to the free world we have been there first, on the frontline, on the receiving end. Not willing ever to surrender to the threat, we came up with our original responses.

When the first Israeli airliner was hijacked to Algiers in 1968, we made El Al the world's safest airline. When Israelis were hijacked while flying Air France, we launched the Entebbe Raid to rescue them.

When Palestinian terrorists blew themselves up in the midst of our cities, we built a security fence that stopped them. Israel bashers condemned us for creating the barrier, which made life difficult for the Palestinians. Yet now, in hindsight, will they admit that life comes before quality of life?

And when our enemies started launching rockets at our cities, while hiding themselves among civilians, we were not intimidated: we went after them, trying to sort the villain from the innocent. We were heavily criticized for the way we did it, we still are: This is a very messy task indeed.

Yet Western soldiers and officers fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan, and the people who have sent them to the battlefield, all know perfectly well that we have spearheaded a path for them; that we have shown a way where democracies can walk the thin line between keeping human rights and fighting terror effectively.

One day, when the weight of terror will become unbearable, the rest of the world will maybe understand as well.

'Iran has enough info for atom bomb'

Oct 4, 2009 8:27 | Updated Oct 4, 2009 10:48
http://www.jpost.com/servlet/Satellite?cid...icle%2FShowFull

A confidential report compiled by senior officials in the United Nations nuclear watchdog claims Iran already has enough knowledge to build a nuclear bomb, The New York Times reported on Sunday.

According to the report, senior staff members of the International Atomic Energy Agency concluded in an analysis that Teheran has acquired "sufficient information to be able to design and produce a workable implosion nuclear device," based on highly enriched uranium.

The Times added that the report, titled "Possible Military Dimensions of Iran's Nuclear Program," emphasized in its introduction that its conclusions were "tentative and subject to further confirmation of the evidence, which it says came from intelligence agencies and its own investigations."

Nevertheless, the paper went on to say that the report's conclusions, described by top European officials, "go well beyond the public positions taken by several governments, including the United States."

A December 2007 US National Intelligence Estimate (NIE) said Iran halted its nuclear weapons program in 2003. However, with the new report, the IAEA has apparently joined those countries, including Israel, disagreeing with the NIE findings.

The Times said that the agency's report also presents evidence that as well as boosting bomb-making know-how, "Iran has done extensive research and testing on how to fashion the components of a weapon."

The Times said the analysis describes an Iranian Defense Ministry program "aimed at the development of a nuclear payload to be delivered using the Shahab 3 missile system."

The agency's analysis also reportedly says that Iran "most likely" obtained the needed information for designing and building an implosion bomb "from external sources" and then adapted the information to its own needs.

Iran 'co-operation' draws praise

The US and the UN have given an upbeat assessment of the possibility of settling the nuclear dispute with Iran.

US National Security Adviser Jim Jones said Tehran was now "willing to come to the table", following talks this week between Iran and major powers.

The head of the UN's nuclear agency, who is in Tehran, said there had been a "gear shift" towards co-operation.

He announced that inspectors would visit a newly revealed nuclear site in the Iranian city of Qom, on 25 October.

The BBC's Richard Lister in Washington says the US administration is still a long way from taking Iranian co-operation on the nuclear issue for granted, but it does see some reasons for optimism.

Asked about Iran's offer to allow inspection of the Qom uranium enrichment facility and its agreement in principle to ship nuclear materials to Russia for re-processing, Mr Jones said these were "very significant" moves.
IRAN'S NUCLEAR SITES

Iran insists that all its nuclear facilities are for energy, not military purposes
Bushehr: Nuclear power plant
Isfahan: Uranium conversion plant
Natanz: Uranium enrichment plant, 4,592 working centrifuges, with 3,716 more installed Second enrichment plant: Existence revealed to IAEA in Sept 2009. Separate reports say it is near Qom, and not yet operational Arak: Heavy water plant

Key nuclear sites in detail
A high-stakes game
Q&A: Iran and the nuclear issue
Talks herald new phase for Iran

"We now have an Iran that is willing to come to the table," he told CBS television on Sunday.

Earlier the head of the UN's International Atomic Energy Agency, Mohamed ElBaradei, said in Tehran that inspectors would ensure that the Qom facility was for "peaceful purposes".

He added: "I see that we are shifting gears from confrontation into transparency and co-operation. I continue, of course, to call on Iran to be as transparent as possible."

Mr ElBaradei's visit comes as the New York Times quoted an internal IAEA report as saying Iran could have the know-how to produce a workable nuclear bomb.

The confidential report, excerpts of which have also been published on the website of the Institute for Science and International Security (ISIS), emphasises that its conclusions are tentative and unconfirmed.

"The agency... assesses that Iran has sufficient information to be able to design and produce a workable implosion nuclear device," ISIS quoted the report as saying.

The New York Times said this went well beyond the public positions taken by the US and other countries on the possibility of Iran creating a bomb.

Mr Jones told CBS that whether Tehran was in a position to do so remained a matter of "conjecture".

Iranian 'engagement'

However on Sunday the US ambassador to the UN, Susan Rice, told NBC television that Iran had a "finite period" to come to a settlement on its nuclear programme.

"We're not interested in talking for talking sake," she said.

Iran says the enrichment plant at Qom is not operational yet

But she declined to set a deadline for Tehran to allow full international inspections.

Tehran insists it has the right to develop nuclear energy, but the revelation of the second enrichment facility has heightened fears among Western governments that it is trying to develop nuclear weapons.

Iran denies any attempt to develop a military nuclear capability.

The UN Security Council has demanded a halt to uranium enrichment by Iran.

The talks in Geneva earlier this week between Iran and six major powers - the five permanent members of the Security Council plus Germany - were the first since July 2008.

Officials said the talks marked "engagement" on the part of Tehran after the country agreed to co-operate "fully and immediately" on opening the second enrichment facility to inspectors.

The two sides also agreed to hold further talks in October.

Mofaz: Iran 'buying time' in negotiations over nuclear program

Oct 5, 2009 11:06
http://www.jpost.com/servlet/Satellite?cid...icle%2FShowFull

Iran's plan to open its recently revealed uranium enrichment plan is part of an effort to "buy time" in negotiations over its nuclear program, former defense minister Shaul Mofaz said Monday.

Speaking to Army Radio, the Kadima MK called International Atomic Energy Agency chief Mohamed ElBaradei an ostrich with his head stuck in the sand.

He went on to surmise that meaningful sanctions would be imposed on Teheran in 2010, with Russian and Chinese support. "The exposure of the [plant] at Qom is part of Iran's secret plan," he said. "The fact that it was revealed was intended to speed up sanctions."

Iran's acceleration of its nuclear programme angers the west

Tehran's claim that tripling its uranium enrichment speed will help develop cancer treatments is dismissed as 'a provocation'

Western capitals have reacted angrily to an announcement by Iran that it is installing more advanced centrifuges in a uranium enrichment plant with the aim of accelerating its nuclear programme.

"The installation of new centrifuges with better quality and speed is ongoing," Ramin Mehmanparast, the Iranian foreign ministry spokesman, told reporters at his weekly press briefing.

"We have announced it and the agency [the International Atomic Energy Agency] has full supervision of them. They are fully aware that Iran's peaceful nuclear activity continues to progress. This is another confirmation of the Islamic republic's successful strides in its nuclear activities."

However, France said Iran's move – which Tehran claims could triple the rate at which it enriches uranium – confirmed suspicions that the Iranian nuclear programme had "no credible civilian application". The French foreign ministry said: "Iran has just given in to another provocation by announcing the imminent installation of next generation centrifuges.

"This is a new violation of six security council resolutions and 10 resolutions by the council of governors of the International Atomic Energy Agency [IAEA]."

The British Foreign Office said the announcement "further undermines Iran's claim that its nuclear programme is designed for purely peaceful purposes, and demonstrates the urgency of increasing pressure on Iran ... Iran must understand that we will not be distracted by events in the region and it should not doubt our resolve".

Stuxnet returns to bedevil Iran's nuclear systems

DEBKAfile Exclusive Report July 20, 2011, 4:35 PM (GMT+02:00) Tags: Stuxnet Iran nuclear http://www.debka.com/article/21133/

The Stuxnet malworm - at it again

debkafile's intelligence sources report that the Stuxnet malworm which played havoc with Iran's nuclear program for eleven months was not purged after all. Tehran never did overcome the disruptions caused by Stuxnet or restore its centrifuges to smooth and normal operation as was claimed. Indeed, Iran finally resorted to the only sure-fire cure, scrapping all the tainted machines and replacing them with new ones.
Iran provided confirmation of this Tuesday, July 19 in an announcement that improved and faster centrifuge models were being installed.
Iran would clearly not have undertaken the major and costly project of replacing all its 5,000-6,000 centrifuges with new ones if they were indeed functioning smoothly. The announcement was made by the Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman at a press briefing although no one present had raised the nuclear issue. He said: "The installation of new centrifuges with better quality and speed is ongoing… this is another confirmation of the Islamic republic's successful strides in its nuclear activities."

Britain and France immediately condemned the announcement. It proved, official spokesmen commented, that Iran plans to triple the amount of uranium it enriches in contravention of six UN Security Council Resolutions and defiance of ten International Atomic Energy Agency decisions in Vienna. The announcement also "confirmed suspicions that the Iranian nuclear program had no credible civilian application."

In recent months, Iran has taken advantage of the West's preoccupation with the Arab revolt to quietly forge ahead unnoticed with its weapons program. So if everything was moving smoothly forward why did Tehran suddenly decide to raise the touchy subject again?

Indeed, by doing so, the official spokesman placed in doubt the three major strides Iran was generally presumed to have made while the West was otherwise engaged:

1. The dramatic speeding-up of uranium enrichment and expansion of the quantities produced.
The West has no credible information, whether from intelligence, research, or nuclear watchdog inspections, as to how much enriched uranium Iran has produced and how much it has in stock.
As debkafile reported previously, for the past six months, Iran managed to keep the full scope of its enrichment activities hidden from IAEA inspections. Although inspectors were allowed to visit Iran's acknowledged enrichment facility at Natanz, they were unable to gauge how many active centrifuges were present and how many removed to unknown site or sites. The sophisticated cameras supposed to monitor the Natanz facility were unable to record all of Iran's enrichment activities because key production sites were moved out of range.

2. The glitches bedeviling their centrifuge machines were overcome and all 5,000 were spinning away without interruption. After expunging the Stuxnet virus which first struck in June 2010, all their nuclear program's control systems and installations, including Natanz and the Russian-built Bushehr reactor, were functioning perfectly. It took Iranian and Russian computer and cyber-terrorism experts a year to cleanse the system. This gave security agencies their first indicator of the time it takes to overcome a large-scale, sophisticated cyber attack.
On July 5, Lt. Gen. Aviv Kochavi, head of Israeli military intelligence, said that Iran is currently running 5,000 active centrifuges and aiming for 8,000. He made no reference to their replacement with newer and faster machines - which the Iranian spokesman disclosed suddenly last Tuesday.
3. The Iranians are engaged in the relocation of the centrifuges spinning 20-percent grade enriched uranium to a new underground facility at Fordo, 100 kilometers away near Qom. Tehran has rejected every European and IAEA demand to install monitoring and inspection equipment at the new facility which is therefore functioning without international oversight.
Those presumptions are now largely suspect.

Western intelligence sources tell debkafile that until recently, the Iranians believed they had a clear road for enriching large quantities of high-grade uranium after solving technical obstructions and beating back the cyber attack. But then, they were stunned to discover that the Stuxnet virus, far from being eradicated, was back with a vengeance and on the offensive against their centrifuges. Iran was forced to adopt a course it had avoided last year, namely to destroy the entire plant of approximately 5,000 working centrifuges and replace them all with new machines.

This decision led to the foreign ministry spokesman's one-sentence announcement. He delivered it to pre-empt Iran's enemies from picking up on the installation of the new centrifuges and making it public with the real reason for dumping the "smoothly" operating ones.

The last three years of global recession have dealt a major blow to American capitalist ideas trumpeted throughout the world on the value of “free markets.” Wall St has been revealed as a form of casino economy, with the bankster insiders gambling with other people’s, and eventually, the government’s money in the form of bailouts. As the Republicans in Congress, scenting victory in the 2012 presidential elections, hold a gun to the Obama administration’s head and rating agencies consider downgrading U.S. government bonds in light of Washington’s possible defaulting, many ideas around the world that previously seemed implausible because of the dominance of the U.S. economy are garnering renewed interest.

Not surprisingly, many of these concepts originate in countries not enamored with Washington’s influence, perhaps none so more than “Axis of Evil” charter member Iran, which has seen its economy hammered by more than three decades of U.S.-led sanctions. Now Iran is working a program, that, if it succeeds, could help undermine the dollar’s preeminence as the world’s reserve currency more effectively than a Republican filibuster.

Iran's sly weapon against the Great Satan's currency? An oil bourse on Kish Island in the Persian Gulf, which has now begun selling high-grade Iranian crude oil.

Mohsen Qamsari, deputy director for international affairs of the Iranian National Oil Company was modest about the exchange's initial capabilities, saying, "The commodity stock exchange has been pursuing a mechanism for offering crude oil on the stock exchange for a long time, and it has taken the preliminary steps, to the extent possible. Considering the existing banking problems, foreign customers are not expected to be taking part in the first phase of offering crude oil on the stock exchange, and this will be done on a trial basis. Today Bahregan heavy, high quality, low sulfur crude oil with less sourness will be offered on the stock exchange for the first time. In the first phase, a 600,000 barrel shipment will be offered."

Given that the world currently consumes roughly 83 million barrels of crude oil each day, the initial oil offerings at the Iranian stock exchange are hardly going to make or break the market, but they do represent an attempt by a significant oil producer to divert revenue streams from New York Mercantile Exchange, the world's largest physical commodity futures exchange, which handles West Texas Intermediate benchmark futures, and London's Intercontinental Exchange, which deals in North Sea Brent. All trades are in dollars, effectively giving the U.S. currency a monopoly.

The Kish Exchange dates back to February 2008, when instead of Tehran, Kish was chosen because it had designated as a free trade zone. The Exchange was set up to trade contracts in euros, Iranian rials and a basket of other currencies other than dollars. The previous year, Iran had requested that its petroleum customers pay in non-dollar currencies. But the Exchange initially traded contracts only for oil-derived products, such as those used as feedstocks for plastics and pharmaceuticals. Now the institution has taken the next step.

Even as Congress remains tone-deaf to the recession's effect on American jobs and the economy, others have taken careful note. On 17 June 2008, addressing the 29th meeting of the Council of Ministers of the OPEC Fund for International Development in the Iranian city of Isfahan, Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad told those in attendance, "The fall in the value of the dollar is one of the biggest problems facing the world today. The damage caused by this has already affected the global economy, particularly those of the energy-exporting countries. ... Therefore, I repeat my earlier suggestion, that a combination of the world's valid currencies should become a basis for oil transactions, or (OPEC) member countries should determine a new currency for oil transactions."

What it would take for Iran's new exchange to survive and flourish are some heavy-duty customers that Washington would be wary of picking a fight with, and Tehran already has one – China.

China, the world's largest buyer of Iranian crude oil, has renewed its annual import pacts for 2011. In 2010 Iran supplied about 12 percent of China's total crude imports. According to the latest report of the China Customs Organization, Iran's total oil exports to China stood at 8.549 million tons between January and April 2011, up 32 percent compared with the same period last year. Iran is currently China's third largest supplier of crude oil, providing China with nearly one million barrels per day.

Must See Video - We are facing the greatest energy crisis in our history and it WILL affect you! Find out how to protect yourself and your finances in the coming economic meltdown. Click here to see the video now.

China simply ignores Washington’s squeals about sanctions, but it is concerned about the bottom line, and unless Iran makes its oil prices more attractive versus competing supplies from the rest of the Middle East or South American exporters, it may be hard for the OPEC member to boost its share in the rapidly expanding Chinese market.

Enter the Kish Exchange.

China's Ambassador to Tehran Yu Hung Yang, addressing the Iran-China trade conference in Tehran on Monday, said that the value of the two countries' trade exchanges surged 55 percent during the first four months of 2011 over the same period a year ago to $13.28 billion and further predicted that the figure would surpass $40 billion by the end of the year.

So much for sanctions, eh?

So, while Washington prepares to commit political hara-kiri, Iran is preparing to take away a little of the capitalist glow from New York and London. If the Chinese decide to start paying for their Iranian purchases strictly in yuan, expect the trickle away from the dollar in energy pricing to become a stampede. That ought to give Washington politicos an issue to think about besides gay marriage.

Hague must learn from Iran history

http://www.presstv.ir/detail/189864.html

Stop the War Coalition has condemned UK Foreign Secretary William Hague, saying the British Foreign Secretary has not learnt from Iran's history as he claimed the Arab Spring should not distract us from the threat of Iran.

Aiming to put in more EU sanctions against Iran, Hague published an article in the Guardian insisting that the western Powers have to mount pressure on Iran, as the Iranian government has planned to increase the production of enriched uranium.

“Iran has one civilian nuclear power station and is seeking to build more. All of these power stations need uranium enriched to about 3.5% for fuel. So plans to enrich any further rightly prompt questions,” he said.

Hague also quoted a statement by Fereydoun Abbasi Davani, the current head of the Atomic Energy Organization of Iran (AEOI). But he apparently failed to mention that his country gave existence to AEOI.

On August 19 1953, in a planned coup, the British and US governments ousted the elected Prime Minister of Iran, Mohamed Mossadeq, reinstalling Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, the country's dictator who was managing the worst secret police force (SAVAK) organized by the aid of CIA and Mossad.

Shah had made himself completely subordinate to the UK and US authorities. In 1967, he established the country's first nuclear research centre in Tehran, which was controlled by the AEOI and prepared by the help of a US nuclear reactor.

The same years Shah had explicitly announced that he would obtain nuclear weapons, but shockingly there were no objections from The UK and US over the issue.

More than twenty nuclear reactors were prepared by the support of the Western powers in the 1970s. In 1975 Siemens AG, the German company offered a contract for the Bushehr nuclear plant. Those years “UK/US puppet in Persia loved uranium,” SWC said.

Right after the 1979 Islamic Revolution, the Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini closed the nuclear proliferation program, which was established by the help of the Western powers. Soon after the revolution Iran faced the UK-supported Iraq invasion, turned into an eight-year conflict, in which the Iraqi forces used chemical weapons, killing millions of people and wounding millions other.

“Reluctantly, the Iranian leadership restarted its nuclear programme.

“Mr. Hague doesn't say this, and the reason is clear. The UK government has overthrown a legitimate Iranian leader, installed a brutal dictator in his place, and helped him to establish a nuclear programme. Then, after the Iranians overthrew the dictator, it supported an invasion of Iran that prompted them to restart the nuclear programme they so disliked. During that time, the UK and US have committed numerous acts of aggression in the Middle East. For a UK government minister to call Iran a danger to the region, especially because of its nuclear programme, is staggeringly hypocritical,” SWC also said.

The analysts are now wondering to know why William Hague, claiming to be the peace supporter in Middle East, is silent against the US and Israeli governments who own huge nuclear arsenals.

Hague is seeking to demonstrate that Iran desires to acquire nuclear weapons to bring disorder across the world. He “tells us that he wants to present this issue without the historical context that is so important; to scare us with stories of a demon in the East, and subvert the brighter image of the region that the Arab Spring is building. After all, you have to justify a huge military budget and multiple war-zones somehow,” SWC stressed.

Iran general announcing shootdown of spy drones in prior incident

Iran's Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) has shot down a US spy drone which was flying over the central Iranian province of Qom, a lawmaker says.

A member of the National Security and Foreign Policy Committee of the Iranian Majlis (Parliament), Ali Aqazadeh Dafsari, said on Tuesday that the unmanned spy plane was flying near the Fordo nuclear enrichment plant in Qom province when the IRGC's Air Defense units brought it down, Javanoline.ir reported.

The official stated that the US drone was on a mission to identify the location of the Fordo nuclear enrichment plant and gather information about the nuclear facility for the CIA, Dafsari stated.

Earlier in the day, Iran's Foreign Ministry Spokesman Ramin Mehmanparast had said that the country is installing a new generation of uranium enrichment centrifuges in the country's nuclear facilities to enhance the Islamic Republic's peaceful nuclear program.

As a signatory to the nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and a member of the International Atomic Energy Agency, Iran has every right to develop and acquire nuclear technology meant for peaceful purposes.

Iran's domestically produced clone of Russian s-200 may have been used in shoot down.

In addition, the IAEA has conducted numerous inspections of Iran's nuclear facilities but has never found any evidence indicating that Iran's civilian nuclear program has been diverted to nuclear weapons production.

Investors: Free Oil Industry Investment Report - Our Fracking industry guide shows you the strategies that will enable you to generate excellent returns in what will be one of the most profitable sectors of the energy industry. Click here for your Free report.

The last three years of global recession have dealt a major blow to American capitalist ideas trumpeted throughout the world on the value of “free markets.” Wall St has been revealed as a form of casino economy, with the bankster insiders gambling with other people’s, and eventually, the government’s money in the form of bailouts. As the Republicans in Congress, scenting victory in the 2012 presidential elections, hold a gun to the Obama administration’s head and rating agencies consider downgrading U.S. government bonds in light of Washington’s possible defaulting, many ideas around the world that previously seemed implausible because of the dominance of the U.S. economy are garnering renewed interest.

Not surprisingly, many of these concepts originate in countries not enamored with Washington’s influence, perhaps none so more than “Axis of Evil” charter member Iran, which has seen its economy hammered by more than three decades of U.S.-led sanctions. Now Iran is working a program, that, if it succeeds, could help undermine the dollar’s preeminence as the world’s reserve currency more effectively than a Republican filibuster.

Iran's sly weapon against the Great Satan's currency? An oil bourse on Kish Island in the Persian Gulf, which has now begun selling high-grade Iranian crude oil.

Mohsen Qamsari, deputy director for international affairs of the Iranian National Oil Company was modest about the exchange's initial capabilities, saying, "The commodity stock exchange has been pursuing a mechanism for offering crude oil on the stock exchange for a long time, and it has taken the preliminary steps, to the extent possible. Considering the existing banking problems, foreign customers are not expected to be taking part in the first phase of offering crude oil on the stock exchange, and this will be done on a trial basis. Today Bahregan heavy, high quality, low sulfur crude oil with less sourness will be offered on the stock exchange for the first time. In the first phase, a 600,000 barrel shipment will be offered."

Given that the world currently consumes roughly 83 million barrels of crude oil each day, the initial oil offerings at the Iranian stock exchange are hardly going to make or break the market, but they do represent an attempt by a significant oil producer to divert revenue streams from New York Mercantile Exchange, the world's largest physical commodity futures exchange, which handles West Texas Intermediate benchmark futures, and London's Intercontinental Exchange, which deals in North Sea Brent. All trades are in dollars, effectively giving the U.S. currency a monopoly.

The Kish Exchange dates back to February 2008, when instead of Tehran, Kish was chosen because it had designated as a free trade zone. The Exchange was set up to trade contracts in euros, Iranian rials and a basket of other currencies other than dollars. The previous year, Iran had requested that its petroleum customers pay in non-dollar currencies. But the Exchange initially traded contracts only for oil-derived products, such as those used as feedstocks for plastics and pharmaceuticals. Now the institution has taken the next step.

Even as Congress remains tone-deaf to the recession's effect on American jobs and the economy, others have taken careful note. On 17 June 2008, addressing the 29th meeting of the Council of Ministers of the OPEC Fund for International Development in the Iranian city of Isfahan, Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad told those in attendance, "The fall in the value of the dollar is one of the biggest problems facing the world today. The damage caused by this has already affected the global economy, particularly those of the energy-exporting countries. ... Therefore, I repeat my earlier suggestion, that a combination of the world's valid currencies should become a basis for oil transactions, or (OPEC) member countries should determine a new currency for oil transactions."

What it would take for Iran's new exchange to survive and flourish are some heavy-duty customers that Washington would be wary of picking a fight with, and Tehran already has one – China.

China, the world's largest buyer of Iranian crude oil, has renewed its annual import pacts for 2011. In 2010 Iran supplied about 12 percent of China's total crude imports. According to the latest report of the China Customs Organization, Iran's total oil exports to China stood at 8.549 million tons between January and April 2011, up 32 percent compared with the same period last year. Iran is currently China's third largest supplier of crude oil, providing China with nearly one million barrels per day.

China simply ignores Washington's squeals about sanctions, but it is concerned about the bottom line, and unless Iran makes its oil prices more attractive versus competing supplies from the rest of the Middle East or South American exporters, it may be hard for the OPEC member to boost its share in the rapidly expanding Chinese market.

Enter the Kish Exchange.

China's Ambassador to Tehran Yu Hung Yang, addressing the Iran-China trade conference in Tehran on Monday, said that the value of the two countries' trade exchanges surged 55 percent during the first four months of 2011 over the same period a year ago to $13.28 billion and further predicted that the figure would surpass $40 billion by the end of the year.

So much for sanctions, eh?

So, while Washington prepares to commit political hara-kiri, Iran is preparing to take away a little of the capitalist glow from New York and London. If the Chinese decide to start paying for their Iranian purchases strictly in yuan, expect the trickle away from the dollar in energy pricing to become a stampede. That ought to give Washington politicos an issue to think about besides gay marriage.

TEHRAN (FNA)- Iran's envoy to the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) slammed the US and Russia for their refusal to dismantle and annihilate their chemical weapons, and warned that their case would be referred to the UN Security Council and other world bodies if they continue their inaction.

Kazzem Qaribabadi made the remarks, addressing the 65th Session of the OPCW in The Hague.

He stressed that if certain countries, including the US and Russia, do not fulfill their undertakings in annihilating their chemical weapons, the issue will be referred to the UN General Assembly, Security Council and also the future conference of the OPCW.

He urged Washington and Moscow to dismantle all their chemical weapons by April 29, 2012, the legal deadline for the annihilation of such weapons, and said the possession of chemical weapons by the US and Russia endangers international peace and security very gravely.

Iran has always stressed the urgent need for the dismantlement of the Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMDs), including chemical weapons, as it has been a victim of such weapons.

Tens of thousands of Iranians were killed and wounded by chemical weapons during the Iraqi imposed war on Iran (1980-1988).

Around 100,000 Iranians are still living with the effects, which include long-term respiratory problems, eye and skin problems as well as immune system disorders, psychological disorders, genetic disorders and cancers.

The deputy chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the Iranian Armed Forces says that Iran was the only winner in the 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war.

On Monday, Brigadier General Masoud Jazayeri said that the Islamic Republic emerged unscathed and triumphant despite numerous attacks during the eight-year Iraqi-imposed war.

The imposed war began in 1980, a year after the victory of Iran's Islamic Revolution, when Iraq, supported by the major powers, invaded Iran through air and ground incursions into Iranian territory.

The war drew to a close in August 1988, when Iran, in compliance with international law, accepted UN Security Council Resolution 598.

The enemies had sought to separate parts of the country, and to prevent the expansion of the Islamic Revolution to other countries, Jazayeri noted.

He added that the United Nations and the UN Security Council did nothing about Iraq's invasion of Iran and its war against the Islamic republic.

He added that this emboldened the Western-backed Baathist regime of former Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein to invade Kuwait and allowed the United States to deploy troops in the region.

Iran could stop oil exports to India starting on August 1 if the financial dispute over the payment of arrears is not resolved, according to an Iranian Oil Ministry official.

The unnamed official told the Fars news agency on Monday that Iran does not want to halt oil shipments to India indefinitely and will only halt deliveries scheduled for August if India fails to pay its debt to the Islamic Republic.

Also on Monday, Central Bank of Iran Governor Mahmoud Bahmani said that there have been some negotiations with Indian officials over the overdue payment, which now stands at five billion dollars. Bahmani corrected earlier reports that said the figure was nine billion dollars.

In February 2011, Iran and India agreed to set up a new mechanism for the oil payments using euros through the EIH Bank in Germany.

On April 7, Germany rebuffed pressure by the United States and the European Union to close down the EIH Bank, announcing that it has no proof that any illegal activities are being conducted by the bank.

German Foreign Ministry spokesman Andreas Peschke said that the EIH Bank will continue its activities in the European country.

India imports 84 percent of its oil requirements and depends heavily on oil from the Middle East to power its economy.

Iran is reportedly India's second biggest oil supplier after Saudi Arabia and exports about $12 billion of petroleum to Asia's third largest oil consumer.

Israel will probably attack Iran in September, a former CIA officer who spent 21 years in the Middle East, including in Lebanon and Syria, has told a Los Angeles radio show.

While Robert Baer didn't reveal the sources behind his prediction, he referred to former Mossad chief Meir Dagan's warnings of an Israeli attack on Iran as "no bluff."

Baer told the KPFK Radio on Tuesday recent comments made by Dagan that an Israeli attack on Iran could lead to a regional war, "tell us with near certainty that [Prime Minister Binyamin] Netanyahu is planning an attack, and in as much as I can guess when it's going to be, it's probably going to be in September, before a [UN General Assembly] vote on the Palestinian state."

Netanyahu is "also hoping to draw the United States into the conflict – and in fact, there's a warning order inside the Pentagon to prepare for conflict with Iran," Baer said.

The retired senior CIA officer predicted that Israel would attack the Natanz nuclear facility, as well as "a couple of others to degrade their capabilities."

"The Iranians will strike back where they can, and that will be in Basra and in Baghdad," where the US has a reduced troop presence, Baer said.

"We've started to look at Iran's targets in Iraq and across the border," he said.

Baer, however, said a regional war was unlikely.

“What we’re facing here is an escalation, not a planned all-out war,” he said.

There was no response from the Prime Minister’s Office in Jerusalem.

Argentina welcomes Iran's offer on Jewish centre bombing inquiry

Tehran ready to co-operate but will not hand over Iranian officials suspected in 1994 terrorism attack in Buenos Aires

http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2011/jul/1...-centre-bombing

The Argentinian government has described as "very positive" an Iranian offer to co-operate with an inquiry into the South American country's deadliest terrorist attack.

Argentinians have long suspected high-level Iranian diplomats were involved in the 1994 bombing of a Jewish centre in Buenos Aires that killed 85 people.

Argentina persuaded Interpol to issue warrants for the arrests of Ahmad Vahidi, who is now Iran's defence minister, , and other top officials. Cristina Kirchner, the Argentinian president, has demanded in UN speeches that Iran deliver the suspects to Argentinian justice.

Iran's foreign ministry has rejected the Argentinians' position and did so again in a statement on the case on Saturday, but at the same time the ministry also said the Islamic republic was ready to begin a dialogue to help solve the crime.

The Argentinian foreign minister, Héctor Timerman, said on Sunday that Argentina had yet to receive formal communication on the offer from Iran but that if reports from Iranian official media are correct then "this would be an unprecedented and very positive advance from the Iranian authorities".

Monday is the anniversary of the bombing of the Argentine-Israeli Mutual Association. Despite the insistence of Buenos Aires that Tehran turn over the suspects, Jewish groups in Argentina and Israel have expressed concern that Argentina could warm up to Iran for political reasons that have nothing to do with the case.

The Iranian statement said it condemned terrorism, expressed sympathy for the victims' families and wanted to help investigate the attack.

But it also accused Argentinian prosecutors of unfairly targeting Iranian citizens and said it had a duty to defend them. Iran said it would issue a report soon on what it called Argentina's "unfair process" toward Iranian citizens.

On Saturday the Argentinian prosecutor Alberto Nisman dismissed the offer as empty words unless Iran handed over its citizens. He alleges that the bombing was organised by a group of Iranian diplomats and officials including Vahidi.

"If the Iranians and their government are ready to co-operate they should do it once and for all and in the only way possible: handing over all those accused by the Argentinian justice system of this terrible terrorist act and stop making empty declarations that never go anywhere," the prosecutor said.

Vahidi recently visited Bolivia despite the Interpol warrant for his arrest. Bolivia's foreign ministry formally apologised for failing to act on the warrant.

The Argentinian foreign ministry has promised Argentina's Jewish community that it will send a full report on the 1994 attack as well as a bombing two years earlier that killed 29 people and destroyed the Israeli embassy in Buenos Aires.

Tehran bars special rapporteur Ahmad Shaheed, accusing countries responsible for his appointment of hypocrisy

Saeed Kamali Dehghan
http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2011/jul/1...un-human-rights

Iran has announced that it will not permit the UN special rapporteur assigned with investigating its record of human rights to enter the country.

Ahmad Shaheed, the former Maldivian foreign affairs minister, was appointed by the UN in June to look into human rights violations in Iran, leading to much criticism from the regime in Tehran.

According to the Tehran Times, the state English-language newspaper, Mohammad Javad Larijani, Iran's secretary general of the high council for human rights, said: "The western-engineered appointment of a special rapporteur for Iran is an illegal measure."

Larijani – whose brothers Ali and Sadegh Larijani are Iran's speaker of the parliament and head of the judiciary – added: "This unilateral action makes no sense and if they want to send a special rapporteur to Iran, they should take the same measure in the case of other countries."

Shaheed's appointment was the result of concerted warnings by various human rights organisations against Iran's current record of human rights.

In recent years, rights groups have expressed concerns over the arbitrary arrests of political activists, the sharp rise in the country's rate of execution and claims of torture and rape inside Iran's prisons.

According to the organisations that have been monitoring Iran, in the first six months of this year an average of almost two people a day were executed.

Dozens of journalists, several lawyers, political activists, members of different ethnic minorities and many political figures remain in jail with poor legal representation and little access to the outside world.

In his remarks about Shaheed, Larijani objected that the countries behind the appointment of the special rapporteur had remained silent over the human rights issues surrounding "Guantánamo Bay, Abu Ghraib, and Israeli jails".

"Iran has no problem with the individual who has been appointed as the special rapporteur, but the appointment of a rapporteur on the human rights situation in Iran is unacceptable and Iran will not accept the decision," he added.

In a separate incident, Iran claimed on Monday that its revolutionary guards had dismantled an Iranian Kurdish opposition group based in Iraq after an operation inside Iraq's autonomous Kurdistan region in the past two days that left many dead on both sides.

A week ago, Iran warned that it would take military action against the Party of Free Life of Kurdistan, a Kurdish rebel group based in Iraq, which Iranian officials have labelled a "terrorist organisation".

Iran, Pakistan urge stronger ties

http://old.news.yahoo.com/s/afp/20110716/w...kistandiplomacy

TEHRAN (AFP) – Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad and visiting Pakistani President Asif Ali Zardari called on Saturday for a boost to bilateral relations, the official IRNA news agency reported.

"Iran is ready to reinforce its cooperation with Pakistan in every field," Ahmadinejad was quoted as saying.

"Construction of the pipeline to export Iranian gas to Pakistan is underway, and we hope it will reach the frontier by the end of 2012," he added of a multi-billion-dollar project.

Zardari also said relations between the neighbours should be strengthened, and urged that "trade between the two countries be conducted in local currency and not the dollar, to curb smuggling," IRNA said.

He also denounced "efforts by our enemies who seek to show that the Pakistani government is unstable by provoking trouble," saying that those responsible would face justice.

Zardari's trip to Tehran, a sworn enemy of the United States, comes after Washington deferred $800 million (566 million euros) in military aid to Islamabad in a bid to seek greater defence cooperation.

It also comes less than a month after Iran, Pakistan and Afghanistan agreed to cooperate to fight against militants.

Zardari's earlier visit had been to attend a counter-terrorism summit, on the sidelines of which the three countries reached the anti-militant cooperation agreement.

"After the conference and the tripartite Afghanistan-Iran-Pakistan meeting, we decided to pursue bilateral relations," foreign ministry spokesman Ramin Mehmanparast was quoted on state television as saying before Saturday's visit.

Zardari was also received by Iran's supreme leader Ali Khamenei.

Fars news agency reported Khamenei as telling Zardari: "The principal enemy of the Pakistani people and the unity of the country is the West, headed by the United States."

Washington suspended the military assistance -- about one third of its $2.7 billion annual defence package -- some two months after a US operation killed Al-Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden near Pakistan's top military academy.

After the raid, the United States pledged to keep relations steady with Pakistan. But US frustration has mounted, including over Islamabad's decision to oust up to 200 US personnel who planned to train Pakistani forces.

Iranian officials have been vocal in their criticism of the prolonged US troop deployments in neighbouring Afghanistan and Iraq, both of which are now set to be drawn down.

They have also repeatedly accused the US and Pakistani intelligence services of helping Sunni Islamist insurgents active in Iran's southeastern province of Sistan-Baluchestan, which borders Pakistan's own restive Baluchistan province.

Exclusive Interview with Abolghasem Bayyenat by Kourosh Ziabari

Abolghasem Bayyenat is an independent political analyst writing mainly on Iran's foreign policy developments. Over the past decade, his political commentaries and articles have appeared in numerous popular media and online journals, including Foreign Policy Journal, Foreign Policy In Focus, Monthly Review, Eurasia Review, AntiWar.com, Tehran Times, Middle East Online, San Francisco Chronicle, Online Opinion, American Chronicle, and a number of other national newspapers and online journals across the world. He has also published a number of book chapters and articles in academic journals. Besides academic studies in political science and international relations, he has also practical experience in international diplomacy. In the past, he has worked for several years as international trade expert and researcher in Iran, as part of which he was involved in various bilateral and multilateral trade negotiations between Iran and its trade partners around the world. He is currently completing his Ph. D studies in political science at Maxwell School of Syracuse University. His latest articles can also be read on his own blog at www. irandiplomacywatch.com.

What follows is the complete text of my in-depth interview with Mr. Bayyenat in which we discussed the standoff over Iran's nuclear program, the prospect of Iran-West relations and the politics of Israel's nuclear activities.

Kourosh Ziabari: The past decade has been witness to unending and unremitting clash between Iran and the West over Tehran's nuclear program. The West has constantly accused Iran of trying to build nuclear bombs while Tehran has persistently denied the allegation. What do you think about the nature of Iran's nuclear program? Why has it become so controversial and contentious? We already know that there are four nations in the world, who are not signatories of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, but nobody in the international community pressures them to halt their nuclear program and nobody investigates their nuclear arsenals. Why Iran is being singled out?

Abolghasem Bayyenat: Iran's nuclear program is driven by two major factors. The most important factor is genuine domestic need for electric power generation. Iran's fossil fuel reserves have been fast depleting over the past few decades in light of the growing domestic consumption caused by population growth, ongoing industrialization and economic development in Iran. The prospect of full depletion of fossil fuel reserves motivated Iranian leaders to seek alternative sources of energy. Nuclear power presented itself as the most reliable alternative source of energy for Iran, given its sustainability and tested performance in developed countries.

The second important factor is that developing nuclear power and harnessing nuclear energy represents an advanced scientific realm and progress in that front serves as a source of national pride for Iran. A limited number of nations in the world have been able to master the full nuclear fuel cycle. Development of an indigenous nuclear fuel cycle capacity along with progress in other advanced scientific realms such as space program and stem cell research can thus positively influence Iran's national self-image and elevate its international prestige.

The reasons why Iran's nuclear program has become controversial are twofold. First, Iran's decision to materialize its rights under the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) to develop peaceful applications of nuclear technology and nuclear fuel cycle in particular; what can make this controversial in the eyes of Western powers is the dual use of nuclear technology. Possessing full nuclear fuel cycle technology enables states to produce the material needed for ultimate use in nuclear weapons. Building nuclear bombs of course requires much more than just possessing sufficient stock of highly-enriched uranium or plutonium, but mastering this technology enables such states to make the essential ingredients for a bomb and thus become closer to building nuclear warheads.

One may rightly argue that the safeguards mechanisms of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) makes it every thing but feasible for the member states of the NPT to proceed to producing weapons-grade material for nuclear bombs. The main rejoinder to this argument is that states arguably always have the option to withdraw from the NPT under certain circumstances and terminate IAEA inspections on their nuclear facilities, if they are willing to face the consequences of such an action. In a nutshell, possessing nuclear fuel cycle technology or seeking nuclear threshold status can pose risks for nuclear proliferation in the world, even though the NPT grants this right to its member states.

While a necessary condition, this factor however is not a sufficient cause for Iran's nuclear issue becoming controversial. After all there are a number of other nuclear threshold countries in the world, not to mention nuclear-armed states, whose nuclear programs have not drawn any international controversy. What makes Iran's nuclear program controversial is Iran's political identity as a state or who Iran is or what it stands for. The combination of seeking nuclear threshold status and Iran's political identity has turned Iran's nuclear program into a controversial issue. Speaking in the language of social sciences methodology, there is an interactive effect between these two variables in the sense that each of these two variables is significant only in combination with the other variable or its effect is intensified in interaction with the other. Iran's political ideology as practiced in its foreign policy, especially in regard to the Middle East region and the United States, largely represents Iran's political identity.

The reason why Iran is being singled out while there are other countries in the region and beyond which are not parties to the NPT and have weaponized their nuclear programs with impunity is the same as above. On the surface, it is all a legal issue in that those countries which are not signatories to the NPT are not bound by its rules, including the IAEA safeguards mechanisms, and have thus been able to nuclearize with impunity. However, if this were so, those countries which withdraw from the NPT and are thus no longer bound by its regulations should enjoy the same privileges as those outside the NPT, as notifications of withdrawal from the NPT automatically come into force after three months without any need for approval by other contracting parties. There are conflicting interpretations of paragraph 1 of Article X of the NPT though. Yet the reality is that this is not the case and states may face harsh punitive measures by hegemonic powers even if they are not subject to the NPT regulations, as the experience of the withdrawal of North Korea from the NPT demonstrates.

In sum, the reason why Iran is being singled out while some aggressive nuclear-armed states in the region enjoy impunity is primarily political rather than legal. Iran's political identity, as shaped by its official ideology and the history of its relationship with the United States and European powers, has put its foreign policy at odds with the interests of imperial powers in the region. The international controversy over Iran's nuclear issue can thus be understood in this context.

KZ: Over the past years, the United Nations Security Council, under the pressure of the United States and its European allies, imposed four rounds of crippling economic sanctions against Iran over its nuclear program. These sanctions targeted Iran's oil and gas sector, aviation industry, health and medicine sector, consular affairs and in a nutshell, every aspect of the daily life of the Iranian citizens who had been trying to rise from the ashes of the devastating war with Iraq in 1980s. What do you think about these sanctions and their impact on the life of the Iranian citizens? Don't these sanctions resemble some kind of human rights violation? Iranian people are deprived of having access to the most essential commodities of their daily life as a result of these sanctions. What's your take on that?

AB: The sanctions against Iran have publicly been represented by Western powers as selective and targeted measures with the aim of only pressuring the Iranian government to reconsider its position on its nuclear issue. This public image has been promoted to avoid a public opinion backlash against Western governments. The experience of the U. S. sanctions against Iraq in the 1990s, which contributed to a humanitarian catastrophe in that country whereby hundreds of thousands of Iraqi children reportedly perished as a result of malnutrition and shortage of medicines and other medical supplies exacerbated by the U.S. sanctions, had created public aversion to the use of sanctions as an instrument of foreign policy. Despite Western governments' rejection of any analogy between their current sanctions against Iran and those imposed on Iraq in the 1990s, the reality is that Western governments have set their feet on the same path especially by introducing unilateral sanctions against Iran.

Many of the measures adopted against Iran, such as those targeting Iran's energy sector, civil aviation and maritime transportation, among others, are indiscriminate by nature and have impacts much wider than that publicly advertised by Western governments. They are designed to inflict collective punishment on the whole country with the ostensible aim of pressuring the Iranian government. As such, they are contrary to international law and international moral principles as established and advocated by Western governments themselves.

To have a better sense of the impact of the Western sanctions on the general population of Iran, we can take a look at the sanctions imposed against Iran's energy sector as an example. The stated goal of these measures is to deprive Iran from its principal source of revenue over time by prohibiting foreign investments in its oil and natural gas sectors and disrupting Iran's international financial transactions in these products. Western governments justify these measures by arguing that revenues emanating from oil exports and the sale of other energy products help Iran finance its nuclear program. However, the reality is that while a fraction of Iran's foreign exchange revenues may also be channeled to finance Iran's nuclear program, Western governments tend to ignore the fact that these same revenues also account for the bulk of Iran's public budget which helps finance public health services, public education, subsidized food for the poor and many other social services programs.

Around 80 percent of Iran's foreign exchange revenues come from the export of energy products and any long-term disruption of such revenues can seriously hamper the Iranian government's capacity to provide public services to its people. Western governments may rejoice at this prospect but they would be disappointed to find out that this will have minimal impact on the resolution of Iran's nuclear issue. The Iranian government will be able to continue financing its nuclear program as it does not constitute a substantial item on the government budget and the public anger at the disruption of social services will also be directed at the West rather than the Iranian government. Other Western sanctions against Iran such as those targeting civil aviation and maritime transportation sectors also have the effect of inflicting a collective punishment upon the general population of Iran without making any meaningful contribution to the resolution of Iran's nuclear issue.

KZ: With their sophisticated intelligence apparatus, the United States and its European allies should have come to the conclusion that Iran does not have the intention of building nuclear bombs nor does it have the capability to build one. Iran has repeatedly stated that it will publicly announce once it decides to build an atomic bomb because it is afraid of nobody. Is the pressure on Iran over its nuclear program part of an agenda to derail Iran's status as a regional superpower and isolate it internationally, or is it really a matter of ignorance and unawareness on the side of the West?

AB: As I explained in my answer to your first question, gaining nuclear threshold status is not equivalent to having the capacity to manufacture a nuclear bomb but it enables the states possessing such capacity to produce the essential ingredients for ultimate use in a bomb, should they choose to terminate their membership in the NPT. A number of American and also European political and intelligence officials have publicly acknowledged that Iran does not have the political will to manufacture nuclear weapons but they insist that they cannot predict Iran's future intentions.

Possessing nuclear threshold status or even developing nuclear arms is not a sufficient cause for international controversy over a state's nuclear program. As I mentioned earlier, Iran's political identity interacts with its nuclear threshold capacity to turn its nuclear program into a matter of concern for the West. When it comes to the motives of Western countries in their confrontation with Iran over its nuclear program, we should note that the West is not a monolithic and united front. Both the United States and major European powers have an interest in preventing Iran from maintaining nuclear threshold status. But the role of political identity of Iran is more determining in its relations with the United States than with most European powers as the latter maintained largely normal commercial and political relations with Iran before its nuclear program came into the spotlight.

In contrast, Iran's problems with the United States will not come to an end with the resolution of Iran's nuclear issue and the relations of the two countries will continue to be strained due to the long-standing crisis in their relationship. As in the past, other contentious issues will emerge in the relations of the two countries thus serving as a pretext for sustaining the deep-seated hostility between the two countries. Given the largely conflicting political identity of the two governments which in most contexts has defined conflicting foreign policy interests for the two countries , the United States views its relations with Iran as a zero-sum game and will thus struggle to contain Iran's growing power and influence in the region, even if this would mean swimming against the tide and creating unnecessary costs for its foreign policy in the region.

KZ: Israel is said to be the sole possessor of nuclear weapons in the Middle East. With a declared policy of deliberate ambiguity, it has prevented the international community from investigating its arsenals, and the global organizations such as the UNSC in turn have shown little interest in focusing on Israel's dossier. Why can Israel enjoy immunity from international law and be exempted from being held accountable before the public opinion?

AB: As you indicated, it is an open secret that Israel possesses a formidable nuclear weapons arsenal. There are multiple reasons why Israel has escaped international scrutiny over its nuclear program. The apparent reason is legal. Israel has refused to become a member of the NPT and is thus not bound by its rules. This has in part provided a shelter for Israel from international criticism over its nuclear program. As you have also brought up, Israel's policy of strategic ambiguity with regard to its nuclear weapons program has also contributed to this immunity from international scrutiny. Unlike India and Pakistan, Israel has not openly tested any nuclear device for various reasons and this has also helped its nuclear weapons program go largely unnoticed.

But above all, the unconditional and unwavering U.S. support for Israel at the UN Security Council and other international forums has effectively blocked international calls for investigation into Israel's nuclear program. There is no hope for introducing any resolution in the UNSC on this matter as the United States stands too ready to veto any resolution which happens to be slightly critical of Israel. The fact that Israel is not a member of the NPT has also facilitated the task of the United States in preventing the issue of Israel's nuclear arsenals from appearing on the agenda of relevant international organizations by supplying it with a convenient legal justification.

Despite this prospect, any call for international probe into Israel's nuclear program should primarily come from Israel's neighboring countries as, more than any other country in the world they are endangered by Israel's nuclear weapons arsenal. However, autocratic Arab rulers have historically placed the survival of their regimes above their national interests and popular preferences. Given the lack of democratic accountability in the Arab world, conservative authoritarian Arab regimes have refrained from seriously pushing for international scrutiny into Israel's nuclear weapons program and calling for nuclear disarmament in the Middle East region, as demanded by their publics. These regimes have instead defined their interests in close harmony with Israeli and U.S. interests in the region by calling for international pressure on Iran's IAEA-monitored nuclear program.

KZ: During the recent years, Israel has been incessantly threatening Iran against a nuclear strike and a preemptive war. The United States also has repeated the same slogans with a different frequency. Don't these threats exemplify violation of the UN Charter and Geneva Convention? Do you take seriously these threats? Overall, do you think that either of these two stalwart allies will finally attack Iran?

AB: As you have also suggested, issuing unprovoked military threats against a sovereign state constitutes a breach of various instruments of international law governing peace and security. These threats should be taken seriously and condemned by the international community as they set a dangerous precedent in international relations. Yet they do not represent a genuine military threat against Iran and remain largely as a propaganda tactic. Israeli leaders understand both the risks and futility of any such military adventures against Iran. There are several factors which discourage the execution of such military threats against Iran. First, there is the feasibility problem in the sense that there are serious challenges for Israel in executing such a military threat against Iran. The long distance between the two countries poses various obstacles for carrying out such a military adventure, including flying over unfriendly countries, refueling problem for attacking aircrafts, Iran's effective air defense and so on.

Second, any such military attacks against Iran's nuclear facilities will largely be ineffective and futile. Most nuclear facilities of Iran are protected with passive defense arrangements, since they are buried deep in mountains or under ground and are also scattered all over the country. Under the best circumstances, any hypothetical attack by Israel on Iran's nuclear facilities will only exert minimal damage on Iran's nuclear capabilities and thus delaying its nuclear progress for only a short time. Iran has achieved self-sufficiency in most elements of its nuclear program and will be able to rebuild its nuclear facilities within a reasonable amount of time drawing on its indigenous capacities.

Third, the fallouts from such a military adventure will be unbearable for Israel. Iran will definitely retaliate against Israel with full force in the event of such an attack on its nuclear facilities. Iran's regional allies will also play their own part in carrying out such a retaliation against Israel. This in turn will raise the prospect of an all-out regional war and Israeli is all but willing to endure such costs. Cool-headed Israeli politicians grasp the extent of calamities that such a military adventure against Iran would unleash for Israel and have thus strongly warned in public against considering such an option.

Other fallouts from such a military adventure may include Iran's withdrawal form the NPT and terminating the IAEA inspections on its nuclear facilities. This would not necessarily mean that Iran will revise its attitude towards nuclear weapons and would rush to build atomic bombs, even though it might be forced to go down that path in the aftermath of such an attack, but would largely signify Iran's frustration with international organizations to guarantee the security of its peaceful nuclear activities. Taking these consequences into account, I think as long as rationality guides national security decision-making in Israel, such military threats will never materialize against Iran.

The United States is even more averse to considering a military attack against Iran's nuclear facilities than Israel. The United States is already bugged down in two wars in the neighborhood of Iran and is well aware of its vulnerabilities in these countries , should Iran decide to seriously challenge it in those arenas. To this, one should add a host of domestic problems facing the U.S. government and a public weary of military adventures abroad. For similar reasons, U.S. policy-makers are also convinced of the futility and ineffectiveness of a military option against Iran.

Despite these realities, Israeli politicians tend to repeat their military threats against Iran in part to pressure the United States and other Western powers to intensify their pressure on Iran and in part to divert international attention form their own nuclear weapons arsenal and their continued occupation of the Palestinian lands and their other atrocities against Palestinians.

KZ: Some critics of the foreign policy of President Ahmadinejad administration believe that he isolated Iran in the international stage with his radical policies toward the West. They also say that he failed to direct Iran's nuclear program in the right path and thus lost many opportunities including a cordial and amiable relation with the United States and Europe. Do you agree with them?

AB: I personally do not think some of President Ahmadinejad's rhetoric in foreign policy are helpful but I do not attribute the current standoff between Iran and Western powers to that. I have already explained in my answers to your previous questions what I consider to be the root causes of the crisis in Iran-Western relations.

The existing crisis in Iran-Western relations obviously predates the election of President Ahmadinejad. Iran was branded as part of 'the Axis of Evil' and further demonized by former U.S. President George Bush at a time when actually a reformist president was in power in Iran, who had promoted dialogue between Islam and the Western civilization and had advocated détente in Iran's foreign policy with the West. Under former Iranian President Khatami, Iran had also extended practical cooperation to the United States in its fight against terrorism after the September 11, 2001, but only to be rewarded with more hostility by the United States.

Having said this, there is no doubt that Iran became subject to more pressure by Western powers since Ahmadinejad came to office. Ahmadinejad's risk-taking behavior in relation to Iran's nuclear policy has provoked further hostile reactions by Western powers against Iran. But no gain in foreign policy comes without its due costs. Iran has also gained significant technological achievements in its nuclear program and has considerably developed its domestic capacity in various areas of nuclear activities.

Even if Iran was forthcoming on the nuclear issue as during President Khatami's tenure, U.S. antagonistic policies towards Iran would persist in new forms. Given that even Khatami's reformist government was not willing to extend the temporary suspension of Iran's nuclear activities, which was adopted as a temporary confidence-building measure, I believe more ore less the same level of Western confrontation with Iran would have been inevitable even if a reformist government was still in power in Iran

KZ: What do you think of the prospect of Iran's nuclear standoff? Will the upcoming U. S. Presidential elections have a serious impact on the course of events related to Iran's nuclear program? Some critics of Iran's foreign policy believe that Iran was lucky that Barack Obama won the 2008 elections because every other candidate would certainly attack Iran if won the elections. What's your viewpoint?

AB: It does not appear that the United States is genuinely interested in having Iran's nuclear issue resolved in any reasonable manner as its current strategy is solely geared to inflicting utmost pain on Iran. Western powers' insistence on unrealistic preconditions for negotiations and not showing due flexibility to recognize Iran's core legitimate interests has allowed no room for optimism for the resolution of Iran's nuclear issue any time soon. The hard-line position of the United States has already drawn the sharp criticism of top American foreign policy experts and veteran Western diplomats who command close knowledge of the issue.

I don't see how the upcoming U.S. presidential elections would contribute meaningfully to the resolution of Iran's nuclear issue. Past experience has shown that changing political circumstances may only effect tactical changes in U.S. policy towards Iran and as long as the root causes of the current stand-off are not addressed no permanent solution to the issue can be perceived.

I also don't think that Iran was lucky Obama was elected as U.S. president. Because the Obama administration has played down the option of a military attack against Iran it has been more effective than the Bush Administration to bring European countries and, to some extent, China and Russia on board to exert some pressure on Iran. As soon as the threat of a military attack against Iran gains more currency within the U.S. administration, this fragile coalition would start to crumble down.

The record of Bush administration on Iran serves as an example for how far a hawkish Republican administration would achieve on the Iran front, had it won the U.S. elections. Besides, the first priority of every American administration would have been addressing domestic problems in light of the ongoing economic recession. Opening any new war front on top of Iraq and Afghanistan, much less one on the scale of a military confrontation with Iran, would have been a recipe for early retirement for any U.S. president under present circumstances.

KZ: Iran has invested a lot in its relationship with China and Russia and considers them its strategic allies; however, both of these countries showed green light to anti-Iranian sanctions in the Security Council and facilitated the imposition of resolutions against Iran in an undeniable complicity with the United States. In the other words, Russia and China flagrantly betrayed Iran in time of need. What do you think about Iran's relations with China and Russia? Why has Iran trusted them several times despite the fact that it was cleared to Tehran that they're not loyal friends?

AB: I would look at the situation somewhat differently. In international relations states are loyal only to their own interests. Realism is still the dominant discourse in international relations and states view their relations with each other largely in realist terms. National interests defined broadly in terms of maximizing their own military power and economic well-being vis-à-vis other states is the guiding principle of the foreign policy of states. Seasoned Iranian foreign policy makers also understand the limits of Iran's bargaining power with regard to China and Russia, when other states, particularly Western powers, are competing with it for their loyalty.

While both China and Russia have important stakes in their relations with Iran, they also maintain by far larger interests in their relations with the United States and other Western powers. China and the United States are economically highly interdependent and the U.S. market serves as the single most important destination for Chinese exports. Russia has similarly important economic and security interests in its relations with the West. Both countries have tried to strike a fine balance between their relations with Iran and the West in order to maximize their benefits and minimize their costs. While their actions in betraying Iran's trust at some points may be morally and legally indefensible, it is not always possible for them to keep both parties to the conflict content and their interests may require that they sometimes lean toward one side at the expense of the other.

Both Russia and China have also significantly softened the language of the Security Council resolutions against Iran and have opposed certain harsh measures against it, a fact which shows that they still maintain important interests in their relations with Iran, which they are not willing to give up unless the West is prepared to pay the necessary price for that. This of course does not mean that Russia and China have no redlines in their foreign policies and are willing to prostitute out their loyalties to the highest bidder, but there are clear limits to the extent to which they can support their allies. The experience of Russian and Chinese inaction towards NATO strikes on Serbia and their no more than verbal opposition to the U.S. invasion of Iraq were enough to remind even the most optimistic Iranian policy makers that they cannot tie their hope to the support of these two countries under all circumstances.

Israeli leaders understand the futility of military adventurism against Iran:

An Interview with Abolghasem Bayyenat

By Kourosh Ziabari

Abolghasem Bayyenat is an independent political analyst writing mainly on Iran's foreign policy developments. Over the past decade, his political commentaries and articles have appeared in numerous popular media and online journals, including Foreign Policy Journal, Foreign Policy In Focus, Monthly Review, Eurasia Review, AntiWar.com, Tehran Times, Middle East Online, San Francisco Chronicle, Online Opinion, American Chronicle, and a number of other national newspapers and online journals across the world. He has also published a number of book chapters and articles in academic journals. Besides academic studies in political science and international relations, he has also practical experience in international diplomacy. In the past, he has worked for several years as international trade expert and researcher in Iran, as part of which he was involved in various bilateral and multilateral trade negotiations between Iran and its trade partners around the world. He is currently completing his Ph. D studies in political science at Maxwell School of Syracuse University. His latest articles can also be read on his own blog at Iran Diplomacy Watch .

What follows is the complete text of my in-depth interview with Mr. Bayyenat in which we discussed the standoff over Iran's nuclear program, the prospect of Iran-West relations and the politics of Israel's nuclear activities.

Kourosh Ziabari: The past decade has been witness to unending and unremitting clash between Iran and the West over Tehran's nuclear program. The West has constantly accused Iran of trying to build nuclear bombs while Tehran has persistently denied the allegation. What do you think about the nature of Iran's nuclear program? Why has it become so controversial and contentious? We already know that there are four nations in the world, who are not signatories of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, but nobody in the international community pressures them to halt their nuclear program and nobody investigates their nuclear arsenals. Why Iran is being singled out?

Abolghasem Bayyenat: Iran's nuclear program is driven by two major factors. The most important factor is genuine domestic need for electric power generation. Iran's fossil fuel reserves have been fast depleting over the past few decades in light of the growing domestic consumption caused by population growth, ongoing industrialization and economic development in Iran. The prospect of full depletion of fossil fuel reserves motivated Iranian leaders to seek alternative sources of energy. Nuclear power presented itself as the most reliable alternative source of energy for Iran, given its sustainability and tested performance in developed countries.

The second important factor is that developing nuclear power and harnessing nuclear energy represents an advanced scientific realm and progress in that front serves as a source of national pride for Iran. A limited number of nations in the world have been able to master the full nuclear fuel cycle. Development of an indigenous nuclear fuel cycle capacity along with progress in other advanced scientific realms such as space program and stem cell research can thus positively influence Iran's national self-image and elevate its international prestige.

The reasons why Iran's nuclear program has become controversial are twofold. First, Iran's decision to materialize its rights under the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) to develop peaceful applications of nuclear technology and nuclear fuel cycle in particular; what can make this controversial in the eyes of Western powers is the dual use of nuclear technology. Possessing full nuclear fuel cycle technology enables states to produce the material needed for ultimate use in nuclear weapons. Building nuclear bombs of course requires much more than just possessing sufficient stock of highly-enriched uranium or plutonium, but mastering this technology enables such states to make the essential ingredients for a bomb and thus become closer to building nuclear warheads.

One may rightly argue that the safeguards mechanisms of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) makes it every thing but feasible for the member states of the NPT to proceed to producing weapons-grade material for nuclear bombs. The main rejoinder to this argument is that states arguably always have the option to withdraw from the NPT under certain circumstances and terminate IAEA inspections on their nuclear facilities, if they are willing to face the consequences of such an action. In a nutshell, possessing nuclear fuel cycle technology or seeking nuclear threshold status can pose risks for nuclear proliferation in the world, even though the NPT grants this right to its member states.

While a necessary condition, this factor however is not a sufficient cause for Iran's nuclear issue becoming controversial. After all there are a number of other nuclear threshold countries in the world, not to mention nuclear-armed states, whose nuclear programs have not drawn any international controversy. What makes Iran's nuclear program controversial is Iran's political identity as a state or who Iran is or what it stands for. The combination of seeking nuclear threshold status and Iran's political identity has turned Iran's nuclear program into a controversial issue. Speaking in the language of social sciences methodology, there is an interactive effect between these two variables in the sense that each of these two variables is significant only in combination with the other variable or its effect is intensified in interaction with the other. Iran's political ideology as practiced in its foreign policy, especially in regard to the Middle East region and the United States, largely represents Iran's political identity.

The reason why Iran is being singled out while there are other countries in the region and beyond which are not parties to the NPT and have weaponized their nuclear programs with impunity is the same as above. On the surface, it is all a legal issue in that those countries which are not signatories to the NPT are not bound by its rules, including the IAEA safeguards mechanisms, and have thus been able to nuclearize with impunity. However, if this were so, those countries which withdraw from the NPT and are thus no longer bound by its regulations should enjoy the same privileges as those outside the NPT, as notifications of withdrawal from the NPT automatically come into force after three months without any need for approval by other contracting parties. There are conflicting interpretations of paragraph 1 of Article X of the NPT though. Yet the reality is that this is not the case and states may face harsh punitive measures by hegemonic powers even if they are not subject to the NPT regulations, as the experience of the withdrawal of North Korea from the NPT demonstrates.

In sum, the reason why Iran is being singled out while some aggressive nuclear-armed states in the region enjoy impunity is primarily political rather than legal. Iran's political identity, as shaped by its official ideology and the history of its relationship with the United States and European powers, has put its foreign policy at odds with the interests of imperial powers in the region. Israeli leaders understand both the risks and futility of any such military adventures against Iran. There are several factors which discourage the execution of such military threats against Iran. First, there is the feasibility problem in the sense that there are serious challenges for Israel in executing such a military threat against Iran. The long distance between the two countries poses various obstacles for carrying out such a military adventure, including flying over unfriendly countries, refueling problem for attacking aircrafts, Iran's effective air defense and so on.

Second, any such military attacks against Iran's nuclear facilities will largely be ineffective and futile. Most nuclear facilities of Iran are protected with passive defense arrangements, since they are buried deep in mountains or under ground and are also scattered all over the country. Under the best circumstances, any hypothetical attack by Israel on Iran's nuclear facilities will only exert minimal damage on Iran's nuclear capabilities and thus delaying its nuclear progress for only a short time. Iran has achieved self-sufficiency in most elements of its nuclear program and will be able to rebuild its nuclear facilities within a reasonable amount of time drawing on its indigenous capacities.

Third, the fallouts from such a military adventure will be unbearable for Israel. Iran will definitely retaliate against Israel with full force in the event of such an attack on its nuclear facilities. Iran's regional allies will also play their own part in carrying out such a retaliation against Israel. This in turn will raise the prospect of an all-out regional war and Israeli is all but willing to endure such costs. Cool-headed Israeli politicians grasp the extent of calamities that such a military adventure against Iran would unleash for Israel and have thus strongly warned in public against considering such an option.

Other fallouts from such a military adventure may include Iran's withdrawal form the NPT and terminating the IAEA inspections on its nuclear facilities. This would not necessarily mean that Iran will revise its attitude towards nuclear weapons and would rush to build atomic bombs, even though it might be forced to go down that path in the aftermath of such an attack, but would largely signify Iran's frustration with international organizations to guarantee the security of its peaceful nuclear activities. Taking these consequences into account, I think as long as rationality guides national security decision-making in Israel, such military threats will never materialize against Iran.

The United States is even more averse to considering a military attack against Iran's nuclear facilities than Israel. The United States is already bugged down in two wars in the neighborhood of Iran and is well aware of its vulnerabilities in these countries , should Iran decide to seriously challenge it in those arenas. To this, one should add a host of domestic problems facing the U.S. government and a public weary of military adventures abroad. For similar reasons, U.S. policy-makers are also convinced of the futility and ineffectiveness of a military option against Iran.

Despite these realities, Israeli politicians tend to repeat their military threats against Iran in part to pressure the United States and other Western powers to intensify their pressure on Iran and in part to divert international attention form their own nuclear weapons arsenal and their continued occupation of the Palestinian lands and their other atrocities against Palestinians.

KZ: Some critics of the foreign policy of President Ahmadinejad administration believe that he isolated Iran in the international stage with his radical policies toward the West. They also say that he failed to direct Iran's nuclear program in the right path and thus lost many opportunities including a cordial and amiable relation with the United States and Europe. Do you agree with them?

AB: I personally do not think some of President Ahmadinejad's rhetoric in foreign policy are helpful but I do not attribute the current standoff between Iran and Western powers to that. I have already explained in my answers to your previous questions what I consider to be the root causes of the crisis in Iran-Western relations.

The existing crisis in Iran-Western relations obviously predates the election of President Ahmadinejad. Iran was branded as part of 'the Axis of Evil' and further demonized by former U.S. President George Bush at a time when actually a reformist president was in power in Iran, who had promoted dialogue between Islam and the Western civilization and had advocated détente in Iran's foreign policy with the West. Under former Iranian President Khatami, Iran had also extended practical cooperation to the United States in its fight against terrorism after the September 11, 2001, but only to be rewarded with more hostility by the United States.

Having said this, there is no doubt that Iran became subject to more pressure by Western powers since Ahmadinejad came to office. Ahmadinejad's risk-taking behavior in relation to Iran's nuclear policy has provoked further hostile reactions by Western powers against Iran. But no gain in foreign policy comes without its due costs. Iran has also gained significant technological achievements in its nuclear program and has considerably developed its domestic capacity in various areas of nuclear activities.

Even if Iran was forthcoming on the nuclear issue as during President Khatami's tenure, U.S. antagonistic policies towards Iran would persist in new forms. Given that even Khatami's reformist government was not willing to extend the temporary suspension of Iran's nuclear activities, which was adopted as a temporary confidence-building measure, I believe more ore less the same level of Western confrontation with Iran would have been inevitable even if a reformist government was still in power in Iran

KZ: What do you think of the prospect of Iran's nuclear standoff? Will the upcoming U. S. Presidential elections have a serious impact on the course of events related to Iran's nuclear program? Some critics of Iran's foreign policy believe that Iran was lucky that Barack Obama won the 2008 elections because every other candidate would certainly attack Iran if won the elections. What's your viewpoint?

AB: It does not appear that the United States is genuinely interested in having Iran's nuclear issue resolved in any reasonable manner as its current strategy is solely geared to inflicting utmost pain on Iran. Western powers' insistence on unrealistic preconditions for negotiations and not showing due flexibility to recognize Iran's core legitimate interests has allowed no room for optimism for the resolution of Iran's nuclear issue any time soon. The hard-line position of the United States has already drawn the sharp criticism of top American foreign policy experts and veteran Western diplomats who command close knowledge of the issue.

I don't see how the upcoming U.S. presidential elections would contribute meaningfully to the resolution of Iran's nuclear issue. Past experience has shown that changing political circumstances may only effect tactical changes in U.S. policy towards Iran and as long as the root causes of the current stand-off are not addressed no permanent solution to the issue can be perceived.

I also don't think that Iran was lucky Obama was elected as U.S. president. Because the Obama administration has played down the option of a military attack against Iran it has been more effective than the Bush Administration to bring European countries and, to some extent, China and Russia on board to exert some pressure on Iran. As soon as the threat of a military attack against Iran gains more currency within the U.S. administration, this fragile coalition would start to crumble down.

The record of Bush administration on Iran serves as an example for how far a hawkish Republican administration would achieve on the Iran front, had it won the U.S. elections. Besides, the first priority of every American administration would have been addressing domestic problems in light of the ongoing economic recession. Opening any new war front on top of Iraq and Afghanistan, much less one on the scale of a military confrontation with Iran, would have been a recipe for early retirement for any U.S. president under present circumstances.

KZ: Iran has invested a lot in its relationship with China and Russia and considers them its strategic allies; however, both of these countries showed green light to anti-Iranian sanctions in the Security Council and facilitated the imposition of resolutions against Iran in an undeniable complicity with the United States. In the other words, Russia and China flagrantly betrayed Iran in time of need. What do you think about Iran's relations with China and Russia? Why has Iran trusted them several times despite the fact that it was cleared to Tehran that they're not loyal friends?

AB: I would look at the situation somewhat differently. In international relations states are loyal only to their own interests. Realism is still the dominant discourse in international relations and states view their relations with each other largely in realist terms. National interests defined broadly in terms of maximizing their own military power and economic well-being vis-à-vis other states is the guiding principle of the foreign policy of states. Seasoned Iranian foreign policy makers also understand the limits of Iran's bargaining power with regard to China and Russia, when other states, particularly Western powers, are competing with it for their loyalty.

While both China and Russia have important stakes in their relations with Iran, they also maintain by far larger interests in their relations with the United States and other Western powers. China and the United States are economically highly interdependent and the U.S. market serves as the single most important destination for Chinese exports. Russia has similarly important economic and security interests in its relations with the West. Both countries have tried to strike a fine balance between their relations with Iran and the West in order to maximize their benefits and minimize their costs. While their actions in betraying Iran's trust at some points may be morally and legally indefensible, it is not always possible for them to keep both parties to the conflict content and their interests may require that they sometimes lean toward one side at the expense of the other.

Both Russia and China have also significantly softened the language of the Security Council resolutions against Iran and have opposed certain harsh measures against it, a fact which shows that they still maintain important interests in their relations with Iran, which they are not willing to give up unless the West is prepared to pay the necessary price for that. This of course does not mean that Russia and China have no redlines in their foreign policies and are willing to prostitute out their loyalties to the highest bidder, but there are clear limits to the extent to which they can support their allies. The experience of Russian and Chinese inaction towards NATO strikes on Serbia and their no more than verbal opposition to the U.S. invasion of Iraq were enough to remind even the most optimistic Iranian policy makers that they cannot tie their hope to the support of these two countries under all circumstances.

Iran and China sign $4b in deals

TEHERAN — Iran and China on Saturday signed a series of agreements worth $4 billion (€2.8 billion) for infrastructure projects as part of a broader bid to boost trade volume between the two nations, Iranian state media reported.

As part of a $500 million (€354 million) deal, China agreed to provide Iran with 60 energy recovery incinerators, which are to be installed within a year in major cities and in Iran's northern tourism hub along the Caspian sea.

The bilateral agreements span cooperation in water, mining, energy and industrial sectors. China also pledged to boosts its imports of Iranian mineral products, state TV reported.

"China is now the leading economic partner of Iran and there are plans for increasing last year's trade volume of $30 billion to $100 billion in the future," Iranian vice-president Mohammad Javad Mohammadi-Zadeh told state television.

The agreements were signed during a visit by He Guoqiang, a senior executive of the Chinese Communist Party, who heads a delegation visiting Iran. He was received by Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.

"Bilateral trade will reach $40 billion (€28 billion) this year," the Chinese ambassador to Teheran told IRNA recently.

China and Iran have become major economic partners in recent years, partly thanks to the withdrawal of Western companies in line with sanctions against the Islamic republic over its contentious nuclear drive.

Currency changes

Meanwhile, Iran's central bank is asking citizens their opinions on new names for the country's currency. Visitors to the bank's website can choose from several names, including rial — the current name — toman, parsi and derik.

In the online survey, the bank also asks respondents how many zeros should be removed from the currency. The government has proposed lopping off four zeros. The biggest Iranian banknote is 100,000 rials, which is equivalent to around $9.

The poll results will be taken into consideration when the government draws up a draft on changes to the currency. The proposal will be submitted to parliament. Iran's government has approved removing zeros from the currency, apparently as a result of inflation, which is officially about 14 per cent. —

TEHRAN (FNA)- Iran's envoy to the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) slammed the US and Russia for their refusal to dismantle and annihilate their chemical weapons, and warned that their case would be referred to the UN Security Council and other world bodies if they continue their inaction.

Kazzem Qaribabadi made the remarks, addressing the 65th Session of the OPCW in The Hague.

He stressed that if certain countries, including the US and Russia, do not fulfill their undertakings in annihilating their chemical weapons, the issue will be referred to the UN General Assembly, Security Council and also the future conference of the OPCW.

He urged Washington and Moscow to dismantle all their chemical weapons by April 29, 2012, the legal deadline for the annihilation of such weapons, and said the possession of chemical weapons by the US and Russia endangers international peace and security very gravely.

Iran has always stressed the urgent need for the dismantlement of the Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMDs), including chemical weapons, as it has been a victim of such weapons.

Tens of thousands of Iranians were killed and wounded by chemical weapons during the Iraqi imposed war on Iran (1980-1988).

Around 100,000 Iranians are still living with the effects, which include long-term respiratory problems, eye and skin problems as well as immune system disorders, psychological disorders, genetic disorders and cancers.

Iran has deployed 5,000 military forces in the northwest of the country along its common border with the Iraqi Kurdistan region.

According to an informed source, these forces are fully equipped and have been stationed along the Sardasht border with Iraqi Kurdistan.

The purpose of the deployment is holding military maneuvers with the aim of stabilizing the border area and fighting counterrevolutionary groups.

Recently, a senior Iranian military commander said with the support of the US, President of Iraqi Kurdistan Massoud Barzani had dedicated 300,000 hectares (three million square kilometers) of the region's lands to the terrorist Party for a Free Life in Kurdistan (PJAK).

The group is using these lands to carry out anti-Iran military activities, the Iranian commander said.

PJAK is an offshoot of the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK), which is known as a terrorist group by much of the international community, including the US.

PKK has been fighting the Turkish government since 1984 for an independent state in southeastern Turkey.

Both terrorist organizations are stationed in the mountainous border areas in Iraqi Kurdistan. They use the contributions made to them by Iraqi Kurds to penetrate Iranian soil and carry out bombings and terrorist activities.

Tehran - Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad has warned Turkey of 'plots' by the United States and Israel in the ongoing unrest in the Arabic world, the ISNA news agency reported Tuesday.

'We should be careful not to follow the US plans and plots as all the Americans are after is their own economic interests and saving the Zionist regime (Israel),' Ahmadinejad was quoted as having told Turkish Foreign Minister Ahmet Davutoglu in a meeting late Monday.

Davutoglu was in Tehran to discuss the latest developments in the Arab world and Syria in particular. Syria is a strategic partner of Iran and its main ally against Israel.

'All states should try their best in limiting the activities of the Zionist regime (Israel) as otherwise they would commit political suicide,' Ahmadinejad said.

With the exception of Syria, where it supports the government of Bashar al-Assad, Tehran has sided with protesters in the Arab world.

Davutoglu was quoted by ISNA as saying that the Islamic world was 'going through a special crisis' and Iran and Turkey therefore had a 'heavy responsibility.'

Davutoglu and his Iranian counterpart Ali Akbar Salehi earlier called for closer cooperation with Damascus to help bring an end to the unrest.

US threatens to act unilaterally against Iran

Published Monday, July 11, 2011

The United States is concerned about Iran providing weapons to Iraq militants and will take unilateral action when needed to deal with the threat, US Defence Secretary Leon Panetta said on Monday.

US officials have blamed Shi'ite militias armed by Iraq's Shi'ite neighbour Iran for most of the recent attacks on US forces in Iraq. Fourteen US service members were killed in hostile incidents in June, the highest monthly toll in three years.

At least three more have been killed in July, including one on Sunday, the day Panetta arrived in Baghdad on his first trip to Iraq as defence secretary.

Washington still has about 46,000 troops in Iraq more than eight years after the 2003 invasion that ousted Sunni dictator Saddam Hussein but is scheduled to withdraw its forces by year-end under a security pact between the two countries.

"We are very concerned about Iran and the weapons they are providing to extremists here in Iraq. And we're seeing the results of that," Panetta said in an address to US troops in Baghdad.

"In June we lost a hell of a lot of Americans as a result of those attacks. And we cannot just simply stand back and allow this to continue to happen ..."

Panetta said Washington's first effort would be to press the Iraqi government and military to go after Shi'ite groups responsible for the attacks. He was scheduled to meet Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki later on Monday.

"Secondly, to do what we have to do unilaterally, to be able to go after those threats as well, and we're doing that," he said, referring to the right of US forces to defend themselves on Iraqi soil.

"And thirdly, to bring pressure on Iran to not engage in this kind of behaviour. Because, very frankly, they need to know that our first responsibility is to protect those that are defending our country. And that is something we are going to do."

LETHAL INSURGENCY

US forces officially ended combat operations in Iraq last August and now operate largely in the background, training and assisting Iraqi police and soldiers against a weakened but still lethal insurgency that launches hundreds of attacks each month.

Hours after Panetta's arrival, militants fired three Katyusha rockets into Baghdad's heavily fortified Green Zone, home to the massive US embassy complex and Iraqi government buildings, according to an Iraqi Interior Ministry source. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

US officials including Panetta have been pressing Baghdad to decide whether it wants US forces to stay beyond the year-end deadline. Maliki has said he will abide by a decision of the majority of Iraq's political leaders.

The Shi'ite, Sunni and Kurdish political blocs have given themselves another two weeks to decide their positions on the withdrawal. They are known to have widely disparate views on the possibility of some US soldiers staying.

Panetta said Iraq's foot-dragging was part of its democratic process even as he acknowledged "sometimes it can be frustrating". He asked out loud whether Iraq wanted the US military to stay on past the end of 2011, or whether they wanted to install a new defence minister.

Maliki did not name permanent security ministers when he installed his cabinet last December, holding the defence and interior ministries for himself.

"But damnit make a decision! So it gets frustrating. But that's the nature of democracy ... that kind of debate, that kind of dialogue goes on," Panetta said, adding "it's healthy".

Panetta Says U.S. to Act Alone Against Iran-Backed Attacks

By Viola Gienger - Jul 11, 2011
http://www.bloomberg.com/news/2011-07-11/p...attacks-1-.html

Defense Secretary Leon Panetta told American troops in Iraq that the U.S. will “do what we can unilaterally” to stem Iranian-backed attacks on their bases and convoys, in addition to working with Iraqi authorities.

“Number one, we’ll put pressure on the Iraqis to go after” Shiite Muslim militia groups, Panetta said today in Baghdad, expressing frustration that the Iraqi government isn’t acting more quickly on a number of issues. That includes Iraq deciding whether it will ask the U.S. to keep some forces in the country beyond a planned December withdrawal, he said.

Panetta, who was sworn in July 1, said the U.S. is starting joint operations with Iraqi forces to halt the attacks. Unilateral U.S. measures include stepping up security, patrolling and improving the protection of bases, Colin Kahl, a deputy assistant secretary of defense for the Middle East who is traveling with Panetta, told reporters after Panetta spoke.

The defense chief is seeking to reassure the 46,000 American soldiers still in Iraq and the public back home that the U.S. will act swiftly to curb attacks by militants using arms supplied by Shiite-led Iran. The American death toll in Iraq has spiked to 15 in June, the biggest one-month loss of U.S. lives in two years, he told reporters.
CIA Role

Panetta arrived in Baghdad yesterday from Afghanistan on his first visit to the war zones as defense secretary. A former Army intelligence officer and member of Congress, Panetta served on the Iraq Study Group that was formed in 2006 to conduct an independent assessment of the then-deteriorating conflict.

He took over as defense chief after more than two years as director of the Central Intelligence Agency, a job that also brought him into contact with many of the same officials he's meeting with on this trip, albeit less publicly.

While Iraq has made progress with a sense of national unity and democratic rule since a new government was formed after the U.S.-led invasion toppled Saddam Hussein, officials often have taken too long to resolve major questions, Panetta said.

"Sometimes it can be frustrating," he told the troops. "I'd like things to move a lot faster here, frankly."

Panetta said he will urge Iraqi leaders to reach a long- delayed decision on a U.S. troop extension and on the political accords needed to install ministers of defense and interior. The positions remain vacant almost a year after Iraq held elections.

"Do they want us to stay or don't they want us to stay?" he said in remarks peppered by swear words. "They want to get a minister of defense or don't they want to get a minister of defense?
'Drawing Down'

Obama administration officials have said they would welcome a request to keep some forces in Iraq, and Panetta said they would "seriously consider" a proposal.

"We're in the process of drawing down," Panetta told reporters before arriving in Iraq. "I'll encourage them to make a decision so we'll know where we're going."

General Lloyd Austin, commander of U.S. forces in Iraq, said the longer the Iraqis take to make a request for an extension of the troop deployment, the more difficult it will be to alter the planned withdrawal.

"When you get into the October-November timeframe, you're really taking things apart that are difficult to put back together," he told reporters traveling with Panetta.

Sept. 11 Attacks

Panetta will meet today with Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri al- Maliki, whose Shiite-dominated party has struggled to control the influence of Iran, and with President Jalal Talabani, a Kurd. Talabani said two days ago that he will give political leaders two more weeks to discuss an extension before reconvening, the Washington Post reported.

During his meeting with the troops in Iraq, Panetta referred to al-Qaeda's Sept. 11, 2001, attack on New York and the Pentagon, saying, “The reason you guys are here is that, on 9/11, the United States got attacked and 3,000 Americans -- not just Americans but 3,000 human beings, got killed.” Panetta said, “Innocent human beings got killed because of al-Qaeda and we’ve been fighting them as a result of that.”

The issue has been controversial since then-President George W. Bush’s administration sought to link Saddam Hussein to al-Qaeda as a justification for the invasion, a connection that was never proved. Al-Qaeda established a presence in Iraq after the invasion, sending in fighters and recruiting others to challenge U.S. forces.

When reporters questioned Panetta about his remarks, he said he didn’t intend to suggest that al-Qaeda was the reason for the U.S. invasion of Iraq and “wasn’t going into the issues or the justification of that.”

“It was more the fact that we really had to deal with al- Qaeda here,” he said. “They developed a presence here and that tied in.”

Panetta flew to Baghdad at the end of a second day in Afghanistan, where he saw President Hamid Karzai and the defense and interior ministers in Kabul and then visited a U.S. Marine base and field hospital in the southern province of Helmand.

Iran accused of arming anti-US militias in Iraq

The United States' most senior military officer has accused Iran of pouring arms into anti-American militias in Iraq as the two powers battle for influence in the country.

By Richard Spencer, Middle East Correspondent
6:58PM BST 08 Jul 2011
http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/...as-in-Iraq.html

Admiral Mike Mullen, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, said Iran was responsible for arming militant Shia groups responsible for a recent upsurge in killings of American servicemen.

"Iran is very directly supporting extremist troops which are killing our troops," he said at a Washington briefing.

The weapons the Pengtagon believe are being smuggled into the country by the Revolutionary Guard include improvised mortars and an armour-piercing bomb known as an explosively formed penetrator, or EFP.

Two American servicemen were killed by an EFP outside their base in Baghdad in an attack on Thursday, on top of 14 killed across the country in the previous month, the highest figure for two years.

The last American troops are due to leave Iraq at the end of this year, having been pulled out of combat operations last August. But American strategists and Washington's allies in the Gulf fear that withdrawal will leave a strategic gap into which Iran will step.

Although overshadowed for decades by a Sunni Muslim elite, including Saddam Hussein, Shia make up the largest group within Iraq, and Iran's Shia leadership has used the link to forge close alliances.

Saudi Arabia, Iran's main regional rival for power and influence, believes Iran has expansionist goals in Iraq, especially as its other principal Arab ally Syria is in turmoil.

"Iran has begun to prepare Iraq to be its closest ally in the region, in the event of the Syrian regime collapsing," Tariq Al-Homayed, editor of Sharq al-Awsat, a Saudi daily, quoted an official as saying this week.

"Iran turning to Iraq means that the objectives of the Iranian revolution are still in place, namely extending Iranian influence in the Arabian Gulf region."

After last year's inconclusive election, the prime minister, Nouri al-Maliki, who leads a mainly Shia nationalist party, joined forces with the militant Shia Sadrists, whose private army fought both the Iraqi and American armies until being defeated in 2008.

The Sadrists' leader, Moqtada al-Sadr, has spent much of the last three years in Iran, and although he keeps some political distance, all three of the militant Shia groups suspected of attacking American troops are said by US and Iraqi officials to receive Iranian funding.

Sadrists claim the main threat to stability in Iraq comes from Sunni terror groups such as al-Qaeda, whose attacks have dipped but still kill scores of people every month.

Adm Mullen confirmed that despite threats to escalate attacks if the Americans did not leave, the United States was in negotiations to leave thousands of troops in Iraq beyond the deadline. Officials say the number being discussed with Iraqi leaders is 10,000.

He also said the spike in violence was an attempt by Iran and its proxies to make it seem as if the Americans were being forced out. "Part of it is a belief that they will be able to claim that they had something to do with us leaving," he said. "It has nothing to do with us leaving."

Western diplomats say that most Iraqi leaders are in favour of a continued American presence. Kurdish factions are generally pro-American, while Sunnis are fearful of a backlash by Shia militants.

"It is hard to see how the Sadrists would move towards agreeing to a renewed American presence but if it's to happen they would have to find some way around it," said one. "I don't think they have a veto."

Iran ready to close Strait of Hormuz: General

http://www.emirates247.com/news/world/iran...-07-04-1.405814

Iran is ready if threatened to close the Strait of Hormuz to ships linking the Gulf to international markets, Revolutionary Guards commander General Mohammad Ali Jafari told Mehr news agency on Monday.

"In light of the strategic position of the Strait of Hormuz, this issue has never been taken off the agenda," Jafari said, commenting on whether Tehran was still prepared to close down the shipping lane if threatened.

"We have not stopped there... we are seeking to use our defence capabilities in open waters," Jafari added as forces under his command prepared to launch the naval phase of the 10-day Great Prophet-6 exercise, which lasts until Friday.

Media reported the Guards will launch surface-to-sea missiles on Tuesday.

So far, during the drills, the Guards have launched a range of ballistic missiles that Iran says are able to hit Israel and US bases in the region.

"This means that should the enemy try to pose a threat against the Islamic republic from outside the Strait of Hormuz, we will have the power to retaliate in kind. This strategy is now on our agenda," said Jafari.

Tehran's arch foes Washington and Israel have never ruled out the option of military strikes against Iran to stop its nuclear programme, which the West suspects masks a drive to develop weapons of mass destruction despite Iran's insistance of its peaceful intentions.

Iran's navy has only a few frigates and submarines on the high seas, but a year ago it began to deploy them to the Indian Ocean, the Gulf of Aden and even the Red Sea.

Iranian military officials have often warned of blocking the Strait of Hormuz - the passage for 40 per cent of the world's oil supplied by sea - in case the country comes under attack.

Early in February the commander of Guards' naval forces, Ali Fadavi said: "The Islamic republic has the ability to block the Strait of Hormuz if threatened."

The Strait of Hormuz is a narrow waterway of strategic importance between the Gulf on the east and the Gulf of Oman on the west. Iran lays on its northern banks with Oman to its south.

A senior Revolutionary Guard commander has revealed Iran secretly conducted missile tests earlier this year as 'American spy planes' turned a blind eye.

Speaking on state TV Amir Ali Hajizadeh, the commander of the Guard's aerospace force, claimed Iranian rockets hit targets at the 'mouth of the Indian Ocean'.

It was an apparent reference to areas near the Strait of Hormouz at the southern end of the Gulf.

Iran's elite Revolutionary Guards tested a Shahab-3 ballistic missile Hajizadeh said two missiles with ranges of 1,140m were fired from Semnan province in northern Iran during the Iranian month of Bahman, which runs from January 21 to February 19.

He added: 'This took place with the Americans present in the area ... We allowed the American spy planes to be in the area but so far they have not said anything about it.'

The commander gave no further details, but at maximum range the missiles could have reached deep into the Arabian Sea.

Hajizadeh also threatened U.S. aircraft carriers saying the 'moving targets' would be fired at if Iran came under attack.

In April, the commander of the Revolutionary Guard said Iran's arsenal is capable of striking 'remote regions outside the Persian Gulf'.

Iran says its longest-range missiles, Shahab-3 and Sajjil-2, can travel up to 1,240m - putting Israel, U.S. bases in the Gulf region and parts Europe within reach.

Meanwhile, Iran has tried to project its military might outside the Gulf, where the U.S. has several air bases and the home port of the Navy's 5th Fleet in Bahrain.

Iran has said its missiles can reach Israel and U.S. military bases in the region.

Two Iranian warships entered the Mediterranean in February for the first time since the 1979 Islamic Revolution, and an Iranian submarine returned this week after a journey that included the Red Sea.

Hajizadeh also claimed Iran has acquired technology to build supersonic surface-to-sea missiles.

He didn't elaborate, but defence analysts believe China has helped develop the anti-ship weapons.

Iran also says it has the ability to produce missiles with an even greater range than those currently in its arsenal, but won't manufacture them because Israel and U.S. bases are already within reach.

Last month, Foreign Secretary William Hague told the House of Commons Iran has conducted covert tests of ballistic missiles since October in addition to the publicly announced military manoeuvers.

Hajizadeh only confirmed that missile tests were carried out. It was not clear if the covert tests in February were the same as claimed by Hague.

The Islamic Republic remains locked in a stand-off with the West over its nuclear program, which the U.S. and its allies suspect is aimed at developing atomic weapons.

Iran denies the charges, and says the program is only for peaceful purposes.

Iran conducts several war games every year as part of its military self-sufficiency program that started in 1992, and frequently unveils new weapons and military systems during the drills.

U.S., Britain hit Iran with more travel restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Obama administration has imposed travel bans on more than 50 senior Iranian officials accused of participating in human rights abuses and political repression.

The State Department announced on Friday that it, along with Britain, had hit 52 Iranian government ministers, military leaders and law enforcement, judicial and prison officers with visa restrictions that will bar them from entering the United States. Canada is expected to take similar action soon.

"Today's actions are an important reminder to Iran that the international community will continue to hold accountable those officials who commit human rights abuses and suppress the democratic aspirations of fellow citizens," Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said in a statement.

The Obama administration has been raising pressure on Iran over concerns that it is repressing pro-democracy advocates and abusing the rights of students, religious and ethnic minorities, women's rights leaders and other groups.

The State Department would not divulge the names of those affected by Friday's travel bans, citing the confidentiality of visa records.

The step was taken under a law that allows the secretary of state to revoke or deny visas for foreigners whose presence in the United States would have negative foreign policy consequences. Similar penalties have been imposed on officials from Libya, Belarus and the Ivory Coast.

There are also separate international sanctions on Iran related to its uraninum enrichment program, which the U.S. and its allies say is aimed at producing nuclear weapons, a claim Iran denies.

Iran Says Saudi Oil Output to Spark Price War If Not Matched by Demand

JULY 7, 2011, 9:39 A.M. ET

By BENOIT FAUCON

LONDON—Iran warned an increase in Saudi Arabia's oil output combined with price cuts may lead to a "price war" if it isn't spurred by matching demand, as tensions between the crude producers deepen in the aftermath of a consumers' stockpile release and a disastrous OPEC meeting.

The warning, reminiscent of age-old disputes between regional foes Iran and Saudi Arabia, follow the Kingdom's move to cut some of its official prices this week after pledging to raise production amid mounting demand.

Speaking to Dow Jones Newswires, Muhammad Ali Khatibi, Iran's governor with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said "one possibility is that they are trying to increase market share," referring to Saudi Arabia and other producers increasing output.

But if "there is no extra demand but some insist on extra supply…at cheaper price… then there will be a price war," Mr. Khatibi warned.

However, Mr. Khatibi said he was confident such a scenario could be avoided. "I am sure all exporting countries are wise enough to avoid that situation," he said.

Back in the 1980s and 1990s, Iran and Saudi Arabia, OPEC's two largest producers, regularly traded accusations of being responsible for flooding the market and depressing prices.

The situation is different today amid prices around $110 a barrel in London—which Mr. Khatibi described as "not abnormal"—and increasing demand expected in the second half of the year.

But Iran has warned markets could be oversupplied after the International Energy Agency decided to draw 60 million barrels from its stockpiles. The IEA release and the Saudi increase in production were decided after a push to act collectively was blocked by an Iran-led coalition at a June 8 OPEC meeting.

A drop in prices "is very dangerous for the income of all exporters…it is not fair to damage national interest for the interest of a foreigner," Mr. Khatibi said.

Though he didn't name any particular country in this respect, Iran has previously accused Saudi Arabia to relay U.S. pressure to boost OPEC output.

Amid unrest that has toppled some regimes and threatened others, many countries in the Middle East and North Africa now rely on higher oil prices to satisfy mounting social demands.

Iran resisted changing the OPEC quota partly because, unlike Saudi Arabia, it lacks the capacity to boost output to make up for lower prices. So any Saudi increase may add to existing tensions with its Iranian neighbor.

If prices fall amid oversupply, "the question will be who started this game. Some exporting country will be singled out," Mr. Khatibi said.

TEHRAN – Venezuelan Ambassador to Iran David Velasquez has dismissed any type of uranium exchange deal between Venezuela and Iran.

“We have uranium reserves and don’t sell or consume it,” he said, adding that the claim about shipment of uranium from Venezuela to Tehran via Damascus is “a big lie”.

Velasquez made the remarks during a press conference in a ceremony which was held to commemorate the 200th anniversary of Venezuela’s national day at the Venezuelan Embassy in Tehran on Sunday.

Velasquez also said Venezuelan President Huqo Chavez is in good health.

One of the main reasons for the negative propaganda about Chavez’s health in the U.S. and European media is to create a public panic in Venezuela and its friendly countries, Velasquez stated.

The main goal of the Venezuelan government’s opponents at home and abroad is twisting the truth in an attempt to suggest that President Chavez is not able to lead the country any longer and “we should think of finding a successor for him,” he added.

Velasquez said despite imperialists’ will to get news about Chavez’s death, he is in good health and is currently leading the country

Ex-Mossad Chief’s Iran Warnings May Backfire: Jeffrey Goldberg

By Jeffrey Goldberg Jul 4, 2011 5:01 AM GMT+0100 40 Comments
http://www.bloomberg.com/news/2011-07-04/e...y-goldberg.html

About Jeffrey Goldberg

Jeffrey Goldberg, a national correspondent for the Atlantic, is the author of "Prisoners: A Story of Friendship and Terror." He was formerly a Washington correspondent and a Middle East correspondent for the New Yorker.
More about Jeffrey Goldberg

In a country of hard men, Meir Dagan, the recently retired head of the Mossad, Israel’s foreign intelligence service, is one of the hardest. He is the Siberian-born son of Holocaust survivors, an ex- commando who has arranged the assassinations of many of Israel’s enemies.

He is devoted to the defense of his country, and, like most of Israel’s samurai class, sees Iran, and its Jew- hating, missile-obsessed leadership, as his country’s foremost threat, because of its nuclear intentions and its support for the Islamist terror groups that seek Israel’s destruction.

So a pressing question in Israel today is this: Why has Dagan called into question the wisdom -- and, privately, even the sanity -- of any Israeli leader who contemplates a preemptive strike on Iran’s nuclear facilities?

The answer illuminates an enormous divide within Israel’s national-security establishment. It also suggests that Dagan, without peer as a saboteur, assassin and spy, is a bungling strategist.

In two recent speeches, Dagan called an Iran strike "a stupid idea," and said "the regional challenge that Israel would face would be impossible." He has made clear he believes that Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Defense Minister Ehud Barak are driving Israel toward a war it can't win. He has said that while in office he worked with other security officials to thwart "any dangerous adventure." But, he went on, "Now I am afraid that there is no one to stop Bibi and Barak."

Mossad's View

Last year, while reporting on the possibility of an Iranian-Israeli confrontation -- the world's most serious latent crisis -- I heard repeatedly from officials familiar with the Mossad's views that the agency thought the costs of an Israeli strike on Iran would outweigh the benefits. The Mossad analysis held that such an attack would not be an echo of the 1981 Israeli bombing of Iraq's Osirak nuclear reactor, because Iraq had concentrated its nuclear program in one place.

Iran's nuclear program is spread throughout the country, and Iran, of course, is farther from Israel. Mossad analysts are also certain that Iran would order its Hezbollah proxies in Lebanon to launch thousands of rockets at Israel. This could force the Israeli air force to break off its attack on Iran in order defend Israel in what could be a multifront assault.

Even so, the Mossad, like every agency in Israel's national security establishment, views Iran's nuclear program as a threat to Israel's existence and understands that the mere possibility of an Israeli attack helps deter Iran's ambitions.

Dagan's Break

So what caused Dagan's break with his former boss, and his decision to publicly undermine Netanyahu's position that, in the now-familiar phrase, "all options are on the table"?

I spoke with several people familiar with Dagan's thinking. They told me he believes that Barak, in particular, sees no great downside to a strike on Iran, and that Netanyahu is a prisoner to the idea that it's his personal responsibility to stop a potential new Holocaust. They also suggested that Netanyahu wants to change the subject from his difficulties with the Palestinians.

It's no secret that the prime minister has been outfoxed by the Palestinian leadership lately, and that Israel is desperately trying to stop a Palestinian independence initiative at the United Nations. Netanyahu is capable of great cynicism, and he has made clear that the peace process doesn't interest him very much. But launching an airstrike on the Persian Empire? He would do such a thing only if he believed Israel's existence was in danger, and that the U.S. was prepared to stand by as Iran went nuclear.

Competing Analysis

Today, there's a war within the Israeli defense establishment, a war of competing analysis. Dagan leads the camp of officials and ex-officials who believe that Netanyahu should spend all his time trying to convince President Barack Obama that only the U.S. is capable of neutralizing the Iranian threat, and that Netanyahu should shelve the idea, once and for all, of launching an attack himself.

There is much to credit in Dagan's argument. Iran may be too large a problem for a small state to handle, even a small state with a potent air force. And he is certainly correct to say that Netanyahu and Barak, the only two men with the power to order a strike, are seriously contemplating military action. Dagan would not have spoken out in such dramatic fashion, and burned so many bridges, if he thought Netanyahu and Barak weren't serious.
Undermining Deterrence

But Dagan didn't count on one thing: His public denunciations may actually bring Israel closer to launching an attack. He has undermined the credibility of Israel's deterrent posture. Western intelligence agencies, the Obama administration and the International Atomic Energy Agency all suspect that Iran's leaders are moving steadily toward a nuclear bomb, less fearful of an Israeli strike than they were last year. The Iranians, intelligence officials told me, believe Dagan's statements reflect the position of Israel's defense establishment.

They don't. But this perception is critical. If Israel does attack the Iranian nuclear program, it will in part be because Dagan undermined his country's deterrent credibility.

Lately, it has become received wisdom that Israel is leaning against a strike and is instead pinning its hopes on Obama. But those who argue that Netanyahu would not attack Iran know nothing about the man, about his fears, his militancy, his belief that history has entrusted him with the survival of the Jewish people. Meir Dagan might not know strategy. But he knows to take Netanyahu's preoccupation with Iran seriously.

Iran launched 14 surface-to-surface missiles, including Zelzal, Shahab-1, Shahab-2 and Shahab-3 on June 28, 2011.

A top Iranian commander says the Ghadir radar system with a range of 1,100 kilometers in radius and a height of 300 kilometers has become operational in the country for the first time.

“The Ghadir radar has been designed and manufactured to discover air targets, radar-evading planes, cruise missiles, ballistic missiles and satellites at low orbits,” Commander of the Aerospace Division of Iran's Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) Amir Ali Hajizadeh said on Wednesday, Fars news agency reported.

After the IRGC unveiled underground ballistic missile silos on the first day of the Great Prophet 6 military maneuvers on Monday, the Ghadir radar system also become operational, the commander went on to say.

The Islamic Republic began the Great Prophet 6 drills on Monday.

On the first day of the exercises, Iran unveiled underground missile silos and fired Fateh (Conqueror)-110 missiles. On Tuesday, Iran successfully launched 14 surface-to-surface missiles, including Zelzal (Temblor), Shahab-1, Shahab-2 and Shahab-3.

Sen. Joe Lieberman Predicts ‘Day Of Reckoning’ For Iran

By Ali Gharib on Jul 3, 2011 at 11:12 am http://thinkprogress.org/security/2011/07/...an-iran-warnin/

On Fox News Sunday, two of the Senate’s leading Iran hawks pressed the administration to do more on Iran and issued thinly-veiled threats to the Islamic Republic.

Sen. Joe Lieberman (I-CT), who has advocated for “retir(ing) our ambiguous mantra about all options remaining on the table” for Iran and made sure then-Defense Secretary nominee Leon Panetta has a plan for attacking, warned the Islamic Republic that a “day of reckoning” was ahead:

I would say that a day of reckoning is coming for this extremist regime in Iran, when a majority of Iranians who really yearn for freedom can see this dream come true. And I hope we do everything we can to make this happen as soon as possible.

The platitudes about helping freedom-seeking Iranians would mean a lot more if actual Iranian human rights and democracy advocates agreed with Lieberman. Instead, they say that an attack would be disastrous for them and that, indeed, the U.S.’s shifting away from belligerent rhetoric helped open up a political space in Iran.

Lieberman’s close ally Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) also didn’t seem to get some regional dynamics in the Iran-Iraq relationship. When asked about Iran’s alleged support for the Taliban, Graham said:

I think people need to understand why Iran is doing this. The biggest nightmare for the Ayaltollahs in Iran is democracies on their borders in Iraq and Afghanistan. …Their biggest nightmare is that the Arab spring is successful. I hope the president will condemn this and put Iran on warning that you’re not going to get away with this.

Watch the video of Graham and Lieberman on Fox News Sunday:

Graham’s characterization of Iran’s involvement in Iraq only captures a small bit of the picture: There may be involvement with Shia militas, but most of Iran’s political clout in Iraq comes from its contacts with the Shia majority that was empowered with the fall of Saddam Hussein. Take, for example, Ahmad Chalabi, the exiled politician who, after cozying up to Washington hawks like Lieberman and Graham, was paid millions of dollars by the State Department and the C.I.A. to provide the faulty intelligence that was used to sell the war in America. Chalabi was later accused by U.S. forces of spying for Iran.

Again in Graham’s case, turning to actual Iranian human rights advocates is instructive. Late last year, Iranian human rights lawyer and now-exiled dissident Shirin Ebadi told CAP’s Matt Duss that the Iraq War was a great example of why not to attack Iran. Noting that Iran’s “Green movement is the Iranian peoples’ movement” and that change “must come from inside Iran,” Ebadi added:

You paid money, Iraqis died, and Iran has benefited. Saddam was Iran’s enemy that was removed by the U.S., (and Iran’s power and influence has been increased as a result).

Are Chalabi-backers like Lieberman and people with shaky understandings of regional dynamics like Graham really the ones whose advice the president ought to take on what to do about Iran?

Robert Fisk: How Iran wages its own global 'war on terror'

http://www.independent.co.uk/opinion/comme...or-2305639.html

Dr Masoud Ali Mohamedi's car is a shocking sight, its twisted Tehran registration plate – 53Y392 – still attached but the bodywork laced with shrapnel holes, punched through with steel, the driver's seat tossed over. Dr Mohamedi was one of Iran's most prestigious nuclear scientists when a motorcycle exploded beside his car as he left home for Tehran University.

Iran inevitably blamed Mossad; the Israelis predictably denied all responsibility. No proof ever emerged that Mohamedi worked on Iran's nuclear projects although he must have known he was a target. Only months earlier, his colleague Dr Majid Shahriari met a similar fate. And there was Mohamedi's shredded Peugeot this week, at the entrance to the Islamic Conference centre, providing a special "welcome" for delegates from 60 nations to the "anti-terrorism" get-together in Tehran.

Above the hall, there floated in the sulphurous air a white balloon with the logo "A World Without Terrorism". Terrorism, terrorism, terrorism. The all-purpose hate-word was being used by the Ahmadinejads and the Muslim leaders at the podium with Bush-like frequency, the pledges to join the "global fight against terror" an echo chamber of Hillary Clinton's tirades.

Of course, this was not quite the same "terror" which the Bushes and the Obamas and the Clintons rage about. Resistance against oppression, a foundation of the Islamic revolution in Iran, was not "terror". State "terror" was. And, I suppose, uncontrolled (Sunni) "terror" of the Osama bin Laden variety. True, there were pictures of the burning World Trade Centre, but Israel inevitably came up trumps in the "terror" stakes, though not as frequently – and here's the rub – as the Mojahedin-e Qalq.

This cultish group waged war against the Shah, achieved considerable support in the immediate post-revolutionary Iran and then, deprived of any participation in its first elections, turned with venom on Ayatollah Ruhollah's Islamic Republic. The Iranian authorities, who, of course, have never – ever – practiced anything as sordid as "terrorism" (a great drawing-in of breath by your correspondent here), attribute 17,159 innocent deaths to their enemies; around 12,000 of these are blamed on the Mojahedin, the rest on assorted communist, leftist and royalist groups.

And 17,159 fatalities come to more than five times the total dead of the World Trade Centre attacks, as the various victims' groups point out to every foreigner who examines the gruesome exhibition at the back of the Islamic Conference Hall. The pulverised faces of the dead, the amputated legs and headless torsos – a speciality picture display first created after the 1979 revolution, and then developed into a fine art during the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war – have become a kind of ghastly art form. The lists and photographs resemble a kind of pictorial mortuary, a vast volume, the pages turned each day like a Biblical text or a bloody Book of Kells, to reveal a three-year-old child torn to pieces by a car bomb.

But this room of death has a political message. In their heyday, the Mojahedin would go for the jugular, blowing up the headquarters of the Islamic Republican Party in 1981, killing more than 70 of Khomeini's most faithful adherents, including his justice minister Ayatollah Mohamed Beheshti. The face of Saddam Hussein glowers down on us, shaking hands with the Mojahedin's leader, Masoud Rajavi, after he agreed to fight alongside Iraq against his own countrymen in the 1980-88 war.

Masoud's wife Maryam – for the Mojahedin, they are a kind of divine duo even though ordinary members were instructed to divorce their wives to ensure the "purity" of the organisation – stares from other photographs. We know she is still alive. Masoud Rajavi has not been seen since the Americans and Brits stormed into Iraq in 2003 and unwisely gave the Mojahedin prisoner-of-war status in their largest Iraqi barracks at Camp Ashraf, even though the US government was to put them on their "terrorist list".

A sign of just how much the Iranian government wants to nail the remnants of the Mojahedin comes when officials at the Islamic Conference hand me copies of a 2009 Rand Corporation report on the Mojahedin-e Qalq – the US Rand institution is, after all, hardly a handmaiden of the Islamic Republic – which lists its sins, its cult-like status and the American desire to wash their hands of the whole political mess by handing Ashraf over to the Iraq authorities. This they did a few months ago, Iraqi troops entering the camp and killing 27 inmates in the process. The Iraqis claimed that many of these men and women in fact committed suicide.

"Terrorists" they may be by America's and Iran's own definition – and there's a strange moral alliance – yet within hours of arriving in Tehran last week, I took lunch with a man who assassinated one of the Islamic Republic's principal opponents and chatted on the phone to another whose hit-team killed two innocent French citizens in a failed attempt to blow away another enemy of the revolution. Long ago, I interviewed them about these events. Yet today – after Abu Ghraib, after Haditha, after Guantanamo and the "black" prison of Bagram and rendition and the massacres of Palestinians and Lebanese – the initial reaction to my luncheon companion's murder (for that is what it was) begins to pale.

It's not that the Islamic Republic has any reason to seize the moral high ground. Its vicious execution of Mojahedin prisoners and thousands of other opponents of the regime, men and women, in 1988, hanged like thrushes on mass gallows on the orders of Khomeini, remains a grotesque bloodstain on the whole necrocracy that Iran had become. But Mohamedi's vehicle looks like any other "terrorism" victim's death car, and the 17,159 Iranian men, women and children remain part of the "martyrdom" portfolio of what may soon be a regional nuclear superpower.

Iranian Defense Minister Ahmad Vahidi has dismissed Washington's latest allegations against

On Saturday, Vahidi rejected the allegations made by former US Defense Secretary Robert Gates as baseless, IRNA reported.

On June 30, which was his last day in office, Gates accused Iran of inflicting casualties on US troops in Iraq and claimed that the Islamic Republic was likely to gain access to nuclear weapons in the next three years.

Vahidi advised US officials to revise their failed policies, adding that the recent missile drills conducted by Iranian forces proved that the West's sanctions have had no impact on Iran's military might.

The Islamic Republic started the 10-day Great Prophet 6 maneuver on Monday.

On the first day of the exercises, Iran announced that it had constructed underground missile silos and test-fired several Fateh-110 missiles. On Tuesday, Iran successfully test-fired 14 surface-to-surface missiles, including the Zelzal, Shahab-1, Shahab-2, and Shahab-3. One long-range and four medium-range Shahab missiles as well as nine Zelzal missiles were test-fired.

Iran says the Great Prophet 6 maneuver has defensive objectives and is being staged with the message of “peace and friendship.”

“The failure of the US plans in the region, especially in Iraq and Afghanistan, is rooted in their wrong policies,” Vahidi said.

About a decade ago, US military officials claimed that Iran would gain access to nuclear weapons within three years, the Iranian defense minister said, noting, “Several years have passed since such claims were made and nothing happened. They have repeated their false claims several times.”

Iran's Ahmadinejad warns against govt arrests

By Farhad Pouladi (AFP)

TEHRAN — Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad on Wednesday warned the authorities against making arrests of members in his government whom he vowed to defend, IRNA state news agency reported.

"I consider defending the cabinet as my duty... the cabinet is a red line and if they want to touch the cabinet, then defending it is my duty," Ahmadinejad was quoted as telling reporters after a cabinet meeting.

Ahmadinejad's remarks came almost a week after the reported arrest of people close to his under-fire chief of staff, Esfandiar Rahim Mashaie.

"From our point of view these moves and pressures are political... to put pressure on the government," said the president, whose government includes parliament-confirmed ministers and directly appointed vice-presidents.

"Our position is one of silence but in any case if they want to continue it and under different pretexts want to accuse our colleagues in the cabinet, then I have a legal, national and ethical duty to defend my colleagues," he said.

Mohammad Sharif Malekzadeh, a former member of Ahmadinejad's entourage who worked under Mashaie, was reportedly arrested on "financial charges" on Thursday last week after being forced out of a diplomatic post by conservative lawmakers.

Two more officials close to Mashaie, who were in charge of two free trade zones across the country, were arrested in the following days, media reported.

Hamid Baghaie, a vice-president, has recently been accused by the judiciary and conservatives of abusing power in several obscure cases.

The reported arrests came as ultra-conservatives, who accuse Mashaie of exerting too much influence over Ahmadinejad, have stepped up pressure on the president to dismiss his controversial confidant.

The regime's conservatives, the Shiite clergy and the elite Revolutionary Guards also accuse Mashaie of leading "a current of deviation" aimed at undermining the Islamic regime.

In his statement on Wednesday, Ahmadinejad called for government members to be respected.

"The supreme leader has repeatedly emphasised the issue of respecting people's right in judicial proceedings," he said.

"The status and reputation of individuals should be respected, especially government members who are working 24 hours and have no time to spare for defending themselves."

The Iranian president urged officials to work "hand in hand" to assist in preserving the "privacy of individuals," and maintaining "calm" in the country.

A day earlier supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei urged Iranian media, politicians and judiciary to refrain from naming those arrested by the judiciary.

"If a person's crime has not yet been proven, the name of that person (and the accusations) should not be publicised... I address not only the judiciary, but also officials outside the branch as well as the media," said Khamenei, adding public opinion is "unable to differentiate between the accused and the person who is actually found guilty."

Iran has launched its first wind-solar hybrid power plant in a Persian Gulf island to increase the country's share of renewable energies.

The plant, with a daily capacity of 50 kWh of electricity, was installed in Iran's southern Kharg Island by Iranian experts at a cost of 100,000 dollars, Mehr news agency reported.

Inauguration of the plant came as Iranian Energy Minister Majid Namjou announced that Iran plans to generate more than 5,000 megawatts of electricity from renewable energy resources by 2015.

“Iran is pursing to fulfill its major strategic objectives in the field of renewable energies,” Namjou said during an international energy forum in the Austrian capital of Vienna on June 22.

Namjou went on to say that renewable energies will account for about three percent of Iran's electricity needs by 2015.

He also called on all companies and organizations to invest in Iran's green energy projects to help develop the new sources of energy in the country.

“This cooperation will be beneficial for investors and will also accomplish Iran's objectives in developing the new sources of energy,” the Iranian minister said.

Are subs, not the planes, the best way for Israel to counter Iran?

The air force can't destroy Iran's nuclear capability, a former navy commander warns, so Israel should instead rely on strategic deterrence

Most experts interpreted former Mossad chief Meir Dagan's warnings against an Israeli attack on Iran as being aimed first and foremost at Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Defense Minister Ehud Barak. But there are those who see things a bit differently.

One is the former commander of the Israel Navy, Read Admiral (ret.) Avraham Botzer. In his view, if Netanyahu and Barak intend to attack in Iran (something this writer doubts), and if they have a prepared plan for such an attack, it must surely be backed by the air force. "I'm afraid the air force has convinced the politicians that an attack on Iran is possible and will achieve results," Botzer said in an interview to Haaretz. "If I'm right, then we're dealing with a dangerous illusion."

Botzer was head of the navy from 1968-1972; he also served on the Israel Defense Forces General Staff. Since retiring, he has held management positions and been active on the Council for Peace and Security, founded by the late Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv.

"Generals have a tendency to fight the last wars, and that is exactly what happened to the air force," Botzer said. "In the [1967] Six-Day War, the air force destroyed the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian air forces within a couple of hours, gaining absolute control over and supremacy in the air, which allowed the ground forces to advance. Exhilarated by their successes, the air force's commanders believed it would succeed in exactly the same way in the next war, too, and they convinced the General Staff and the politicians of it. But this was an illusion.

"In the [1973] Yom Kippur War, we were sure the air force would destroy any Egyptian force that crossed the Suez Canal. Thus we were oblivious and did not make the necessary preparations for war on land. The result, as Ezer Weizman [a former air force commander] admitted, was that 'the missile beat the airplane.'"

Botzer noted that the air force and, indeed, the entire IDF knew as far back as 1970 that the Egyptians had moved surface-to-air missiles into the area of the Suez Canal, and that preparations must be made for a different kind of warfare in the future. Nevertheless, Israel continued to ignore the missile threat.

"The air force regained aerial supremacy in the Suez Canal area only after the Armored Corps had conquered the last of the missile bases in that theater and removed the threat," he recalled. "And this was done without airborne assistance."

Rebutting David Ivry

Botzer's attack on the air force comes in response to an essay published by Maj. Gen. (res.) David Ivry, a former air force commander, in the journal "Israel Defense" (edited by journalist Amir Rapaport). In his essay, Ivry urged Israel to strengthen the air force in order to ensure air supremacy in every possible theater - in the air, on land and at sea.

"Twice in the history of Israel's wars, they managed to delude us into thinking that if we just maintained a large aerial force, victory in battle would be assured," Botzer retorted. "The first time was in the Yom Kippur War, and the second was in the war in Lebanon in 2006, when we pinned our faith on the air force destroying Hezbollah, which is why we did not call up the reserves and did not introduce ground forces in time. The result: Residents of the Galilee only emerged from their shelters after a shameful agreement was reached through mediators. Why shameful? Because Hezbollah has consequently increased its power."

Botzer is loyal to the military service in which he spent his career, the navy, but his fidelity does not blind him: He recognizes the navy's limitations and weaknesses. Yet he sees no contradiction between recognition of these weaknesses and his support for submarines.

Despite the navy's limitations, Botzer is a great believer in the need to strengthen it and make it into Israel's strategic arm. This has been his position for the past two decades, together with other enthusiastic backers of acquiring additional submarines.

Today, Israel has three submarines, and two additional ones are under construction in German shipyards. According to foreign reports, the submarines are equipped to carry and launch eight missiles, which can also be armed with nuclear warheads.

Botzer believes Israel should have a fleet of eight or nine submarines. His estimation that the air force lacks any real ability to attack Iran in a way that would destroy its nuclear capability for many years merely reinforces this position. Lacking the option of attack, he said, Israel must rely on its "strategic deterrence."

This phrase, when spoken by an Israeli, and especially by a military man, is understood by the foreign press as code words for Israel's nuclear capability, given the global assumption that Israel has an arsenal of hundreds of nuclear bombs. "America's deterrence during the Cold War, and today as well, is based on submarines," he noted.

In any strategic nuclear doctrine, submarines play an important role in creating second-strike capability. Second-strike capability means that even if the enemy destroys your entire arsenal of nuclear weapons, you will still have the ability to strike back and destroy him. This can only be achieved by submarines, which are difficult to detect.

Israeli minister: Don't take eyes off Iran

VIENNA (AP) — Israel's foreign minister warned Thursday that Iran is using Mideast unrest as a smoke screen to advance missile and nuclear programs in its alleged development of nuclear arms.

Avigdor Lieberman also urged would-be participants in a flotilla of ships planning to break an Israeli sea blockade of Gaza to give up their plans and deliver their aid to U.N. supervised ports for distribution.

Lieberman spoke to reporters Thursday after meeting with Austrian Foreign Minister Michael Spindelegger, on issues that both men said included the flotilla as well as efforts by Palestinian leaders to gain U.N recognition of a Palestinian state.

Spindelegger said that Austria had not yet made up its mind on U.N. recognition, adding that he preferred a joint EU approach to the issue Between 300 and 400 international activists aboard 10 ships had been due to sail this week to Gaza to try and break the naval blockade Israel imposed after Hamas militants overran the Palestinian territory in 2007. But their departure has been beset by delays that the activists blame in part on Israel.

Last year, an Israeli raid on a similar flotilla killed nine activists on a Turkish vessel with each side blaming the other for the violence. On Thursday, Lieberman refused to be drawn on what means the Jewish state would apply this time to prevent a breach of the blockade.

Instead, he said Israel wanted organizers to bring their aid to ports "where there are U. N authorities" who will the distribute the supplies.

Frequent Israeli depictions of Iran as representing the greatest danger to Mideast peace received enforcement Wednesday with British warnings that the Islamic Republic has conducted secret tests of ballistic missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads.

Britain believes Tehran has conducted at least three secret tests of medium-range ballistic missiles since October, amid an apparent escalation of its nuclear program and increased scrutiny from the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Like its missile program, Iran's nuclear activities are under U.N. Security Council sanctions because of fears Tehran is seeking nuclear weapons — something the Islamic Republic denies.

A U.N. Panel of Experts report leaked to the media last month reported that Iran conducted secret ballistic missile tests in October and February.

Lieberman on Thursday said Iran is exploiting "international community ... attention to the Arab Spring to develop and move as soon as possible with their nuclear and missile programs."

Conspiracy of silence over four Iranian nuclear-capable missile tests

DEBKAfile Exclusive Report June 30, 2011, 12:16 PM (GMT+02:00) Tags: Iran nuclear Vladimir http://www.debka.com/article/21076/

Putin imposes secrecy on nuclear Iran

Our Iranian and intelligence sources offer details on the British Foreign Secretary William Hague's allegation Wednesday, June 29, that Iran has carried out secret tests of missiles capable of delivering a nuclear payload in breach of UN resolution 1929: Three of those tests, four in all, were carried out between October 2010 and February 2011and the fourth on Tuesday, June 28, in the course of the Prophet Mohammed war games currently in progress.
Iran is clearly continuing to upgrade and improve the accuracy of the missiles in its armory that are capable of delivering nuclear warheads.
It was the last test of the four that led Hague to break the Russian-imposed US-Israeli blackout on the critical tests, thereby leaving Iran free to push ahead at top speed with its program for attaining an operational nuclear weapon. Click here for debkafile's June 29 report of Hague disclosures.

debkafile's military and Moscow sources now report exclusively: In early October 2010, Russian intelligence learned that Iran was about to begin test launches of missiles for carrying nuclear warheads. They reported this to Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin.

He then took three steps: He conveyed the information to US President Barack Obama and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and bound them to secrecy. With their pledges in hand, he used backdoor intelligence channels to persuade Tehran to refrain from bragging about its dramatic progress and keep the tests of the nuclear-capable missiles quiet in order to avert a world outcry against the violation of all their international commitments. The Iranians bought the deal.

In this way, the Russian leader raised a wall of silence around Iran's advances towards ballistic missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads and pre-empted condemnations, Security Council action, and other forms of American, European and Israeli action for keeping a nuclear bomb out of Iranian hands.

This was the last straw – at least for the British government. Hague in consultation with Prime Minister David Cameron went public about what Iran was really up to with a statement to parliament.

debkafile's military sources disclose that Iran has now tested two types of missile for carrying nuclear warheads: the Shahab-3 Kadar and the Sejjil – both powered with solid fuel and having a maximum range of 2,510 kilometers.

Two of the first three tests - one by Sejjil and one by Shahab-3 Kadar - were successful. A third apparently failed. Tuesday of this week the Iranians conducted another successful Shahab-3 test.

Women activists arrested in Iran

http://www.guardian.co.uk/media/greenslade...ss-freedom-iran

The prominent Iranian filmmaker and women's rights activist Mahnaz Mohammadi has been arrested by security forces for "unknown" reasons, according to the opposition website Kaleme.

She is believed to have been seized from her Tehran home by the intelligence services of Iran's revolutionary guards.

Her arrest, the second in three years, has not been reported by Iranian state media.

Mohammadi, director of the acclaimed short documentary Women Without Shadows, also contributed to Rakhsan Bani-Etemad's documentary about Iran's disputed presidential election in 2009.

Another women's rights campaigner, the photojournalist and sports reporter Maryam Majd, has also been arrested and is being held in Tehran's notorious Evin prison.

"Maryam was arrested on the eve of her flight to Germany to report a sports event," said a close friend who preferred to remain anonymous for fear of retribution.

These arrests come amid preparations for parliamentary elections that are set to take place next March.

Iran Arming Iraqi Groups Attacking U.S. Troops, Gates Says

http://www.bloomberg.com/news/2011-06-30/i...gates-says.html

Iran is furnishing new, more deadly weapons to Shiite Muslim militias targeting U.S. troops in Iraq as part of a pattern of renewed attempts to exert influence in the region, Defense Secretary Robert Gates said.

About 40 percent of the deaths of American soldiers since the official end of U.S. combat operations almost 10 months ago have occurred in the past few weeks as a result of the attacks, Gates said yesterday in an interview at the Pentagon that also touched on Iran's nuclear program.

The U.S. has raised the attacks with Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki and others, said Gates, who leaves office today. Gates will be succeeded by Leon Panetta, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Iran is "facilitating weapons, they're facilitating training, there's new technology that they're providing," Gates said. "They're stepping this up, and it's a concern."

Iran is supporting radical Shiite groups intent on "killing as many as possible in order to demonstrate to the Iraqi people that, in effect, they drove us out of Iraq at the end of the year," he said.

The attacks are increasing as the U.S. and Iraqi governments are discussing politically acceptable ways to extend the American military presence beyond December. Iraq's nascent security forces have struggled to combat Sunni Muslim al-Qaeda affiliates and Shiite militias, and the country lacks the military capability to defend its borders.

Iranian Influence

The aid to radical allies inside Iraq reflects Iran's stepped-up efforts to wield influence in the Middle East and the Persian Gulf region, Gates said. The pattern has become particularly evident since populist revolts began against authoritarian rule in Tunisia, Egypt and elsewhere, collectively known as the Arab Spring.

"They didn't create the Arab Spring or start it, but they are clearly trying to exploit it wherever they can," said Gates.

In Iraq, more than 100,000 U.S. troops left in the year leading up to the Sept. 1 transition from combat operations to a mission that primarily advises and supports Iraqi troops. The goal was to withdraw the remaining 50,000 soldiers at the end of this year.

The Pentagon has recorded 28 soldiers killed in action since the start of the new mission, called Operation New Dawn. Almost 3,500 previously had been killed since the 2003 U.S.-led invasion.
Troop Deaths

The department two days ago announced that two U.S. soldiers were killed in Iraq's Diyala province when their unit was struck by a roadside bomb. Staff Sergeant Russell J. Proctor, 25, of Oroville, California, and Private First Class Dylan J. Johnson, 20, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, were with the 4th Squadron, 9th Cavalry Regiment, 2nd Brigade Combat Team, 1st Cavalry Division from Fort Hood, Texas.

Three U.S. soldiers were killed in Iraq yesterday in a rocket attack on their base near the border with Iran, the Associated Press said today, citing an unidentified U.S. military official who blamed the strike on a Shiite Muslim militia with Iranian links.

The Iranian threat to the U.S. forces has increased "in the last three or four months," Gates said. Iran is supplying bigger "explosively formed penetrators," or EFPs, a particularly powerful type of roadside bomb, and "improvised rocket-assisted munitions," or IRAMs, he said. IRAMs are bombs capable of creating a more powerful explosion than a conventional mortar shell.
Threat to Armor

The U.S. also is concerned about growing supplies of advanced rocket-propelled grenades, Gates said. The weapons, popular with insurgent groups, are effective against U.S. armor.

"So they are really making this as difficult as they can," Gates said. The weapons are manufactured in Iran, he said.

One of the achievements Gates has touted for his 4 1/2 years in office is wrestling with the Pentagon to focus on the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, particularly in developing technology to better protect U.S. forces from roadside bombs.

He pressed to speed purchases of mine-resistant, ambush- protected vehicles, or MRAPs, in part to counter Iranian-made EFPs. He then bore down to get all-terrain versions of the vehicles, called MATVs, for Afghanistan's rugged terrain. He also established a task force to find other ways of intercepting and countering the devices.
Accusations in 2006

The issue of Iran supplying powerful roadside bombs capable of penetrating the thickest armor flared in 2006, when the U.S. repeatedly accused the government in Tehran of seeking to undermine Iraq and the foreign coalition in the country.

The U.S. said the Quds Force of Iran's Revolutionary Guard Corps was providing the aid. Iranian leaders denied the allegations.

The issue began to wane in late 2007, when the U.S. military acknowledged a decline in the number of Iranian- supplied bombs.

Gates said at the time that he doubted the credibility of assurances from Iranian officials that they would stop facilitating the deadly roadside bomb attacks.

During a Nov. 1, 2007, news conference at the Pentagon, Gates said Iran's most senior leaders "probably" are aware that elements of their military are helping the bombers, adding that he hadn't seen definitive intelligence on that point.

He said the Iranians had given assurances to Iraqi officials that they would try to halt such aid.
Had Declined

Gates said yesterday that there had been a decline in attacks with EFPs until the recent resurgence.

On Iran's nuclear program, the defense secretary said he still believes the country's leaders are intent on building an atomic weapon and are "getting closer," Gates said.

"There is, I think, a general view that they may be seeking what people call a threshold capability, which means not really having an assembled weapon but the capability to move quickly to a weapon should they choose," Gates said.

It would be difficult to verify that point, he said. "If they get that close, then you have to assume that they have the weapons themselves," Gates said.

Iran's nuclear program, which the country's leaders say is intended solely to generate energy, is under the scrutiny of inspectors from the United Nations International Atomic Energy Agency.

Weapons 'Threshold'

"The real threshold is when will they have enough low- enriched uranium to make it worth their while to throw out the IAEA and then enrich that uranium to weapons-grade so that they would have several weapons," Gates said. The question, he said, is "At what point could they do that?"

Iran also would need to develop a weapon to employ the uranium.

Still, the window of time in which Iran might achieve a nuclear weapon remains one to three years, Gates said, declining to comment on overt or covert efforts to throw a wrench into the program.

U.S. officials, including Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, have said international sanctions and technical difficulties have slowed Iran's nuclear progress.

Iran 'carrying out secret nuclear missile tests'

Iran has carried out secret tests of nuclear missiles, Britain has claimed, drawing an angry denial from Tehran.

By James Kirkup, Political Correspondent
9:20PM BST 29 Jun 2011
http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/...sile-tests.html

The claim comes as the Iranian regime mounts a visible show of its military technology with 10 days of missile tests. One tested this week was capable of reaching Israel or the Gulf states.

Mr Hague told the Commons that Iran "has been carrying out covert ballistic missile tests and rocket launches, including testing missiles capable of delivering a nuclear payload".

Those tests were in clear contravention of United Nations Security Council resolutions forbidding Iran from developing a military nuclear programme, he said.British officials said that the nuclear tests took place separately from the current, publicly declared tests.

Britain believes that since last October, Iranian forces have carried out three secret tests of missiles that could be used to carry nuclear material.

Britain has reported those tests to the United Nations, but has not previously made them public.

Iran has an active nuclear programme, which it insists is entirely for civilian energy use. But Western governments say that it is trying to develop enriched uranium, which would be required to construct a nuclear warhead.

Liam Fox, the Defence Secretary, has suggested that Iran could be in possession of a viable nuclear weapon as soon as next year, although most experts believe it could take longer. Mr Hague's claim will fuel speculation that Tehran is stepping up its nuclear weapons programme amid growing concern about the so-called "Arab Spring" which is challenging authoritarian regimes across the Middle East. So far, the Iranian regime has suppressed pro-democracy protests at home.

The International Atomic Energy Authority (IAEA) last month raised "concern" about possible secret Iranian nuclear weapons development.

The IAEA said Iran was engaged in "high voltage firing and instrumentation for explosives testing over long distances".

Earlier this month, Mr Hague announced new sanctions against Iran and told MPs: "We will maintain and continue to increase pressure on Iran to negotiate an agreement on their nuclear programme."

A spokesman for the Iranian foreign ministry said: "None of the missiles tested by Iran is capable of carrying a nuclear warhead."

The Foreign Office stood by Mr Hague's claims, accusing Tehran of "provocative acts, directly contrary to Iran's obligations" under UN Security Council resolutions. UNSCR 1929 specifically prohibited Iran from ballistic missile activity capable of delivering a nuclear weapon, said a Foreign Office spokesman.

Mr Hague also repeated allegations that Iran had been helping the Syrian regime suppress democratic protests against President Bashar al-Assad.

The Foreign Office claimed earlier this month that Tehran was providing riot control equipment and paramilitary training to the Syrian security forces.

Tehran "continues to connive in the suppression of legitimate protest in Syria", Mr Hague said.

Saudi Arabia has threatened to build nuclear weapons if it is established that Iran is close to developing them.

Prince Turki al-Faisal, a member of the ruling royal family and senior diplomat, warned that Iran developing nuclear weapon capability "would compel Saudi Arabia … to pursue policies which could lead to untold and possibly dramatic consequences".

Speaking at an unpublicised meeting at RAF Molesworth earlier this month, Prince Turki warned Iran was a "paper tiger with steel claws".

Robert Fisk: Iran's war games go underground

http://www.independent.co.uk/opinion/comme...nd-2304026.html

"Deep" underground missile silos with iron roofs, a televised launch of Iran's Shehab-3 missiles – with a 2,000km range (and we all know what that means) – even a suitably Islamic title to the military "games", "Great Prophet-6", the whole shebang. Nothing new, of course, for the Islamic Republic has been threatening to respond to any attacks on its territory for years. But "deep silos" have something of a ring about them. If Israel and/or America decides to attack the country's nuclear facilities, then they're going to get bashed in return. Supposedly.

In the old days, we used to call this mutual deterrence. And since US forces virtually surround Iran – in Iraq to the west, in Afghanistan to the east, in the former Soviet Muslim republics to the north and in the Gulf waters to the south, the Iranians would have – to use the US military's own jargon – a "target-rich environment". If, that is, the Iranian missiles actually work as intended.

For in at least one previous tub-thumping exercise, the Iranian military went to great pains to doctor a photograph of a missile launch that deleted one rocket which in reality plunged back to the desert floor shortly after being fired.

But there was Colonel Ashgar Qelichikhani, a military spokesman, on Iranian state television announcing that his silos "function as a swift reaction unit" and that "missiles, which are permanently in the vertical position, are ready to hit the pre-determined targets".

The Revolutionary Guards, who have more decision-making potential than the army or air force in Iran, said that there were "numerous" underground silos which satellites cannot detect.

Not only Israel but parts of Eastern Europe – let alone American forces in the region – therefore come within theoretical range of the Shehab-3s. Whether the missiles and silos are home-grown technology – as the Iranians claim – or whether they include North Korean, Chinese or even Russian parts, we will discover if or when Iran shoots in earnest; or whether, if Iran's deterrent claim is true, if or when Israel and/or the US shoots in earnest.

All in all, it's as well to remember that these "war games" – the Iranians have eagerly adopted the western cliché for such exercises – have gone on several times a year for the past nine years; almost as many times, in fact, as the number of warnings from the Israelis and the Americans that the Islamic Republic can produce nuclear warheads within 10 years, six years, one year or even by the year 2000 – yes, 2000 – an Israeli claim which now necessarily looks a bit dodgy. Like a lot of the rhetoric from all sides in the Middle East, including Iranian state television.

How the demise of a trusted adviser could bring down Mahmoud Ahmadinejad Iran's President has survived mass uprisings, but a corruption row engulfing his inner circle may soon be his undoing. Robert Fisk reports from Tehran

http://www.independent.co.uk/opinion/comme...ad-2303671.html

Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, Iran's irascible, unpredictable but devout president, may be forced to resign in the coming weeks as a political crisis far greater than the massive street violence which followed his re-election in 2009 threatens to overwhelm him and his court favourites in the government.

The overweening influence of his close friend and confidant Esfandiar Rahim-Mashaee, the president's chief of staff – who is blamed for the firing of two intelligence ministers and for infuriating even the Supreme Leader, Ayatollah Sayed Ali Khamenei – is expected to bring down Ahmadinejad in one of the most spectacular putsches in the history of the Islamic Republic.

Iranian politicians are already speculating on who will succeed the president – Ali Akbar Salehi, the foreign minister and for four years the head of Iran's atomic agency, is a favourite – as three of Rahim-Mashaee's close allies have been purged in just three days over the past week, arrested by security agencies while Ahmadinejad has remained uncharacteristically silent. Mohamed Sharif Malekzadeh, who served briefly as Ahmadinejad's foreign minister; Ali Asghar Parhizkar, director of the Arvand free trade zone in the south of Iran; and his opposite number in the Aras trade zone in the north, Ali-Reza Moqimi, have all been charged with corruption, a dangerous accusation in the Islamic Republic where a fine line separates "corruption on earth" from "an enemy of God".

The darkness may soon close in over Rahim-Mashaee – the nearest Iran has to a government spin doctor – and thus embrace the man over whom he has allegedly cast a spell, Ahmadinejad himself.

The potential fall of Ahmadinejad is a story worthy of any Persian tale, a pageant of court favouritism, abrupt firings of otherwise loyal ministers, apparent challenges to the Islamic heritage of Iran, and an acute case of political hubris by the president himself, all overshadowed by the immense power of Ayatollah Khamenei who holds the near-divine role created by the Republic's founder, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Some compare Ahmadinejad's predicament to that of Ayatollah Sayed Hussein Ali Montazeri, the man Khomeini chose as his successor as Supreme Leader – and then abruptly dismissed when Montazeri's son-in-law was seen to have too much power over him. In Ahmadinejad's case, the danger is Rahim-Mashaee, a civil engineer from the Caspian region of Iran, whose daughter is married to Ahmadinejad's son and who packed the president's office with his own supporters from the same region of Iran. At one point Ahmadinejad wanted to make him first vice-president – a post equivalent to any other nation's prime minister – only to be thwarted by his opponents.

According to those who have followed the saga from Ahmadinejad's original election to the presidency in 2005 – he only won in the second round and was never expected to hold office – the conservative clergy and revolutionary founders, the "principalists" as they call themselves, believed that Ahmadinejad never had the stature for the role as Iran's political leader.

But the new president maintained his popular support by touring hundreds of villages, small towns and cities, from Isfahan and Mashad to Tabriz, in order to create the profile of a "people's representative" rather than that of a distant father-figure. "It was like a US president heading off to town hall meetings in New Hampshire every week," one of his supporters told me.

When Mir Hossein Moussavi stood against Ahmadinejad in the 2009 election – which the former believed he would have won had the votes been counted fairly – he would appear on the streets of Tehran with educated, T-shirted young men and women with their hair showing beneath their scarves on one pavement, while bearded men and women in chadors would curse him from the other. Another of the president's supporters said: "I voted for Ahmadinejad because he stood up for the underclass – unlike Moussavi's comrade Mohamed Khatemi [who was president for eight years before Ahmadinejad] who always seemed to be drinking English tea with Jack Straw."

But then Rahim-Mashaee appeared in the president's office as head of Iran's heritage organisation, becoming ever closer to Ahmadinejad. Rahim-Mashaee had been in the Sepah, the Revolutionary Guards, during the 1980-88 war with Iraq and had then become a radio manager for Iran's state broadcasting company; rumour has it that he also worked in the intelligence ministry. "But by the end of Ahmadinejad's first term, Rahim-Mashaee was in the president's office all the time," an Ahmadinejad detractor said.

"He was saying things that the conservatives, the principalists, didn't like – he said that Iran's conflict was with Israel, not with the Israeli people. But the conservatives said that these 'people' were occupying the land of Palestine. When he appeared to be putting Iran's heritage in front of the country's Islamic heritage, he annoyed the clergy in Qom. He made speeches as long as Fidel Castro. I've been to them. He wasn't careful with money on his heritage projects. There were allegations of financial mismanagement; that he didn't keep good records."

When Ahmadinejad "won" the 2009 election, Ayatollah Khamenei said the poll was fair, but then Ahmadinejad said he wanted Rahim-Mashaee to be vice-president – even before he announced his cabinet. He was persuaded to drop the idea.

During his first term, he had appointed Akbar Ajaii as his minister of intelligence; he stayed for almost all of Ahmadinejad's first four-year term but constantly criticised Rahim-Mashaee's influence over the president. Then just two weeks be fore the 2009 election, Ahmadinejad fired him. This was a deliberate insult: he could have waited another two weeks and then dropped Ajaii.

Another opponent remarked: "People began to ask Ahmadinejad to get rid of Rahim Mashaee; even the 'marja', the highest Shia religious authority, asked him to. We thought Ahmadinejad would give way. But he didn't. Anyone in the cabinet who criticised Rahim-Mashaee got fired. They would criticise him one day – and the next day they didn't have a job. So in Iran today, some people say that Rahim-Mashaee has cast some kind of spell over Ahmadinejad – that he has captured Ahmadinejad's mind. It's unusual for anyone to resist all this pressure."

In Iran, a president is expected to share power – on the principle that your enemies will increase if you do not do so. The latter is exactly what happened to Ahmadinejad. Ayatollah Khamenei went so far as to write a personal letter to the president, saying that the appointment of Rahim Mashaee as first vice-president "will upset many of your supporters", reminding the president that "this is for your own good". He reluctantly accepted that the post of first vice-president was lost – but then made Rahim-Mashaee his personal chief of staff, effectively elevating him to the third most important man in the Islamic Republic after Khamenei and himself.

Khamenei continued to publically support the president, but was said to be deeply angered by his behaviour. More trouble arose when Ahmadinejad decided to fire his new intelligence minister, Heydar Moslehi, less than two months ago after he too, criticised Rahim Mashaee. Infuriated, Ayatollah Khamenei wrote another letter, this time directly to Moslehi, saying that he "needs to continue in his post". His dismissal was never officially revealed and Moslehi has been re-instated.

Slighted, Ahmadinejad stalked off home in a sulk, refusing to attend cabinet meetings and boycotting his own duties as president for a week. Then, suddenly he was back, full of praise for the Supreme Leader and the system of "velayat-e faqih" under which Khamenei held his own post, repeating that he "followed the Supreme Leader" in all his decisions. There was no more talk of Rahim-Mashaee, whose own compatriots are now being hastily arrested.

In Iran, they say that Ahmadinejad, who under the Iranian constitution cannot stand for president again in 2013, has at last realised his own desperate situation. In Tehran, Rahim-Mashaee is now daily being denounced as a "deviant" – another dangerous expression in the lexicon of the Islamic Republic – and the president is supposedly prepared at last to sacrifice his chief adviser to save his own skin. The fact that a senior official in the government was prepared this week, privately, to predict to me his possible demise, suggests that it may be too late.

Possible Successors

Ali Akbar Salehi

Iran's Foreign Minister and former envoy to the UN nuclear watchdog is believed to be a favourite to succeed President Ahmadinejad.

Mohammed Sharif Malekzadeh

Previously viewed as one of Ahmadinejad's closest allies, Iran's former deputy foreign minister was forced to resign after only a few days in the job before being arrested on corruption charges last week.

Esfandiar Rahim-Mashaee

Ahmadinejad's chief-of-staff is not only one of the President's closest political advisers, his daughter is also married to the Iranian leader's son. A leaked US cable made public in April added fuel to speculation that Ahmadinejad favours Mashaee as his successor.

Ali Asghar Parhizkar

Head of the Arvand free trade zone in southern Iran, Parhizkar was also arrested on charges of corruption last week.

Ali-Reza Moqimi

The director of the Aras trade zone was also taken into custody on corruption charges last week.

Saudi Arabia worries about stability, security and Iran

In a UK speech, Prince Turki al-Faisal outlines Saudi Arabia's concerns relating to the Arab spring, its foreign policies and Iran

http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2011/jun/2...rab-spring-iran

It was a very discreet meeting deep in the English countryside. The main speaker was Prince Turki al-Faisal, one of Saudi Arabia's best-known and best-connected royals. The audience was composed of senior American and British military officials. The location was RAF Molesworth, one of three bases used by American forces in the UK since the second world war. Now a Nato intelligence centre focused on the Mediterranean and the Middle East, the sprawling compound amid green fields was an ideal venue for the sensitive topics that Turki, former head of Saudi Arabian intelligence, wanted to raise.

After an anecdote about how Franklin D Roosevelt was told by a naked Winston Churchill that nothing between them or their countries should be hidden, Turki warmed to his theme: "A Saudi national security doctrine for the next decade."

For the next half an hour, the veteran diplomat, a former ambassador to Washington and tipped to be the next foreign minister in Riyadh, entertained his audience to a sweeping survey of his country's concerns in a region seized by momentous changes. Like Churchill, Turki said, the kingdom "had nothing to hide".

Even if they wanted to, the leaders of the desert kingdom would have difficulty concealing their concern at the stunning developments across the Arab world. Few – excepting the vast revenues pouring in from oil selling at around $100 a barrel for much of the year – have brought much relief to Riyadh.

Chief among the challenges, from the perspective of the Saudi royal rulers, are the difficulties of preserving stability in the region when local autocracies that have lasted for decades are falling one after another; of preserving security when the resultant chaos provides opportunities to all kinds of groups deemed enemies; of maintaining good relations with the west; and, perhaps most importantly of all, of ensuring that Iran, the bigger but poorer historic regional and religious rival just across the Gulf from Saudi Arabia's eastern provinces, does not emerge as the winner as the upheavals of the Arab spring continue into the summer.

"The [Saudi king], crown prince and government cannot ignore the Arab situations, we live the Arab situation and hope stability returns," the al-Sharq al-Awsat newspaper quoted Prince Nayef, the second in line to the throne and minister of the interior, as saying in Riyadh last week.

The prince, known as a conservative, went on to add that the possibility "of interference to prolong the chaos and killing between the sons of the Arab people … could not be discounted".

Iran, a majority Shia state committed to a rigorous and highly politicised Islamist ideology, remains at the heart of such fears in Saudi Arabia, a predominantly Sunni state ruled by the al-Saud family since its foundation in 1932. Recent moves such as the Saudi-inspired invitation to Morocco and Jordan, both Sunni monarchies, to join the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC), a group of Sunni autocratic states, are seen by analysts as part of Riyadh's effort to bolster defences against Tehran. So too is the deployment of Saudi troops under the umbrella of the GCC to Bahrain, where largely Shia demonstrators took to the streets to demand greater democratic rights from the Sunni rulers.

One fear in Riyadh is that the 15% or so of Saudi citizens who are Shia – and who largely live in the oil-rich eastern province – might mobilise in response to an Iranian call to arms.

"It is a kind of ideological struggle," said a Ministry of Interior official.

Describing Iran as a "paper tiger" because of its "dysfunctional government … whose hold on power is only possible if it is able, as it barely is now, to maintain a level of economic prosperity that is just enough to pacify its people", Turki, according to a copy of his speech at RAF Molesworth obtained by the Guardian, said the rival state nonetheless had "steel claws", which were "effective tools … to interfere in other countries".

This Tehran did with "destructive" consequences in countries with very large Shia communities such as Iraq, which Turki said was taking a "sectarian, Iranian-influenced direction", as well as states with smaller ones such as Kuwait and Lebanon. Until Iraq changed course, the former intelligence chief warned, Riyadh would not write off Baghdad's $20bn (£12.5bn) debts or send an ambassador.

More worryingly for western diplomats was Turki's implicit threat that if Iran looked close to obtaining nuclear weapons, Saudi Arabia would follow suit, threatening a nuclear war between the two powers. "Iran [developing] a nuclear weapon would compel Saudi Arabia … to pursue policies which could lead to untold and possibly dramatic consequences," Turki said.

A senior adviser told the Guardian that it was "inconceivable that there would be a day when Iran had a nuclear weapon and Saudi Arabia did not".

"If they successfully pursue a military programme, we will have to follow suit," he said. For the moment, however, the prince told his audience, "sanctions [against Iran] are working" and military strikes would be "counterproductive".

One alternative, Turki told his audience, would be to "squeeze" Iran by undermining its profits from oil, explaining that this was something the Saudis, with new spare pumping capacity and deep pockets, were ideally positioned to do.

Money has long been a key foreign policy tool for Saudi Arabia. Turki's speech reveals the extent to which the kingdom is relying on its wealth to buy goodwill and support allies. In Lebanon, to counter Syrian influence and the Shia Hezbollah movement, the kingdom has spent $2.5bn (£1.6bn) since 2006.

Several billion more will reach the Palestinians, either directly or via the Palestinian Authority, Turki said. Then there is the $4bn (£2.5bn) in unconditional "grants, loans and deposits to Egypt's emerging government", which "stand in stark comparison to the conditional loans that the US and Europe have promised".

This was an indication of the "contrast in values between the kingdom and its western allies", the prince said.

The aim of such expenditure – only a fraction of the state's $550bn (£343bn) reserves – is to minimise any potential ill-will towards Saudi Arabia among populations who have deposed rulers backed previously by Riyadh.

King Abdullah, who has ruled Saudi Arabia since 2005, initially backed long-term ally Hosni Mubarak, reportedly personally interceding on his behalf with President Barack Obama.

"The calculation in Riyadh is very simple: you cannot stop the Arab spring so the question is how to accommodate the new reality on the ground. So far there is no hostility to the Saudis in Tunisia, Egypt or elsewhere, popular or political," said Dr Mustafa Alani, from the Gulf Research Centre, Dubai.

One difficult issue is that of the "unwanted house guests". Saudi Arabia has a long tradition of offering a comfortable retirement home to ex-dictators, and two of the deposed leaders – Zine al-Abidine Ben Ali of Tunisia and Ali Abdullah Saleh of Yemen – are now in the kingdom. Ben Ali is reported to have been housed in a villa on the Red Sea coast. Saleh is in a luxury hospital receiving treatment for wounds caused by the bomb that forced his flight from the country he ruled for 21 years as president, and is now under pressure from his hosts to retire permanently.

Other regional rulers are being gently pressured to ease crackdowns, in part in response to western outcry over human-rights abuses, one official said.

Yemen, however, remains a major security concern to the Saudis, who worry about the presence of Islamic militants and Shia rebels who, again, they view as proxies of Iran.

"It is very important to make sure Yemen is stable and secure and without any internal struggle," said one Interior Ministry official.

In his speech in the UK, Turki worried that Yemen's more remote areas had become a safe haven for terrorism comparable to Pakistan's tribal areas.

Along with money, religion too has been used as a weapon of Saudi foreign policy. Since 1986, Saudi kings have used the title of custodian of the two holy mosques – Mecca and Medina – and "as such [the kingdom] feels itself the eminent leader of the wider Muslim world", said Turki. Iran challenges this claim.

One key western concern has long been the export of rigorous and sometimes intolerant strands of Islam. Between the 1979 Iranian revolution and the 9/11 attacks, this was seen as a key part of Saudi foreign policy. It also served to placate clerical establishment internally. In the last decade, a major effort has been made to cut back funding for extremism abroad. The results, government spokesmen admit, are sometimes mixed.

Senior Saudi charity officials told the Guardian that their work was not only "non-political" but also avoided any attempt to spread Wahhabism, as the puritanical Saudi strands of Islamic practice are often known, too.

"We follow the wishes of local communities and never get involved in politics. We are a purely humanitarian organisation, said Dr Saleh al-Wohaibi, the secretary-general of the World Assembly of Muslim Youth (Wamy), a Riyadh-based NGO engaged in relief work and development assistance across the Islamic world, which has been accused of funding extremism.

However, al-Wohaibi confirmed Wamy had built thousands of religious schools in countries such as Pakistan. Since 9/11, he said, donations from within Saudi Arabia had reduced considerably.

At mosques in Riyadh last week, religious students said they hoped to travel overseas as soon as possible. "It is our duty to help other countries all over the world to improve their practice of Islam and [to improve] the image of Saudi Arabia," said Abdalillah al'Ajmi, 18, after evening prayers at the al-Rajhi mosque in Riyadh.

In his speech at Molesworth, Turki simply referred to Islam playing "a central … role" in ensuring Saudi security in the years to come. "Saudi Arabia is … the birthplace of Islam …. Iran portrays itself as the leader of not just the Shia world but of all Muslim revolutionaries interested in standing up to the west," he said.

A Saudi bomb?

Julian Borger

Diplomatic editor

Prince Turki al-Faisal's remarks reflect alarm at the progress of Iran's nuclear programme and eroding confidence in the protective umbrella of Saudi Arabia's longstanding ally, America.

In 2003, as its forces got bogged down in Iraq and the US began to look vulnerable, the Saudi government laid out three alternatives for itself: build its own bomb, shelter under someone else's, or agree a Middle East nuclear-free zone. Tentative talks on a zone are underway with a view to a UN-chaired conference next year, but few observers believe Israel would surrender its nuclear arsenal or that Iran would halt its programme.

As for its own weapon, Saudi Arabia has declared it will spend $300bn on 16 nuclear reactors, for which it is about to open bids. But they would be turnkey projects with safeguards making it almost impossible to use the fuel to make weapons.

Building a Saudi bomb would require starting a uranium enrichment programme from scratch. Even with unlimited resources that would take years.

In the short term, Saudi Arabia could look to other states. Since the Arab spring, the monarchy has become disillusioned with Washington's capacity to defend it. Instead, it may see its best option for a rapid response (to an Iran nuclear test, for example) as Pakistan. Saudi Arabia is reported to have an "option" on Pakistan's nuclear capability, in return for financing Pakistan for decades.

And the US would find it hard to stop such destabilising nuclear co-operation. Its influence with both the Pakistanis and the Saudis has frayed considerably.

Riyadh will build nuclear weapons if Iran gets them, Saudi prince warns

Prospect of a nuclear conflict in the Middle East is raised by senior diplomat and member of the Saudi ruling family

Jason Burke in Riyadh
guardian.co.uk, Wednesday 29 June 2011 17.19 BST
http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2011/jun/2...ar-weapons-iran

A senior Saudi Arabian diplomat and member of the ruling royal family has raised the spectre of nuclear conflict in the Middle East if Iran comes close to developing a nuclear weapon.

Prince Turki al-Faisal, a former Saudi intelligence chief and ambassador to Washington, warned senior Nato military officials that the existence of such a device "would compel Saudi Arabia … to pursue policies which could lead to untold and possibly dramatic consequences".

He did not state explicitly what these policies would be, but a senior official in Riyadh who is close to the prince said yesterday his message was clear.

"We cannot live in a situation where Iran has nuclear weapons and we don't. It's as simple as that," the official said. "If Iran develops a nuclear weapon, that will be unacceptable to us and we will have to follow suit."

Officials in Riyadh said that Saudi Arabia would reluctantly push ahead with its own civilian nuclear programme. Peaceful use of nuclear power, Turki said, was the right of all nations.

Turki was speaking earlier this month at an unpublicised meeting at RAF Molesworth, the airbase in Cambridgeshire used by Nato as a centre for gathering and collating intelligence on the Middle East and the Mediterranean.

According to a transcript of his speech obtained by the Guardian, Turki told his audience that Iran was a "paper tiger with steel claws" that was "meddling and destabilising" across the region.

"Iran … is very sensitive about other countries meddling in its affairs. But it should treat others like it expects to be treated. The kingdom expects Iran to practise what it preaches," Turki said.

Turki holds no official post in Saudi Arabia but is seen as an ambassador at large for the kingdom and a potential future foreign minister, Diplomatic cables obtained by WikiLeaks and published by the Guardian last year revealed that King Abdullah, who has ruled Saudi Arabia since 2005, had privately warned Washington in 2008 that if Iran developed nuclear weapons "everyone in the region would do the same, including Saudi Arabia".

Saudi Arabian diplomats and officials have launched a serious campaign in recent weeks to rally global and regional powers against Iran, fearful that their country's larger but poorer regional rival is exploiting the Arab Spring to gain influence in the region and within the kingdom itself.

Turki also accused Iran of interfering in Iraq, Lebanon, Syria, and in the Gulf state of Bahrain, where Saudi troops were deployed this year as part of a Gulf Co-operation Council force following widespread protests from those calling for greater democratic rights.

Though there has previously been little public comment from Riyadh on developments in Syria, Turki told his audience at Molesworth that President Bashar al-Assad "will cling to power till the last Syrian is killed".

Syria presents a dilemma for Saudi policymakers: although they would prefer not to see popular protest unseat another regime in the region, they view the Damascus regime, which is dominated by members of Syria's Shia minority, as a proxy for Iran.

"The loss of life [in Syria] in the present internal struggle is deplorable. The government is woefully deficient in its handling of the situation," Turki said at the Molesworth meeting, which took place on 8 June.

Though analysts say demonstrations in Bahrain were not sectarian in nature, two senior Saudi officials in Riyadh said this week that Tehran had mobilised the largely Shia protesters against the Sunni rulers of the Gulf state. Iran has a predominantly Shia population. Around 15% of Saudis are Shia. The officials described this minority, which suffers extensive discrimination despite recent attempts at reform, as "vulnerable to external influence".

Though there has been negligible unrest internally, Saudi Arabia has been shaken by the events across the Arab world in recent months and has watched anxiously as a number of allies – such as President Hosni Mubarak – have been ousted or have found themselves in grave difficulties. President Ali Abdullah Saleh of Yemen is being treated in a Saudi Arabian hospital for wounds caused by a mysterious blast that forced him to leave his country this month.

The former Tunisian ruler Zine al-Abedine ben Ali, whose relations with Riyadh were complex, is reported to have been housed in a luxurious villa in the Red Sea port city of Jeddah after he fled his homeland for Saudi Arabia.

Saudi officials admitted that decision-makers in Saudi Arabia were "not keen" on demonstrators ousting governments, but said they were "even less keen on killing and massacres".

Turki also warned that al-Qaida has been able to create "a sanctuary not unlike Pakistan's tribal areas" in Yemen.

Saudi Arabian foreign policy historically has been pro-western, although differences have emerged with the United States in recent years. The Arab Spring has also caused some tension, with the deployment of troops in Bahrain opposed by Washington.

There has also been conflict following western charges that the kingdom has exported radical strands of Islam around the Muslim world.Turki said that "in all areas, Islam must play a central yet development role" and insisted that "closer monitoring" now ensured that funds raised in the kingdom "were not misused".

Internally, Saudi Arabia faced problems because of the youthfulness of its population, radicalism and different sectarian identities, Turki said.

Senior officials at the ministry of interior in Riyadh said that Iran was using ideology to "penetrate" the Arabian peninsula "in the same way al-Qaida did".

Turki also reiterated a long-standing Saudi call for a nuclear free zone in the Middle East, which would include both Iran and Israel and would be enforced by the United Nations security council.

The prince said sanctions against Iran were working. He welcomed the consensus in Washington that military strikes against Tehran would be counterproductive.

Analysts said that Turki's words about developing nuclear arms may have been intended to focus western attention on Saudi concerns about their regional rival rather than to indicate any kind of definite decision by Riyadh because the practical and diplomatic obstacles of doing so would be immense.

William Hague, Britain's foreign secretary said that Iran has recently conducted covert tests of ballistic missiles as well as at least three secret tests of medium-range ballistic missiles since October.

Iran and the west remain in dispute over its nuclear programme. The US and its allies insist Tehran aims to develop atomic weapons, a charge that Iran rejects.

Iran's big Great Prophet Mohammad War Games 6 was launched Monday, June 27, ahead of a Turkish operation against Syria's Assad regime which is anticipated by its military and Revolutionary Guards chiefs. debkafile reports Tehran expected the Turkish army to have US air and naval support in case of Iranian reprisals against them both. On Day One of the exercise, Iran unveiled its first underground missile silo immune to air strikes. It held what looked like a Shahab-3 ballistic missile.

Israel has responded to Iran's military exercise and the spiraling regional tension by positioning one of its new Iron Dome rocket interceptor batteries in the northern city of Haifa.

Last week, Iranian warships and submarines deployed in the Red Sea tracked the movements of two big US aircraft carriers, the USS Enterprise and USS George H. W Bush, which crossed each other in the Bab el-Mandeb Strait on June 21 heading in opposite directions through this strategic chokepoint between the Mediterranean Sea and Indian Ocean.

The USS Enterprise, the world's largest aircraft carrier, was on its way from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean via the Red Sea and Suez Canal, while the USS George H. W. Bush, the US Navy's newest carrier with the greatest fire power of any of its warships, left the Mediterranean and headed in the opposite direction for the Persian Gulf with a crew of 9,000 and 70 fighter bombers.

On the same day, Iranian naval surveillance picked up the arrival of the Los Angeles-class USS Bremerton nuclear-powered attack submarineoff Bahrain opposite Iran.

Strategists in Tehran see danger in these crisscross movements by US war fleets. According to our military sources, the Enterprise, which is older, slower and has less fire power than the Bush, was moved to the Mediterranean because there it is supported by American air bases scattered across western and central Europe, whereas the Bush was consigned to waters opposite Iranian shores because it is virtually a single-vessel fighting machine capable of operating without support.

The Iranian exercise has two primary objectives:

1. To spread Iran's ballistic missiles to their maximum operational extent in support of Iran's signals to Washington and Ankara in the past two weeks warning that an attack on Syria by a US-backed Turkish or NATO force would spark Iranian missile reprisals against Turkish and US military targets on Turkish soil and other parts of the Middle East.

2. Iran has fanned its fighting forces out across the country, with the densest concentrations on its Persian Gulf and Arabian Sea coasts, ready to repel any American attack that might follow an Iranian missile assault on US, Turkish or allied targets.

The ground-air-naval exercise is scheduled to last 10 days – unusually long for a military drill – so that Iran stands ready for a decision in Washington and/or Ankara to attack Syria.
The announcement of the exercise by Revolutionary Guards Aerospace Force commander Gen. Amir-Ali Hajizadeh Sunday, June 26, made Tehran's intentions clear: He said the exercise was being staged in response to the "growing US military presence in the region" and noted that the missiles practiced would include the Saijil and the Fateh 110.

He did not need to spell out the facts that the Saijil-2 has a range of 2,000 kilometers and can reach any point in the Middle East and further - up to the Black Sea region, for instance, where US air and naval units are posted; or that the improved Fateh 110 has been supplied to Syria and Hizballah for use against Israel.

Iran would expect to be joined by both in any military flare-up.

Iran Woos Leaders of U.S. Allies as Troops Withdraw From Region

Washington – Iran is moving to cement ties with the leaders of three key American allies -- Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iraq -- highlighting Tehran's efforts to take a greater role in the region as the U.S. military pulls out troops, The Wall Street Journal reported Monday.

The Afghan and Pakistani presidents, visiting Tehran, discussed with Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad "many issues … that might come up after the NATO military force goes out of Afghanistan," Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Salehi said.

"The three presidents were very forthcoming in carrying out the cooperation and contacts so as to make sure things will go as smoothly as it could," he said.

That comment was seen as a jab at Washington, which is increasingly in competition with Tehran for influence in the region, particularly as popular rebellions have surged across the Middle East and North Africa since January.

The overtures by U.S. nemesis Iran come amid tensions between Washington and three governments that have each received billions of dollars in U.S. aid. Afghan President Hamid Karzai, before traveling to Tehran, welcomed President Barack Obama's announcement on Wednesday that the U.S. would withdraw 33,000 U.S. troops from Afghanistan over 15 months.

The U.S. is also committed to withdrawing all of its remaining 45,000 troops from Iraq by year-end; some U.S. military officials want some troops to stay to serve as a check on Iran, but Iraqi hostility to the U.S. presence has been an obstacle.

In Pakistan, military and civilian leaders are under domestic pressure to curb U.S. ties, in a wave of anti-Americanism fueled by the U.S. raid in May that killed Usama bin Laden at his home in Pakistan.

Tehran has been pressing Afghanistan -- Iran's neighbor to the east -- and Pakistan to end their military alliances with Washington. Officials at the White House and State Department declined to comment on Sunday on the Tehran meetings.

U.S. and European officials have said they believe Iran's regional ambitions are hampered by a stagnant economy and growing political infighting in Tehran that could cost Ahmadinejad his job.

There are also historical tensions between neighbors -- and in some cases, current conflicts. Afghan President Hamid Karzai told Pakistan President Asif Ali Zardari that Pakistan must stop lobbing rockets into his country, according to a statement from Karzai's office. Zardari denied Pakistan's military was firing the rockets.

But Iran's government took every opportunity to play up its international ties during a weekend that also included a conference in Tehran attended by representatives from about 60 countries.

The Obama administration and European nations had lobbied countries against attending what Iran called an "International Conference on the Global Fight against Terrorism." The U.S. characterizes Tehran as the world's largest state sponsor of terrorism.

'Bullet Tax' Proposed By Mayoral Candidate

Otis Rolley Running In September's Primary

http://www.wbaltv.com/politics/28595846/de...xzz1SaiEn3u7%22

BALTIMORE -- A mayoral candidate's plan to reduce violence in Baltimore includes a "bullet tax" that he said will increase the cost of committing a crime.

Otis Rolley said he would, if elected, propose a $1 per bullet tax on all bullet purchases in the city. The idea was part of an overall crime plan he unveiled Tuesday.

Rolley also said, according to I-Team lead investigative reporter Jayne Miller, that he's willing to touch what Miller called the third rail of Baltimore politics -- the police budget.

"This is not a revenue enhancement tool," Rolley said of the tax idea. "It's a 'make it difficult for you to buy bullets in the city' tool."

The bullet tax is part of Rolley's public safety plan, which includes a change in how the city treats some drug use. He wants to make possession of small amounts of marijuana a summary offense. That would treat the offense Click To Comment

"A lot of time, energy and effort is wasted by our courts and police officers spending time on petty crime," Rolley said. "I want them to focus on quality of life. I want them to focus in on the most violent offenders."

Rolley promises more efficient policing in Baltimore, Miller reported.

Since 2000, the city has spent $4 billion on policing, but the city's homicide rate hasn't significantly budged, according to Miller's Tuesday report.

In 2000, the homicide rate was 40 per 100,000 people. In 2010, the rate was 36 per 100,000 people -- still among the highest in the country.

"It's more than fair to ask whether that's been a good investment, and my answer would be no," Rolley said of the $4 billion figure.

Rolley said he is willing to consider spending less on policing if it's part of what he called a "bigger plan."

"If you make cuts in public safety, you have to enhance other areas so you enhance public safety. Right now, we're not doing that."

Rolley said the bullet tax would cause a decrease in "random firings that too often happen around holidays" and put a high price tag on the cost of "This is not a revenue enhancement tool. It's a 'make it difficult for you to buy bullets in the city' tool."

committing a crime. "This is not a revenue enhancement tool. It's a 'make it difficult for you to buy bullets in the city' tool."
- Otis Rolley

"While the courts have consistently ruled against significant gun control legislation, there is still a way to decrease crime: substantially increase the cost of its commission," Rolley's plan states.

"Increasing the cost of guns won't work, because many criminals don't purchase new guns, and they can be borrowed or even rented in some areas," his plan states.

Minutes after WBALTV.com posted this story, our friends on Facebook swiftly shared their reaction.

Judy Lloyd wrote, "Taxing those trying to protect their homes or hunt? How about a tax on stupidity?"

Danny Kutrick wrote, "I almost shot my drink through my nose. Criminals don't by ammo from a store."

Jeneene Precious Richardson-Rogers wrote, "How can it hinder crime if a majority of the crimes committed are with illegal handguns? So, how would they collect a tax for bullets when the only people it would hurt is the ones who are legally able to buy guns and not the criminal?"

Rolley, a Democrat, served as the city's planning director from 2003 to 2007.

The primary will be held in September.

NRA Will Sue Obama Administration Over New Gun-Control Measure

Tuesday, July 12, 2011
By Susan Jones
http://www.cnsnews.com/news/article/nra-wi...stration-over-n (CNSNews.com) - The National Rifle Association plans to sue the Obama administration over its new gun-reporting requirement in four states bordering Mexico.

On Monday, the Justice Department said it would require firearms dealers in Arizona, California, New Mexico, and Texas to report multiple sales of certain semi-automatic rifles to the same person within a five-day period. The goal is to stop the illegal flow of weapons to Mexican drug cartels, said Deputy Attorney General James Cole.

The new reporting requirement applies to semi-automatic rifles with detachable magazines and calibers greater than .22. Such weapons, Cole said, "are highly sought after by dangerous drug trafficiking organizations and frequently recovered at violent crime scenes near the Southwest Border."

NRA Executive Director Chris Cox called the reporting requirement "a blatant effort by the Obama administration and ATF to divert focus of Congress and the general public from their gross incompetence in the Fast and Furious scandal."

As CNSNews.com has reported, a House committee is investigating the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives for its botched gun-tracking operation in which the ATF -- evidently with the approval of Justice Department higher-ups -- allowed straw purchasers in the U.S. to send guns to Mexican criminals. Two of the guns sold as part of Operation Fast and Furious ended up at the Arizona crime scene where a U.S. Border Patrol agent was murdered in December.

Although ATF's goal was to track the guns, Rep. Darrell Issa, chairman of the House Oversight and Government Affairs Committee, said tracking devices were put on guns in only two instances.

Most of the tracking involved "a few hours of following the first car," Issa told Fox News. "In one case, he said, the ATF did track the guns with a GPS device "quite a ways into Mexico, but of course, they didn't inform the Mexican officials, and they didn't have a team on the other side of the border" to follow the signal, which "simply disappeared."

The NRA said the Justice Department's "scheme" will "unjustly burden law-abiding retailers in border states." Cox said the move will not affect drug cartels -- which are not deterred by paperwork violations -- and it won't prevent violence along the border.

"ATF and the Administration lack the statutory authority to do this, and the NRA will file suit as soon as ATF sends the first demand letters," Cox said in a statement posted on the NRA's Web site.

Rep. Lamar Smith (R-Texas) called the Justice Department's new reporting requirement "the height of hypocrisy," given that the administration "knowingly and intentionally allowed guns to be trafficked into Mexico."

"Limiting the Second Amendment rights of law-abiding citizens is not going to solve the problem," the Associated Press quoted Smith as saying.

Law Enforcement Listener's Alert

July 13, 2011

I am hearing from ATF sources that the "Joker Tut" is going to sign an executive order that regulates hi capacity mags to 10 rounds or less and prohibits any and all personal firearms sales that do not go thru an FFL dealer. The fees for transfers could be extremely high to discourage firearms sales. This will be declared as necessary due to the shooting of the Arizona Representative. I am told that we are weeks away from this being put in place.

Obama aide: Gun legislation in 'near future'

Six months after the shooting in Tucson that killed six people and wounded Rep. Gabrielle Giffords, D-Ariz., the Obama administration has yet to move on new gun control legislation.

That could change soon.

White House spokesman Jay Carney said a special task force has been "working through these complex issues, and we expect to have some more specific announcements in the near future."

Gun control organizations such as the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence have pressed the Obama administration since the Giffords shooting and have been critical of what they call a lack of action.

Gun rights advocates such as the National Rifle Association have said the Giffords shooting should not be used as an excuse to infringe on the rights of legitimate gun owners.

Carney said a variety of views are being taken into account as the administration looks at efforts to prevent mass shootings.

"The president directed the attorney general to form working groups with key stakeholders to identify common-sense measures that would improve American safety and security while fully respecting Second Amendment rights," Carney said.

In a March op-ed for the Arizona Daily Star, Obama said he wanted to focus on strengthening background checks so criminals or mentally ill people could not get weapons. He wrote:

I know that every time we try to talk about guns, it can reinforce stark divides. People shout at one another, which makes it impossible to listen. We mire ourselves in stalemate, which makes it impossible to get to where we need to go as a country.

However, I believe that if common sense prevails, we can get beyond wedge issues and stale political debates to find a sensible, intelligent way to make the United States of America a safer, stronger place.

I'm willing to bet that responsible, law-abiding gun owners agree that we should be able to keep an irresponsible, law-breaking few -- dangerous criminals and fugitives, for example -- from getting their hands on a gun in the first place.

I'm willing to bet they don't think that using a gun and using common sense are incompatible ideas - that we should check someone's criminal record before he can check out at a gun seller; that an unbalanced man shouldn't be able to buy a gun so easily; that there's room for us to have reasonable laws that uphold liberty, ensure citizen safety and are fully compatible with a robust Second Amendment.

That's why our focus right now should be on sound and effective steps that will actually keep those irresponsible, law-breaking few from getting their hands on a gun in the first place.

There is No First Amendment Without a Second Amendment

The Gadsen Flag.

When we celebrate the Fourth of July, let's keep in mind that the first Americans won their independence from England with the force of arms. It was, in fact, a British effort in 1775 to confiscate military arms they believed were stored in Lexington and Concord, Massachusetts that sparked the war.

The Founding Fathers were so aware of the need for an armed citizenry that, after ensuring freedom of religion, speech, press and the right to peacefully assemble in the First Amendment, the Second guaranteed their right to bear arms.

Wherever authoritarian regimes were established in the last century, they took away this right and then proceeded to kill those deemed enemies of the state.

At this point in American history, the Obama administration constitutes a threat to the Constitution in general and the Second Amendment in particular.

More than 80,000,000 Americans are gun owners.

Two of the organizations that have been fighting to protect these rights are the Second Amendment Foundation (SAF) and the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms (CCRKBA), both led by Alan M. Gottlieb. Three quarters of the SAF budget is devoted to defending rights pertaining to the ownership of guns and to carry them for self-defense.

In March, the liberal Huffington Post had an article titled “Obama Looking for Ways Around Congress on Gun Policy” by Sam Stein. “Faced with a Congress hostile to even slight restrictions of Second Amendment rights, the Obama administration is exploring potential changes to gun laws that can be secured strictly through executive action, administration officials, say.”

Since then we have learned of a U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms program, Fast and Furious, that actually facilitated the sale and transfer of guns to Mexico. How demented is that?

In May in my home state of New Jersey the SAF won a decision against officials for the deprivation of civil rights under the color of law when they had ruled that an applicant for a concealed carry permit had not demonstrated a “justifiable need” for it. In point of fact, the applicant, Philip Muller, had been kidnapped by members of a motorcycle gang who threatened to kill him. They had, however, grabbed the wrong man.

Despite support by local and state police, action on his application was delayed for six months. Morris County Superior Court Judge David Ironson issued a directive that a permit should be granted. The case is still on-going with other plaintiffs that include a part-time sheriff’s deputy, an applicant who carries large amounts of cash in his private business, and a civilian employee of the FBI with legitimate concerns of an attack from a radical Islamic group.

Currently nearly thirty such cases have either been brought or joined by SAF to stop abuses of this most fundamental right of American citizens ranging from bans on interstate handgun sales, New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg’s imposition of a $340 fee for a permit to keep a handgun in one’s home, and a Chicago ban on gun ranges open to the public. These cases cost between $60,000 and $80,000 each!

The greatest single threat to gun ownership right now is a United Nations “Small Arms Treaty” falsely identified as an “international arms control treaty” allegedly to fight terrorism.”

“In reality,” says Gottlieb, it is “a massive, global gun control scheme. It’s a sham. It’s a fraud.” If the U.S., under the Obama administration and with the consent of the Senate, were to sign on to this treaty, it would nullify the Second Amendment.

Suffice to say that the Obama administration wants to have the power to increase federal fees on guns and ammunition, to ban guns that are imported, to extend the waiting periods for permits, to ban the use of guns on all government property, and even to make it illegal if you own a gun and smoke!

Americans do not have to “justify” gun ownership. It is guaranteed by the Second Amendment. The reality is that enemies of this fundamental rights continue to wage an assault on it.

Karl Denninger of The Market Ticker

.... in the event of any unlawful intrusion into their home.

Including an intrusion by alleged police officers.

City police say the two people inside the home had no time to respond. They were sleeping when they heard a loud noise downstairs.

"Three men all identified themselves as Baltimore City police officers. The victims were then tied up and the individuals went through their home," said Det. Jeremy Silbert, city police spokesman.

This is what happens when you legitimate the use of "no-knock" warrants and "dynamic entries" for purposes other than where someone is believed to be holding a hostage or similar circumstance.

I predicted that criminals would soon start dressing up as cops and barging into houses.

Guess what? They are.

There is only one way to stop this: Restoration of the clear common law and in fact individual liberty interest that states that when one is confronted with the use of violence there is no duty to retreat or submit, but one may meet that violence with force, including deadly force.

This means, in blunt language, that if your door is kicked in at 2:00 AM and you are committing no crime you have the legal right to shoot the intruders on the spot. If they turn out to be cops who are "serving a warrant" on the wrong house (by either malfeasance or accident) and they get shot as a consequence that's tough crap for them.

The 4th Amendment reads:

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

The standard is not "reasonable suspicion." It is probable cause, and the specific and particular place to be searched and person(s) or thing(s) to be seized must be identified. Further, that probable cause does not give rise to the right to search - it gives rise only to the right to ask a judge to authorize a search.

Until and unless the person(s) invading your home present you with that warrant and are properly identified as actual police officers, they have no right to be there.

The so-called "war on drugs" has led to the abrogation of the 4th Amendment under the rubric that one might "flush" evidence. Never mind the fact that turning off water to the building would immediately remove that capacity - sure, if the water is off they can flush once, but the evidence can be recovered from the drainpipes if they do and that's quite-sufficient to convict.

Turning off the water - and power - to a building is also a rather compelling means of getting the people inside to surrender, if they're otherwise not inclined to do so - especially if the weather is either very hot or very cold. It might take a while before they give up but the purpose of an arrest is supposed to be to arrest and deliver into custody, not execute - right?

The underlying problem, however, is that the crimes in question were literally created out of whole cloth as there is nobody to complain about a violation of their rights - two adults involved in a consensual transaction for goods are both consenting and thus not complaining about anything, as neither believes their rights have been violated.

This in turn has led to the alleged "necessity" of so-called "dynamic entries" which in virtually every case have nothing to do with the most-appropriate and effective means of apprehending a suspect.

If the goal is (and it should be) to deliver a suspect before a courtroom in which his or her guilt or innocence is to be determined then every effort should be made to do so in a non-violent fashion so that the court, not the cops, get to pass judgment.

It is not only much safer for the police officer but is also safer for the suspect, who is entitled to the presumption of innocence until trial, if police policy and procedure is to apprehend the suspect using non-violent means whenever possible. This used to be done through old-fashioned police work (e.g. staking out the suspect's home and then arresting him when he walked down the street where he has no cover or concealment and a limited ability to bring arms to bear) instead of storming people's homes at 2:00 AM and immediately shooting every dog you find inside - including quite frequently dogs with two legs instead of four.

There is no corrective action that can be taken to stop this sort of exploitation by criminals other than a full recognition of the original right to defend one's property, including most-especially one's home, against any violent intrusion. Legitimate police investigations and arrests do not, with few exceptions, require this sort of "dynamic entry" crap and the sooner we the people put a stop to it the better off everyone will be.

AK-47: The Ultimate Resistance Rifle

By johnu1978 - Last updated: Wednesday, September 23, 2009 - Save & Share - 15 Comments
http://ncoal.com/blog/?p=245

The AK-47 is one of the most popular and easily recognized firearms in the world. Over 50 armies along with hundreds of resistance movements use the weapon. There have been over 50,000,000 AKs produced since the rifle's creation in 1947.

The main reason for the weapon's popularity is its dependability in combat. It also delivers a more destructive round than that of its chief rival the M-16. The M-16 and its variant the M-4 shoot a 5.56x45mm(.223) round. The AK-47 fires a 7.62x39mm round.

The following video compares the AK-47 and M-16 on several key functions. (Article continues below)

[dohtml]<object width="640" height="390"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/G6BpI3xD6h0&hl=en_US&feature=player_embedded&version=3"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowScriptAccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/G6BpI3xD6h0&hl=en_US&feature=player_embedded&version=3" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowfullscreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" width="640" height="390"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

The AK-47 has an effective range of 300 meters, its accuracy can be increased by adding a scope.

There are many variants to the assault rifle which include the MAK-90, RPK, AKM, AKK, and the AK 74, which fires a .223 round, the same fired by the M-16. An increasingly popular variant is the Saiga-308 which fires a 7.62x51mm(.308) round.

Another feature of the rifle is that it has high capacity magazines. They come in 5, 10, 20, 30, and 45 round capacities. There's even a 75 round drum available for the rifle.

Up until the recent presidential election AKs could be bought for under $500. They can still be bought for that price but it's much more difficult to find one for under $500. To get a good quality rifle now you'd be looking at close to $700 or more. Some of the places you may choose to shop are gun shows, gun shops and pawn shops. You may also want to browse your local classified ads to see if anyone is selling a rifle.

Ammunition for the rifle was widely available up until a few months ago. Some online ammo retailers include jgsales.com, cheaperthandirt.com, and sportsmansguide.com. Be sure to buy non-corrosive rounds when purchasing ammo. The above mentioned retailers also provide accessories for the rifle including scopes, slings and sight adjustment tools.

For those who find the AK-47 beyond their budget there is another assault rifle called the SKS which fires the same round as the AK. The SKS has some drawbacks compared to the AK, but overall it's a great weapon. You may also want to consider taking a look at the Mosin-Nagant rifle, these rifles can be picked up for as little as $120 in good condition.

The key to finding good deals on rifles and ammunition is to shop around and compare quality and price among sellers.

Happy Shopping!

Judge questions tough penalties for carrying gun for protection

A Manitoba judge expressed sympathy Monday for a frightened newcomer to Winnipeg who bought a handgun for protection while living in one of the city's most crime-infested neighbourhoods.

But he still sent him to jail.

Kevin Everett, 22, was sentenced Monday to 21 months in jail and one year of probation after pleading guilty to weapons offences stemming from his November 2008 arrest.

Police spot-checked Everett while he was walking near Central Park, and he immediately admitted having a loaded firearm in his waistband. He put his hands in the air and allowed police to take the weapon without incident. Everett explained he'd already dodged several bullets since moving to the core area after growing up in the remote northern Manitoba community of Tadoule Lake. He said he feared for the safety of himself, his girlfriend and his three young children and bought the Ruger handgun on the black market several months earlier. He has no prior criminal record.

Court of Queen's Bench Justice John Menzies said Monday it pains him to put someone like Everett behind bars. He considered taking the highly unusual step of ignoring a joint recommendation from Crown and defence lawyers and actually imposing a lower sentence, but conceded rulings in higher courts suggest these types of plea bargains should be honoured.

"I don't condone it, but I understand why you were carrying a gun," Menzies told Everett. "I've really struggled with this file. It's something that has bothered me."

Crown attorney Adam Bergen told court the fact Everett narrowly missed being hit by stray bullets in a previous shooting targeting another man should be of little consequence.

"This isn't the Wild West and not a movie out of Hollywood," Bergen said.

That struck a raw nerve with the judge, who questioned such a stance.

"You don't think it's mitigating, the fact this man is getting pursued by gangs and has been shot at in the past?" asked Menzies.

"Nope," replied Bergen.

"Well, I hope you're never threatened, Mr. Bergen. I know it's a crime, but my goodness, I can't think of a better reason to be carrying," Menzies said.

Bergen said there have been several judgments in Canada that "resoundingly" suggest carrying a gun for protection should not be seen as a mitigating factor. "And I'm resoundingly against that opinion," Menzies said.

The judge also bemoaned the fact there are now mandatory jail sentences for firearm-related offences in Canada, saying a case like this shows the courts should allow some flexibility for unusual circumstances.

Menzies told Everett he should be proud of the fact he's gone his entire life until now without any other brushes with the law, considering he grew up in a terrible environment on the remote northern reserve. Everett has also been out on strict bail conditions since his arrest without any reoffending.

"I'm very sorry for carrying a weapon," Everett said.

Editorial: Was Fast And Furious A Gun-Control Plot?

Scandal: Rather than a botched attempt to catch criminals, was the ATF program actually an attempt to advance gun-control efforts by an administration that has blamed Mexican violence on easy access to U.S. weapons?

If "Operation Fast and Furious" was merely a botched attempt at law enforcement, why was a supervisor of the operation, David Voth, "jovial, if not, not giddy but just delighted about" marked guns showing up at crime scenes in Mexico, as career Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives agent John Dodson told Rep. Darrell Issa's House Oversight Committee?

Perhaps because all was going as planned until it was learned that two of the AK-47s recovered at the scene of the fatal shooting of Border Patrol agent Brian Terry in December were bought in ATF's Operation Fast and Furious. That wasn't supposed to happen.

"Allowing loads of weapons that we knew to be destined for criminals — this was the plan," Dodson testified to the panel. "It was so mandated."

ATF agent Olindo James Casa said that "on several occasions I personally requested to interdict or seize firearms, but I was always ordered to stand down and not to seize the firearms."

Yet, as we've noted, gun-tracking operations stopped at the border. That seems odd if the purpose was to catch gun traffickers and their drug-lord bosses. It makes sense, however, if the real purpose was to perpetuate, in the interests of pursuing the administration's gun-control agenda, what Bob Owens of Pajamas Media calls the "90% lie."

Unwilling to guarantee a secure southern border, and as part of a campaign to reinstate an expired assault weapons ban, the administration has charged that much of Mexico's gun violence is our fault. Both governments have pushed the myth that 90% of weapons confiscated by Mexican authorities originate in the U.S.

Fox News has reported that, according to ATF Special Agent William Newell, Mexico sent about 11,000 guns to the U.S. for tracing in 2007-08, out of about 35,000 confiscated. Of that 11,000, 6,000 were successfully traced. And of that number, 5,114, or 90%, were found to have originated in the U.S.

Weapons that originated in foreign countries are not sent to the U.S. for tracing. Neither are weapons of Mexican army deserters or those stolen from armories.

Bill McMahon, ATF deputy assistant director, testified that of 100,000 weapons recovered by Mexican authorities, only 18,000 were made, sold or imported from the U. S. And of those 18,000, just 7,900 came from sales by licensed gun dealers. That's 8%, not 90%.

Obama Administration Caught Running False Flag Against Second Amendment

Most damning evidence indicates Operation Fast and Furious was a deliberate assault on gun rights

Paul Joseph Watson
Friday, June 24, 2011
http://www.prisonplanet.com/obama-administ...-amendment.html

Despite the Obama administration's best efforts to characterize Operation Fast and Furious, a recently revealed ATF program that sought to put U.S.-based firearms into the hands of Mexican drug smugglers, as little more than a 'screw up', the most damning evidence strongly indicates that the whole operation was in fact an attempt to launch a false flag assault on the second amendment rights of the American people.

[dohtml]<object style="height: 390px; width: 640px"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/xe5DQySFUoY?version=3"><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"><param name="allowScriptAccess" value="always"><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/xe5DQySFUoY?version=3" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowfullscreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" width="640" height="390"></object>[/dohtml]

Under Operation Fast and Furious, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives "Sanctioned the purchase of weapons in U.S. gun shops and tracked the smuggling route to the Mexican border. Reportedly, more than 2,500 firearms were sold to straw buyers who then handed off the weapons to gunrunners under the nose of ATF." Some of the weapons were later used to kill US Border Patrol agents like Brian Terry.

An editorial posted at Investors.com this week asks, Was Fast And Furious A Gun-Control Plot?, a reasonable assumption to make given the fact that Obama has openly revealed his administration's plans to sabotage the second amendment by stealth.

"Rather than a botched attempt to catch criminals, was the ATF program actually an attempt to advance gun-control efforts by an administration that has blamed Mexican violence on easy access to U.S. weapons?" asks the author.

"If "Operation Fast and Furious" was merely a botched attempt at law enforcement, why was a supervisor of the operation, David Voth, "jovial, if not, not giddy but just delighted about" marked guns showing up at crime scenes in Mexico, as career Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives agent John Dodson told Rep. Darrell Issa's House Oversight Committee?"

The Obama administration and the ATF claim that the program was part of a sting operation to catch leading Mexican drug runners, and yet it's admitted that the government stopped tracking the firearms as soon as they reached the border, defeating the entire object of the mission, unless the mission was about pushing through gun control in the US and had nothing to do with the drug war.

That would also explain why ATF agents like James Casa were repeatedly ordered to stand down and not seize the firearms, while the Obama administration failed to even inform Mexican authorities of the program's existence.

Unbelievably, both Obama and Attorney General Eric Holder maintain that they had no knowledge of the operation until it became public, and no one will admit to authorizing it. ATF Acting Chief Ken Melson is "strongly resisting pressure" to resign over the program, claiming that he is being used as a "fall guy" to take the blame and make the controversy disappear.

However, the notion that the Obama administration would deliberately implement a program they knew could later be used to demonize gun rights is hardly conspiratorial given the fact that Obama himself told gun control advocate Sarah Brady earlier this year that his administration was working "under the radar" to sneak attack the second amendment.

During a March 30 meeting between Jim and Sarah Brady and White House Press Secretary Jay Carney, at which Obama "dropped in," the president reportedly told Brady, "I just want you to know that we are working on it (gun control)….We have to go through a few processes, but under the radar."

The quote appeared in an April 11 Washington Post story about Obama's gun control czar Steve Croley.

There also seems to be little motivation on behalf of the US government to catch drug smuggling kingpins in Mexico by way of sting operations involving firearms given the fact that those same kingpins are in many cases working for US intelligence itself.

As we reported years ago, former DEA agent Cele Castillo has blown the whistle on how the US government controls the Los Zetas drug smuggling gang and uses it as the front group for their narco-empire.

With the gang having first been trained at the infamous School of the Americas in Fort Benning, Georgia, Castillo affirms that Los Zetas are still working for the US government in protecting drug routes to keep the wheels of Wall Street well-oiled. Castillo has gone on the record to state that the commandos are working directly for the US government drug cartel in carrying out hits on rival drug smugglers who aren't paying their cut.

In addition, it was recently revealed that Jesus Vicente Zambada Niebla, the "logistical coordinator" for another top Mexican drug-trafficking gang, Sinaloa, the organization responsible for purchasing the CIA torture jet that crashed with four tons on cocaine on board back in 2007, also obtained guns from the U.S. that were later used to kill people in Mexico City. Niebla recently told the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois in Chicago that he has been working for the U.S. government since January 2004.

The Obama administration has repeatedly invoked rhetoric about the flow of guns being smuggled from the U.S. into Mexico as a talking point with which to chill gun rights of American citizens, repeating the demonstrably false myth that 90% of weapons confiscated by Mexican authorities originate in the U.S.

Before his election, Obama attracted the fury of gun rights activists when he said that Americans frustrated with the declining economy "cling to guns or religion" as a means of relieving their stress.

Just months into his term in the Oval Office, Obama told Mexican President Felipe Calderon that the U.S. was to blame for much of Mexico's drug violence because of firearms that were purchased in America.

"I will not pretend that this is Mexico's responsibility alone. The demand for these drugs in the United States is what's helping keep these cartels in business," Obama told Calderon during a press conference. "This war is being waged with guns purchased not here, but in the United States. More than 90 percent of the guns recovered in Mexico come from the United States, many from gun shops that line our shared border."

Back in April, the administration failed in its bid to push through a law that would have mandated licensed gun dealers in the southwestern states to "file reports with BAFTE on all sales of two or more semi-automatic rifles larger than a .22 caliber".

Given the Obama administration's open hostility to the second amendment, with Obama himself promising to launch a sneak attack against the second amendment "under the radar" shortly before the details of Fast and Furious were made public, coupled with the highly suspicious methods employed during the program itself, and added to the US government's history of controlling Mexican drug lords, there seems little doubt that the entire scope of the mission was to launch a false flag against the second amendment, one that has thankfully failed due to the program being revealed by whistleblowers.

Education Department buying 27 shotguns

Why is the Education Department purchasing 27 Remington Brand Model 870 police 12-gauge shotguns (all new, no re-manufactured products, thank you)?

The guns are to replace old firearms used by Education's Office of Inspector General, which is the law enforcement arm of the department.

Here's a statement from the office in response to a question about why need 27 shotguns with a 14-inch barrels:

"The Office of Inspector General is the law enforcement arm of the U.S. Department of Education and is responsible for the detection of waste, fraud, abuse, and other criminal activity involving Federal education funds, programs, and operations. As such, OIG operates with full statutory law enforcement authority, which includes conducting search warrants, making arrests, and carrying firearms. The acquisition of these firearms is necessary to replace older and mechanically malfunctioning firearms, and in compliance with Federal procurement requirements. For more information on OIG's law enforcement authority, please visit their Web site at : www.ed.gov/oig"

You can find, here, a list of reports on fraud cases the office has worked on for the last decade.

I asked department officials for specific examples of when the rifles might be used, but was referred to the above statement. Perhaps agents need some muscle while apprehending folks charged with fraud.

Here's a link to an 11-page document from the Department of Justice with guidelines for the Offices of Inspector Generals within federal government department that have been given law enforcement authority. It provides detail about firearm training is to be carried out and under what circumstances authorized personnel can engage in law enforcement activities.

Below is the original soliciation request for the shotguns:

We Must Kill the UN Small Arms Treaty

http://lonestarwatchdog.blogspot.com/2011/...rms-treaty.html

We all should know now that disarming the people is a precursor to mass killings of the population. We all know the right to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed because it is in our Bill of Rights. We have seen in history that government has been the cause of hundreds of millions of deaths. Many innocent and disarmed people without a means of defense thanks to gun control now in mass graves because they were disarmed The United Nations and the Obama administration are our enemies. Why I say, because they are coming for our guns vigorously Firearms in the hands of the people is an equalization of force between the citizens and government. Criminals in government cannot have an armed populace. They need a monopoly of force to impose terror and genocide on the population.

The Obama Administration through the Secretary of State Hillary Clinton has done what we expected. She singed the UN Small Arms treaty in 2010 that goes against our second amendment. This treaty is not about arms trade between nations. It is about disarming the world where the people are disarmed. We will be at the mercy of a world dictatorship has all power at the barrel of a gun. The United States stands in the way of the world government's dream of domination of the masses. The only way they will take us down is not crashing the dollar or destroying our economy. It is when they disarm the people. As long, the people are possession of arms to the teeth. What they try to do so they wreck this nation will all for nothing in vain if they go against an armed populace. If they do not have our guns out of our possession, their dreams of conquest will fail.

This UN Small Arms Treaty must not pass and needs to be defeated right now. We cannot count on the next Presidential Election hoping a conservative will remove the Untied State's signature from the treaty. These tyrants will try every underhanded way to get around the Constitution, the rules, and every parliamentary procedure to ratify this treaty. If they have to use a quorum when our Senators and Representative are home on recess, a few traitors will with a voice vote try to ratify the treaty instead a full Senate vote with everyone on record, as the Constitution requires. This President and this Administration is criminal and dangerous. The will stop at nothing until the people are disarmed. Either we stop this President now in tracks or he will not stop until he gets what he wants.

It may not come as surprising news to many of you that the United Nations doesn't approve of our Second Amendment. Not one bit. And they very much hope to do something about it with help from some powerful American friends. Under the guise of a proposed global "Small Arms Treaty" premised to fight "terrorism", "insurgency" and "international crime syndicates" you can be quite certain that an even more insidious threat is being targeted – our Constitutional right for law-abiding citizens to own and bear arms.

What, exactly, does the intended agreement entail?

While the terms have yet to be made public, if passed by the U.N. and ratified by our Senate, it will almost certainly force the U.S. to:
Enact tougher licensing requirements, creating additional bureaucratic red tape for legal firearms ownership.
Confiscate and destroy all "unauthorized" civilian firearms (exempting those owned by our government of course).
Ban the trade, sale and private ownership of all semi-automatic weapons (any that have magazines even though they still operate in the same one trigger pull – one single "bang" manner as revolvers, a simple fact the ant-gun media never seem to grasp).
Create an international gun registry, clearly setting the stage for full-scale gun confiscation.
In short, overriding our national sovereignty, and in the process, providing license for the federal government to assert preemptive powers over state regulatory powers guaranteed by the Tenth Amendment in addition to our Second Amendment rights.

Have no doubt that this plan is very real, with strong Obama administration support. In January 2010 the U.S. joined 152 other countries in endorsing a U.N. Arms Treaty Resolution that will establish a 2012 conference to draft a blueprint for enactment. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton has pledged to push for Senate ratification.

Former U.N. ambassador John Bolton has cautioned gun owners to take this initiative seriously, stating that the U.N. “is trying to act as though this is really just a treaty about international arms trade between nation states, but there is no doubt that the real agenda here is domestic firearms control.”

More from contributor Larry Bell

Although professing to support the Second Amendment during her presidential election bid, Hillary Clinton is not generally known as a gun rights enthusiast. She has been a long-time activist for federal firearms licensing and registration, and a vigorous opponent of state Right-to-Carry laws. As a New York senator she ranked among the National Rifle Association’s worst “F”-rated gun banners who voted to support the sort of gunpoint disarmament that marked New Orleans’ rogue police actions against law-abiding gun owners in the anarchistic aftermath of Hurricane Katrina.

President Obama’s record on citizen gun rights doesn’t reflect much advocacy either. Consider for example his appointment of anti-gun rights former Seattle Mayor Greg Nickels as an alternate U.S. representative to the U.N., and his choice of Andrew Traver who has worked to terminate civilian ownership of so-called “assault rifles” (another prejudicially meaningless gun term) to head the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.

Then, in a move unprecedented in American history, the Obama administration quietly banned the re-importation and sale of 850,000 collectable antique U.S.-manufactured M1 Garand and Carbine rifles that were left in South Korea following the Korean War. Developed in the 1930s, the venerable M1 Garand carried the U.S. through World War II, seeing action in every major battle.

As an Illinois state senator, Barack Obama was an aggressive advocate for expanding gun control laws, and even voted against legislation giving gun owners an affirmative defense when they use firearms to defend themselves and their families against home invaders and burglars. He also served on a 10-member board of directors of the radically activist anti-gun Joyce Foundation in Chicago during a period between 1998-2001when it contributed $18,326,183 in grants to anti-Second Amendment organizations.

If someone breaks into your home when you are there, which would you prefer to have close at hand: 1) a telephone to call 911, or 2) a loaded gun of respectable caliber? That's a pretty easy question for me to answer. I am a long-time NRA member, concealed firearms license holder and a regular weekly recreational pistol shooter. And while I don't ordinarily care to target anything that has a mother, will reluctantly make an exception should an urgent provocation arise. I also happen to enjoy the company of friends who hunt, as well as those, like myself, who share an abiding interest in American history and the firearms that influenced it.

There are many like me, and fewer of them would be alive today were it not for exercise of their gun rights. In fact law-abiding citizens in America used guns in self-defense 2.5 million times during 1993 (about 6,850 times per day), and actually shot and killed 2 1/2 times as many criminals as police did (1,527 to 606). Those civilian self-defense shootings resulted in less than 1/5th as many incidents as police where an innocent person was mistakenly identified as a criminal (2% versus 11%).

Just how effectively have gun bans worked to make citizens safer in other countries? Take the number of home break-ins while residents are present as an indication. In Canada and Britain, both with tough gun-control laws, nearly half of all burglaries occur when residents are present. But in the U.S. where many households are armed, only about 13% happen when someone is home.

Recognizing clear statistical benefit evidence, 41 states now allow competent, law-abiding adults to carry permitted or permit-exempt concealed handguns. As a result, crime rates in those states have typically fallen at least 10% in the year following enactment.

So the majority in our Senate is smart enough to realize that the U.N.'s gun-grab agenda is unconstitutional, politically suicidal for those who support it, and down-right idiotic—right? Let's hope so, but not entirely count on it. While a few loyal Obama Democrats are truly "pro-gun", many are loathe to vote against treaties that carry the president's international prestige, causing him embarrassment.

Also, don't forget that Senate confirmation of anti-gun Obama nominee Supreme Court Justice Sonia Sotomayor. Many within the few who voted against her did so only because of massive grassroots pressure from constituents who take their Constitutional protections very seriously.

Now, more than ever, it's imperative to stick by our guns in demanding that all Constitutional rights be preserved. If not, we will surely lose both.

Open-Carry Experiment Shows Cops Don't Know Their Own Gun Laws

By Jon Campisi
Posted May. 17, 2011
http://www.philadelphiaweekly.com/news-and...-121989564.html

It was late last week when gun-rights activist Mark Fiorino joined PW for a stroll around downtown Philly. The Montgomery County man, who was featured on the cover of yesterday's Daily News for his stance on carrying pistols openly, walks down 15th Street toward Sansom, attracting nary a look.

Eventually, one man offers a double-take. The head turn probably has something to do with the fact that Fiorino's belt contains an openly holstered firearm alongside his cell phone and keys. After all, Fiorino's story hadn't yet appeared in the Daily News, so his face wasn't yet recognizeable.

Surprisingly, that one brief stare was about the only bit of reaction Fiorino received on that particular day, a few days before the Daily News story broke. But minimal public feedback is often the norm. People typically go about their business unaware that someone like Fiorino has a gun strapped to his hip—even when it's in full view. "For the most part, it's either a look or a dismissal or nobody notices," says Fiorino. And unbeknownst to many Pennsylvanians, "open carry," or the act of carrying one's firearm unconcealed by clothing, is actually quite legal. Even in Philadelphia, legal gun owners who have a license can wear their holstered handguns in plain sight. In the rest of the state, open carry requires no license. Still, despite the law being quite clear on the issue, open-carry advocates like Fiorino sometimes find themselves in the crosshairs of an ignorant public.

But what happens when the ignorance comes from the very people who are paid to uphold the law? For open carriers like Fiorino, it's a problem that can have dire consequences.

Like the time he found himself with a gun pointed at his head. Back in February, when he was visiting his native Northeast Philadelphia, his gun attracted the attention of a passing city cop. After a 40-minute ordeal in which Fiorino was ordered to the ground and detained, the cops eventually cleared him for release, but not before they got in a few choice words. But it wasn't the profanity used by the responding officers—audio from Fiorino's recorder was posted to Youtube—that totally offended Fiorino. Rather, it was the lack of police knowledge regarding the open-carry law. "I obviously did a ton of research beforehand," says Fiorino. Police, he says, ought to do the same.

Not that Fiorino totally faults cops for having a heightened sense of awareness. But he does take issue with the fact that officers aren't being trained to respect law-abiding citizens. "In my experience, in the city, it's always been negative," Fiorino says of his interaction with Philly cops, many of whom appear unaware of the legality of open carry. "There's always a lot of attention with the police because they know you're armed and they automatically perceive you as a threat," he says.

One city cop, who requested anonymity, said that he was unaware carrying a firearm openly within the city limits was legal. "To see somebody carrying a gun in full view, it's kind of, I would say, scary in a big city," the officer says. But as Fiorino sat on a bench at Dilworth Plaza talking about his cause, very few eyes glanced his way. Passers-by didn't even seem to notice him—even though his gun was out in the open on his left hip. "Nobody's screaming or running around," Fiorino says.

Still, the officer maintains that the sight of a gun on someone without a badge could cause a problem. "When people see you doing that, people assume you're a police officer," the cop says, adding that even off-duty, most city cops carry concealed. "I think all guns should be concealed."

Fiorino says open carry is meant to raise awareness, to let people know that they still have rights. And in Philadelphia, they are, thanks to people like Fiorino.

"Technically, the answer is yes," says Lt. Fran Healy, a special adviser to Commissioner Charles H. Ramsey. "You can carry openly within Philadelphia as long as you have a license." Healy, who is also an attorney, doesn't dispute the claim that city cops are often ignorant on the open-carry law, which has been on the books since 1995. He says it's just never been a problem, that citizens were simply never observed carrying openly in the city. He adds that incidents such as Fiorino's have prompted the PPD to better train its officers. The training has come in various forms, Healy says, including educating beat officers during roll call and conducting "teletype training," which is when a sergeant receives a message from the commissioner that is passed down to his or her subordinates. “When they [officers on the street] know the law, that helps them respond better,” he says. “These [citizens] are decent people. They’re not criminals.”

But Healy certainly understands why the sight of someone openly carrying a firearm might put off some cops. “The bottom line is this: If I stop you and your behavior and conduct is such that I feel at risk … I personally may have my gun out,” he says. “That doesn’t mean I’m pointing it at your head. I don’t know who or what you are yet.”

The other factor contributing to cops’ confusion is that according to state law, a license is needed to carry openly in the city, but it’s not required in the rest of the commonwealth. Because of that, officers don’t technically have cause to detain an open carrier without reasonable articulable suspicion of a crime having been committed. But in Philly, because a license is needed, law enforcement officers contend they have authority to stop people to make sure they’re legit. Gun-rights activists take issue with this, saying probable cause is still required for a police stop. They liken it to driving: Officers aren’t legally allowed to stop everyone who is driving a car to ensure they’re licensed, unless a violation has been committed.

Healy, however, says it comes down to an “officer safety” issue, meaning if an open carrier is spotted, there might be brief police interaction. “I think the officers are well justified in Philadelphia … to do an investigation,” he says. “We just want to confirm that you’re lawful, and we’ll let you go on your way.”
Add to all that the convoluted wording of the state law, which essentially makes open carry de-facto legal: “No person shall carry a firearm, rifle or shotgun at any time upon the public streets or upon any public property in a city of the first class unless:(1) such person is licensed to carry a firearm; or (2) such person is exempt from licensing under section 6106 of this title (relating to firearms not to be carried without a license). The second bullet point generally refers to law enforcement and others for whom their job requires the carrying of a gun. Because the law doesn’t explicitly say open carry is legal, some question whether it really is. State law also doesn’t make a distinction between open versus concealed carry. “By not addressing it, the Legislature has left it open,” Healy says. “The statute is vague, which leaves a little bit of a problem.”

To gun-rights advocates, the law is quite clear. After all, if there isn’t a law against something, anything, it’s legal, right? Proponents of open carry were so adamant about getting their message out that they organized a rally in Center City last weekend. One of the activists was Derek Price, who on May 14 was strolling up the steps toward City Hall wearing black pants, a blue button-down shirt, a black vest and a gun on one hip. The Harleysville resident arrived for a gathering organized by members of the Pennsylvania Firearm Owners Association. “Open carry, concealed carry, it’s totally up to the individual,” said Price, 38, who has been open carrying since getting his license in 2007.

Price, like the others attending the rally, aim to make open carry more visible. One woman came up to Price, asking him to point her in the direction of the Ritz Carlton. “Perception is everything,” Price said.
As more protesters arrived, it seemed as though the rally had the makings for some interesting feedback. Again, nothing. Here they were, a group of about 25 or so gun-toting average Joe’s, walking through the outdoor plaza at City Hall, and nobody seemed to notice. “We’ve been standing here, what, 20 minutes?” Price asked. “Nobody’s complained.”

Finally, Healy arrived with officers from the department’s Civil Affairs Unit, the armband-clad cops who monitor protests and labor disputes, and off the group went. During the next four hours, the gun-wearers and a handful of cops, all in plainclothes, strolled downtown Philadelphia. There were stops outside police headquarters and the District Attorney’s Office. Since federal law was recently changed to allow for firearms in gun-friendly states to be brought into national parks, the group figured it would stop by and take a photo near the Liberty Bell, too. “Exercising our Second Amendment where the Second Amendment was signed,” one member could be heard calling out.

Over the next four hours, the group walked, held signs and handed out pamphlets to members of the public. A few people cast stares. Some asked questions. None seemed worried or concerned in the least. That’s the way it should be, the open carriers contend. Even Healy seemed pleased with the results of the peaceful protest. “These interactions can be positive,” he said at the rally. “I’m looking at this as more of an educational thing on both sides.”

Ted Noga, the Pennsylvania Firearm Owners Association member who organized the rally, was also pleased that everything went off without a hitch that rainy Saturday. “I’m quite impressed with the response by the police department,” he said.

Lt. Lisa King, head of the department’s Gun Permits Unit, said her division is now working to amend language on a supplemental sheet accompanying the firearms license application that says a licensee must conceal. The wording on is old, she concedes. King, who attended the rally, says didn’t even know the practice was legal before it was brought to her attention.

“It’s definitely going to do something,” says Josh Dillon, a Philly gun owner who typically carries concealed. Dillon, who carried openly on this day, says the whole aim of the event was to create awareness. Still, since he doesn’t want to be harassed, he keeps it concealed. But that’s not to say he opposes open carry. People can choose for themselves, he says.

As for Fiorino, he’s just glad the encounter in Northeast Philly sparked some awareness. “I think that if people like myself don’t get out there and do it, that often misinformation and ignorance continues to spread,” he says.

New Al Qaeda Video: American Muslims Should Buy Guns, Start Shooting People

In a new video message released on the internet Friday, American-born al Qaeda spokesman Adam Gadahn calls on Muslims living in America to carry out deadly one-man terrorist acts using fully automatic weapons purchased at gun shows, and to target major institutions and public figures.

"What are you waiting for?" asks Gadahn in English, and then adds that jihadis shouldn't worry about getting caught, since so many have been released. "Over these past few years, I've seen the release of many, many Mujahideen whom I had never even dreamed would regain their freedom."

The two-part, two hour video appeared on jihadi websites Friday with images of jihadi leaders as well as snapshots of alleged underwear bomber Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab and accused Fort Hood shooter Major Nidal Hasan. Both Hasan and Abdulmutallab are charged with carrying out attacks inside the U.S.

Called "Do Not Rely on Others, Take the Task Upon Yourself" and produced by al Qaeda's media arm, as Sahab, the tape mixes Gadahn's new message with clips from old videos of Osama bin Laden, Ayman al-Zawahiri and other al Qaeda leaders praising one-man attacks. They call on jihadis in the West to carry out lone wolf operations.

Gadahn sounds the same theme in his message, a series of soundbites interspersed throughout the video and accompanied by images of U.S. airliners, bombmaking and the logos of U.S. companies. "Muslims in the West have to remember that they are perfectly placed to play an important and decisive part in the Jihad against the Zionists and crusaders, and to do major damage to the enemies of Islam, waging war on their religion, sacred places, and things, and brethren," says Gadahn. "This is a golden opportunity and a blessing."

He urges Muslims to pursue attacks with whatever is available. "Let's take America as an example. America is absolutely awash with easily obtainable firearms. You can go down to a gun show at the local convention center and come away with a fully automatic assault rifle, without a background check, and most likely without having to show an identification card. So what are you waiting for?"

Gadahn suggests targeting major institutions -- after a clip showing the logos of such firms as Exxon, Merrill Lynch and Bank of America -- and "influential public figures." "Getting to these criminals isn't as hard as you might think," says Gadahn. "I mean we've seen how a woman knocked the Pope to the floor during Christmas mass, and how Italian leader Berlusconi's face was smashed during a public appearance. So it's just a matter of entrusting the matter to Allah and choosing the right place, the right time, and the right method."

He claims that many Western born or raised jihadis, the "brothers who came from abroad" are now thinking about returning to their "Crusader" countries to "discharge their duty of jihad." He also says not to worry about imprisonment, since so many have been jihadis have been set free. "If it's Allah's will that you be captured, then it's not the end the world, and it doesn't necessarily mean that you're going to spend the rest of your life in prison." Many mujahideen who were locked up "are now back home with their families, or back on the frontlines, fighting the enemies."

Gadahn, a 32-year-old California native, was born Adam Pearlman, the grandson of a Jewish urologist. His parents changed their name to Gadahn after becoming fundamentalist Christians. After converting to Islam, Gadahn moved to Pakistan in 1998 and then became a senior commander in al Qaeda.

Gadahn has appeared in numerous al Qaeda videos over the past seven years. In 2005, after terror attacks in Madrid and London, he said, "Yesterday, London and Madrid. Tomorrow, Los Angeles and Melbourne, God willing." He is currently considered al Qaeda's leading media strategist, and has been on the FBI's Most Wanted list for nearly 10 years. He has been reported dead or captured several times, only to reemerge alive.

ATF agents say motive of gun smuggling was to hype anti-gun hysteria--and kill

April 11th, 2011 1:26 pm ET
http://www.examiner.com/conservative-in-na...steria-and-kill

In the days since the story was first reported that the ATF-DOJ concocted a scheme to run or 'walk' U.S. guns into Mexico, various theories have been presented as to the motive. The official explanation is that the U.S. wanted to track the guns as they made their way from Mexican operatives, to the drug cartels, and to the front lines of the cartels' criminal activity, all in an effort to supposedly help the ATF catch drug kingpins. Various other theories have been presented as well, several of which have made their way into the mainstream media--that is, except for the correct one.

Whistleblower ATF agents have made it clear as to the motive for the illegal scheme that has created an 'international incident' between the U.S. Government and the Government of Mexico. The agents themselves are adamant that their superisors planned the scheme in order to pad statistics that would show U.S. guns are fueling the drug cartels, that the U.S. has a major problem with lax gun laws, and then provide an impetus for the Obama Administration and other gun control advocates to hype up anti-gun hysteria--all in support of another round of restrictive gun laws.

But there is a much more sinister motive at play.

Mike Vanderboegh, who, along with David Codrea, first broke the story of this sordid scheme, reports today that the media is willing to roll out any theory as plausible, except for the one the agents themselves say is the correct one. In fact, one writer referred to the agents' story as a 'tin foil hat' theory.

As noted in Vanderboegh's response the motive was not only about padding statistics. The ATF needed stacks of Mexican bodies lying next to the weapons that came from the U.S.

And that is precisely what they got. A total of 28,000 Mexicans have been murdered in the drug wars over the last few years. Stacks of bodies have, indeed, been found near the border and in small towns nearby. U.S. guns have, indeed, been linked to many of these killings, and one was used to kill a U.S. Border Patrol agent, Brian Terry, last year.

Advertisement

Thus, it is safe to say that ATF supervisors allegedly ordered the gun smuggling scheme not only to pad U.S. gun statistics but to kill--a serious charge, no doubt, but one that whistleblower agents are convinced is the truth.

In another breaking development today, it is being reported that ATF agents are being summoned to Washington, yet again, this time to conduct high level strategy meetings concerning what to do now that Phoenix field office assistant special agent-in-charge George Gillett is spilling the beans to Senator Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, and Representative Darrell Issa, R-California, in their investigations into the scandal.

The response of the ATF hierarchy at this point appears to be to throw Gillett under the bus, given that he was not invited to an earlier meeting of agents in D.C. The latest meeting, which is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, should reveal interesting details on strategy.

No doubt a cover-up is in process, given that ATF director Melson and DOJ Attorney-General Eric Holder have refused to cooperate with Congressional investigations into this gargantuan scandal. The cover-up maneuver is intricate but evident, as this report shows.

More information will be reported as it becomes available.

Why gun control always misfires

The NRA is a fringe interest group – only the US's dysfunctional electoral system allows it to leverage so much power

Steven Hill
guardian.co.uk, Monday 24 January 2011 20.54 GMT
http://www.guardian.co.uk/commentisfree/ci...rizona-shooting

For all the national outrage over the Tucson massacre, and renewed appeals by well-meaning politicians like Michael Bloomberg, everyone knows that sentiment will not translate into commonsense gun control laws.

As after the Columbine massacre in 1999, national polls show a majority of Americans favouring stricter gun control laws, yet as with so many other issues, majority support does not necessarily lead to congressional action. How can there be such an ongoing disconnect between popular opinion and public policy?

Many gun control advocates blame it on the power wielded by the National Rifle Association and its campaign war chest. But the fact is that the NRA has power not so much because of the deep pockets of its political action committee, but because of the fundamental architecture of our antiquated winner-take-all elections that give overwhelming power to a tiny minority of people known as "swing voters".

It turns out that NRA voters are disproportionately swing voters – among that 5-10% of voters who will change sides in a close election. Many are classic Reagan Democrats and union members who fear infringement on gun ownership. These NRA voters form a potent single-issue voting bloc.

Moreover, NRA voters live disproportionately in battleground states and swing congressional districts and therefore decide the handful of congressional and presidential elections that are won by five percentage points or less. As Republican strategist and NRA board member Grover Norquist has said, "The question is intensity versus preference. You can always get a certain percentage to say they are in favour of some gun controls. But are they going to vote on their 'control' position?"

Though most voters back gun control, says Norquist, their support doesn't move them to the polls. "But for that 4-5% who care about guns, they will vote on this." And in the battleground states and swing congressional districts, a change in 5% of the vote can make all the difference. So the NRA's influence has come from its capacity to move its supporters in these key swing districts and states – with its message, more than its money.

The task of the NRA, then, is to target their resources to the 15 battleground states and 40 battleground House districts like squares on a checker board, and try to alarm just enough swing voters in these. This is a task rendered much easier by the geographic-based political map of our winner-take-all system.

Note that some of its targeting is directed at precise constituencies. For years, the NRA has been instrumental to the GOP electoral strategy because up to one fifth of union members in battleground states are NRA members. Union leaders are not afraid of the NRA's money – unions have plenty of their own – but they are afraid of the pro-gun side's support among union members in key races.

Many Democrats believe that strong support for gun control has cost their party elections in such rural swing states as West Virginia, Missouri, Ohio, Arkansas, Colorado and elsewhere. They believe that Al Gore lost the presidential election in 2000 in his home state of Tennessee because he was on the wrong side of this issue. The patrician John Kerry ridiculously trumpeted his own prowess as a gun owner, and Barack Obama has completely reneged on his campaign promises, most notably failing to reinstate an assault rifle ban that had expired. He has received an "F" grade from the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence. With the Democratic party running from this issue, there is no viable electoral alternative such as a third party to hoist the pro-"gun control" flag.

The reality is that the dynamics of winner-take-all elections allow gun control opponents – just like anti-Castro diehards in Florida – to form a potent single-issue voting bloc that far outweighs their minority status. American pundits and analysts often portray multiparty democracies elected by proportional representation, such as Israel and Italy, as being beholden to tiny political parties of extremists who hold hostage their coalition governments. Yet, they fail to recognise how the dynamics of our own electoral politics allow well-organised political minorities like the NRA to leverage disproportionately significant "swing voter" constituencies to push their radical agendas on the mainstream.

If we don't understand how our system works, we will miss the mark when we try to improve it.

Oklahoma City pharmacist found guilty of murder

Jury chooses a life term as punishment.

An emotional jury Thursday decided pharmacist Jerome Jay Ersland was guilty of first-degree murder for fatally shooting a masked robber two years ago inside an Oklahoma City drugstore.

Jurors chose life in prison as punishment.

Two female co-workers at Reliable Discount Pharmacy told jurors Ersland was a hero who saved their lives on May 19, 2009. But prosecutors called him an executioner who shot a wounded, unarmed robber five more times after the robber fell to the floor unconscious and was no longer a threat.

The eight women and four men were solemn as they filed back into an Oklahoma County courtroom after wrapping up deliberations in three hours and thirty minutes. Some had tears in their eyes. Each answered, “Yes,” in a quiet voice when the judge asked them one at a time if that was the verdict.

“It was a really hard day,” one juror said later.

“All of us took this seriously,” another juror said. “It was a very emotional day. … We're judged by the laws of our society. You have to live within those laws. Tough or not, you still have to live within those laws.”

Ersland, 59, of Chickasha, had no reaction as Oklahoma County District Judge Ray C. Elliott read the verdict. Sheriff deputies immediately handcuffed him and led him to jail.

Formal sentencing was set for July 11. The judge has the authority to suspend part or all of the life term but that rarely happens in murder cases.

Ersland had expected a conviction, giving away his pet dog, Winston, on Wednesday. During a break in the trial Wednesday, he showed off pictures of the dog. “I sure will miss him,” he said.

The case set off a national debate in 2009 when prosecutors charged the pharmacist and made public the security camera recordings of the shooting. Ersland had considerable support at first but that dropped off when it turned out he had fabricated his claims of being a combat veteran of the first Gulf War.

Killed during the robbery was Antwun “Speedy” Parker, 16, of Oklahoma City. He was shot first in the head then five more times in the abdomen and chest. The second shots were fired from 18 to 24 inches away, according to testimony. Police investigators determined he did not have a gun.

After the verdict Thursday, Parker's mother, Cleta Jennings, and other relatives huddled together in tears outside the courtroom. “Thank you, Jesus. Thank you, Jesus,” they said.

Ersland did not testify during the trial. He told police he shot Parker five more times before chasing a second robber out of the pharmacy. The security camera recordings show he actually shot Parker again after chasing the second robber away, coming back inside the store and getting a second gun. Ersland changed his account of the shooting after the security camera recordings became public.

In the police interview, he referred to Parker as “the guy that I nailed.”

Ersland sat stone-faced during closing arguments Thursday as prosecutors repeatedly called him an executioner.

“This defendant made himself judge, jury, executioner,” Assistant District Attorney Jennifer Chance said before a packed courtroom.

She said Parker was no longer a threat after being shot in the head. She said, “He was a 16-year-old boy lying unconscious on the floor.”

The pharmacist's lead defense attorney said Ersland acted in self-defense. “He did something to protect himself and the two women,” attorney Irven Box said.

Box called the pharmacist a hero who had the courage to tell his two co-workers to go hide while he took care of the two robbers.

The second robber, Jevontai Ingram, then 14, fled. Ingram pulled out a gun inside the pharmacy but did not fire it, according to testimony. He was caught days later. He has pleaded guilty to first-degree murder for his role in his friend's death. He will be released from a juvenile detention facility before his 19th birthday if he completes a treatment plan.

In his closing argument, Box had jurors close their eyes and imagine they were in the pharmacy when the two robbers come in, one pointing a gun and pulling back on the gun's slide. He asked jurors to imagine shooting one robber, chasing the other and coming back in the pharmacy, with an empty gun, where the first robber still was.

He then asked jurors to open their eyes and told them 45 second had passed. He said that's how much time passed for the pharmacist before he shot again.

“This wasn't a basketball game where he can call a timeout,” Box said.

Prosecutors told jurors in closing arguments Thursday that the evidence proves Parker never moved again after a shot to the head knocked him to the pharmacy floor. They said Ersland's own actions prove he didn't consider the wounded robber a threat when he shot him again.

“Boom, boom, boom, boom, boom, an execution,” District Attorney David Prater said.

During the closing arguments, Prater played for jurors again the security camera recordings of the shooting. He stopped it at points, telling jurors the pharmacist turned his back to the downed robber to get a second gun to shoot the robber again.

“It's a human trait. You don't turn your back on something you're afraid of,” Prater said.

Prosecutors told jurors Ersland lied to police about what happened during the shooting, trying to come up with a good story to cover his wrongdoing. They said he underestimated how much homicide detectives would investigate.

They also reminded jurors he had lied about killing people during the first Gulf War. They said his military records show he was at Altus Air Force Base in 1991 and never was in combat.

Prosecutors also reminded jurors of testimony Ersland had faked a gunshot wound in an effort to support his defense. “He lies about everything,” Prater said.

Box conceded that the pharmacist has said some “goofy things” and had facts wrong in his police interview and about his military record. He argued that didn't change what the pharmacist perceived inside the pharmacy.

Jurors were given the option of finding Ersland guilty of first-degree manslaughter instead or of acquitting him completely.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys have been ordered not to comment on the case until after the formal sentencing. An appeal is expected.

Ersland had been free on $100,000 bail. He had a handcuff key on him when he went through a courthouse security checkpoint Thursday morning, sheriff deputies said. He gave up the handcuff key when confronted about it.

Earlier this month, another jury convicted the two men who planned the drugstore robbery of first-degree murder. That jury decided Emanuel D. “E Man” Mitchell, 33, and Anthony D. “Black” Morrison, 45, should spend life in prison. The two talked the teenagers into doing the robbery and waited nearby in getaway cars.

California gun-control laws cut flow to Mexico

http://www.sfgate.com/cgi-bin/article.cgi?.../MN6U1JM5GF.DTL

California's tough gun-control laws are targeted at armed criminals in general and mass-shooters in particular. But they appear to have had the unintended consequence of making California gun stores unattractive to purchasers buying weapons for the Mexican drug cartels.

A Hearst Newspapers survey of guns purchased in the United States and funneled to Mexican drug traffickers found that out of 1,600 guns identified by brand name and purchase point in court documents, a mere 70 came from California.

The results dovetail with the findings of a federal law enforcement analysis earlier this year of 2,921 guns recovered in Mexico and traced to original U.S. purchases between December 2006 and November 2010.

The report concluded that 1,470 guns - 50 percent - were from Texas. A total of 852 guns - 29 percent - were from Arizona. California, by contrast, accounted for 90 guns - 3 percent of the total.

"Our assumption is that California's laws have had a dissuasive effect on traffickers purchasing weapons in the state," said Eric Olson, coordinator of several reports on gun-trafficking to Mexico that were joint projects of the Mexico Institute at the Washington-based Woodrow Wilson Center and the University of San Diego's Trans-Border Institute. "They haven't stopped traffickers from going through California to deliver guns to Mexico, but they have stopped California being a source state."

California legislators approved a flurry of laws in the wake of the 1989 massacre in Stockton, in which a gunman with an AK-47 killed five children in a school playground, and the 1993 shootings at a law office at 101 California St. in San Francisco, which claimed eight victims.

Among other things, California gun laws now stipulate a 10-day waiting period on all gun purchases and outlaw rifles with military-style "assault-weapon" characteristics, .50-caliber sniper rifles and large-capacity ammunition magazines.

In addition, all firearm transactions involving licensed gun dealers, sales at gun shows or between individuals must be registered. Background checks for all gun purchases are also required.

"We believe the laws have had a huge impact, especially in view of the state ban on assault weapons," said Juliet Lefwich, legal director of Legal Community Against Violence, a San Francisco-based advocacy group for gun violence prevention. Violence in Mexico is not why the laws were passed. But she said making purchases in California more difficult for gun traffickers is "an unintended benefit."

A study by retired anthropologist and computer industry consultant Griffin Dix of Kensington, found that between 1990 and 2007, California's gun mortality rate went down 44.5 percent. It was a greater reduction than the rest of the country by 16.5 percentage points, the study concluded. Dix has devoted himself to gun control in the wake of the accidental shooting death of his 15-year-old son, Kenzo Dix, in 1994.

In the Hearst survey's lone California case, Ayman Nabil Ghaly, a federal agriculture inspector at California-Mexico border posts, was charged last year with purchasing 70 guns, mostly handguns, for resale in Mexico. He bought them at gun stores in the San Diego area from June 2005 to September 2006, mostly one or two at a time.

Ghaly pleaded guilty and was sentenced last year to five months in prison and three years of supervised release.

Police officers in New Mexico can take guns away from drivers who pose no threat. The state supreme court ruled on May 20 that “officer safety” is more important than any constitutional rights a gun-owning motorist might have. The ruling was handed down in deciding the fate of Gregory Ketelson who was a passenger in a vehicle pulled over on November 13, 2008.

During the stop, Hobbs Police Officer Miroslava Bleau saw a 9mm handgun on the back seat floorboard. Ketelson and the driver of the car were ordered out and away from the car while Officer Shane Blevins grabbed the gun. The officers later learned that Ketelson, as a convicted felon, could not legally possess a firearm. The court, however, only considered whether the officers acted properly in taking the gun before they had any reason to suspect Ketelson, who was entirely cooperative during the encounter, of committing a crime.

Ketelson and the National Rifle Association argued that even a brief seizure of a firearm without cause violates fundamental, constitutionally protected rights. Ketelson also argued the gun could not have been taken without a search warrant, consent or exigent circumstances. A district court and the court of appeals agreed with this reasoning. State prosecutors countered that anyone with a gun ought to be considered “armed and dangerous” and thus the gun could be seized at any time. The high court agreed with this line of reasoning.

would access the firearm was especially potent,"

Justice Petra Jimenez Maes wrote for the court. "Under such circumstances, Officer Blevins could constitutionally remove the firearm from the vehicle because he possessed a reasonable belief based on specific and articulable facts which warranted him in believing that defendant was armed and thus posed a serious and present danger to his safety."

Because a gun would only taken for the duration of the traffic stop, the court decided such seizures were reasonable.

"The retrieval of the gun from the vehicle during the limited context of the traffic stop was at most a minimal interference with the suspect's possessory interest," Maes wrote. "Our decision in this case, which addresses a temporary separation of a firearm from the occupants of a car during the duration of a traffic stop, does not depend on any requirement of particularized suspicion that an occupant is inclined to use the firearm improperly."

The decision overturned statements made in a previous ruling, New Mexico v. Garcia.

"It would be anomalous to treat the mere presence of a firearm in an automobile as supporting a reasonable suspicion that the occupants are inclined to harm an officer in the course of a routine traffic stop," the court held in 2005.

A copy of the decision is available in a 140k PDF file at the source link below.

NRA Sells Out Second Amendment on Patriot Act

Written by Thomas R. Eddlem

The NRA sold out the Second Amendment during the Patriot Act fight, criticizing Senator Rand Paul's amendment to exempt gun purchases from search provisions of the Patriot Act in e-mails to Congress while sitting on information showing the need for Paul's amendment. The information shows that the FBI and the federal government's Joint Terrorism Task Force have already begun trolling the records of law-abiding gun owners, using the excuse of terrorism surveillance.

The NRA published information May 27 — the day after the vote — indicating that Rand Paul (R-Ky.) was right in warning that Patriot Act provisions threatened law-abiding gun owners. In fact, the NRA proved that Patriot Act surveillance of law-abiding gun owners as terrorists was already occurring.

The NRA sent at least two e-mails to Congress during the Patriot Act debate this week calling Rand Paul's amendment to exempt gun purchases from the provisions of the Patriot Act a "poorly drafted amendment" and stating that "the NRA could not support this." The Senate rejected the Paul amendment by an 85-10 vote May 26. And the NRA e-mail, according to Reason magazine, claimed:

There have been no reports of the current PATRIOT Act being abused with respect to firearms records, however supporters suggested a far-fetched scenario in which every firearms sales record in the country — tens or hundreds of millions of documents dating back to 1968 — could be sought. Again, we nor anyone else is aware of any case in which this authority has been used to abuse gun owners. (In fact, published reports indicate that few of these orders are ever sought for any reason.)

Senate leadership may have relied upon the NRA's advice, according to Redstate.com, citing a letter from Senate Minority Whip Jon Kyl that echoed the NRA letter: "it is extremely unlikely that this authority will ever be used to harass lawful gun owners."

But on May 27, the very day after the Paul Amendment vote, the NRA's own Institute for Legislative Analysis released a press release that proved Senator Paul's warnings prescient. The NRA/ILA claimed:

Since the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives is responsible for enforcing federal gun laws, dealers and other federal firearm licensees typically contact that agency (or state or local police) when they encounter suspicious customers. So, it raised eyebrows when the FBI began circulating flyers in gun shops and ranges, encouraging owners of those businesses to report suspicious customers to “your local Joint Terrorism Task Force” instead. The flyers first appeared in Connecticut, with a revised version appearing more recently in Utah.

But the flyers, which the NRA had received from gun shops and gun ranges in the Salt Lake City, Utah and New Haven, Connecticut, areas, contained demands that gun clubs and gun shops submit law-abiding gun owners information to the federal government. The flyers demanded that gun information be proffered up to the FBI's Terrorism Joint Task Force if a gun buyer had an "altered appearance from visit to visit (beard shaved off, hair color changed, etc.)" or "insists upon paying with cash" or had made "racist" or "extreme religious statements" or issued "vague or cryptic warnings."

In short, if an American buys a gun and gets a haircut, dyes his gray hair, or shaves his beard, his gun records will be sent to the FBI's Joint Terrorist Task Force for a terrorism investigation. Other "suspicious" activities also raise questions: If a person says homosexuality is a sin, is that an extreme religious statement that would lead to the FBI investigating him as a terrorist? If a person is against affirmative action, is that a racist sentiment that fingers him as a terrorist?

The FBI flyer was clear that the fact that the gun buyer was an innocent, law-abiding citizen was no excuse for a gun shop not to send the gun records to the FBI: "Some of the activities, taken individually, could be innocent and must be examined by law enforcement professionals," the flyer demanded.

Investigating law-abiding gun owners as terrorists may be just what President Obama reportedly told Jim and Sarah Brady back on March 30. "I just want you to know that we are working on it," Brady recalled Obama telling the anti-Second Amendment activist organization. "We have to go through a few processes, but under the radar."

While the NRA did not say when it obtained information about the FBI/Joint Terrorism

Task Force flyers sent to gun shops, the phrasing on the press release does suggest they possessed them before the Patriot Act vote: "The flyers first appeared in Connecticut, with a revised version appearing more recently in Utah."

By way of contrast, Gun Owners of America enthusiastically supported the Paul Amendment: "Without Paul's exemption, it is possible that the BATFE could go to a secret (FISA) court, and, in a one-party (ex parte) proceeding, obtain an order to produce every 4473 in the country, ostensibly because a 'terrorism investigation' requires it. If such an action were taken, the government would have a list of every gun buyer in the country going back decades."

Please remember that John Todd warned you all that U.S. firearms were trash and made to be this way so when the chaos started the weapons would be unreliable. He told you what weapons to get hold of in preparation for troubled times. He knew what he was talking about as he'd been in many a dangerous gun fight with enemies.

Documents Reveal Remington Wrestled with Potential Gun Safety Problems for Decades

The manufacturer of the most popular hunting rifle in the world has been aware of potential safety problems with the gun since before it went on the market—60 years ago. This, according to newly uncovered documents.

The documents, including memos and drawings by the gun's inventor, show company officials discussing the potential problem, as well as whether a design change is worth "the high expenditure required to make the conversion."

The Remington 700, which is manufactured in Ilion, N.Y., by the Madison, N.C.-based Remington Arms Company, has been wildly successful among amateur hunters as well as police and the military. The company says it has sold more than five million guns in the 700 series, which debuted with the Remington 721 after World War II.

But the rifle has also been the subject of thousands of customer complaints and more than 75 lawsuits alleging it is prone to firing without the trigger being pulled. At least two dozen deaths and more than 100 serious injuries have been linked to inadvertent discharges of Remington 700s.

The questions surrounding the 700 are explored in a CNBC Original documentary, "Remington Under Fire: A CNBC Investigation," premiering Wednesday, October 20 at 9pm Eastern and Pacific Time.

The company contends its product is safe.

“The Model 700, including its trigger mechanism, has been free of any defect since it was first produced,” Remington told CNBC in a statement. “And, despite any careless reporting to the contrary, the gun’s use by millions of Americans has proven it to be a safe, trusted and reliable rifle.”

But as early as December 3, 1946, with the gun still in the testing stage, lead engineer Merle “Mike” Walker—who would later receive a patent for the 700 series’ firing mechanism—wrote a memo warning of a “theoretical unsafe condition” involving the gun’s safety; the mechanism that is supposed to keep the gun from firing accidentally.

Four months later, in an April 9, 1947 memo entitled “M/721 Pilot Line Inspection,” Test Engineer Wayne Leek wrote, “This situation can be very dangerous from a safety and functional point of view.”

Among other things, Leek noted, it was “possible to fire the gun by pushing the safety to the ‘off’ position.”

That same malfunction, in which the gun fires when the safety is turned off, is cited in many of the customer complaints that persist to this day.

Barber family

In October, 2000, nine-year-old Gus Barber was killed on a family hunting trip when his mother switched off the safety to unload her Remington 700 and the gun went off, according to the family and official accounts of the incident. Barbara Barber said her hand was away from the trigger and the rifle was pointed away from the rest of the family, into an empty horse trailer. But at the worst possible moment, Gus had run behind the trailer, directly in the path of the bullet.

Mrs. Barber still cannot bring herself to speak publicly about the accident, but her husband, Rich Barber, has spent the past ten years learning all he could about the Remington 700. He has compiled thousands of pages of documents, which he provided to CNBC.

CNBC has verified the documents through other sources that, in many cases, provided additional documents.

“Those documents clearly speak for themselves and they speak volumes about what the company knew, when they knew it, what they did, and what they did not do, and what they continue to do today,” Rich Barber told CNBC.

Remington critics, including ballistics experts hired to testify against the company, trace the problems to a basic element of Mike Walker’s original design: a tiny piece of metal called a trigger connector. The connector, which is mounted loosely inside the firing mechanism, is supposed to allow the gun to fire more smoothly, according to Walker’s patent.

But the experts claim that small amounts of rust, debris or even a small jolt can cause the trigger connector to fall out of alignment, and the trigger itself to lose contact with the firing pin. Then, they say, the gun can go off when the user operates other parts of the gun—such as the safety or the bolt—without touching the trigger.

The documents include thousands of complaints from customers about Remington 700s going off without pulling the trigger. But Remington contends that in every case, the inadvertent discharges were the result of user error.

“Both Remington and experts hired by plaintiff attorneys have conducted testing on guns returned from the field which were alleged to have fired without a trigger pull, and neither has ever been able to duplicate such an event on guns which had been properly maintained and which had not been altered after sale,” the company says in its statement.

But other documents show the company has been able to duplicate the condition. On March 18, 1975, Research Manager John Linde wrote to a Houston gunsmith that Remington "could duplicate" fire control problems on a Remington 700 that had been returned to the factory. And in a March 5, 1980 memo, a Remington employee named E. Hooton, Jr. notes that of 133 rifles returned to the factory for inadvertent firing in the second half of 1979, 44 of the complaints—one-third of the total—were "verified."

Documents show that in 1948, Mike Walker proposed a change in his original design aimed at eliminating the problem. Walker drew up plans to insert a blocking device that would keep the gun's internal mechanism from falling out of alignment while the safety is on.

"One modification of the M/721 Safety uses a trigger block in addition to the present design," Walker wrote in an August 16, 1948 memo entitled "M/721 Modification of Safety design."

But the change was never implemented.

Executives at Remington's parent company at the time, DuPont [DD 52.56 0.59 (+1.14%)], had already been sending memos about the new rifle being over budget, including a 1947 memo detailing $4,000 in "cost overruns," and Mike Walker's design change was more costly than the original. DuPont, which sold Remington in 1993, declined to speak with CNBC, referring inquiries instead to Remington.

Mike Walker

While executives acknowledged in a 1948 memo that Walker's change "is the best design," they concluded, "its disadvantages lay in the high expenditure required to make the conversion."

The same memo tallied the additional cost. It came to 5 ½ cents per gun.

On August 31, 1948, Remington patent attorney A. J. Greene laid out the choice in a memo entitled "Model 721 Safety."

"Our usual potential liability for the safety of our product is augmented somewhat by our knowledge that some Model 721 safeties have misfunctioned (sic)," Greene wrote. "However, our liability does not seem out of proportion to the advantage of retaining the present…construction, pending receipt of further complaints from the field."

According to Rich Barber, the decision was pivotal. "They identified a dangerous condition and they still went ahead with production." Barber said.

Since then, Remington has produced more than five million rifles with Mike Walker's original design. But company officials repeatedly considered making changes, according to the documents, in the face of the customer complaints and other reported incidents.

A Remington 700 even malfunctioned during an evaluation by Consumer Reports in 1968, firing when the safety was released. The publication noted that "the malfunction persisted for more than 100 firings," and warned, "An inexperienced user might have caused a serious accident." The article, published in March 1968, set off a flurry of activity at Remington, according to the documents.

"Let's see if we can't figure a way to build a little more into our guns in this area," wrote Philip H. Burdett in an April 17, 1968 memo entitled "Model 700 BDL Quality" that discussed possible manufacturing improvements in the wake of the Consumer Reports article.

Another memo by C.B. Workman on July 7, 1970 noted management's "extreme displeasure" over the article, and said Burdett had "requested that we find a way to evaluate our future designs in order to eliminate similar incidents from further embarrassing our Company."

By 1981, Remington gave the secret program an infusion of funds and a code name: "NBAR," for New Bolt Action Rifle. Among the project's top goals, according to one document: an "improved Firecontrol (sic)" with "No Connector." The priorities included a blocking mechanism, just as Mike Walker had proposed in 1948. But the company would not even disclose existence of the program until the Texas Supreme Court ordered it to do so in 1992.

While Remington engineers quietly worked on the new trigger project, officials considered what to tell the public:

In 1979, following a jury verdict that led to the recall of a similar Remington rifle—the Mohawk 600—officials considered whether to recall the more popular 700 series, but decided against it. The minutes of a Remington Product Safety Subcommittee meeting on January 2, 1979 listed two reasons for the decision. First, the minutes say, a Remington analysis had found "only 1%" of the guns could be "tricked" into firing. "That would mean the recall would have to gather 2,000,000 guns just to find 20,000 that are susceptible to this condition," the minutes say.

In addition, officials concluded, "An attempt to recall all bolt action rifles would undercut the message we plan to communicate to the public concerning proper gun handling."

Rather than launch a recall, Remington worked with the giant public relations firm Hill and Knowlton to update an old set of safety rules known as "The Ten Commandments of Firearm Safety." The new version, which Remington includes with every gun it sells, has become an industry standard. It includes rules that appear to address the customer complaints, such as:
Always keep the muzzle pointed in a safe direction
Firearms should be unloaded when not actually in use
Don't rely on your gun's safety

While critics claim the commandments allow Remington to blame the user for every inadvertent discharge and don't address the 700's alleged design flaws, Remington says in its statement that "if proper firearms safety rules are followed, no accidental injuries would ever occur."

But some at Remington were unwilling to rely on safety rules alone.

In 1994, after a jury ordered Remington to pay $17 million to a Texas oilfield supervisor who lost his foot to a Remington 700, the company again considered a nationwide campaign to replace the controversial trigger on existing guns.

Two weeks after the verdict, on June 1, 1994, Remington executive Kenneth Green wrote a memo entitled "M/700 Trigger Replacement Campaign," detailing a proposal to "call back" three million Remington 700s produced since 1960. The memo, sent to Remington General Counsel Robert Haskin, even listed publications used to advertise previous recalls.

Gus Barber

But by 1994, the cost to fix the rifle had risen substantially, according to the memo. No longer 5 ½ cents per gun; the memo put the cost of a recall at nearly $22.7 million. The "call back" quietly died.

Remington came closest to launching a recall in 2002, as part of a settlement with the family of Gus Barber, the nine-year-old Montana boy killed when his mother's Remington 700 went off.

Twenty years earlier, in 1982, Remington had done away with the feature that required the user to switch off the safety in order to unload the gun—a common source of inadvertent discharges, including the one that killed Gus Barber. But Remington had not publicized the change, so customers like Barbara Barber were unaware that an alternative mechanism was available.

Under the settlement, Remington agreed to launch a "safety modification program"—the company stopped short of calling it a recall—allowing owners of pre-1982 Remingtons to have their rifles modified, for a $20 fee, so the gun could be unloaded with the safety on.

"The Barber family knows it has our deepest sympathy," Remington said in its press release.

The company would not actually change the firing mechanism until 2007, and even then, it did not institute a recall of the Walker trigger models it had been selling for nearly 60 years.

Remington calls the new trigger system the X-Mark Pro. Plaintiffs' experts who have examined it say the system includes the blocking mechanism originally proposed by Mike Walker in 1948. The X-Mark Pro also does away with the controversial trigger connector. A source close to Remington confirms the trigger connector was removed because it had become the focus of so many lawsuits.

But because Remington still contends the old Walker trigger is safe, it continues to use it in rifles including the current version of the Remington 770, as well as earlier 700 series models still sold by retailers worldwide.

The older trigger is also used in the military version of the Remington 700, the primary sniper rifle for the Armed Forces. Indeed, the Army recently awarded Remington a new contract worth up to $28 million for as many as 3,600 rifles, and Remington says in its statement that its military contracts "specifically require the 'Walker' trigger mechanism."

Remington Model 700 rifle

That is not entirely true, however. The contract only requires a trigger that cannot be adjusted by the operator. Remington's X-Mark Pro can be adjusted by turning an external screw, meaning it does not meet the contract's specifications. The Walker trigger does not have such a feature.

Documents obtained by CNBC under the Freedom of Information Act indicate that some of the problems in the civilian version of the Remington 700 have also been encountered in the military. The U.S. Marine Corps furnished reports from the elite sniper training school at Camp Lejeune, NC in 2003, where officials found multiple rifles to be "deficient." According to one report, some rifles were "slam firing"—firing without a trigger pull—"once every 20 rounds."

"This has become a safety issue for the school," the report notes.

Nonetheless, Remington says in its statement, "The Model 700 is the firearm of choice for elite shooters from America's military and law enforcement communities."

And, the statement continues, "The men and women who build, own and shoot the Remington Model 700 take great pride in a product that, over the last half century, has set the bar for safety, reliability and performance."

Since 2007, Remington has been owned by the private equity firm Cerberus. Beginning in 2006, Cerberus began buying a number of gun manufacturers, to create a new company called Freedom Group. In October 2009, Freedom Group filed for an initial public offering, to create a standalone company built around Remington.

In its prospectus filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Freedom Group acknowledges that as of August 31, 2009, it faced 16 individual bodily injury cases or claims involving Remington firearms—though it did not specify how many of those cases involve the 700—and that because of the nature of product liability cases “our resources may not be adequate to cover” the claims.

Cerberus—and Freedom Group—declined to speak to CNBC about the Remington 700, citing an SEC-mandated “quiet period” ahead of the public stock offering. But the company has not yet announced when the IPO will occur.

Cannes 2011: Peter Fonda encourages his grandchildren to take up arms against President Barack Obama Peter Fonda, the star of Easy Rider, says he is training his grandchildren to use rifles for a conflict with President Barack Obama.

Lars von Trier, who was banned from Cannes for praising Hitler, was not the only one making unsavoury comments at the film festival.

Peter Fonda, the star of Easy Rider, suggested to Mandrake that he was encouraging his grandchildren to shoot President Barack Obama.

“I’m training my grandchildren to use long-range rifles,” said the actor, 71. “For what purpose? Well, I’m not going to say the words 'Barack Obama’, but …”

He added, enigmatically: “It’s more of a thought process than an actuality, but we are heading for a major conflict between the haves and the have nots. I came here many years ago with a biker movie and we stopped a war. Now, it’s about starting the world.

“I prefer to not to use the words, 'let’s stop something’. I prefer to say, 'let’s start something, let’s start the world’.

“There’s no room any more for a cissy and, like I said, don’t forget that I’ve got grandsons who I’ve trained with long-distance rifles. We have to run like mofos to change this world.”

Baron gets boot

Ousted as the general secretary of Aslef after a notorious brawl at a barbecue, Shaun Brady has now been sacked by Atcu, the breakaway rail union he helped establish.

“Shaun has been removed from office,” confirms an Atcu spokesman, who claims: “He had done certain things in breach of our rules. He wanted to move the head office.”

Flora falls for Hall

Twelve months after Mandrake disclosed that Flora Vestey had separated from her husband, Laurence Kilby, the daughter of the beef baron Lord Vestey has told friends that she has become engaged.

“All we know is that her fiancé’s called James Hall,” says a pal of Flora, 32, whose family own the 6,000-acre Stowell Park estate in Gloucestershire.

When Mandrake announced Flora’s engagement to Kilby, an entrepreneur, in 2007, her stepmother, Lady Vestey, seemed underwhelmed: “I believe her fiancé is in the motor trade.’’

Tim Farron is a sinner not a winner

Tim Farron is trumpeted as a leadership rival to Nick Clegg, but is he cut out for high office?

“I am a sinner, and have regrets every day,” says the Lib Dem president. “I beat myself up most mornings, really, for the scumbaggery of the day before.”

Obama: “I’m working on gun control under the radar”

Plans include enacting restrictions via executive order, bypassing Congress

While the Obama administration said it is committed to gun rights, a gun control advocate has spilled the beans, saying Obama is using stealth to work on firearms restrictions.

The Washington Post did a story on Steve Crowley, the White House gun control czar. Crowley is considered to be an expert on regulation and tort law. His approach to gun control appears to be a regulatory one.

According to the article, Jim and Sarah Brady visited Capital Hill on March 30, the 30th anniversary of the assassination attempt on Ronald Reagan; to push for a ban on "large magazines."

The couple reportedly were meeting with press secretary, Jay Carney, when, according to Sarah Brady, the President came in. She said the President told her he wanted to talk about gun control and "fill us in that it was very much on his agenda."

She went on to say Obama told her, "I just want you to know that we are working on it. We have to go through a few processes, but under the radar."

The statement reinforces an article in the Huffington Post describing how the administration is exploring ways to bypass Congress and enact gun control through executive action.

The Department of Justice reportedly is holding meetings discussing the White House's options for enacting regulations on its own or through adjoining agencies and departments. "Administration officials said talk of executive orders or agency action are among a host of options that President Barack Obama and his advisers are considering. "

Dudley Brown, president of Rocky Mountain Gun Owners, says he is not surprised to hear the President is trying to unilaterally enact gun control regulations. "It’s clear that President Obama and Sarah Brady have been using the ATF to enact what they can’t get through Congress: a ban on the importation of self defense shotguns, new reporting requirements for multiple rifle sales, and the attempt to smuggle firearms across the border to Mexican gang members are just a few examples."

Man who clashed with cops over legal gun was also armed with audio recorder

MARK FIORINO'S story has three elements that tend to get people worked up - gun rights, Philly police and YouTube.

On a mild February afternoon, Fiorino, 25, decided to walk to an AutoZone on Frankford Avenue in Northeast Philly with the .40-caliber Glock he legally owns holstered in plain view on his left hip. His stroll ended when someone called out from behind: "Yo, Junior, what are you doing?"

Fiorino wheeled and saw Sgt. Michael Dougherty aiming a handgun at him.

What happened next would be hard to believe, except that Fiorino audio-recorded all of it: a tense, profanity-laced, 40-minute encounter with cops who told him that what he was doing - openly carrying a gun on the city's streets - was against the law.

"Do you know you can't openly carry here in Philadelphia?" Dougherty asked, according to the YouTube clip."Yes, you can, if you have a license to carry firearms," Fiorino said. "It's Directive 137. It's your own internal directive."

The cops, department officials later admitted, were wrong. They didn't know that a person who has a license to carry a firearm can openly carry it in the city.

But the story doesn't end there. How could it?

After Fiorino posted his recordings on YouTube, they went viral. Members of pro-firearms forums on the Web took a particular interest in the incident.

The Police Department heard about the YouTube clips. A new investigation was launched, and last month the District Attorney's Office decided to charge Fiorino with reckless endangerment and disorderly conduct because, a spokeswoman said, he refused to cooperate with police.

Fiorino said he plans to sue the city whenever his criminal case is resolved.

Police spokesman Lt. Ray Evers said the department believes that Fiorino wanted to get into a confrontation with cops, that he wanted to see them lose their cool so he later could file a lawsuit.

Or, as one cop was overheard saying on the YouTube recording: "He set us the f--- up, that's what the f--- he did."

A handful of his friends fell victim to random crimes over the years - a mugging here, a beatdown there, the kind of stuff that happens all the time in a big city.

It was enough to make him think about being able to protect himself if he ever ran into trouble. "It would be terrifying to me to be powerless," he said.

So, about a year ago, Fiorino said, he got a firearms license and began openly carrying his .40-caliber Glock.

"I did research for quite a few years leading up to making a decision to carry," he said. "I was ready to take on the responsibility."

His gun went with him everywhere - to the store, you name it.

After he began carrying, Fiorino said, he was stopped a handful of times by cops in Montgomery County and other parts of the state. The encounters were civil and quick, he said, and usually ended when an officer checked out his firearms license.

He also had encounters with Philadelphia cops last year near the Philadelphia Museum of Art and on South Street.

"Both times they told me what I was doing was illegal," he said. "They patted me down and said, 'We don't care what you consent to.'

"The second time, they did an official confiscation, and it took me five months to get back my gun."

It could be argued that Fiorino should have stopped openly carrying his gun because it invited police scrutiny. But that argument couldn't be more wrong, said John Pierce, co-founder of OpenCarry.org.

Pierce, of Minnesota, said his website offers information on gun rights "from a legal perspective, a public-policy perspective, not from a 'my cold, dead fingers' viewpoint."

"According to the Pennsylvania and U.S. constitutions, open carry is Mark's right," he said.

"To say he has to give up that right in order to stop being persecuted by the state, well, that doesn't sound like the America we want to live in."

Pennsylvania allows citizens to openly carry firearms across the state, but with a simple caveat: A person who carries a weapon openly in Philadelphia also must be in possession of a firearms license.

Fiorino said he was following the law on Feb. 13, when he decided to take a walk to AutoZone while he was in the Northeast, visiting his mom.

It was a nice day, warm enough for him to head out without a jacket, leaving his holstered Glock fully exposed.

Fiorino's firearms license was in his shirt pocket, he said, along with his driver's license.

Oh, and a digital recorder.

An unnerving back-and-forth started to unfold like a bizarre routine. Dougherty would bark an order, and Fiorino would make an alternative suggestion.

Fiorino offered to show Dougherty his driver's and firearms licenses. The cop told him to get on his knees.

"Excuse me?" Fiorino said.

"Get down on your knees. Just obey what I'm saying," Dougherty said.

"Sir," Fiorino replied, "I'm more than happy to stand here -"

"If you make a move, I'm going to f------ shoot you," Dougherty snapped. "I'm telling you right now, you make a move, and you're going down!"

"Is this necessary?" Fiorino said.

It went on like that for a little while, until other officers responded to Dougherty's calls for backup.

Fiorino was forced to the ground and shouted at as he tried to explain that he had a firearms license and was legally allowed to openly carry his weapon.

"You f------ come here looking for f------ problems? Where do you live?" yelled one officer.

"I'm sorry, gentlemen," Fiorino said. "If I'm under arrest, I have nothing left to say."

"F------ a------, shut the f--- up!" the cop hollered.

The cops discovered his recorder as they searched his pockets, and unleashed another string of expletives.

Fiorino said he sat handcuffed in a police wagon while the officers made numerous phone calls to supervisors, trying to find out if they could lock him up.

When they learned that they were in the wrong, they let him go.

That might have been the end of the thing, too, if it hadn't been for the recordings.

"They treated me like a criminal," he said.

"The organization that's supposed to be the embodiment of the law didn't even know some of the most important laws at the street level."

He decided to put the recordings on YouTube.

"I wanted people to know this is an example of what can happen if you exercise your rights and freedom in Philadelphia," he said.

Fiorino said he didn't lay a trap for the cops. He regularly carries a recorder with him in case he ever has to use his gun and then offer proof of what transpired, he said.

"I'm not trying to set anyone up," he said.

"It was a setup. He's done this kind of thing before," said Evers, the police spokesman, referring to Fiorino's encounters with authorities. "He did it intentionally, and he audiotaped it."

Evers said the department decided to take a second look at the case after learning about the recordings.

Any number of things could have gone wrong during Fiorino's confrontation with Dougherty, Evers said.

For one thing, Evers said, Fiorino could have been shot. Cops who raced to the scene could have gotten into a car accident or injured pedestrians.

Ultimately, the D.A.'s Office decided to charge Fiorino with reckless endangerment and disorderly conduct. He's scheduled for trial in July.

Fiorino's attorney, Joseph Valvo, said the move to file criminal charges against Fiorino was retaliation for his posting the recordings on YouTube.

"They're embarrassed and using creative theories to come up with charges," he said.

"Our officers weren't up to speed [because] we never really addressed it," said Lt. Francis Healy, the department's lawyer.

"In the last several weeks, we've done a lot of training and put out a lot of information about what is allowed and what's not allowed. Right now, our officers are better-versed on the subject matter."

Healy said he emphasized the importance of officers being polite and professional if they have to stop a person who is legally carrying a firearm.

"You can use caution, but you don't need to curse them up and down and put a gun in their face," he said.

At City Hall on Saturday, about 30 gun owners staged a protest of Fiorino's recent arrest.

The protesters and cops got along fine.

"These aren't bad people," Healy said.

Its about time we have real common law peace officers instead of these low intelligence goons who aren't even aware of the unconstitutional laws of commerce forced onto our lands. First of all what the hell is the difference if you're carrying a gun on your side or in your freaking pocket? A gun is a gun so whats the bloody problem with him having this gun? If they didn't have these stupid laws people wouldn't feel they even needed a gun for self-defense. But of course they've tried to remove guns for so long they're dumbing the U.S. against them and thus crime is through the roof.

This Police Officer should be charged with abuse and for not knowing the law which then put a innocent member of the public in possible harm. May I remind people that we the public pay the wages of these Police Officer goons who ultimately work for the Universal Postal Union controlling the International Monetary Fund which control the commercial World and thus their souls since they ignore Common Law. Remember since the 1930s the I. M.F controls the United States as the controller of the bankruptee (U.S.) The only reason you can have any belief nothing changed since then was the hoodwink provided by the wartime power otherwise you'd have seen the difference more openly.

I suggest this man goes to the commercial Courts and has this Officer, but then they'll make up some excuse to protect their Freemasonic controlled lice fleas. What chance have you got when those supposedly enforcing the law (Admiralty) have no idea of their own treasonous laws which by the way are unconstitutional. Its time we take our bloody Countries of land back from these vermin.

The Gun Boom

Eric J.Fry, 10 May '11
http://goldnews.bullionvault.com/gun_boom_051020113

Americans stock up on gold, guns...

EVEN AFTER last week's rapid commodities selloff, the "Flight to Safety" trade is still on…big time, writes Eric Fry in The Daily Reckoning.

Gold Prices may have retreated from their all-time highs, but applications to purchase a handgun continue soaring to record levels.

According to the FBI, background-check applications for handgun buyers are on a record-setting pace so far this year. "In this year's first quarter," Bloomberg News reports, "the FBI's Instant Criminal Background Check System processed 4.25 million requests on prospective gun buyers – up 16% from a year earlier." If the current pace continues, the number of "gun checks" would hit a seventh straight annual record.

America's gun-buying craze stands in stark contrast to the dismal trend of overall consumer spending. Bloomberg notes that spending on guns, ammo and other sporting equipment rose about 10% during the last 12 months – or more than four times the 2.5% increase in total consumer spending. Although spending on guns and ammo has been outpacing total consumer spending for more than a decade, the gun-buying trend has been accelerating during the last few months.

Meanwhile, Wal-Mart CEO, Mike Duke, observes that the retail giant's "core shoppers" are "running out of money much faster than a year ago." Since many of Wal-Mart's core shoppers live paycheck to paycheck, they typically do most of their shopping at the beginning of the month…and less of it at the end. "Purchases are really dropping off by the end of the month, even more than last year," Duke says. "This end-of-month [purchases] cycle is growing to be a concern."

This troubling trend is not just a Wal-Mart thing. As a retailer that averages 140 million shoppers per week to its US stores, Wal-Mart's "concern" is also the American economy's concern. Wal-Mart is, as CNNMoney puts it, "a barometer of the health of the consumer and the economy. Wal-Mart has struggled with seven straight quarters of sales declines in its stores."

Maybe that's why Wal-Mart announced last week that it would resume selling guns and ammo in many of its stores – ending a five-year hiatus. (Handguns will not return to Wal-Mart shelves, but rifles and other "long guns" will, according to a recent press release).

It is not certain that America's "gun boom" (pun only partially intended) means something...but it likely means more than nothing. Roughly 14 million Americans – about one in twenty – tried to buy a handgun last year. Another 16 million will shop for a sidearm this year.

These 16 million folks certainly do not share identical motives for their purchases, but they do share an identical objective: to arm themselves. They are buying handguns in record numbers because they are feeling uneasy in record numbers.

It would be easy to dismiss the "gun boom" as an irrelevant cultural curiosity…if it wasn't so seemingly relevant. Investors are also "arming themselves" in record numbers. They are Buying Gold and silver and oil and almost any other commodity under the sun.

At the same time, they are also unloading US Dollars in exchange for almost any other currency under the sun. The Norwegian Kroner, Swiss Franc, Aussie Dollar and Canadian Dollar are all trading near all-time highs against the US Dollar.

Something serious is going on here. America's economic recovery may be much weaker than advertised, while her economic vulnerability may be much greater than widely believed.

Confident citizens do not usually buy record amounts of guns and gold.

HPD: 6-Year-Old Took Gun To Ross Elementary

http://www.click2houston.com/news/27598215/detail.html

HOUSTON -- Three children were injured when a gun brought to a northeast Houston elementary school by a 6-year-old discharged, police said Tuesday.

Houston police said the boy took the loaded gun to Betsy Ross Elementary School, 2819 Bay St., on Tuesday.

Investigators said 25 kindergarten students were in the cafeteria for lunch when the gun fell out of the student's pocket and discharged about 10:20 a.m.

"By sitting at the cafeteria tables, they were one next to each other when it fell on the ground and it discharged. It grazed or hit some in the legs, lower parts (of the bodies)," said Sam Sarabia, a Houston Independent School District elementary education director.

HISD officials said three kindergarten students were injured by the bullet and bullet fragments.

Officials said a 6-year-old boy and a 5-year-old girl were wounded in the foot and a 6-year-old boy was wounded in the leg. None of the injuries was life-threatening. All three were taken to Texas Children's Hospital for treatment. They remained hospitalized Tuesday afternoon.

"They're stable with minor injuries," said Dr. David Delemos with Texas Children's Hospital.

The student who took the gun to school was among those injured in the foot, HISD officials said.

Delemos said the children were in good spirits despite their injuries.

"They're acting normal, playing video games. They're smiling. They coped pretty well, at this time with this situation," he said.

Two of the students were expected to be released Tuesday evening.

Jarneshia Broussard, 5, was sitting near the students when the gun discharged. She said students and teachers at first thought the noise was a light bulb popping.

"I was at another table, then the gun went pow," Broussard said. "This little girl, she had -- she had got shot in the feet."

Most parents learned about the shooting by watching it unfold on television.

When they arrived at the campus, it was locked down and surrounded by police.

"They haven't told us anything -- just that the school's on lockdown and it's a gun. But I don't know what's happening," said Yolanda Smith, a student's mother.

"They told me my 5-year-old granddaughter was in that class. I don't know 'cause I can't get in that school," said Moneek Burelson.

"I want to know where my nephew is. I want to know if he's OK. Is the kid gone? Is the gun gone? That's all I want to know," said Kesha Brown, a student's aunt.

School officials allowed parents to take their children home early.

"It was like a breath of fresh air -- a load off your back," Brown said.

One of the victim's parents released a statement.

"Our son, Khoran Brown, is in stable condition. It is a sad situation that took place today, but we are all thankful our son is in good spirits. He is already asking to get back to school."

Investigators are working to determine where the child got the gun.

School officials said security at elementary schools is relatively light because there have not been problems in the past. There are no metal detectors, no police officers assigned to campuses and students are rarely searched.

HISD said it cannot discuss disciplinary matters, but the district's code of conduct states, "Students under the age of 10 who bring firearms to school shall be expelled for a term of one year, and the term of the expulsion shall be modified in order to allow for their education in an HISD DAEP (Disciplinary Alternative Education Program or alternative school) for a period of one year."

HISD has two DAEP elementary schools.

HYDE PARK, N.Y. - A 62-year-old woman has been charged with menacing a police officer after authorities say she pointed a weapon at sheriff's deputies attempting to serve her with an eviction notice at her Hudson Valley home.

The Dutchess County Sheriff's Office says a more than five-hour standoff ensued Tuesday morning when deputies tried to serve a court-ordered eviction notice at Constance Palmer's home in Hyde Park.

Authorities say she refused to come outside and pointed a weapon through a window. After Palmer surrendered around 2:45 p.m., police learned that the weapon was a BB gun that had been altered to make it look like a shotgun.

The Poughkeepsie Journal reports that Palmer was being held in the county jail on $25,000 bail. It couldn't be determined if she had a lawyer.

Carney faces ethics case today

A gun-waving incident on Interstate 79 in 2009 cost Erie 3rd Ward District Judge Tom Carney a $541 fine.

He will appear today before a disciplinary panel in Harrisburg to argue that his punishment should not go beyond that payment.

Carney, 57, is set for a one-day trial in front of a three-judge panel of the Penn-sylvania Court of Judicial Discipline.

The panel is not expected to reach a decision at today's trial, which is to start at 10 a.m. at the state Judicial Center, near the Capitol.

If the panel convicts Carney of the ethics charges, the Court of Judicial Discipline could order sanctions, including suspension or removal from office. The trial is not a criminal proceeding.

The panel will hear evidence from the state Judicial Conduct Board, which filed the ethics charges against Carney in September, and the defense.

The board accused Carney of bringing his judicial office into disrepute, mainly because of the incident with the gun.

Carney's lawyer, David Ridge, said he expects to call Carney and several other witnesses.

He said the defense is "not conceding any type of sanctions" would be appropriate for Carney.

"Our position is that a sanction is not absolutely necessary in this case," Ridge said.

The chief counsel of the Judicial Conduct Board, Joseph A. Massa Jr., will present evidence against Carney.

The most serious ethics allegations against him are related to his conviction on summary charges for waving a gun at another car on I-79 in January 2009. He also is accused of acting improperly by making public statements against graffiti, among other topics.

In the gun-waving case, Carney in November 2009 pleaded guilty to two summary charges of disorderly conduct in Mercer County, where the incident occurred. Carney was driving north, heading to Erie, after attending a Pittsburgh Steelers game.

In a plea deal, Carney agreed to pay the $541 fine, and the Mercer County District Attorney's Office dropped all other charges, which included the misdemeanor of simple assault.

Carney, a Democrat, has remained in office. He was elected to a six-year term in November 2005 and is up for re-election this year. The primary is May 17.

Carney's office is at 718 W. 18th St., in the city's Little Italy neighborhood. He makes $82,303 a year as a district judge, as which he presides over preliminary hearings in criminal cases and handles minor civil disputes and summary criminal cases.

E-Mails Show Federal Investigation Concerned U.S. Gun Dealers

http://mystateline.com/fulltext-news?nxd_id=245607

E-mails uncovered in a congressional inquiry show federal agents investigating gunrunning on the U.S.-Mexico border ignored warnings about weapons falling into the wrong hands.
The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives recruited American gun dealers to sell to people believed to be smuggling weapons to Mexican cartels.
In the e-mails, one Arizona gun dealer repeatedly asks agents for assurances the firearms he sells will never end up in Mexico.
He also brings up concerns about his guns being used to kill U.S. Border Patrol agents.
The agent responds by saying the ATF is monitoring the suspects the gun dealer is worried about, but can't give him any more details.
Senator Charles Grassley sent the e-mails to Attorney General Eric Holder yesterday, saying they prove the ATF knowingly let sales to gunrunners go through.
Hundreds of guns from the project have been found at crime scenes since last year, including the ones linked to the killings of two U.S. Border Patrol agents.

Demonstrators Demand Tougher Gun Laws in Brazil

2011-04-12 03:26
http://english.ntdtv.com/ntdtv_en/news_sou...-in-brazil.html

A group of protesters gather on Copacabana beach in Rio de Janeiro - three days after 12 children were shot dead at a local school.

They're calling on authorities to increase gun control measures.

As red-stained Brazilian flags blow in the breeze - the activists hold signs with the names of the children who were lined up and shot point-blank.

One demonstrator said security forces need to crack down on the availability of fire arms.

[Antonio Costa, President, Toe De Paz]:

"How is it that these weapons can be bought so easily and they get into the hands of criminals so easily too. No! We're here to ask the public authorities to take action to restrain the traffic of weapons and munitions in the city of Rio de Janeiro."

Another protester says she didn't plan to take part, but was moved to show her sympathy to the victims' families.

[Leticia Medonca, Protester]:

"I was at the beach and, when I came out, I saw the protest. So I decided to participate to show my feelings for these families."

While attacks in schools had been unheard of in the South American country, Rio is no stranger to violence.

For years, the city's favelas have struggled with drug and gang-related violence - and police occasionally have running gun battles on the streets of the sprawling slums.

But Thursday's attack by a 24-year-old former student at the school comes as the first such mass murder in the country's history.

Netherlands shooting: Gunman kills five in Dutch mall

Eyewitness: "I saw a young man with an automatic weapon... he was wearing camouflage gear"

A gunman in the Netherlands killed five people and wounded 11 before taking his own life, officials say.

The killings took place at a busy shopping centre in the town of Alphen aan den Rijn, about 25km (15 miles) south-west of Amsterdam.

The mayor of the town said the man opened fire with an automatic weapon and then shot himself.

The gunman has not been formally identified and no explanation for the shooting has been reported.

Dutch media quoted witnesses who said the man had blond hair and was about 25 years old. He was described as wearing a leather jacket and camouflage pattern trousers.
Panic

Mayor Bas Eenhoorn called the incident "unprecedented" for the town of about 70,000 people.

He said four of the injured were in a critical condition and five had serious wounds.

"A man with an automatic weapon, whose identity we cannot reveal, started shooting and killed five people and then himself," the mayor said.

"It's hardly credible that our town could experience such slaughter, and on a day as beautiful as this," he said.

A shopkeeper in the Ridderhof centre said the gunman appeared to be shooting people at random.

"There was a panic in the mall, a lot of people running," the shopkeeper, Maart Verbeek, told Dutch broadcaster NOS.

"I see the attacker coming, walking, and I go inside the store... and I see him going by with a big machine gun."

A resident told the BBC the shooting was unusual, despite being the second in the area this month.

"It's weird that something like this has happened in this neighbourhood. Usually nothing ever happens here. But this is the second shooting in two weeks," said Thomas Aantjes.

Two people were killed on 2 April in a shooting in the same district of the town. Officials have not made a link between the two incidents.

US electronics chain offers free guns to TV subscribers

A new promotion by RadioShack electronics chain in the US states of Idaho and Montana is offering free guns to first-time subscribers of satellite TV service Dish Network.

By Emanuelle Degli Esposti 12:17PM BST 08 Apr 2011
http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/newstopics...ubscribers.html

John Marshall, owner of a RadioShack store in Mountain Home, Idaho, said the flagging economy was behind the promotion, which he began advertising this week.

"There's no problem with it here; this isn't New York City," he said about the gun giveaway.

Customers who sign up to Dish Network packaged for the first time are given a coupon for $135 (£82) to buy either a pistol or a shotgun from a local sporting goods store. The promotion has unsurprisingly sparked criticism by gun-control advocates elsewhere in the United States.

The guns-for-subscriptions offer is the brainchild of Steve Strand, owner of a RadioShack store in Montana's Bitterroot Valley.

Mr Strand affirmed that the promotional campaign was a sure-fire strategy to target satellite subscribers in a region where firearms are commonplace. Since the offer was introduced last autumn, Mr Strand said that subscriptions for Dish Network packages have increased threefold.

Surprisingly perhaps, he said that women constitute the majority of his client base.

"All I can tell you is, grandma is packing a gun in Montana," he said.

"I might not even consider such a program if I were in Detroit city but we have a different demographic out here," he added.

13 under-10s were issued with licences in the past three years

Figures show 13 under-10s were issued with licences in the past three years.

One seven-year-old was given permission to fire a shotgun by Gloucestershire Police while the West Mercia and Cumbria forces issued licences for two eight-year-olds. Ten other licences were issued to nine-year-olds.

Patsy McKie, of campaign group Mothers Against Violence, said: “We are disgusted with this news. Children are not suitable people to have guns.”

Christopher Graffius, of the British Association for Shooting and Conservation, said: “A shotgun certificate allows people under the age of 18 to shoot under supervision. In the case of children, they will come from families where shooting sports are a part of daily life and where the police are convinced that the young person and their family will act legally and responsibly.”

Mayor Bloomberg scolds nation for not standing up to gun lobby

BY Richard Sisk

Mayor Bloomberg scolded the nation Tuesday for failing to take on the gun lobby to restrict weapons sales.

"This is just no courage on the part of Americans to stand up and say 'Enough,'" Bloomberg said while joining members of Congress who support closing loopholes that allow criminals, drug abusers and the mentally ill to buy guns.

Legislation they proposed would strengthen reporting requirements on the National Instant Criminal Background Check system and impose penalties on states that fail to comply.

"We're not interested in curtailing the rights of gun owners," said Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-N.Y.), but "felons should not have guns, drug abusers should not have guns."

Rep. Carolyn McCarthy (D-L.I.), whose husband was killed and son badly injured in a 1993 shooting spree on the Long Island Rail Road, said, "The American people have to back us up on this one."

McCarthy has also proposed banning high-capacity magazines, such as the one used by Jared Lee Loughner in January to shoot Rep. Gabrielle Giffords (D-Ariz.) and kill six others.

"Unfortunately, none of my Republican colleagues has signed onto this legislation," McCarthy said.

The NRA has already blown off President Obama's offer for a White House summit to come up with a "common sense" bipartisan position on gun control.

Obama eyes 'common sense' US gun control

http://www.google.com/hostednews/afp/artic...29502fa5036.1c1

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama says it's time for US lawmakers to tackle the divisive issue of gun control in hopes of preventing tragedies like the Tucson shooting spree that killed six people.

In an opinion column published Sunday in the Arizona Daily Star, the main Tucson newspaper, Obama argued that improving the system of background checks on gun purchasers should be the first "common sense" step that neither side of the gun debate should oppose.

"I know that every time we try to talk about guns, it can reinforce stark divides," Obama wrote in a rare public commentary on the gun control issue.

"However, I believe that if common sense prevails, we can get beyond wedge issues and stale political debates to find a sensible, intelligent way" to make the nation "a safer, stronger place."

Tucson was the location of a January 8 shooting spree that killed six people, including a federal judge and a nine-year-old girl.

US Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords was among the wounded, shot in the head while holding an open-air political event when alleged gunman Jared Loughner opened fire.

Following the attack, Americans largely "refrained from finger-pointing, assigning blame or playing politics with other people's pain," Obama wrote.

"But one clear and terrible fact remains. A man our Army rejected as unfit for service; a man one of our colleges deemed too unstable for studies; a man apparently bent on violence, was able to walk into a store and buy a gun," he continued.

Obama said the national criminal background check system relies on state data that is "often incomplete and inadequate. We must do better."

The president said the federal government should provide incentives to states to produce better data.

Obama said he wanted his proposal "to at least be the beginning of a new discussion on how we can keep America safe for all our people."

Obama's column generated the most comments from readers on the newspaper's website Sunday, compared to the paper's other stories.

Illinois Strips Gun Owners of Privacy

Published on 03-05-2011
http://reason.com/topics/guns

Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan ruled on Monday that state police were required by law to release the names of everyone holding a Firearms Owner Identification (FOID) card. Madigan, who we have to thank for the loose leashes on drug dogs, was responding to an Associated Press request for release of the names under Illinois' Freedom of Information Act,. The letter of that statute appears to be on her side. Arguments for such a step, though, are unconvincing. Providing one clue why the paper went bust, an unsigned editorial from the Chicago Sun-Times makes a particularly platitudinal case:

Licensed gun dealers and gun shows are not supposed to sell a gun to anyone who lacks a valid FOID, but who can say the system is working if all records are kept private?

We can't see how releasing just the names of the state's 1.3 million FOID holders poses much of a privacy risk, except perhaps for folks with truly unusual names. In a state as big as Illinois, a lot of people share the same name.

It's also true, we acknowledge, that this information is so scanty as to be of limited use in evaluating the effectiveness of the FOID program. But a bill, sponsored by Sen. Kirk Dillard (R-Hinsdale), that would make all FOID information private moves in the wrong direction.

We're not looking to inconvenience legal gun owners, even mildly. But our first concern is to keep guns out of the hands of people who shouldn't have them.

A Wednesday AP story lists examples of similar lists being made public in other states, leading to flaws in the permit regime being publicized. No mention was made of any negative consequences from publishing lists of gun owners, although it does note that Florida and Tennessee have since passed laws explicitly banning the practice. Illinois Republicans are pushing legislation and organizing a petition drive.

Lee Williams of the Illinois Policy Institute notes that, even if only uniquely named gun owners are targeted, criminals do make a premium off reselling firearms and they will strike when people aren't home to defend themselves. Protecting the privacy of over a million citizens who signed up for a FOID to comply with law should trump the media desire to uncover a few abuses that might or might not have led to crime.

FIRST EVER! – Austinites outbid Police in gun buyback counter-program (UPDATED)

February 26, 2011 by Jack Blood
http://deadlinelive.info/2011/02/26/first-...ounter-program/

EXCLUSIVE – DeadlineLive.info

Today in Austin TX – Activists were successful in buying TRUNKS full of usable firearms that would have otherwise been destroyed (or ended up in the hands of "terrorists" – as we have seen before how cops confiscate guns and resell them to cartels…)

About 40 gun buyers, both independent and otherwise, stood in front of the Austin Police Gun Buyback Event offering CASH for the guns they were about to turn in to the city for food cards. As people rolled up, we approached them with our offers, and paid them hard cash after inspecting the guns to make sure they were operable. (the Police were unbelievably cooperative in the process)

I ended up with a 9mm for a fraction of what it would cost at a gun shop.

Media was in attendance, both local and international. They did seem somewhat confused by our DIRECT ACTION, as did some of the citizenry trying to TURN IN THEIR GUNS. The sounds bytes on local news all sounded identical: "We are turning in our guns so that no one can break in and steal them, using them for crime".

Well then… How about this?

DETROIT GUN 'BUY BACK' MAY HELP SOME KILLERS ESCAPE JUSTICE or This:

Sheriff resells criminals' guns: a look at how murder weapons end up back on the street

No comment huh?

About 50% chose to sell them to us, rather than the police. Some simply sold broken guns for $100.00 worth of food. Think "Cash for Clunkers"… but with Guns. Your tax dollars at work folks.

Its not so funny that starving people turn in their guns, not criminals. Pop tarts do not protect Life Liberty and Property. (these were the signs I held)

Near the end, the police ran our of Food Cards, and were asking people to give them their guns for free. We were there til the end buying all we could.

I estimate about 3 – $4,000.00 was spent by our group.

Austin PD spent an estimated $30.000.00 (mostly for broken guns)

The weapons we purchased will go to those who otherwise cannot afford a firearm, and they will pledge to do some service for the community, and freedom.

Thanks to Texans for Accountable Government for organizing the event, and to all who stood in the rain holding signs, and offering an alternative to the city buy back program.

Feb. 25, 2011

AUSTIN — The fast-talking auctioneer nonchalantly reaches for his gavel, sure that no one can beat the only bid on the floor so far.

“$100 grocery card for this walnut-grip, straight-shooting 9mm Browning Hi-Power, from the police officer in the corner. Do I hear $110 ..?” he says, before rattling off an increasing series of numbers.

“$110 cash!” comes a lone voice from the back of the crowd, to a few gasps from the crowd. This has never happened before.

“Going once, going twice … SOLD!” says the auctioneer, with no higher bids made.

Unfortunately, Saturday morning’s Austin Police Department “Guns for Groceries” event won’t be held as a public auction. But local Austin activists are hoping to engage APD in a bidding-war.

The plan: To outbid the APD in their effort to disarm the economically disadvantaged while promoting community philanthropy and safety.

Texans for Accountable Government (TAG) will be hosting the “Guns for Cash” counter-program on the public right of way in front of Meadow Baptist Church, 6905 South I-35 in Austin, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. TAG’s event will provide a means for local activists to offer those trading in their working firearms cash and, as a bonus, the firearm will be used to better their community in a multitude of ways.

“Instead of destroying the firearms like APD plans to do, which is a sad waste of resources,” explained John Bush, executive director of TAG, “Austin activists will be giving some of the functioning guns we collect to local Texans in need. Those receiving the firearms will be asked to volunteer for community philanthropy projects so we can make our city a more safe and enjoyable place to live. This is especially important in these trying economic times.” Bush added that they were also hoping to “educate the public about the simplicity and lawfulness of private firearms transactions.”

TAG holds strongly to the Second Amendment’s right to bear arms, and agrees with the countless studies that show that firearms in the hands of law-abiding citizens makes for a safer city — not a more dangerous environment as APD’s “Guns for Groceries” implies.

While the Greater Austin Crime Commission is paying for the APD’s buyback program, the Guns for Cash program is funded entirely by individual, local activists. The organization TAG is not buying the guns, Bush clarified.

“We have already secured $2,000 and are looking for more funds to compete with APD, which will have $30,000 worth of grocery debit cards,” said Heather Fazio, a TAG leader, and a facilitator for the event. Fazio said more donations are necessary to keep pace with APD. Those interested in supporting this cause may e-mail John Bush at LibertyLover512[AT]yahoo.com for more information.

ADDITIONAL INFO

Below is a comparison between APD’s and TAG’s gun buyback offers:

(Activists will only be accepting functional firearms)

Handguns and rifles: APD, $100 grocery card, TAG, $110

“Assault” or sporting rifles: APD, $200 grocery card, TAG, $220

Obama: 'I Believe in the Second Amendment'

Friday, March 04, 2011
By Fred Lucas
http://www.cnsnews.com/node/82239

(CNSNews.com) – At a joint presss conference with Mexican President Felipe Calderon on Thusday, President Barack Obama responded to a Mexican reporter who asked him if he had the power to veto the right of Americans to keep and bear arms by saying he believed in the Second Amendment.

"The Second Amendment of the United States Constitution allows American citizens to carry weapons and this principle is defended," the Mexican reporter said. "However, President Calderón has said that this law in Congress--this could actually go against U. S. agents, and this has happened. So, President Obama, in Mexico we have the veto, the power of veto. I don't know how far you have the ability to veto that law that has been approved. And if you have that responsibility, why don't you do so, sir? How long are we going to allow Mexicans to be murdered--and not just Mexicans, but now Americans, as well?"

[dohtml]<object width="518" height="419"><param name="movie" value="http://www.eyeblast.tv/public/eyeblast.swf?v=hdqG2G2GqG" /><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true" /><embed type="application/x-shockwave-flash" src="http://www.eyeblast.tv/public/eyeblast.swf?v=hdqG2G2GqG" allowfullscreen="true" width="518" height="419" /></object>[/dohtml]

Obama responded: "Well, the Second Amendment in this country is part of our Constitution, and the president of the United States is bound by our Constitution. So I believe in the Second Amendment. It does provide for Americans the right to bear arms for their protection, for their safety, for hunting, for a wide range of uses. That does not mean that we cannot constrain gun-runners from shipping guns into Mexico. And so we believe that we can shape an enforcement strategy that slows the flow of guns into Mexico, while at the same time preserving our Constitution."

Standing beside the Mexican president, Obama said the two leaders were united in the effort to battle drug cartels that are killing citizens of both the U.S. and Mexico. Part of that effort involves dealing with the flow of guns, Obama said.

"One of the things that I think that President Calderon and I have discussed is how we can strengthen border security on both sides, so that drugs flowing north or guns and cash flowing south--that we are able at all these points to intervene, interdict in a way that doesn't ... slow the commerce and trade that is so important between our two countries."

Obama did not address the U.S. government sting operation known as "Project Gunrunner," in which the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives deliberately moved weapons to suspected gun smugglers in Texas, so the ATF could trace their route to the Mexican drug cartels.

The guns were not supposed to make it into Mexico, but some critics say some did--and may have been used in crimes there. According to the Dallas Morning News, the weapon used to kill ICE agent Jaime Zapata while he traveled through Mexico last month was traced to the same Texas smuggling ring the ATF had been monitoring.

On Wednesday, the ATF released a statement saying it would ask a panel of law enforcement professionals "to review the bureau's current firearms trafficking strategies."

On a related topic, the Obama administration is asking the Mexican government to allow U.S. agents to carry firearms in Mexico, which is currently against the law in that country.

The question of armed U.S. agents took on new urgency when ICE Agent Zapata was shot to death in a roadside ambush on his way to Mexico City. The suspect is a member of the Zetas drug cartel.

Calderon said the matter rests with Mexico's legislative branch.

"The law does not allow agents of the United States or of any other country to take part in law enforcement tasks in our territory," Calderon said. "As a result, they cannot carry weapons or undertake operational tasks. Their functions, in line with our treaties, are limited to the exchange of information and technical assistance to support Mexican authorities…so there's an important legal restriction that exists."

Calderon also said it's clear to him "that we must find a way of enhancing the protection of any and all agents who are acting within the framework of the law against crime." He said his government is "analyzing alternatives," but the final word rests with the Mexican Congress.

As for the murdered ICE agent Calderon said, "There is full political will that this individual be brought to justice with the full weight of the law, whether that be in the United States or Mexico."

Despite their differences on various issues, President Obama on Thursday stressed issues where they agree:

"As I've said before, President Calderon and the Mexican people have shown extraordinary courage in the fight for their country," Obama said. "Tens of thousands of Mexicans--innocent citizens and dedicated security forces--have lost their lives. I have reaffirmed to President Calderon that in this cause, Mexico has a full partner with the United States. Because whether they live in Texas or Tijuana, our people have a right to be safe in their communities."

The U.S.-Mexican border has become increasingly dangerous in recent years. CNSNews.com reported that in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico -- which sits across the Rio Grande River from El Paso, Texas—3,111 civilians were murdered in 2010. In all of the territory of Afghanistan, where U.S. forces are at war with Taliban insurgents, there 2,421 civilians were killed.

While the two countries have made progress in confiscating weapons and drugs and putting more people in jail, more must be done, Obama said.

Texas to pass bill allowing handguns on college campuses

More than half the members of state's house of representatives are co-authors of measure directing universities to allow concealed handguns

Texas is preparing to give college students and professors the right to carry guns on campus.

More than half the members of the state's house of representatives are the co-authors of a measure directing universities to allow concealed handguns.

The state's senate passed a similar bill in 2009, and is expected to do so again.

The Republican governor, Rick Perry, who sometimes carries a pistol when he jogs, supports the idea.

Texas is one of about a dozen states considering allowing weapons on university campuses. It would become the second state, following Utah, to pass such a law.

Colorado gives colleges the option, and several allow handguns.

Gun control divides opinion in Germany

Handguns should be banned, say campaigners

http://www.dw-world.de/dw/article/0,,14834980,00.html

Campaigners have been calling for a ban on lethal weapons since the deadly school shooting in Winnenden in 2009. The gunman's father has been convicted of breaking the law, which critics say is still too lax.

Although gun laws have been tightened since the deadly school shooting in the south-western German town of Winnenden in March 2009, and the father of the gunman has been convicted of manslaughter and breaking the law on weapons storage, campaigners are calling for a total ban on owning lethal weapons.

Representatives from Germany's sports shooting associations, however, insist the restrictions are sufficient.

"After Winnenden, they practically criminalized sports shooting," Friedrich Gepperth, president of the Association of German Sport Shooters told Deutsche Welle.

"We're at the end of our tether with this. The new regulations are already damaging enough for the sport."

Around one and a half million people are members of gun clubs in Germany. They own between 10 to 12 million weapons. They are legal, but have to be kept in a special weapons cabinet which must be locked.

In Germany weapons have to be stored in a locked cabinet

German authorities have stepped up efforts to enforce this rule since the 2009 shooting in Winnenden. They also raised the minimum age for large-caliber shooting from 14 to 18 years.

New rules not effective

Gepperth says the new age restriction on large-caliber weapons is missing the point, as people who can use a small-caliber weapon will also be able to shoot large-caliber weapons.

He points out that the Winnenden shooting has shown that even an inexperienced marksman can go on the rampage.

"Freedom also means we have to take risks. There are only about four to six accidents with injuries and or fatalities per year, so I don't see why we have to deprive millions of people of their weapons," says Gepperth.

There has been support from some politicians, but critics say guns have no place in the home.

"Children should be brought up playing with toys, books and music, not with dangerous weapons dominating their everyday life," Claudia Roth, co-chairman of the Green Party said.

Pentathletes are increasingly using non-lethal weapons

Total ban

A world without weapons is also the objective of an initiative called "Lethal weapons are not for sports". It has gathered over 100,000 signatures in cooperation with another group, the "Winnenden Rampage Alliance", which were then submitted to parliament. They are campaigning for a total ban on lethal weapons in Germany.

"In the last Olympics, Germany's pentathletes did not use lethal weapons - they switched to laser weapons, Roman Grafe, spokesman for the alliance, said.

"They are so well-designed you can even hear the bang. Also, pneumatic weapons are a viable alternative, and thousands of amateur shooters are using them already."

Grafe is convinced that a voluntary arrangement will not work. Instead, he says, Germany should copy Britain, where handguns were banned after a school shooting in Dunblane in Scotland in 2006.

New register

Next year, a central weapons register will be introduced in Germany. Gun owners will have to register the type of gun, the caliber, the serial number and their name and address. The data will be kept for at least 20 years. According to the former head of the police union, Konrad Freiberg, the measure is long overdue.

"We have 570 different divisions dealing with weapons legislation - all with different rules. And I have to say, the fact that we're only introducing this register now is the result of pure negligence, because it can really save lives if the police know exactly who's in possession of a weapon and who isn't."

But it is not just a question of tightening the rules, it is also about having the manpower to enforce the law and conduct regular checks.

"We don't have a legal deficit, it's more of a control deficit," the chairman of the German Police Trade Union, Rainer Wendt, told the dpa news agency, complaining that the local councils in Germany have too few staff to do the necessary checks.

Switzerland rejects tighter gun controls

Sport shooting is very popular in Switzerland

13 February 2011 Last updated at 13:32
http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-12441834

Swiss voters have rejected proposed tighter controls on gun ownership, near-complete results show.

It means that the voters decided during the referendum to retain the current system, which allows army-issued weapons to be kept at home.

Supporters of the tighter curbs wanted to have weapons kept in armouries and demanded stricter checks on gun owners.

Opponents said the move would undermine trust in the army. The final result of the vote is expected soon.

Near-complete results show at least 14 out of 26 Swiss cantons rejected the proposal in Sunday's vote.
National institution

For the proposal to succeed, it required the support of the majority of Swiss citizens and the cantons.

Overall, about 57% of the Swiss voters rejected the plan, while 43% backed it.

Geneva and Basel both bucked the trend by approving it, according to the Swissinfo website.

The result is a blow to gun-control groups in Switzerland, the BBC's Imogen Foulkes in Geneva reports.

There are an estimated two to three million guns circulating in Switzerland.

No-one knows the exact number because there is no national firearms register, our correspondent adds.

In addition to the semi-automatic assault rifle that all those serving in the army store at home, there are thousands of hunting rifles and pistols.

Serving and former soldiers have been allowed to keep their weapons at home since World War II.

The proposal to end that custom was backed by a coalition of doctors, women's groups and police associations.

Although Switzerland's overall crime rate is low by European standards, the country has the highest rate of gun suicide in Europe.

The proposal's backers had argued that keeping soldiers' firearms locked up in armouries would reduce the suicide rate.

A number of high-profile killings in recent years - such as the shooting of ski star Corinne Rey-Bellet by her estranged husband in 2006 - have also boosted support for greater gun control.

But the Swiss army is a national institution, and changing anything about it is controversial, says our correspondent.

Opponents of the proposals say taking soldiers' guns away would undermine the military and could open the door to abolishing Switzerland's citizen army all together.

"If the 'Yes' goes through, it really risks destroying the country," Xavier Schwitzguebel, an army reservist officer, was earlier quoted as saying by the AFP news agency.

"If we take away the weapon, which represents this trust, that means that we are breaking the sacred union between democracy and citizen."

Switzerland to vote on gun law reform

Reformers hope referendum vote will toughen gun ownership laws and cut Europe's highest firearm suicide rate

Helen Pidd in Berlin and agencies guardian.co.uk, Friday 11 February 2011 16.37 GMT
http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2011/feb/1...-reform-suicide

Switzerland votes on Sunday in a referendum on whether to tighten its gun laws in an attempt to reduce its high firearms suicide rate.

Switzerland has some of the most liberal weapons ownership rules in the western world, with an estimated 2.3m guns between its 8 million people.

The proposal faces stiff resistance from gun enthusiasts in a nation where the right to bear arms is firmly linked to the national myth of William Tell, the Swiss marksman who – as well as the incident with the apple – killed an enemy with his crossbow.

The result, say anti-gun campaigners, is that it has the highest rate of firearms suicides in Europe – about a quarter of Switzerland's 1,300 suicides each year involve a gun, according to federal statistics.

Most firearms are owned by ex-soldiers who, by a quirk of tradition, are allowed to keep their weapons after military service ends. Campaigners want all military-issued guns to be stored in secure army depots rather than in people's homes.

Reformers also want a national gun registry and a ban on the sale of fully automatic weapons and pump-action rifles. Such policies, they claim, would help prevent rampages such as that in the town of Zug in 2001, when 14 people were shot dead at a local government meeting. The perpetrator, Friedrich Leibacher, who also killed himself, used a commercial version of the Swiss army's SG 550 assault rifle, a gun commonly found throughout the country, hidden in cupboards or stored under beds.

"If you make firearms less accessible there will be fewer suicides. It's that simple," said Elsa Kurz of the Geneva-based organisation Stop Suicide.

But the head of Switzerland's sport shooting association, which represents 3,000 gun clubs, said a change in the law would damage the social fabric.

"In our democracy, the clubs are a very important pillar of the community," said Dora Andres, who keeps an assault rifle at home. "If you don't have clubs, where are you going to meet and talk to people? On Facebook?"

Another vocal minority claims the vote endangers the weak federal government and Switzerland's unique system of popular rule expressed in endless referendums.

"The real purpose of this initiative is to weaken the militia army and withdraw the state's confidence in its citizens," said Markus Müller, spokesman for a group of senior Swiss military officers.

He called the proposal a leftwing conspiracy to weaken Swiss democracy. "Only a disarmed people can be oppressed. That's why we're against this," he said.

The exact number of military-issued weapons involved in Swiss suicides remains disputed, but those calling for tighter rules claim they account for between 100 and 200 a year, mostly among men. Reformers also note that since Switzerland cut the size of its army in 2004, the number of firearms suicides among men aged 30-40 has halved.

A recent poll found 47% for the proposal, with 45% opposed.

Obama to Deliver Gun-grabbing Speech Soon

Kurt Nimmo

Prior to his SOTU, it was reported Obama would mention gun control. He didn't, although he did preface his speech with a tribute to Rep. Gabrielle Giffords, the wounded Arizona representative who has become a poster child for professional gun-grabbers.

Earlier this week, legendary gun-grabber New York mayor Michael Bloomberg called for a strict national background check system and additional restrictions on gun shows.

[dohtml]<object width="640" height="390"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/Oy3zTTuXoPU&rel=0&hl=en_US&feature=player_embedded&version=3"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowScriptAccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/Oy3zTTuXoPU&rel=0&hl=en_US&feature=player_embedded&version=3" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowfullscreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" width="640" height="390"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

"President Obama tonight failed to challenge old assumptions on the need for, and political possibilities of, reducing the gun violence – which he suggested should be done two weeks ago in Tucson," complained Paul Helmke, president of the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence, the nation's largest anti-Second Amendment group.

Now administration officials say Obama will address the issue soon. In the next two weeks, Newsweek reports, the White House will unveil a brand spanking new gun control effort designed to strengthen previous anti-Second Amendment laws on the books.

The Obama White House will use the mentally deranged accused Giffords shooter, Jared Lee Loughner, to push for background checks, although in order to avoid the impression that Obama is exploiting the Arizona shooting for political gain the White House will dedicate a separate speech to the issue.

Obama's handlers expect increased activity on the issue of background checks soon. "It's a very important issue, and one I know there's going to be debate about on the Hill," Obama adviser David Plouffe told NBC News.

The NRA has remained suspiciously silent on Obama's plan to move on the Second Amendment in the coming weeks.

In the past, the NRA has teamed up with Democrats to pass gun control legislation. For instance, in the wake of the Virginia Tech shootings, the NRA worked with notorious gun-grabber Rep. Carolyn McCarthy, D-N.Y. to pass a background check bill.

Last year, McCarthy introduced The No Fly, No Buy Act (H.R. 2401), a bill that will merge the TSA's no-fly list with the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS), a point-of-sale system for determining eligibility to purchase a firearm in the United States, Guam, and Puerto Rico. It was created in November of 1993 when the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993 (Brady Act), Public Law 103-159, was signed into law. Permanent provisions of the Brady Act went into effect on November 30, 1998, and required the U.S. Attorney General to establish NICS.

The new police 'diversity' course that uses videos of Christina Aguilera and Susan Boyle

Last updated at 3:23 AM on 12th June 2011
http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-20...usan-Boyle.html

Police officers are being sent on a bizarre training course that uses video clips of singers Christina Aguilera and Susan Boyle to explain issues surrounding equality and diversity to staff.

Those attending also have to listen to a specially made-up fairy story about witches so they can better understand how to combat prejudice and discrimination.

And in a session about minority groups and harassment, the staff see images of bullying, gay kissing and a transsexual.

The equality sessions have been devised by Tayside Police in the East of Scotland, a region which is mainly rural but includes the small cities of Dundee and Perth.

The day-long course includes a session on ‘communication, stereotyping, prejudice and assumptions’ which involves staff watching a two-minute clip of Susan Boyle making her debut on Britain’s Got Talent in 2009.

Participants are reminded that judges on the ITV show initially wrote off Boyle’s chances because of her appearance.

They are then advised not to make lasting judgments about people based on their first impressions.

The same session also requires staff to listen to a four-minute fairy story called The Witches Of Glum, which is about the rivalry between the elderly King of Glum and a disfigured witch called Groga.

Susan Boyle's X Factor autobiography will teach officers about not to make lasting judgements based on first impressions

Course material says: ‘This exercise feeds on the stereotypical images many of us are familiar with from fairytales, where the wicked witch is ugly and the hero was a young prince or knight.’

A session called minority groups, harassment and bullying kicks off with a viewing of the video that accompanied Aguilera’s 2002 UK ¬

No1 hit Beautiful. It features people being bullied, a gay couple kissing and an ageing transsexual.

Last night, Conservative MP Philip Davies said: ‘The courses sound drivel – a combination of the blindingly obvious with the utterly ridiculous.

We have a situation where forces claim they have no money for proper policing but at the same time they spend thousands on equality and diversity projects.’

Tayside Police said the course was mainly for civilian staff and only a handful of officers had attended.

A spokesman added: ‘These initiatives are not about being politically correct but about being professional.’

Hurricane Ike: Curfew in Houston to deter looters

Hurricane Ike's battering of Houston has led to a week-long curfew being imposed on the Texan city.

By Graham Tibbetts

The latest storm to make land fall in the United States has left a trial of destruction almost 500 miles long as authorities impose a week long curfew. ; http://link.brightcove.com/services/link/b...bctid1795049692 http://www.brightcove.com/channel.jsp?channel=1139053637
The measure, which will run from dawn until dusk, was ordered by the authorities to deter looters and help prevent accidents on roads strewn with broken glass, fallen trees and live power lines.

America's fourth largest city is also suffering from power cuts, with three-quarters of its population without power.

Rescuers said they had saved nearly 2,000 people from waterlogged streets and shattered houses along the coast of Texas.

Many had ignored evacuation orders and tried to ride out the storm.

"I have nowhere to go," said Ldyyan Jonjocque, 61, as she waited waiting for a bus with her four Australian shepherd dogs. She wept as she told of officers rescuing her in a dump truck.

In other hard-hit towns like Orange, Bridge City and Galveston, authorities continued their door-to-door search well into the night, hoping to reach people still in their homes, many without power or supplies.

Many of those who did make it to safety boarded buses without knowing where they were going or when they could return to what might remain of their homes.

Shelters across the state attempted to find enough beds to cope with the influx of refugees.

The Red Cross reported 42,000 people were at state and Red Cross shelters Saturday night.

Officials have estimated that shortages of power and communications could last for up to a month.

The mayor of the island city of Galveston, Lyda Ann Thomas, warned residents against returning to their homes.

"We want our citizens to stay where they are. Do not come back to Galveston. You cannot live here at this time," she said.

Kathi and Paul Norton huddled inside their house in Crystal Beach until it collapsed and was swept away.

"The whole floor was just opened out," said Paul Norton, 68. Their flag pole kept the house from collapsing on top of them, giving them a few seconds to escape.

"You never know what a hurricane is like until you ride it on a staircase," said Mrs Norton, 47.

The 177mph hurricane also struck the heart of the U.S. oil industry as Ike destroyed at least 10 production platforms, officials said.

President George W. Bush made plans to visit the area on Tuesday.

Ike was downgraded to a tropical depression as it moved north. Roads were closed in Kentucky because of high winds.

As far north as Chicago, dozens of people in a suburb had to be evacuated by boat. Two million people were without power in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Of the death toll of 28, five were in Galveston, including one body found in a vehicle submerged in floodwater at the airport.

There were two other deaths in Texas and four in Louisiana, including a 16-year-old boy trapped in rising floodwaters. Several were farther inland.

Two golfers died when a tree fell on them in Tennessee. There were two deaths in Indiana; three died in Missouri. One person died in Arkansas and three in Ohio, including two motorcyclists killed when a tree toppled on them at a state park.

Ike killed more than 80 in the Caribbean before reaching the U.S.

Homeland Security Sets up Suspicionless Checkpoints Along Roads in Washington State

Published on 14-09-2008 Email To Friend Print Version

Homeland security has setup up 3 internal checkpoints on the Olympic Peninsula. These checkpoints are in addition to checkpoints at Washington Ferry docks and highway border crossings. According to the U.S. Border Patrol, it has a jurisdiction of about 100 miles from the border. This puts most of Washington state in an area where border checkpoints are authorized, including Seattle.

In August and again in the beginning of September, the Department of Homeland Security has set up suspicion-less checkpoints on the Washington peninsula. The checkpoints are in the town of Forks, at the west side of the Hood Canal bridge going east bound, and at the third near Discovery Bay on US 101. Forks is a timber town of 3,200 people that is 56 miles from the nearest ferry terminal connecting Washington to Canada. At the road checkpoints there and elsewhere, the border patrol ask drivers different types of questions to gauge their status in the U.S., including questions about citizenship. Please review this video to understand how to deal with this illegal check points:

You don't have to answer Border Patrol's questions. Ask if you are being detained.

At the end of August, about 60 people demonstrated against the Forks Border Patrol checkpoint. Edgar Ayala, a Forks High School athlete who graduated with honors in June, was arrested on August 20th at the Border Patrol checkpoint and deported to Mexico. Tanya Ward, one of the organizers of the protest, is a member of the Hoh tribe and told a reporter from the Penninsula Daily News that she felt that immigrants are treated with the same unfairness shown to Native Americans. She said, "I don't think it's right for them to be taken out of their homes when their children are here and they're not doing anything wrong."

As America collapses U.S.Government Secret Plans Revealed

A secret meeting of Congress discusses immanent martial law.

B.A. Brooks
The United American Freedom Foundation
March 13, 2008
http://dprogram.net/2008/05/21/as-america-...ed/#comment-986

On March 13th 2008 there was a secret closed door meeting of The United States House Of Representatives in Washington. In the history of The United States this is only the fourth time a secret meeting was held by the house. Even though Representatives are sworn to secrecy by House Rules XVII, some of the members were so shocked, horrified, furious, and concerned about the future of America by what was revealed to them inside the secret meeting, that they have started to leak this secret information to independent news agencies around the world. The mass media said almost nothing about the secret meeting of the House, mentioning only one of the items being discussed. (The new surveillance techniques that are going to be used by the U.S. Government to watch all American citizens). The story was first released in a newspaper out of Brisbane, Australia revealing the contents of the secret U.S. Government meeting and plans for America including all of it's citizens. Shortly there after, David J. Meyer from Last Trumpet Ministries found it and made it more available for the world to see.

Here is what was revealed:

- The imminent collapse of the U.S. Economy to occur sometime in late 2008
- The imminent collapse of the U.S. Government finances sometime in mid 2009
- The possibility of Civil War inside the United States as a result of the collapse
- The advance round-ups of "insurgent U.S. Citizens" likely to move against the government
- The detention of those rounded up at The REX 84 Camps constructed throughout the United States
- The possibility of public retaliation against members of Congress for the collapses
- The location of safe facilities for members of Congress and their families to reside during massive civil unrest
- The necessary and unavoidable merger of The U.S. with Canada and Mexico establishing The North American Union
- The issuance of a new currency called the AMERO for all three nations as an economic solution.

Except for a few hundred thousand U.S. Patriots, most Americans have no clue what has really been going on within The United States over the past 100 years, and the sad thing is that most do not want to know the truth. The further you look into the rabbit hole, the deeper it gets. Go to any currency conversion site and convert U.S. dollars to Euros so you can see for yourself the massive decline of the dollar. Look at how much money is and has been spent on the Iraq War to date, ($12 billion per month). Look at our currency and when it stopped being backed by gold.

The Federal Reserve is not federal but a private bank who does not have Americans best interests at heart. We no longer have any manufacturing really based out of America and there is no way that our economy can survive this incredible strain very much longer. The IRS strong arms every American yearly with income taxes, yet there are no laws saying an income tax is to be paid.

The CIA is involved in everything from global drug trafficking and covert military missions, to assassinations around the world and including U.S. Soil. Look at JFK for instance. It did not take long after JFK announced that he was going disband the CIA that he was shot in Texas. America's new StasiThe Department Of Homeland Security is and has been slowly eradicating our rights for a few years now. based organization called House Bill H.R. 1955/S-1959 was read by the senate and then sent to DHS for some reason, but is now back and sure to pass. Once passed, this bill introduced by Jane Harman (D/CA), will be the proverbial last nail hammered into every American patriots coffin. H.R. 4279 or the Prioritizing Resources and Organization for Intellectual Property Act of 2008 which was recently passed by the U.S. House of Representatives, will give the government draconian powers to do just this. This legislation gives the government the power to seize property that facilitates the violation of intellectual property laws. The legislation also mandates the formation of a formal Intellectual Property Enforcement Division within the office of the Deputy Attorney General to enforce this insanity…

It has been revealed that F.E.M.A. has been building internment camps all over America granting Halliburton a massive $385 million dollar construction contract to make this happen. Most of these sites only need refurbished because they are mostly closed prisons, old WW2 internment camps still intact and other facilities taken over by the government. Some people have referred to them as F.E.M.A. Death Camps where the infamous Red list/Blue Lists will be used to decide who goes where.

Whether you believe that The NWO/Illuminati/Globalization is real or not, there is a lot of proof that exposes definite plans or plots by the rich, political and religious elite to bring on an era of the end times. It is almost like some individuals are trying to make bible prophecy come true in their own sick and twisted ways. Not to mention that the world only has about 10 to 15 years of drinking water left before the wars fought for oil today will be fought for water in the near future. It has been said that these powers want to depopulate the planet of over 30% of it's human inhabitants in the coming years. Examine all of the executive orders that have been signed into place allowing the president to basically become dictator in control of all government from tribal to federal in the event of any national emergency.

If you did not know, In late 2006, Congress revised the Posse Comitatus Act and the Insurrection Act to make it far easier for a president to declare martial law. Those changes were repealed at the end of this January as part of Public Law 110-181 (HR 4986), the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 (signed into law by President Bush on January 28, 2008). Unfortunately it is not the great victory in which one might think because of the total militarization of all local and State police forces all across America.

Will there be martial law? Is martial law coming soon to America? When you see law enforcement being armed with automatic weapons, bullet proof vests and riot gear in small towns that have not had a murder or crime in years, then you have to ask yourself why.

The United States has more people locked up in prisons today than Russia and China combined. It comes out to one in every hundred Americans is behind bars. Our once great country that our ancestors fought and died for has become exactly the tyrants they were fighting. Fascists! When has America ever used words like Homeland? Never!

If you spend a few weeks reading all the info, watching the videos and following the links at The U.A.F.F., you will then have a better understanding of what has led to The Decline And Fall Of America. Remember that Knowledge is power! Learn, look, listen, read, share, prepare, train, stock up on food and water supply for one year.

Fill your pantry with non perishable foods, medicines, cooking oils, tinned meats and veggies. Flour, oats dried corn peas, beans and lentils.. Teach your self how to preserve food for storage. Check out your local potable/ drinking water supplies, non perfumed chlorine bleach is a good sterilizer for water, about 2 teaspoons full per 2 gallon bucket, stirred well and allowed to stand for at least 24 hours with a lid on it or until it no longer smells of bleach. Boiling water helps but it is not always enough to kill off the bacteria which can resist high temperatures.

Americans have been warned for years of the things to come, but have blindly looked away from the truth, which has been available for all to see. There are no more excuses not to prepare for the possible future. The time to act is now before it is too late. Check The United American Freedom Foundation for daily updates and news you won't see in the mainstream media.

Army Takes To US Streets

http://www.armytimes.com/news/2008/09/army_homeland_090708w/

The 3rd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade Combat Team has spent 35 of the last 60 months in Iraq patrolling in full battle rattle, helping restore essential services and escorting supply convoys.

Now they're training for the same mission — with a twist — at home.

Beginning Oct. 1 for 12 months, the 1st BCT will be under the day-to-day control of U.S. Army North, the Army service component of Northern Command, as an on-call federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks.

It is not the first time an active-duty unit has been tapped to help at home. In August 2005, for example, when Hurricane Katrina unleashed hell in Mississippi and Louisiana, several active-duty units were pulled from various posts and mobilized to those areas.

But this new mission marks the first time an active unit has been given a dedicated assignment to NorthCom, a joint command established in 2002 to provide command and control for federal homeland defense efforts and coordinate defense support of civil authorities.

After 1st BCT finishes its dwell-time mission, expectations are that another, as yet unnamed, active-duty brigade will take over and that the mission will be a permanent one.

“Right now, the response force requirement will be an enduring mission. How the [Defense Department] chooses to source that and whether or not they continue to assign them to NorthCom, that could change in the future,” said Army Col. Louis Vogler, chief of NorthCom future operations. “Now, the plan is to assign a force every year.”

The command is at Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs, Colo., but the soldiers with 1st BCT, who returned in April after 15 months in Iraq, will operate out of their home post at Fort Stewart, Ga., where they’ll be able to go to school, spend time with their families and train for their new homeland mission as well as the counterinsurgency mission in the war zones.

Stop-loss will not be in effect, so soldiers will be able to leave the Army or move to new assignments during the mission, and the operational tempo will be variable.

Don’t look for any extra time off, though. The at-home mission does not take the place of scheduled combat-zone deployments and will take place during the so-called dwell time a unit gets to reset and regenerate after a deployment.

The 1st of the 3rd is still scheduled to deploy to either Iraq or Afghanistan in early 2010, which means the soldiers will have been home a minimum of 20 months by the time they ship out.

In the meantime, they’ll learn new skills, use some of the ones they acquired in the war zone and more than likely will not be shot at while doing any of it.

They may be called upon to help with civil unrest and crowd control or to deal with potentially horrific scenarios such as massive poisoning and chaos in response to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-yield explosive, or CBRNE, attack.

Training for homeland scenarios has already begun at Fort Stewart and includes specialty tasks such as knowing how to use the “jaws of life” to extract a person from a mangled vehicle; extra medical training for a CBRNE incident; and working with U.S. Forestry Service experts on how to go in with chainsaws and cut and clear trees to clear a road or area.

The 1st BCT’s soldiers also will learn how to use “the first ever nonlethal package that the Army has fielded,” 1st BCT commander Col. Roger Cloutier said, referring to crowd and traffic control equipment and nonlethal weapons designed to subdue unruly or dangerous individuals without killing them.

“It’s a new modular package of nonlethal capabilities that they’re fielding. They’ve been using pieces of it in Iraq, but this is the first time that these modules were consolidated and this package fielded, and because of this mission we're undertaking we were the first to get it."

The package includes equipment to stand up a hasty road block; spike strips for slowing, stopping or controlling traffic; shields and batons; and, beanbag bullets.

"I was the first guy in the brigade to get Tasered," said Cloutier, describing the experience as "your worst muscle cramp ever — times 10 throughout your whole body.

"I'm not a small guy, I weigh 230 pounds ... it put me on my knees in seconds."

The brigade will not change its name, but the force will be known for the next year as a CBRNE Consequence Management Response Force, or CCMRF (pronounced "sea-smurf").

"I can't think of a more noble mission than this," said Cloutier, who took command in July. "We've been all over the world during this time of conflict, but now our mission is to take care of citizens at home ... and depending on where an event occurred, you're going home to take care of your home town, your loved ones."

While soldiers' combat training is applicable, he said, some nuances don't apply.

"If we go in, we're going in to help American citizens on American soil, to save lives, provide critical life support, help clear debris, restore normalcy and support whatever local agencies need us to do, so it's kind of a different role," said Cloutier, who, as the division operations officer on the last rotation, learned of the homeland mission a few months ago while they were still in Iraq.

Some brigade elements will be on call around the clock, during which time they'll do their regular marksmanship, gunnery and other deployment training. That's because the unit will continue to train and reset for the next deployment, even as it serves in its CCMRF mission.

Should personnel be needed at an earthquake in California, for example, all or part of the brigade could be scrambled there, depending on the extent of the need and the specialties involved.

Other branches included

The active Army's new dwell-time mission is part of a NorthCom and DOD response package.

Active-duty soldiers will be part of a force that includes elements from other military branches and dedicated National Guard Weapons of Mass Destruction-Civil Support Teams.

A final mission rehearsal exercise is scheduled for mid-September at Fort Stewart and will be run by Joint Task Force Civil Support, a unit based out of Fort Monroe, Va., that will coordinate and evaluate the interservice event.

In addition to 1st BCT, other Army units will take part in the two-week training exercise, including elements of the 1st Medical Brigade out of Fort Hood, Texas, and the 82nd Combat Aviation Brigade from Fort Bragg, N.C.

There also will be Air Force engineer and medical units, the Marine Corps Chemical, Biological Initial Reaction Force, a Navy weather team and members of the Defense Logistics Agency and the Defense Threat Reduction Agency.

One of the things Vogler said they'll be looking at is communications capabilities between the services.

"It is a concern, and we're trying to check that and one of the ways we do that is by having these sorts of exercises. Leading up to this, we are going to rehearse and set up some of the communications systems to make sure we have interoperability," he said.

"I don't know what America's overall plan is — I just know that 24 hours a day, seven days a week, there are soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines that are standing by to come and help if they're called," Cloutier said. "It makes me feel good as an American to know that my country has dedicated a force to come in and help the people at home."

Brigade homeland tours start Oct. 1

3rd Infantrys 1st BCT trains for a new dwell-time mission. Helping people at home may become a permanent part of the active Army
By Gina Cavallaro - Staff writer

The 3rd Infantry Divisions 1st Brigade Combat Team has spent 35 of the last 60 months in Iraq patrolling in full battle rattle, helping restore essential services and escorting supply convoys.

Now theyre training for the same mission — with a twist — at home.

Beginning Oct. 1 for 12 months, the 1st BCT will be under the day-to-day control of U.S. Army North, the Army service component of Northern Command, as an on-call federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks.

It is not the first time an active-duty unit has been tapped to help at home. In August 2005, for example, when Hurricane Katrina unleashed hell in Mississippi and Louisiana, several active-duty units were pulled from various posts and mobilized to those areas.

But this new mission marks the first time an active unit has been given a dedicated assignment to NorthCom, a joint command established in 2002 to provide command and control for federal homeland defense efforts and coordinate defense support of civil authorities.

After 1st BCT finishes its dwell-time mission, expectations are that another, as yet unnamed, active-duty brigade will take over and that the mission will be a permanent one.

Right now, the response force requirement will be an enduring mission. How the [Defense Department] chooses to source that and whether or not they continue to assign them to NorthCom, that could change in the future, said Army Col. Louis Vogler, chief of NorthCom future operations. Now, the plan is to assign a force every year.

The command is at Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs, Colo., but the soldiers with 1st BCT, who returned in April after 15 months in Iraq, will operate out of their home post at Fort Stewart, Ga., where theyll be able to go to school, spend time with their families and train for their new homeland mission as well as the counterinsurgency mission in the war zones.

Stop-loss will not be in effect, so soldiers will be able to leave the Army or move to new assignments during the mission, and the operational tempo will be variable.

Dont look for any extra time off, though. The at-home mission does not take the place of scheduled combat-zone deployments and will take place during the so-called dwell time a unit gets to reset and regenerate after a deployment.

The 1st of the 3rd is still scheduled to deploy to either Iraq or Afghanistan in early 2010, which means the soldiers will have been home a minimum of 20 months by the time they ship out.

In the meantime, theyll learn new skills, use some of the ones they acquired in the war zone and more than likely will not be shot at while doing any of it.

They may be called upon to help with civil unrest and crowd control or to deal with potentially horrific scenarios such as massive poisoning and chaos in response to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-yield explosive, or CBRNE, attack.

Training for homeland scenarios has already begun at Fort Stewart and includes specialty tasks such as knowing how to use the jaws of life to extract a person from a mangled vehicle; extra medical training for a CBRNE incident; and working with U.S. Forestry Service experts on how to go in with chainsaws and cut and clear trees to clear a road or area.

The 1st BCTs soldiers also will learn how to use the first ever nonlethal package that the Army has fielded, 1st BCT commander Col. Roger Cloutier said, referring to crowd and traffic control equipment and nonlethal weapons designed to subdue unruly or dangerous individuals without killing them.....

U.S. Troops In Homeland "Crowd Control" Patrols From October 1st

3rd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade Combat Team returning from Iraq for homeland patrols to help with "civil unrest" and "crowd control," training in use of non-lethal weapons

U.S. troops returning from duty in Iraq will be carrying out homeland patrols in America from October 1st in complete violation of Posse Comitatus for the purposes of helping with "civil unrest and crowd control" - which could include dealing with unruly Americans after a complete economic collapse.

This shocking admission was calmly reported on September 8th by the Army Times website, which reports that from the beginning of next month the 3rd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade Combat Team "Will be under the day-to-day control of U.S. Army North, the Army service component of Northern Command, as an on-call federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks."

The article notes that the deployment "marks the first time an active unit has been given a dedicated assignment to NorthCom, a joint command established in 2002 to provide command and control for federal homeland defense efforts and coordinate defense support of civil authorities."

The purpose of the unit's patrols includes helping "with civil unrest and crowd control or to deal with potentially horrific scenarios such as massive poisoning and chaos in response to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-yield explosive, or CBRNE, attack."

The unit will be on homeland patrol for at least 20 months before returning to Iraq or Afghanistan in early 2010, according to the report.

Training for homeland operations has already begun at Fort Stewart and at Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs.

Ominously, the report states that, “The 1st BCT’s soldiers also will learn how to use “the first ever nonlethal package that the Army has fielded,” 1st BCT commander Col. Roger Cloutier said, referring to crowd and traffic control equipment and nonlethal weapons designed to subdue unruly or dangerous individuals without killing them.”

The unit would also be deployed to deal with hostile crowds of Americans in the aftermath of a massive economic depression, potential food riots and race riots, if one defines the term “crowd control” to match its reasonably applicable scenarios.

The open admission that U.S. troops will be involved in law enforcement operations as well as potentially using non-lethal weapons against American citizens is a complete violation of the Posse Comitatus Act and the Insurrection Act, which substantially limit the powers of the federal government to use the military for law enforcement unless under precise and extreme circumstances.

Section 1385 of the Posse Comitatus Act states, “Whoever, except in cases and under circumstances expressly authorized by the Constitution or Act of Congress, willfully uses any part of the Army or the Air Force as a posse comitatus or otherwise to execute the laws shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.”

Under the John Warner Defense Authorization Act, signed by President Bush on October 17, 2006, the law was changed to state, “The President may employ the armed forces to restore public order in any State of the United States the President determines hinders the execution of laws or deprives people of a right, privilege, immunity, or protection named in the Constitution and secured by law or opposes or obstructs the execution of the laws of the United States or impedes the course of justice under those laws.”

However, these changes were repealed in their entirety by HR 4986: National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008, reverting back to the original state of the Insurrection Act of 1807.

The original text of the Insurrection Act severely limits the power of the President to deploy troops within the United States.

For troops to be deployed, a condition has to exist that, “(1) So hinders the execution of the laws of that State, and of the United States within the State, that any part or class of its people is deprived of a right, privilege, immunity, or protection named in the Constitution and secured by law, and the constituted authorities of that State are unable, fail, or refuse to protect that right, privilege, or immunity, or to give that protection; or (2) opposes or obstructs the execution of the laws of the United States or impedes the course of justice under those laws. In any situation covered by clause (1), the State shall be considered to have denied the equal protection of the laws secured by the Constitution.”

Is the Bush administration and Northcom waiting for such a scenario to unfold, an event that completely overwhelms state authorities, before unleashing the might of the U.S.

Army against the American people?

The deployment of National Guard troops to aid law enforcement or for disaster relief purposes is legal under the authority of the governor of a state, but using active duty U.S. Army in law enforcement operations inside America absent the conditions described in the Insurrection Act is completely illegal.

With the promise of an “October surprise” on behalf of Bin Laden and Al-Qaeda being bandied about by the media and the potential for civil unrest should a complete collapse of the U.S. economy unfold, the presence of U.S. troops inside America, returning fresh from kicking down doors, arresting “insurgents” and taking them to internment camps in Iraq, should put Americans on alert and provoke urgent questions about the legality of U.S. Army units engaging in law enforcement operations against American citizens.

Why is a U.S. Army brigade being assigned to the “Homeland”?

Glenn Greenwald

Several bloggers today have pointed to this obviously disturbing article from Army Times, which announces that "beginning Oct. 1 for 12 months, the [1st Brigade Combat Team of the 3rd Infantry Division] will be under the day-to-day control of U.S. Army North" — "the first time an active unit has been given a dedicated assignment to NorthCom, a joint command established in 2002 to provide command and control for federal homeland defense efforts and coordinate defense support of civil authorities." The article details:

QUOTE

They’ll learn new skills, use some of the ones they acquired in the war zone and more than likely will not be shot at while doing any of it.

They may be called upon to help with civil unrest and crowd control or to deal with potentially horrific scenarios such as massive poisoning and chaos in response to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-yield explosive, or CBRNE, attack. . . .

The 1st BCT’s soldiers also will learn how to use "the first ever nonlethal package that the Army has fielded," 1st BCT commander Col. Roger Cloutier said, referring to crowd and traffic control equipment and nonlethal weapons designed to subdue unruly or dangerous individuals without killing them.

"It’s a new modular package of nonlethal capabilities that they’re fielding. They’ve been using pieces of it in Iraq, but this is the first time that these modules were consolidated and this package fielded, and because of this mission we’re undertaking we were the first to get it."

The package includes equipment to stand up a hasty road block; spike strips for slowing, stopping or controlling traffic; shields and batons; and, beanbag bullets.

> "I was the first guy in the brigade to get Tasered," said Cloutier, describing the experience as "your worst muscle cramp ever — times 10 throughout your whole body". . . .
> The brigade will not change its name, but the force will be known for the next year as a CBRNE Consequence Management Response Force, or CCMRF (pronounced "sea-smurf").

For more than 100 years — since the end of the Civil War — deployment of the U.S. military inside the U.S. has been prohibited under The Posse Comitatus Act (the only exceptions being that the National Guard and Coast Guard are exempted, and use of the military on an emergency ad hoc basis is permitted, such as what happened after Hurricane Katrina). Though there have been some erosions of this prohibition over the last several decades (most perniciously to allow the use of the military to work with law enforcement agencies in the "War on Drugs"), the bright line ban on using the U.S. military as a standing law enforcement force inside the U.S. has been more or less honored — until now. And as the Army Times notes, once this particular brigade completes its one-year assignment, "expectations are that another, as yet unnamed, active-duty brigade will take over and that the mission will be a permanent one."

After Hurricane Katrina, the Bush administration began openly agitating for what would be, in essence, a complete elimination of the key prohibitions of the Posse Comitatus Act in order to allow the President to deploy U.S. military forces inside the U.S. basically at will — and, as usual, they were successful as a result of rapid bipartisan compliance with the Leader's demand (the same kind of compliance that is about to foist a bailout package on the nation). This April, 2007 article by James Bovard in The American Conservative detailed the now-familiar mechanics that led to the destruction of this particular long-standing democratic safeguard:

> The Defense Authorization Act of 2006, passed on Sept. 30, empowers President George W. Bush to impose martial law in the event of a terrorist "incident," if he or other federal officials perceive a shortfall of "public order," or even in response to antiwar protests that get unruly as a result of government provocations. . . .
>
> It only took a few paragraphs in a $500 billion, 591-page bill to raze one of the most important limits on federal power. Congress passed the Insurrection Act in 1807 to severely restrict the president's ability to deploy the military within the United States. The Posse Comitatus Act of 1878 tightened these restrictions, imposing a two-year prison sentence on anyone who used the military within the U.S. without the express permission of Congress. But there is a loophole: Posse Comitatus is waived if the president invokes the Insurrection Act.
> Section 1076 of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007 changed the name of the key provision in the statute book from "Insurrection Act" to "Enforcement of the Laws to Restore Public Order Act." The Insurrection Act of 1807 stated that the president could deploy troops within the United States only "to suppress, in a State, any insurrection, domestic violence, unlawful combination, or conspiracy." The new law expands the list to include "natural disaster, epidemic, or other serious public health emergency, terrorist attack or incident, or other condition" — and such "condition" is not defined or limited. . . .

> The story of how Section 1076 became law vivifies how expanding government power is almost always the correct answer in Washington. Some people have claimed the provision was slipped into the bill in the middle of the night. In reality, the administration clearly signaled its intent and almost no one in the media or Congress tried to stop it . . . .
> Section 1076 was supported by both conservatives and liberals. Sen. Carl Levin (D-Mich.), the ranking Democratic member on the Senate Armed Services Committee, co-wrote the provision along with committee chairman Sen. John Warner (R-Va.). Sen. Ted Kennedy openly endorsed it, and Rep. Duncan Hunter (R-Calif.), then-chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, was an avid proponent. . . .
> Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.), the ranking Democrat on the Senate Judiciary Committee, warned on Sept. 19 that "we certainly do not need to make it easier for Presidents to declare martial law," but his alarm got no response. Ten days later, he commented in the Congressional Record: "Using the military for law enforcement goes against one of the founding tenets of our democracy." Leahy further condemned the process, declaring that it "was just slipped in the defense bill as a rider with little study. Other congressional committees with jurisdiction over these matters had no chance to comment, let alone hold hearings on, these proposals."

As is typical, very few members of the media even mentioned any of this, let alone discussed it (and I failed to give this the attention it deserved at the time), but Congressional Quarterly's Jeff Stein wrote an excellent article at the time detailing the process and noted that "despite such a radical turn, the new law garnered little dissent, or even attention, on the Hill." Stein also noted that while "the blogosphere, of course, was all over it . . . a search of The Washington Post and New York Times archives, using the terms 'Insurrection Act,' 'martial law' and 'Congress,' came up empty."

Bovard and Stein both noted that every Governor — including Republicans — joined in Leahy's objections, as they perceived it as a threat from the Federal Government to what has long been the role of the National Guard. But those concerns were easily brushed aside by the bipartisan majorities in Congress, eager — as always — to grant the President this radical new power.

The decision this month to permanently deploy a U.S. Army brigade inside the U.S. for purely domestic law enforcement purposes is the fruit of the Congressional elimination of the long-standing prohibitions in Posse Comitatus (although there are credible signs that even before Congress acted, the Bush administration secretly decided it possessed the inherent power to violate the Act). It shouldn't take any efforts to explain why the permanent deployment of the U.S. military inside American cities, acting as the President's police force, is so disturbing. Bovard:

> "Martial law" is a euphemism for military dictatorship. When foreign democracies are overthrown and a junta establishes martial law, Americans usually recognize that a fundamental change has occurred. . . . Section 1076 is Enabling Act-type legislation—something that purports to preserve law-and-order while formally empowering the president to rule by decree.

The historic importance of the Posse Comitatus prohibition was also well-analyzed here.

As the recent militarization of St. Paul during the GOP Convention made abundantly clear, our actual police forces are already quite militarized. Still, what possible rationale is there for permanently deploying the U.S. Army inside the United States — under the command of the President — for any purpose, let alone things such as "crowd control," other traditional law enforcement functions, and a seemingly unlimited array of other uses at the President's sole discretion? And where are all of the stalwart right-wing "small government conservatives" who spent the 1990s so vocally opposing every aspect of the growing federal police force? And would it be possible to get some explanation from the Government about what the rationale is for this unprecedented domestic military deployment (at least unprecedented since the Civil War), and why it is being undertaken now?

UPDATE: As this commenter notes, the 2008 National Defense Authorization Act somewhat limited the scope of the powers granted by the 2007 Act detailed above (mostly to address constitutional concerns by limiting the President's powers to deploy the military to suppress disorder that threatens constitutional rights), but President Bush, when signing that 2008 Act into law, issued a signing statement which, though vague, seems to declare that he does not recognize those new limitations.

UPDATE II: There's no need to start manufacturing all sorts of scare scenarios about Bush canceling elections or the imminent declaration of martial law or anything of that sort. None of that is going to happen with a single brigade and it's unlikely in the extreme that they'd be announcing these deployments if they had activated any such plans. The point is that the deployment is a very dangerous precedent, quite possibly illegal, and a radical abandonment of an important democratic safeguard. As always with first steps of this sort, the danger lies in how the power can be abused in the future.

FEMA CONCENTRATION CAMPS: Locations and Executive Orders

http://www.sianews.com/modules.php?name=Ne...rticle&sid=1062

There over 800 prison camps in the United States, all fully operational and ready to receive prisoners. They are all staffed and even surrounded by full-time guards, but they are all empty. These camps are to be operated by FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) should Martial Law need to be implemented in the United States and all it would take is a presidential signature on a proclamation and the attorney general's signature on a warrant to which a list of names is attached. Ask yourself if you really want to be on Ashcroft's list.
The Rex 84 Program was established on the reasoning that if a "mass exodus" of illegal aliens crossed the Mexican/US border, they would be quickly rounded up and detained in detention centers by FEMA. Rex 84 allowed many military bases to be closed down and to be turned into prisons.

Operation Cable Splicer and Garden Plot are the two sub programs which will be implemented once the Rex 84 program is initiated for its proper purpose. Garden Plot is the program to control the population. Cable Splicer is the program for an orderly takeover of the state and local governments by the federal government. FEMA is the executive arm of the coming police state and thus will head up all operations. The Presidential Executive Orders already listed on the Federal Register also are part of the legal framework for this operation.

The camps all have railroad facilities as well as roads leading to and from the detention facilities. Many also have an airport nearby. The majority of the camps can house a population of 20,000 prisoners. Currently, the largest of these facilities is just outside of Fairbanks, Alaska. The Alaskan facility is a massive mental health facility and can hold approximately 2 million people.

Now let's review the justification for any actions taken...

Executive Orders associated with FEMA that would suspend the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. These Executive Orders have been on record for nearly 30 years and could be enacted by the stroke of a Presidential pen:...

EXECUTIVE ORDER 10990

allows the government to take over all modes of transportation and control of highways and seaports.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 10995

allows the government to seize and control the communication media.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 10997

allows the government to take over all electrical power, gas, petroleum, fuels and minerals.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 10998

allows the government to seize all means of transportation, including personal cars, trucks or vehicles of any kind and total control over all highways, seaports, and waterways.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 10999

allows the government to take over all food resources and farms.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11000

allows the government to mobilize civilians into work brigades under government supervision.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11001

allows the government to take over all health, education and welfare functions.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11002

designates the Postmaster General to operate a national registration of all persons.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11003 allows the government to take over all airports and aircraft, including commercial aircraft.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11004 allows the Housing and Finance Authority to relocate communities, build new housing with public funds, designate areas to be abandoned, and establish new locations for populations.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11005

allows the government to take over railroads, inland waterways and public storage facilities.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11051

specifies the responsibility of the Office of Emergency Planning and gives authorization to put all Executive Orders into effect in times of increased international tensions and economic or financial crisis.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11310

grants authority to the Department of Justice to enforce the plans set out in Executive Orders, to institute industrial support, to establish judicial and legislative liaison, to control all aliens, to operate penal and correctional institutions, and to advise and assist the President.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11049

assigns emergency preparedness function to federal departments and agencies, consolidating 21 operative Executive Orders issued over a fifteen year period.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11921

allows the Federal Emergency Preparedness Agency to develop plans to establish control over the mechanisms of production and distribution, of energy sources, wages, salaries, credit and the flow of money in U.S. financial institution in any undefined national emergency. It also provides that when a state of emergency is declared by the President, Congress cannot review the action for six months. The Federal Emergency Management Agency has broad powers in every aspect of the nation. General Frank Salzedo, chief of FEMA's Civil Security Division stated in a 1983 conference that he saw FEMA's role as a "new frontier in the protection of individual and governmental leaders from assassination, and of civil and military installations from sabotage and/or attack, as well as prevention of dissident groups from gaining access to U.S. opinion, or a global audience in times of crisis." FEMA's powers were consolidated by President Carter to incorporate the...

allows for the strategic relocation of industries, services, government and other essential economic activities, and to rationalize the requirements for manpower, resources and production facilities.

1950 Defense Production Act gives the President sweeping powers over all aspects of the economy.

Act of August 29, 1916

authorizes the Secretary of the Army, in time of war, to take possession of any transportation system for transporting troops, material, or any other purpose related to the emergency.

International Emergency Economic Powers Act enables the President to seize the property of a foreign country or national. These powers were transferred to FEMA in a sweeping consolidation in 1979.

A local police officer who was hunting and camping close to the base in the game preserve was accosted, roughed up, and warned by the English-speaking unit commander to stay away from the area. It was suggested to the officer that the welfare of his family would depend on his "silence". Located just southeast of LaPorte. Jasper-Pulaski Wildlife Area - Youth Corrections farm located here. OTHER LOCATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES
There are many other locations not listed above that are worthy of consideration as a possible detention camp site, but due to space limitations and the time needed to verify, could not be included here. Virtually all military reservations, posts, bases, stations, & depots can be considered highly suspect (because it is "federal" land). Also fitting this category are "Regional Airports" and "International Airports" which also fall under federal jurisdiction and have limited-access areas. Mental hospitals, closed hospitals & nursing homes, closed military bases, wildlife refuges, state prisons, toxic waste dumps, hotels and other areas all have varying degrees of potential for being a detention camp area. The likelihood of a site being suspect increases with transportation access to the site, including airports/airstrips, railheads, navigable waterways & ports, interstate and US highways. Some facilities are "disguised" as industrial or commercial properties, camouflaged or even wholly contained inside large buildings (Indianapolis) or factories. Many inner-city buildings left vacant during the de-industrialization of America have been quietly acquired and held, sometimes retrofitted for their new uses.

CANADA
Our Canadian friends tell us that virtually all Canadian military bases, especially those north of the 50th Parallel, are all set up with concentration camps. Not even half of these can be listed, but here are a few sites with the massive land space to handle any population:
Suffield CFB - just north of Medicine Hat, less than 60 miles from the USA.
Primrose Lake Air Range - 70 miles northeast of Edmonton.
Wainwright CFB - halfway between Medicine Hat and Primrose Lake.
Ft. Nelson - Northernmost point on the BC Railway line.
Ft. McPherson - Very cold territory ~ NW Territories. Ft. Providence - Located on Great Slave Lake. Halifax - Nova Scotia. Dept. of National Defense reserve.... And others.

OVERSEAS LOCATIONS

Guayanabo, Puerto Rico - Federal prison camp facility. Capacity unknown.
Guantanamo Bay, Cuba - US Marine Corps Base - Presently home to 30,000 Mariel Cubans and 40,000 Albanians. Total capacity unknown.

US Homeowners Soon To Be Evicted By Chinese Police Under New Law<o:p></o:p>

By: Sorcha Faal, and as reported to her Western Subscribers (Traducción al Español abajo)<o:p></o:p>

Russian economists are expressing shock today over a new <st1:country-region w:st="on"><st1:place w:st="on">United States</st1:place></st1:country-region> law that will allow for the first time in that nation's history the police forces of a foreign Nation to have law enforcement powers over their citizens.

These powers are specifically being granted to China's State Security Police who operate under the Ministry of State Security for the Peoples Republic of China by the United States as a precondition for the Chinese Governments continued purchasing of US debt as the Americans continue their desperate actions to avert their total economic collapse.

China had previously ordered its banks to halt all lending to the United States, an action that would totally cripple the American banking system, and as we can read as reported by the Reuters News Service:

“Chinese regulators have told domestic banks to stop interbank lending to U.S. financial institutions to prevent possible losses during the financial crisis, the South China Morning Post reported on Thursday.<o:p></o:p>

The Hong Kong newspaper cited unidentified industry sources as saying the instruction from the China Banking Regulatory Commission (CBRC) applied to interbank lending of all currencies to U.S. banks but not to banks from other countries.<o:p></o:p>

"The decree appears to be Beijing's first attempt to erect defences against the deepening U.S. financial meltdown after the mainland's major lenders reported billions of U.S. dollars in exposure to the credit crisis," the SCMP said.”

Not being understood by the American people is that China is the holder of over $1.4 Trillion of US debt backed by the mortgages on the homes and property of tens of millions these people which, in essence, makes the Chinese one of the largest holders of land in the United States, and which the Chinese government has stated they will protect ‘at all costs’. <o:p></o:p>

In rapid response to China’s demands that they be granted immediate access to their American properties to protect their ‘investments’, the United States is enacting a new law titled the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008, and which in Section 101, Paragraph 7:3 chillingly states:<o:p></o:p>

“Designating financial institutions as financial agents of the Federal Government, and such institutions shall perform all such reasonable duties related to this Act as financial agents of the Federal Government as may be required.”<o:p></o:p>

The United States Federal Reserve has further notified the China Development Bank, the second largest bank in Asia and the main holder of US mortgage debt instruments, that they will be designated by the US Secretary of the Treasury as one of the financial institutions protected by this extraordinary new law, and which, according to these reports, will empower Chinese policing authorities the right to act as law enforcement officers in the United States including granting them the right to evict American citizens from homes whose mortgage debt is held by China.

Unfortunately for these American people, their own public officials have totally abandoned them as the American Center for Responsive Politics has reported that the staggering amount of $2 Billion has been paid by the perpetrators of this Global financial crisis to US Lawmakers, of both political parties, to sell out their fellow countrymen as virtual economic slaves to the all powerful International corporate cartels who now rule over them.

Even worse for these people is that the plan instituted and carried out over these past 40 years to erase their true history leaves virtually none of them today with the full, and monstrous, century old plan to destroy their Nation, and which began with almost the exact same economic crisis they are experiencing today, and was called the Panic of 1907, and of which we can read:

“The Panic of 1907, also known as the 1907 Bankers' Panic, was a financial crisis which occurred in the United States when the stock market fell close to 50% from its peak in the previous year. At the time the economy was in recession and there were numerous runs on banks and trust companies. The panic's primary cause was a retraction of loans by a number of banks in New York City, and the sentiment quickly spread across the nation leading to the closures of both state and local banks and businesses.”

So shocked were the American people by the Panic of 1907 that they allowed for the first time since their Nations founding, their lawmakers to begin the process of establishing a Central Banking System, and of which one of their founding fathers, and writer of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson, warned all future generations of Americans:

“The central bank is an institution of the most deadly hostility existing against the Principles and form of our Constitution. I am an Enemy to all banks discounting bills or notes for anything but Coin. If the American People allow private banks to control the issuance of their currency, first by inflation and then by deflation, the banks and corporations that will grow up around them will deprive the People of all their Property until their Children will wake up homeless on the continent their Fathers conquered.”<o:p></o:p>

Today, and sadly, the World is now witnessing these prophetic words of Thomas Jefferson coming true.

Even worse, these American people, whose ancestors laid the foundation for what was once the greatest and freest Nation on Earth, have now been reduced to what is now commonly referred to as “sheeple”, “a term of disparagement, a portmanteau created by combining the words "sheep" and "people." It is often used to denote persons who acquiesce to authority, and thus undermine their own human individuality. The implication of sheeple is that as a collective, people believe whatever they are told, especially if told so by authority figures, without processing it to be sure that it is an accurate representation of the real world around them.”

It goes without saying, of course, that these Americans do not see themselves in this most truest of lights as they continue living their lives in near total ignorance of the greater catastrophes soon to befall them, all of which they have been, and are continued to be, warned about. But, they continue to laugh off, and spurn, these warnings as they continue to believe the lies being fed them by their propaganda media organs they never seem to realize are nothing but the mouthpieces for the fascist corporate forces delivering them to the slaughterhouses they will come to know all too soon. NWO Halloween Costumes for the Kids

http://www.infowars.com/?p=4935

Back in the day, kids dressed up like monsters, super heroes, or the Hulk… now they dress up like minions of the NWO as they go door to door and trick or treat.

I guess it's all part of getting the little ones accustomed to the police state, now barreling down on us like a runaway freight train. It's also a good way to prepare them for the jobs of the future.

I didn't see a prison guard uniform, although there is one for a prisoner.

Maybe next year…

It is often used to denote persons who acquiesce to authority, and thus undermine their own human individuality. The implication of sheeple is that as a collective, people believe whatever they are told, especially if told so by authority figures, without processing it to be sure that it is an accurate representation of the real world around them.”

It goes without saying, of course, that these Americans do not see themselves in this most truest of lights as they continue living their lives in near total ignorance of the greater catastrophes soon to befall them, all of which they have been, and are continued to be, warned about. But, they continue to laugh off, and spurn, these warnings as they continue to believe the lies being fed them by their propaganda media organs they never seem to realize are nothing but the mouthpieces for the fascist corporate forces delivering them to the slaughterhouses they will come to know all too soon. QUOTE

Can this be the proof in the pudding of what I have been trying to tell everyone? Just think for a moment. Once they get the NAFTA highway built from the west coast of Mexico all the way into Canada with the first check point at Kansas those sneaky Chinese could off load all their troops, weapons and equipment onto Mexican trucks and before you know it the south will be invaded by them and it will be too late. Of course the Vatican would love this considering most of the small amount of opposition left in this country to their new world order plans are located in the south. Go figure.

Most Correct!

The NAFTA superhighway is to be used by the coming Sino-Soviet Moslem Invaders when the partition North America. The Jesuits did the same thing to Germany usind the Autobahn.

Will Wall Street's Meltdown Turn America Into a Police State?

Failing banks? Endless war? Call Homeland Security.

By Scott Thill, AlterNet. Posted September 30, 2008.
http://www.alternet.org/story/100689/will_...a_police_state/

"Raw capitalism is dead." -- Henry Paulson, U.S. Treasury secretary

"Can't we just all go out and say things are OK?" -- President Bush, to congressional leaders during bailout negotiations

I'm not much of an Army Times reader, but after reading that a brigade was shipping from Iraq in October to serve as "an on-call federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks" in the homeland right before the election, my antennae perked up. Same as they did when I read that an electoral college doomsday scenario exists in which Dick Cheney casts the deciding vote that gives McCain-Palin the White House.

That is, if Cheney and Bush don't take it for themselves. That may sound like fantasy, but don't kill the messenger. They are all strands of the Gordian knot the Bush administration has tied around the neck of the American people for the last two presidential terms, best represented today by the failed bailout of banks, brokers and other complicit parties that have since jacked the American people out of trillions. And while the Army Times revelation or election doomsday may turn out to be paranoia rather than prescience, the evidence just isn't there.

Like I said: antennae.

They've come in handy as bullshit detectors since Bush stole the election from a flat-footed Al Gore and set about engineering the greatest transfer of public wealth into private hands in American history. If you factor in Monday's failed takeover, as well as the $5 trillion the American people now owe thanks to the "bailout" of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, not to mention the continuing hyper-expensive occupation of Iraq and so on, our citizenry is now so far in the hole that it's pointless griping about numbers. If you want one, use the figure put forth by Dennis Kucinich: half a quadrillion dollars. We have evolved past the point of economic or geopolitical reality and entered a phase of pure concept.

And all vectors of that phase point toward the conclusion that the proverbial shit has totally hit the fan -- head on, and all over again.

Meet the New Rome, Same as the Old Rome

"Franklin Roosevelt had to save capitalism from itself," Los Angeles Times business editor Tom Petruno told me as Washington Mutual and Wachovia became the latest banking dominoes to fall. "Is history repeating?"

Indeed, it is, as one could tell from the repetitive usage of loaded terms and phrases like "Great Depression," "meltdown," "apocalypse," "Armageddon" and more to describe the just-on-time cratering of the American economy. After the strange bedfellows in both parties torpedoed Bush, Bernanke and Paulson's so-called bailout, more than $1 trillion of market value in American equities disappeared in a single day. The Dow Jones average set a record for quickest suicide dive in a single day. Other indexes sunk to multiyear lows, wiping out years of value, and stocks across the board went negative like Ann Coulter. In fact, the only major stock that actually advanced on Monday was Campbell Soup.

Can there be a more fitting metaphor for the American economy stuck beneath the Bush administration's thumb?

But the reruns, and their loaded terminology, are merging: Bush himself is just another iteration of the infamous "New World Order" instituted by his father while trying to, what else, convince the American public that it needed to go to war against Saddam Hussein. The revisionism is transparent, befitting a government that cares nothing of what its people actually think. Jon Stewart of "The Daily Show" recently juxtaposed Bush's address on the financial cataclysm with his pre-invasion speech in 2003 and found -- surprise! -- they were exactly the same.

This is a long way of saying that this particularly frightening crux of historical geopolitics, fascism and environmental calamity has been a long time coming. Failing banks? Deregulation. Endless war? Homeland security. Total information awareness? Transparent government. Bankrupt economy? The fundamentals are strong.

"Here's my question," Petruno adds. "If this is remembered as Black September, will that end up being too gentle a reference to what actually happened to the American financial system this month? It is beyond comprehension for people who have been on Wall Street their entire lives. I can only imagine how absolutely stunned the American public must be. Stunned, and very afraid."

It should be. From a military brigade armed for action in the homeland in blatant transgression of Posse Comitatus to what ex-hedge funder and financial personality Jim Cramer recently called "financial terrorism," the United States is pushing forward back.

To start with, the bailout was obvious theft, but our situation is more precarious than you think. The hyperreal credit default swap market, which few understand although it is estimated to involve tens if not hundreds of global trillions, is faltering under the weight of its own Ponzi origins. The scenario significantly worsens once you factor in the given that countries like China and others who have denominated their loans in dollars are shouldering our exploding debt, along with oil-soaked sovereign wealth funds from nations whose civil liberties records suck ass. As I wrote last year on this clusterfuck, if the Chinese call in our debts and oil-producing countries decide to peg their petrodollars to the euro, you can more or less kiss the dollar goodbye. Which means the last thing you'll need to worry about is your stocks, retirement or credit cards. You will instead worry whether or not the cash you have on hand will be worth anything at all. That is the loaded gun that bankers, brokers and the White House is holding to the public's head, as I write. That trillion erased on Monday, as well as the trillions that have been lost and will be lost in the coming months, was nothing more than a hostage situation engineered by the Bush administration, the Federal Reserve and their partners in crime in finance, insurance and real estate business.

They don't call that sector FIRE for nothing. Fire destroys everything and leaves little in its catastrophic wake. Which raises the question: What's left to burn?

"I think our economic situation can get much worse," argues Danny Schechter, the veteran producer and author whose 2006 indie documentary "In Debt We Trust" covered this volatile territory long before CNN would. "Jobless claims are already at a seven-year high, but the government is worried about the reaction from Asia. We are living on other countries' money, and when that spigot gets cut off, we will be in deeper doo-doo. Part of the reason for the scale of the bailout is to show Asia and sovereign wealth funds that we will protect their interests."

But for how long? The Bush administration and Congress' disdain for the American people has been painfully obvious, so it's hard to believe they will call from sky-high Dubai to see how we are doing after making off with almost all of our money.

"It's a high-stakes gamble, which is why Paulson tried to do it quickly in a climate of shock and crisis," Shechter says. "He knew that the longer it takes, the more opposition it will attract. This plan, if eventually passed, will pre-empt the next president from doing anything about it, because there will be no money. They are wrecking the government by wrecking the economy first."

That shock doctrine, as Naomi Klein explained in her brilliant book of the same name, has foisted this same kind of disaster capitalism on country after country over the last century. Klein's book is littered with democracies that slept their way through coups and takeovers, entranced by one simulation or another. The United States was plugged into a matrix that onetime White House press secretary Ari Fleischer described as "an American way of life," adding without deceit that "it should be the goal of policy makers to protect the American way of life."

By destroying it? Mission accomplished.

"This is the September of surprise," Schechter concluded, "not a war on Iran but on America."

Civil War, the Rerun?

So, what's the next step for the shoe yet to drop? Perhaps the Army Times has the clues:

(The brigade) may be called upon to help with civil unrest and crowd control or to deal with potentially horrific scenarios such as massive poisoning and chaos in response to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-yield explosive, or CBRNE, attack. ... The 1st BCT's soldiers also will learn how to use "the first ever nonlethal package that the Army has fielded," 1st BCT commander Col. Roger Cloutier said, referring to crowd and traffic control equipment and nonlethal weapons designed to subdue unruly or dangerous individuals without killing them.

Like every move the Bush administration has ever made, from the Patriot Act to the occupation of Iraq and down to bankrupting the American economy, this maneuver is a solution in search of a problem that it seems destined to create. Look around you. Housing is over. Stocks are nosediving. The banks are gone. War is ceaseless. Civil liberties are disappearing. Nerds at the Federal Reserve and the Treasury are taking hostages. It is madness.

And mad people have a tendency to infect everyone around them. The difference is that when you go mad ... well, that's the question mark: What will happen?

Ask the late Iman Morales, who went crazy in Brooklyn on a ledge 10 feet above ground and was illegally tasered by New York police officers, eventually falling to his death, immobilized. A perfect metaphor for our economy, sure, but it's also the type of literal shock we might be awaiting, as the November election creeps nearer and shit begins to hit the fan with ferocity. Many of us so-called alternative journos are not conspiracy nuts, but realists. We look at galvanizing leaders like Barack Obama, America's next president, and compare his impact to that of Lincoln, Kennedy or King -- without forgetting that all three were eventually assassinated. We are the type of realists who live through two Bush presidents, both of whom configured a New World Order, with and without the approval of the American people and the world at large. The type of realists that notice that after 9/11, we couldn't fly to Vegas, but Osama bin Laden's family was flown out of the country on government charter.

And here is what we see today: Crowds protesting in the streets, the people's money wiped out thanks to the Bush administration's latest economic shock and awe. An army brigade matter-of-factly betraying Posse Comitatus for the purpose of crowd control. The public trust and wealth almost robbed cleanly with congressional approval.

In other words, we see another unfolding coup, which is to say, a rerun. And there is no telling what the future may hold, or whether or not we are connecting vectors that should remain solitary. But our math has worked just fine in the past -- better than Ben Bernanke and Henry Paulson's math, that's for sure.

And we'd love to be wrong about what's coming. But unfortunately that isn't up to us, and it never has been: It's up to the Bush administration. And it has never failed to let us down.

U.S. ARMY TROOPS TO SERVE AS U.S. POLICEMEN?

By Chuck Baldwin
October 1, 2008
NewsWithViews.com

According to the Army Times (dated Tuesday, September 30, 2008), "Beginning Oct. 1 for 12 months, the 1st BCT [Brigade Combat Team] will be under the day-to-day control of U. S. Army North, the Army service component of Northern Command, as an on-call federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks."

The article continued by saying, "But this new mission marks the first time an active unit has been given a dedicated assignment to NorthCom, a joint command established in 2002 to provide command and control for federal homeland defense efforts and coordinate defense support of civil authorities.

"After 1st BCT finishes its dwell-time mission, expectations are that another, as yet unnamed, active-duty brigade will take over and that the mission will be a permanent one."

The Times column also reported that the Army brigade "may be called upon to help with civil unrest and crowd control . . ." It seems that the Army's new domestic duties also include "traffic control" as well as subduing "unruly or dangerous individuals."

The brigade will be known for the next year as a Consequence Management Response Force, or CCMRF (pronounced "sea-smurf").

I am assuming that the planners and promoters of this newfound function for the Army brigade envision the Army assisting local first responders in dealing with natural emergencies such as hurricanes, earthquakes, and the like. Good intentions notwithstanding, to assign domestic police duties to the U.S. military is extremely disturbing.

To understand my concern for this new "homeland Army brigade," it is important that we rehearse the principles of liberty as they relate to standing armies.

One of America's most sacred principles has always been that the U.S. military was never to be used for domestic law enforcement. The fear of standing armies ran very deep in the hearts and minds of America's founders. The tyranny and misery inflicted upon the colonies by British troops weighed heavily upon those who drafted our Constitution and Bill of Rights. In their minds, the American people would never again be subjected to the heavy weight of army boots. Furthermore, they insisted that America would have a civilian--not military--government.

And after the fiasco of the abuse of federal troops in the South following the War Between the States, the doctrine of Posse Comitatus was enacted into law. The Wikipedia online encyclopedia says this about Posse Comitatus:

"The Act prohibits most members of the federal uniformed services ... from exercising nominally state law enforcement police or peace officer powers that maintain 'law and order' on non-federal property. . . .

"The statute generally prohibits federal military personnel and units of the United States National Guard under federal authority from acting in a law enforcement capacity within the United States, except where expressly authorized by the Constitution or Congress. . . .

"The Posse Comitatus Act and the Insurrection Act substantially limit the powers of the federal government to use the military for law enforcement."

The Posse Comitatus Act was passed in 1878 and was universally accepted as being a very just--and extremely important--law of the land.

Advertisement

But in 2006, President George W. Bush pushed a Republican-controlled Congress to pass the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007, which included a section titled "Use of the Armed Forces in major public emergencies." This section provided that "The President may employ the armed forces to restore public order in any State of the United States the President determines...." In effect, this bill obliterated Posse Comitatus.

When the Democrat-controlled Congress passed the 2008 National Defense Authorization Act, however, the restrictions of Posse Comitatus were restored. But when President Bush signed the Act into law, he attached a signing statement (Executive Order) indicating that the Executive Branch did not feel bound by the changes enacted by the repeal. Translated: President Bush wiped out Posse Comitatus by Executive Order.

Now, just a few months after expunging Posse Comitatus, President Bush has authorized an Army brigade to be assigned the new role of dealing exclusively with domestic law enforcement and related duties. This evokes serious questions.

Who will give the order to send U.S. troops against American civilians, and under what circumstances? What will the rules of engagement be? How will "unruly" and "dangerous" be defined? How will soldiers be asked to deal with "crowd" or "traffic" control? And perhaps the biggest question is, Once we begin to go down this road, where will it lead?

For several years, the federal government has been accumulating to itself more and more authority that was historically understood to reside within the states and local communities. More and more, our police departments have taken on the image and tactics of the armed forces. And to a greater and greater degree, the rights and liberties of the American people are being sacrificed on the altar of "national security." It seems to me that to now ascribe law enforcement duties to the U.S. Army only serves to augment the argument that America is fast approaching police state status.

If Hurricane Katrina is the template that our federal government is using as a model for future events, Heaven help us! Do readers remember how National Guard troops were used to confiscate the personal firearms of isolated and vulnerable civilians shortly after that hurricane devastated the New Orleans area? Do you remember how representatives of the federal government were calling upon pastors and ministers to act as spokesmen for gun confiscation? Is this what the new Army brigade is preparing for? And do President Bush and his military planners envision an even broader role for military troops on American soil?

Add to the above rumors of thousands of plastic caskets--along with thousands of portable prison cells--being shipped and stored across the country, and one is left to ask, Exactly what is it that our federal government is planning?

I think there is an even bigger question, What exactly will members of our armed forces do if and when they are commanded to seize Americans' firearms, arrest them at gun point, or even fire upon them? How many soldiers and Marines love liberty and constitutional government enough to resist such orders, should they be given? And how many officers would resist issuing such orders?

Remember, it is the job of the armed forces to kill people and blow up things, not to do police work. Then again, Presidential administrations from both major parties have been using the U.S. military as U.N. "peacekeepers" for decades now. So, was all of this preparation for what is yet to take place in the United States?

God forbid that any of the above should actually take place in our beloved land, but I believe it would be naïve to not see that the actions and attitudes of the federal government over the past several years do nothing to assuage such fears.

There's No Difference Between Martial Law and the Threat of Martial Law

Friday, October 3, 2008
http://georgewashington2.blogspot.com/2008...en-martial.html

If a bully threatens to beat up a skinny kid if he doesn't give him his lunch money, and the bully doesn't have to follow through because the kid does fork it over, does that mean that the aggressive kid isn't a bully?

Of course not. He's a bully because he threatened to beat up the skinny kid and used coercion to get his way.

Well, Congressman Sherman said that congress was threatened with martial law this week. Specifically, he says that Congress was told martial law would be imposed if they didn't pass the Paulson bailout proposal.

Martial law means that the separation of powers which the Founding Fathers enshrined in the Constitution are destroyed, and an all-powerful executive branch calls the shots.

Is the threat of imposing martial law any different than actually imposing it?

No. Congress is just like the skinny kid.

Just because it forked over $700 billion or more in our lunch money based upon coercion by the thugs in the executive branch doesn't mean that the thugs are still following the separation of powers or anything else in the Constitution.

Remember that, for years, Congress has operated under "martial law" provisions which force Congress members to vote on legislation without having time to adequately read and review it.

Remember also that the U.S. has been in a declared state of national emergency for 7 years, and normal constitutional provisions were probably long ago superseded.

As University of California Berkeley Professor Emeritus Peter Dale Scott has warned:

"The systems of checks and balances established by the U.S. Constitution would seem to be failing.

To put it another way, if the White House is successful in frustrating [Congress' requests], then [the declared state of emergency] has arguably already superseded the Constitution as a higher authority."

And remember that U.S. troops are being stationed inside the U.S. to suppress "civil unrest".

Whether or not there is martial law in name, there is martial law in fact.

Chinese Police Units Begin Entering US To Protect Assets <o:p></o:p>

By: Sorcha Faal, and as reported to her Western Subscribers  (Traducción

al Español abajo)<o:p></o:p>

Reports circulating in the Kremlin today are stating that the first deployment of China's elite People's Armed Police (PAP) under an agreement signed between the United States and China, and as we had previously reported on in our September 20th report "US Homeowners Soon To Be Evicted By Chinese Police Under New Law", have arrived in America and begun to deploy to protect Chinese assets in this now insolvent First-World country.

Unbeknownst to the American people, however, is that since September 20th, the $700 billion bailout bill signed into law by their President yesterday was expanded from its original 3 pages to a 451 page virtual novel of new laws virtually enslaving them to the foreign holders of their debt.

Even more disturbing, these reports continue, are that these new laws not only give Chinese and European banks control over the mortgage debt of the American people, they now include their credit card balances, and which virtually the entire US populace have indebtedness to.

To how utterly chilling this new <st1:country-region w:st="on"><st1:place w:st="on">US</st1:place></st1:country-region> law for the American people, titled the "Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008", Russian legal experts point out in these reports that:<o:p></o:p>

"Section 101 (a)(1) establishes what is termed the Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP) to which substantial portions of what the American people currently owe to their banks and financial institutions is to be turned over the US Government for redistribution to foreign banks.<o:p></o:p>

Section

101(c)(3) Designates for the first time in American history these foreign banks as financial agents of Federal Government with full law enforcement authority over the citizens in the <st1:place w:st="on"><st1:country-region w:st="on">US</st1:country-region></st1:place>.<o:p></o:p>

Section 3 (B) allows the US Secretary of the Treasury to put any kind of debt, including credit card, home loans, personal loans, automobile loans, etc., into the TARP programme.<o:p></o:p>

Section 112 allows the <st1:country-region w:st="on"><st1:place w:st="on">US</st1:place></st1:country-region>
Secretary of the Treasury to astoundingly extend financing to foreign banks to purchase the debt of the American people.<o:p></o:p>

Section 112 (1)(a) allows the US Government to hold stocks in companies for the first time in their history and which completely destroys the capitalist economy of their Nation.<o:p></o:p>

But, these reports warn, the two most chilling measures put into this new law are titled “Section 511 "Paul Wellstone and Pete Domenici Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008” and “TITLE II-SPECIAL PROJECTS ON FEDERAL LAND Section 201”.<o:p></o:p>

The new mental health provisions contained in these new laws allows the United States to label dissident citizens as being ‘mentally ill’, and the ‘Special Projects’ section allows for the reimbursement to US cities and counties for the building of concentration camps for these mentally ill dissidents.<o:p></o:p>

The fear of the United States Government against their dissidents is becoming more evident as many of them are beginning to sound the alarm of events to come, and as we can see evidenced by one such report from the SteveQuale.Com website:<o:p></o:p>

 “THERE IS STRONG INDICATION THAT A "BANK HOLIDAY" UNDER A DECLARATION OF AN

NorthCom Denies Troops To Be Used For Crowd Control

Published on 02-10-2008 Email To Friend Print Version
http://prisonplanet.com/

Following the alarming admission that active duty U.S. Army would be on call to deal with "civil unrest" inside the United States from October 1st, the US Northern Command (USNORTHCOM) has publicly denied that troops will engage in law enforcement duties, but concedes that forces will be armed with both non-lethal and lethal weapons as well as having access to tanks.

The use of U.S. troops in law enforcment duties is a complete violation of the Posse Comitatus Act and the Insurrection Act, which substantially limit the powers of the federal government to use the military for law enforcement unless under precise and extreme circumstances.

As we highlighted last week, a September 8 Army Times report stated that active duty troops from the 3rd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade Combat Team returning from Iraq would be on call as a "federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks," for a period of 12 months from October 1st.

The purpose of the unit's patrols, according to the article, includes helping "with civil unrest and crowd control or to deal with potentially horrific scenarios such as massive poisoning and chaos in response to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-yield explosive, or CBRNE, attack."

However, a NorthCom official, presumably responding to reports featured on this website and others, publicly denies that troops will be used to police Americans.

"This response force will not be called upon to help with law enforcement, civil disturbance or crowd control, but will be used to support lead agencies involved in saving lives, relieving suffering and meeting the needs of communities affected by weapons of mass destruction attacks, accidents or even natural disasters," Army Col. Michael Boatner, USNORTHCOM future operations division chief, told Homeland Security Today.

We also learn that the troops will be under the operational control of USNORTHCOM's Joint Force Land Component Command under US Army North, headquartered in San Antonio, Texas. The operational headquarters of the response force is at Fort Monroe, Virginia.

The original Army Times report also stated that the use of non-lethal weapons against Americans would be a possibility, but a retraction has now been issued stating that the forces would not use nonlethal weaponry domestically.

However, Democracy Now's Amy Goodman was told by Air Force Lt. Col. Jamie

Goodpaster, a public affairs officer for Northern Command, that “Military forces would have weapons on-site, “containerized,” she said — that is, stored in containers — including both lethal and so-called nonlethal weapons. They would have mostly wheeled vehicles, but would also, she said, have access to tanks. She said that use of weapons would be made at a higher level, perhaps at the secretary of defense level.”

As Goodman writes in an editorial for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, “Talk of trouble on U. S. streets is omnipresent now, with the juxtaposition of Wall Street and Main Street. The financial crisis we face remains obscure to most people; titans of business and government officials assure us that the financial system is “on the brink,” that a massive bailout is necessary, immediately, to prevent a disaster. Conservative and progressive members of Congress, at the insistence of constituents, blocked the initial plan. If the economy does collapse, if people can’t go down to the bank to withdraw their savings, or get cash from an ATM, there may be serious “civil unrest,” and the “sea-smurfs” may be called upon sooner than we imagine to assist with “crowd control.”

The use of U.S. troops in law enforcment duties is a complete violation of the Posse Comitatus Act and the Insurrection Act, which substantially limit the powers of the federal government to use the military for law enforcement unless under precise and extreme circumstances.

Section 1385 of the Posse Comitatus Act states, “Whoever, except in cases and under circumstances expressly authorized by the Constitution or Act of Congress, willfully uses any part of the Army or the Air Force as a posse comitatus or otherwise to execute the laws shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.”

Under the John Warner Defense Authorization Act, signed by President Bush on October 17, 2006, the law was changed to state, “The President may employ the armed forces to restore public order in any State of the United States the President determines hinders the execution of laws or deprives people of a right, privilege, immunity, or protection named in the Constitution and secured by law or opposes or obstructs the execution of the laws of the United States or impedes the course of justice under those laws.”

However, these changes were repealed in their entirety by HR 4986: National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008, reverting back to the original state of the Insurrection Act of 1807. Despite this repeal, President Bush attached a signing statement saying that he did not feel bound by the repeal.

The original text of the Insurrection Act severely limits the power of the President to deploy troops within the United States.

For troops to be deployed, a condition has to exist that, “(1) So hinders the execution of the laws of that State, and of the United States within the State, that any part or class of its people is deprived of a right, privilege, immunity, or protection named in the Constitution and secured by law, and the constituted authorities of that State are unable, fail, or refuse to protect that right, privilege, or immunity, or to give that protection; or (2) opposes or obstructs the execution of the laws of the United States or impedes the course of justice under those laws. In any situation covered by clause (1), the State shall be considered to have denied the equal protection of the laws secured by the Constitution."

My mom lives in Monmouth, NJ so I'm wondering if there is a Fort Monmouth as well, I'll have to send her this video to see if she's seen any of this. I saw yesterday going to work at a little army base that is like 5 minutes or so from my house those humvees with the sound weapons on the back that their using in Iraq and have at huge protests. The ones that give off energy to make you feel like your skin is burning. The satellite dishes were round and not square like most of them are but I saw several soldiers I guess cleaning them up. I should have found a camera to take a picture or something.

Secret Bush Administration Plan to Suspend US Constitution

Tom Burghardt
October 7, 2008
http://antifascist-calling.blogspot.com/20...ated-armys.html

Ten months before the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld approved an updated version of the U.S. Army's secret operational Continuity of Government (COG) plans.

A draft document published by the whistleblowing website Wikileaks entitled, "Army Regulation 500-3, Emergency Employment of Army and Other Resources. Army Continuity of Operations (COOP) Program," dated 19 January 2001, spells out changes in Army doctrine.

Issued by Headquarters, Department of the Army and signed off by Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and the Secretary of the Army, the document is affixed with a warning: "Destruction Notice: Destroy by any method that will prevent disclosure of contents or reconstruction of the document." The restricted document as published by Wikileaks states:

History. This regulation is a revision of the original regulation that was effective on 10 July 1989. Since that time, no changes have been published to amend the original.

Summary. This regulation on the Army Continuity of Operations (COOP) Program has been revised to update Army COOP policy and extend the requirement for all-hazards COOP planning to all Army organizations. Classified information contained in the 1989 version of this AR has been removed and placed in a classified HQDA Operations Plan (OPLAN).

Applicability. This regulation applies to the Active Army, the U.S. Army Reserve (USAR), and when federalized to the Army National Guard (ARNG). In the event of conflict between this regulation and approved OSD or JCS publications, the provisions of the latter will apply. ("Army Regulation 500-3, Emergency Employment of Army and Other Resources. Army Continuity of Operations (COOP) Program," 19 January 2001, p. 3) [emphasis added]

"All-hazards COOP planning" is described as the means by which "the Army remains capable of continuing mission-essential operations during any situation, including military attack, terrorist activities, and natural or man-made disasters." While the Army stresses the updates described in AR 500-3 relate to chemical, biological, nuclear attacks, "natural disasters" and "technical or man-made disasters or accidents," current Army doctrine is also heavily weighted towards contingency planning for "civil disturbances."

Two national "civil disturbance" plans, Garden Plot and Cable Splicer have been operational since the 1960s. Researcher Frank Morales has detailed how,

Under the heading of "civil disturbance planning," the U.S. military is training troops and police to suppress democratic opposition in America. The master plan, Department of Defense Civil Disturbance Plan 55-2, is code-named, "Operation Garden Plot". Originated in 1968, the "operational plan" has been updated over the last three decades, most recently in 1991, and was activated during the Los Angeles "riots" of 1992, and more than likely during the recent anti-WTO "Battle in Seattle." …

Equipped with flexible "military operations in urban terrain" and "operations other than war" doctrine, lethal and "less-than-lethal" high-tech weaponry, US "armed forces" and

"elite" militarized police units are being trained to eradicate "disorder", "disturbance" and "civil disobedience" in America. Further, it may very well be that police/military "civil disturbance" planning is the animating force and the overarching logic behind the incredible nationwide growth of police paramilitary units, a growth which coincidentally mirrors rising levels of police violence directed at the American people, particularly "non-white" poor and working people. (Frank Morales, "U.S. Military Civil Disturbance Planning: The War at Home," in Police State America, ed. Tom Burghardt, Toronto/Montreal: Arm The Spirit/Solidarity, 2002, P. 59)

AR 500-3 should be viewed in this context. Plans for Continuity of Government have been in place since the 1950s. Originally conceived during the Cold War when fears of a nuclear strike envisaged by atomic war-gamers at the RAND Corporation, believed that an immobilization of government functions and a breakdown of civilian rule would follow a nuclear attack. But from their inception, COG planning has been shrouded in secrecy.

In addition to constructing nuclear-proof underground facilities where the civilian leadership could escape a decapitation strike, other COG provisions included a series of executive orders designating which officials would assume Cabinet-level posts and other Executive Branch positions. Officials so designated would constitute a "shadow government" should office holders be killed in an attack "or otherwise incapacitated."

However, when these and other Pentagon "civil disturbance" plans surfaced in the 1980s during the Iran-Contra hearings, they were roundly criticized by members of Congress, civil liberties groups and the media before disappearing once again, down Orwell’s "memory hole." The inherent dangers implicit in such plans are that unelected Executive Branch officers could assume the Presidency and other appointed offices subject neither to congressional scrutiny nor judicial oversight.

Exercising sweeping emergency powers buried within Presidential Decision Directives (PDDs), unelected officials could suspend the Constitution, declare martial law and create an Executive Branch dictatorship that rests solely on the power of the U.S. military.

Most troubling, Executive Branch officials under secret rules of a COG regime could suppress and usurp the lawful powers of Congress and the Judicial Branch (by force of arms if deemed necessary) as a means of ensuring "cooperation" under a "unitary executive."

As we have seen, the "unitary executive" theory has been a salient feature of Bushist rule since the December 2000 judicial coup d’état, when the Supreme Court’s Bush v. Gore decision handed a contested election to George W. Bush by stopping the vote count in Florida.

Since assuming office, the administration has ruthlessly wielded executive power in order to achieve their antidemocratic agenda: from the looting of the economy through "deregulation," massive deficit spending and tax cuts for their corporate "clients," to waging a preemptive war of conquest in Iraq, the "unitary executive" has systematically shredded America's constitutional system of checks and balances.

The Bush administration put COG plans into operation for the first time in U.S. history in the hours directly following the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks. They have never been rescinded.

Their implementation involves a rotating staff of 75-150 senior government officials and others from every Cabinet department in two "secure, undisclosed locations" on the East Coast. However, key congressional representatives have been kept out of the loop and House and Senate leaders have said they were not informed the "shadow government" had "gone live."

So secretive are Bush administration plans that Peter DeFazio (D-OR), a member of the House Committee on Homeland Security, was denied access in 2007 to the classified version of the COG plans contained in top secret Presidential Decision Directive annexes. This too, is unprecedented.

While the Bush administration admitted that COG was activated in 2001, their disclosure came only after The Washington Post broke the story based on confidential administration sources troubled by the scope of the program and its secretive implementation.

Since the late 1980s, Rumsfeld was a habitué of COG exercises along with Vice President Dick Cheney. Indeed early COG drills had been organized by the right-wing Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS). As investigative journalist Andrew Cockburn revealed in his definitive political biography of the former Defense Secretary:

This highly secret program was known as Project 908, and among the individuals earmarked to take power when disaster struck was Donald Rumsfeld. … There, for several days, he would be immured in artificial caverns, staring at electronic displays streaming data of disaster and confusion, sleeping on cots and subsisting on the most austere rations. …

Insofar as the COG games gave the illusion of reality, they taught Rumsfeld and his fellow players some dangerous lessons, particularly when the fall of the Soviet Union induced some changes in the usual scenarios. Although the exercises continued, still budgeted at over $200 million in the Clinton era, the vanished Soviets were now customarily replaced by terrorists. The terrorism envisaged however, was almost always state-sponsored. …

There were other changes, too. In earlier times the specialists selected to run the "shadow government" had been drawn from across the political spectrum, Democrats and Republicans alike. But now, down in the bunkers, Rumsfeld found himself in politically congenial company, the players' roster being filled almost exclusively with Republican hawks. (Andrew Cockburn, Rumsfeld: His Rise, Fall, and Catastrophic Legacy, New York: Scribner, 2007, pp. 85-86, 88)

As researcher Peter Dale Scott revealed, in early 2006 the Department of Homeland Security awarded a $385 million contract to a Halliburton subsidiary, KBR, to provide "temporary detention and processing facilities." Scott wrote,

The contract–announced Jan. 24 by the engineering and construction firm KBR–calls for preparing for "an emergency influx of immigrants, or to support the rapid development of new programs" in the event of other emergencies, such as "a natural disaster." The release offered no details about where Halliburton was to build these facilities, or when. …

After 9/11, new martial law plans began to surface similar to those of FEMA in the 1980s. In January 2002 the Pentagon submitted a proposal for deploying troops on American streets. One month later John Brinkerhoff, the author of the 1982 FEMA memo, published an article arguing for the legality of using U.S. troops for purposes of domestic security. (Peter Dale Scott, "Homeland Security Contracts for Vast New Detention Camps," Pacific News Service, February 8, 2006)

The DHS contract to KBR had been preceded by the April 2002 creation of the Pentagon's Northern Command (NORTHCOM), specifically empowered by the Bush administration for domestic U.S. military operations in direct violation of Posse Comitatus prohibitions forbidding the use of the military for domestic law enforcement. At the time, Defense Secretary Rumsfeld called NORTHCOM's launch "the most sweeping set of changes since the unified command system was set up in 1946."

Sweeping indeed! Last month Army Times reported that the Army's "3rd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade Combat Team [BCT] has spent 35 of the last 60 months in Iraq patrolling in full battle rattle, helping restore essential services and escorting supply convoys. Now they're training for the same mission–with a twist–at home." According to Army Times, Beginning Oct. 1 for 12 months, the 1st BCT will be under the day-to-day control of U.S. Army North, the Army service component of Northern Command, as an on-call federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks. …

But this new mission marks the first time an active unit has been given a dedicated assignment to NorthCom, a joint command established in 2002 to provide command and control for federal homeland defense efforts and coordinate defense support of civil authorities. …

They may be called upon to help with civil unrest and crowd control or to deal with potentially horrific scenarios such as massive poisoning and chaos in response to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-yield explosive, or CBRNE, attack. …

The 1st BCT's soldiers also will learn how to use "the first ever nonlethal package that the Army has fielded," 1st BCT commander Col. Roger Cloutier said, referring to crowd and traffic control equipment and nonlethal weapons designed to subdue unruly or dangerous individuals without killing them.

"It's a new modular package of nonlethal capabilities that they're fielding. They've been using pieces of it in Iraq, but this is the first time that these modules were consolidated and this package fielded, and because of this mission we're undertaking we were the first to get it."

The package includes equipment to stand up a hasty road block; spike strips for slowing, stopping or controlling traffic; shields and batons; and, beanbag bullets. (Gina Cavallaro, "Brigade Homeland Tours Start Oct. 1," Army Times, September 8, 2008)

While senior Pentagon brass have downplayed the significance of deploying a BCT that has taken part in aggressive occupation duties to suppress the Iraqi people's resistance, Col. Lou Vogler, NORTHCOM's chief of future operations said in an interview that the military "will integrate with law enforcement to understand the situation and make sure we're aware of any threats." An article published by the Army News Service disclosed,

During the exercise, commanders and staff of the force will train, rehearse and exercise–from academic classes to making decisions and executing orders–all to help prepare them for the mission they will assume on Oct. 1, said Vogler.

"It's an opportunity for network building in an unprecedented assignment of forces," said [Marine Corps Lt. Col.] Shores. "DOD always had allocated contingency sourced forces–but this is precedent-setting network building with the forces that we ultimately will go out and execute with. It's an opportunity to get to know our forces, to see them in execution, to mission-orient them and be that much better–to be that much more responsive."

One goal of the exercise is to exercise with partners from the civilian agencies they would support. To that end, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and other interagency representatives are participating to ensure integration with civilian consequence managers who would lead a response, said Vogler.

"The overall federal response builds on the local and state response in accordance with the incident command system and existing plans and processes that are out there," said Vogler. "The response force would supplement local efforts." ("Consequence Management Response Force to join Army Northern Command," Army News Service, September 15, 2008)

Vogler and Shores were discussing an exercise code-named Vibrant Response, that took place September 8-19 at Fort Stewart in Georgia. Three brigades form the core of NORTHCOM's Consequence Management Response Force: the 1st Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Army Division; the 1st Medical Brigade, Fort Hood, Texas, and the 82nd Combat Aviation Brigade, Fort Bragg, North Carolina. All three units participated in Vibrant Response.

As researcher and analyst Michel Chossudovsky comments:

The BCT is an army combat unit designed to confront an enemy within a war theater.

With US forces overstretched in Iraq, why would the Pentagon decide to undertake this redeployment within the USA, barely one month before the presidential elections?

The new mission of the 1st Brigade on US soil is to participate in "defense" efforts as well as provide "support to civilian authorities".

What is significant in this redeployment of a US infantry unit is the presumption that North America could, in the case of a national emergency, constitute a "war theater" thereby justifying the deployment of combat units.

The new skills to be imparted consist in training 1st BCT in repressing civil unrest, a task normally assumed by civilian law enforcement.

What we are dealing with is a militarization of civilian police activities in derogation of the Posse Comitatus Act. ("Pre-election Militarization of the North American Homeland. US Combat Troops in Iraq repatriated to ‘help with civil unrest’," Global Research, September 26, 2008)

One scenario envisaged by Chossudovsky is that "civil unrest resulting from from the financial meltdown is a distinct possibility, given the broad impacts of financial collapse on lifelong savings, pension funds, homeownership, etc."

One might reasonably inquire, what "precedent-setting network" does the Army have in mind that would "ensure integration" with "civilian agencies" such as FEMA (a branch of Homeland Security)? As the World Socialist Web Site reports:

It is noteworthy that the deployment of US combat troops "as an on-call federal response force for natural or manmade emergencies and disasters"–in the words of the Army Times–coincides with the eruption of the greatest economic emergency and financial disaster since the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Justified as a response to terrorist threats, the real source of the growing preparations for the use of US military force within America’s borders lies not in the events of September 11, 2001 or the danger that they will be repeated. Rather, the domestic mobilization of the armed forces is a response by the US ruling establishment to the growing threat to political stability. (Bill Van Auken, "Army deploys combat unit in U.S. for possible civil unrest," World Socialist Web Site, 25 September 2008)

As the 2001 COOP planning document describes, a host of on-going Army plans and exercises have been revised by the Bush administration. In addition to Vibrant Response discussed above, they include: Plan EXCALIBUR, a COG Army training exercise; ADOBE, described by investigative journalist William M. Arkin as a "FEMA continuity of government special access program designation." Arkin describes special access programs or SAPs as,

Classified research and development, acquisition program, operation, intelligence activity, or plan that is so sensitive or critical that the value of the information warrants enhanced protection beyond that normally provided for access to Confidential, Secret, or Top Secret information. (William M. Arkin, Code Names: Deciphering U.S. Military Plans, Programs, and Operations in the 9/11 World, Hanover, NH: Steerforth Press, 2005, p. 598)

The impetus for revising Army COOP was, according to AR 500-3 primarily because,

The end of the Cold War and the breakup of the former Soviet Union significantly reduced the probability of a major nuclear attack on CONUS but the probability of other threats has increased. Army organizations must be prepared for any contingency with a potential for interruption of normal operations. To emphasize that Army continuity of operations planning is now focused on the full all-hazards threat spectrum, the name "ASRRS" has been replaced by the more generic title "Continuity of Operations (COOP) Program." (p. 13)

Towards this end, the Rumsfeld-era document states that the Army's new "mission-critical" functions will be restructured so that, "Army COOP plans must ensure that the Army remains capable of continuing mission-essential operations during any situation, including military attack, terrorist activities, and natural or man-made disasters." (p. 13) The Army, following various contingencies analyzed in the document will "coordinate with mission-essential external organizations and agencies." (p. 14)

So sensitive are the political ramifications of these plans that under the heading, 3-12 Operational Security (OPSEC), the Army avers, a. The success of COOP planning relies on denying access by unauthorized parties to information on COOP plans, procedures, capabilities and facilities.

b. Overhead imagery, signals intelligence, human sources, and exploitation of open literature during peacetime are threat capabilities used to gain knowledge of Army emergency plans, command and control systems, and facilities.

c. See Appendix B, Security Classification Guide, for guidance on the level of classification of COOP-related information. (COOP, op. cit., p. 20)

Appendix A of AR 500-3 lists relevant references for changes included in the COOP planning document. These include:

Federal Preparedness Circular 65, Federal Executive Branch Continuity of Operations, (COOP), July 26, 1999

As Peter Dale Scott reported in CounterPunch, apparently members of Congress are considered "unauthorized parties" to be denied access "to information on COOP plans, procedures, capabilities and facilities." Congressman DeFazio had been denied access to the classified annexes of National Security and Homeland Security Presidential Directive (NSPD 51/HSPD 20) Scott wrote, NSPD 51 contains "classified Continuity Annexes" which shall "be protected from unauthorized disclosure." Congressman DeFazio twice requested to see these Annexes, the second time in a letter cosigned by House Homeland Security Committee Chairman Bennie Thompson and Oversight Subcommittee Chairman Christopher Carney. It was these requests that the White House denied. …

DeFazio's inability to get access to the NSPD Annexes is less than reassuring. If members of the Homeland Security Committee cannot enforce their right to read secret plans of the Executive Branch, then the systems of checks and balances established by the U.S. Constitution would seem to be failing.

To put it another way, if the White House is successful in frustrating DeFazio, then Continuity of Government planning has arguably already superseded the Constitution as a higher authority. (Peter Dale Scott, "The Showdown," CounterPunch, March 31, 2008)

With the stunning revelations published by Wikileaks, it is abundantly clear that top Bush administration officials were busily revising Continuity of Government plans, including "civil disturbance" contingencies for suspending the Constitution and imposing martial law, long before the 9/11 attacks.

Since that fatal and tragic day seven long years ago, we have been told repeatedly by the government and their media sycophants that 9/11 was the day "when everything changed."

We now know thanks to Wikileaks, that as with the invasion and occupation of Iraq, the unprecedented and lawless surveillance of Americans, the illegal detention and torture of prisoners of war, that Bush administration assertions are no more than a pack of murderous lies.

One fact is abundantly clear from the mass of conflicting evidence and assertions made by proponents of various theories surrounding the 9/11 events: AR 500-3 demonstrates that from the very first moments after being installed in office, the Bush regime was involved in a "controlled demolition" of the U.S. Constitution.

After writing the Updates to Hawk's Emergency Alert last week, alot of information began coming in response to the threats and possible military movements prior to Martial Law, Bank Holiday, and potential Terror Alerts in CONUS discussed in those Alert Updates. Some seemingly pertinent Dots and some other seemingly disparate events which upon analysis Became Dots are listed below. These DOTS may have caused an Illuminati Plan to be postponed.

1. Deep Back Side information came in confirming the real threat of either False Flag or Real Flag Allowed Terror Events inside the U.S. The information indicated that ..... PROBABLY 5 NUCLEAR DEVICES IN THE POSSESSION TANGOS OR TERRORISTS WERE INSIDE THE U.S. AND THAT SOMEONE IN THE ULTRA BLACK WORLD WAS DOING EXTENSIVE COUNTER TERROR OPERATIONS AGAINST THEM.
THERE WAS APPARENTLY DIFFICULTY IN THE HUNT FOR THEM AND THAT THE SCORE WAS 0 FOR 5.

LATER INDICATIONS WERE THAT PERHAPS .....SOME "GOOD GUYS" IN POSSIBLY AN UNOFFICIAL CAPACITY VIS A VIS THE FACTIONAL WARS GOING ON INSIDE THE U.S. MIL/INTEL WORLD (REMEMBER THE MIGHTY MEN AND WOMEN OF VALOR WHO ARE WITHOUT EQUAL, AND ROLAND CARNABY).....DID SUCESSFULLY TAKE OUT 2 TANGOS AND INTERDICTED ONE "BUCKET OF SUN" OR A NUCLEAR DEVICE. HENCE BY GRACE OF GOD AND SOME VERY BRAVE AND SKILLED CT OPERATORS THE SCORE APPARENTLY WAS 1 FOR 5.

SINCE THEN, THERE IS FURTHER INDICATION AS LATE AS TUESDAY EVENING 10/7 THAT THE SCORE WAS NOW 2 FOR 5. THAT LEAVES POSSIBLY 3 "BUCKETS OF SUN" STILL EXTANT IN POSSESSION OF HIRED TANGO CUTTOUTS OR REAL FLAG TANGOS . SO WE ARE NOT OUT OF THE WOODS AS YET.....HOWEVER, I AM BETTING HEAVY ON THE BRAVERY, SKILL , AND GOOD INTEL OF SOME OF THE BEST OF THE BEST OF THE U.S. MILITARY WHO ARE DESPERATELY HUNTING WITH EXTREME PREJUDICE SOME BAD TANGOS WITH DEVICES OF MASS DESTRUCTION. MAY THE LORD JESUS PROTECT AND GUIDE THEM TO QUICK INTERDICTION OF ANY.....OR IF ANY REMAIN LOOSE.

IT IS THE PROBABLE KNOWLEDGE THAT SOME U.S. ULTRA BLACK MIL OPERATORS KNOW THEIR PLANS AND EVEN THE PARTICULARS OF THE TANGOS AND ORDINANCE THAT MAY HAVE GIVEN THE LUCIFERIAN ILLUMINATI SCUM LOOSE BOWEL SYNDROME AND CAUSED GREEN TO TURN TO RED OR AT LEAST YELLOW. FIREY LAKE IS COMING FOR THEM SOON WHEN LORD JESUS COMES BACK WITH A SWORD AND AN ARMY OF ARCH ANGELS.

NOTE: THAT THIS INFORMATION WAS PURPOSEFULLY NOT BROUGHT OUT SOONER AS I HAD ALREADY WARNED READERS IN SEVERAL COMMENTARIES, THE EMERGENCY ALERT, AND THE ALERT UPDATES ABOUT POSSIBLE FALSE FLAG TERROR EVENTS AND THE HUNGER FOR SAME BY TPTB TO BE USED AS PRETEXT FOR MARTIAL LAW AND MIDEAST WAR. MORE IMPORTANTLY, TO PROTECT CT OPERATIONS AGAINST THE TANGOS.....HOWEVER, THE HIGH, HIGH POTENTIAL FOR A YOM KIPPUR WAR STILL LOOMING CAUSED BY PERHAPS BY NUCLEAR TERROR EVENTS IN CONUS.....

A WATCHMAN'S WARNING ONE MORE TIME AND PERHAPS THE LAST?.....TO OBTAIN NBC GEAR AND TO MAKE EXPEDIENT NBC SHELTER ARRANGEMENTS

TRUMPED ALL OTHER CONCERNS.....WE ARE GETTING REALLY SKINNY ON TIME. PLEASE MAKE EVERY EFFORT TO PROTECT YOURSELVES. POTASSIUM IODIDE/IODATE, RADIATION METERS, M-95 GAS MASKS, TYVEK-F PROTECTIVE SUITS, BOOTIES, HOODS, AND HEAVY RUBBER GLOVES SHOULD BE OBTAINED BY ALL THOSE ABLE TO SO ASAP.....PREPARATION OF BASEMENT SHELTERS USING EXPEDIENT METHODS OF PILING UP MASS, DIGGING OUTDOOR SHELTERS, AND IDENTIFYING PUBLIC OR PRIVATE STRUCTURES THAT MIGHT AFFORD FALLOUT PROTECTION IS HIGHLY RECOMMENDED. 2. THE RUSSIANS TEST FIRED A MISSILE IN THE ARCTIC, THEIR BLACK JACK BOMBERS WITH EXTREMELY EFFECTIVE STEALTH CLOAKING PACKAGE WERE FLYING AGRESSIVE PATROLS ON HOT ROUTES FROM THE COLD WAR DAYS, AND THEIR PETER THE GREAT GIANT MISSILE CRUISER AND FLOTILLA .....TOOK A QUICK TURN TO PORT AND HEADED THROUGH THE STRAITS OF GIBRALTOR INTO THE MEDITERRANEAN SEA AND WILL ARRIVE AT THE SYRIAN PORTS OF LATAKIA AND TARTUS PRIOR TO 10/8 OR YOM KIPPUR OR AT THE PRECISE TIMING FOR AN ALL OUT WAR IN THE MIDEAST. IF THAT DOES NOT TAKE PLACE THEN THEY WILL BE SOLANT/CARRIBEAN BOUND TO SEE OLD HUGO CHAVEZ IN VENEZUELA AND WILL STILL BE QUITE A THREAT ON THE U.S. SOUTHERN FLANK.

3.Rapid moves to arm Taiwan and put in Anti-missile Systems

4. MAJOR USE OF TECTONIC X WEAPONS TO CREATE EARTH QUAKES IN IRAN, CHINA, TIBET, AND IN RUSSIAN SIBERIA LAKE BAIKAL? TOO MUCH COINCIDENCE OF TARGETS HERE TO NOT SUBSCRIBE PROPER AUTHORSHIP. NOTE: THESE ARE TERRA EVENTS.....EVEN THOUGH PROBABLY NOT ACTS OF GOD OR NATURAL TECTONIC EVENTS. SIGNALS OF U.S. HIGH TECH POWER SENT?

5. CONFIRMED REPORTS OF ADDITIONAL SYRIAN TROOPS AND TANKS ON THE LEBANESE BORDER AND RUMORS OF POTENTIAL THREATS TO ISRAEL IN GOLAN HEIGHTS.....EHUD BARACK MADE EMERGENCY VISIT TO ISRAELI DEFENSES TO ENSURE VIGILIANCE.

6. Rushed deal for Lebanese Army by U.S. to get Cobra Helo Gunships from Jordanian AO to Lebanon.

7.Reports of British Royal Marine Attack Helo Squadron and Dutch F-16 Squadron now at Davis Monthan AFB near Tuscon, Az. AND ORIENTAL MYSTERY TROOPS ARE STILL IN THE PAC NW AND COMMS ARE BEING HEARD THOUGH SPARINGLY.

8. Reports all over CONUS of C-130s , Galaxy Transports, Black Hawk.....Apache... Chinnook Helos, and major Fighter Jet as well as Drone aircraft flying in unusual frequency, larger numbers, and in unusual locales where they are not ususally seen.

9. Collapse of unity in the EU re. the economic and Banking emergency ....every country for themselves.....and huge drop in EURO value.

10. Desertion of Iceland by EU and no assistance for them even though their Banks are Shut and deposits were unavailable. Russia bailed them out with large assistance of $$$ for the next month or so. This would give Russia perhaps another excellent Base or Port or at least the potential for quid pro quo would exist since they helped the Icelanders in their time of dire need.

11. Another massive sell off of the U.S. Stock Markets and then last night more massive selling in Asia , EU, Russia, and UK.

12. Collapse of the Commodities Markets.....probably on purpose which has MADE BIG TROUBLE FOR RUSSIA, OPEC, AND BRAZIL, VENEZUELA, BOLIVIA, EQUADOR, ...AS WELL AS U.S. FARMERS AND GASOLINE REFINERS.

13. CONTINUED USEAGE OF ATS U.S. XRAY EXOTIC SPACE CRAFT ON A DAILY BASIS TO DO SPACE COMBAT PATROLS OVER WESTERN ATLANTIC ALONG CONUS COAST AND ON EAST ATLANTIC/MED/MIDEAST PATROLS. WEST COAST CONUS ALSO HAS SAME TYPE CRAFT SUCH AS TR-3BS AND OTHERS DOING PATROLS ALL THE WAY UP TO ALASKA..... THIS IS PART OF LAYERED DEFENSE SHIELD, WITH P-3 ORIONS, FIGHTERS, AWACS, SURFACE SHIPS, AND SUBS ALL ENGAGED BELOW.

14. Massive creation of $trillions by Fed and Treasury in their FASCIST TAKEOVER OF THE U.S. ECONOMIC AND MONETARY SYSTEMS ....WILL CREAT HYPER-INFLATION BEYOND THE WILDEST DREAMS AND AN EVENTUAL TOTAL COLLAPSE OF THE $DOLLAR AND PERHAPS MANY OF THE WORLD'S CURRENCIES.

15. Continued Super Natural attacks by demonic entities upon many people.

16.ADDITIONAL REPORTS OF RED LIST CLEANING ACTIVITY ARE BEGINNING TO COME IN.

17. HSD THREAT WARNINGS ON VARIOUS THREATS CONTINUALLY COMING OUT.

FEMA Sources Confirm

Coming Martial Law

By Wayne Madsen
09-10-2008
http://www.dailynewscaster.com/2008/10/08/...s-wayne-madsen/

Wayne Madsen a Washington based investigative journalist, author, columnist and former U.S. Naval Officer reported on April 3rd, 2008 the existence of a document called the “C & R” document is being passed around among senior members of Congress and their staff.

Bush planning martial law

FEMA sources have told Madsen today that the Bush administration is putting final touches on a plan that would initiate martial law in the event of continuing economic collapse causing massive social unrest, bank closures resulting in violence against financial institutions and another fraudulent presidential election that would result in rioting in major cities and campuses around the country.

Troops on American streets

In addition to FEMA sources, Army Corps of Engineer sources report that the assignment of the 3rd Infantry Division’s 1st Brigade to NorthCom to augment FEMA and federal law enforcement for the purpose of traffic control, crowd control, curfews, enhanced border and port security, and neighborhood patrols in the event a national emergency being declared.

America may default on it’s loans

The “C & R” document reportedly states that if the United States defaults on loans and debt underwritten from China, Japan and Russia and America unilaterally cancels the debts, America can expect a war that will have disastrous results for the United States and the world.

“Conflict” is the “C word” in the document.

Washington fears a popular Revolution

The other possibility discussed in the document is that the federal government will be forced to drastically raise taxes in order to pay off debts to foreign countries to the point that the American people will react with a popular revolution against the government.

“Revolution” is the document’s “R” word.

Updated: @ 11:48 PM - EST

Wayne Madsen reported the existence of the “C & R” document on April 3rd, 2008. The new information is the contingency plan being finalized by the Bush administration to initiate Continuity of Government by suspending The Constitution and declaring martial law in the event of a “crisis.”

Assigning the 1st Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division to NorthCom is a step toward implementation of the “Conflict & Revolution” document.

Is Posse Comitatus Dead?

Amy Goodman
Thursday, October 9, 2008
http://www.alternet.org/rights/102220/is_p...ad/?page=entire

Amy Goodman: In a barely noticed development last week, the Army stationed an active unit inside the United States. The Infantry Division’s 1st Brigade Team is back from Iraq, now training for domestic operations under the control of U.S. Army North, the Army service component of Northern Command. The unit will serve as an on-call federal response for large-scale emergencies and disasters. It’s being called the Consequence Management Response Force, CCMRF, or “sea-smurf” for short.

It’s the first time an active unit has been given a dedicated assignment to USNORTHCOM, which was itself formed in October 2002 to “provide command and control of Department of Defense homeland defense efforts.”

An initial news report in the Army Times newspaper last month noted, in addition to emergency response, the force “may be called upon to help with civil unrest and crowd control.” The Army Times has since appended a clarification, and a September 30th press release from the Northern Command states: “This response force will not be called upon to help with law enforcement, civil disturbance or crowd control.”

(ARTICLE CONTINUES BELOW)

When Democracy Now! spoke to Air Force Lieutenant Colonel Jamie Goodpaster, a public affairs officer for NORTHCOM, she said the force would have weapons stored in containers on site, as well as access to tanks, but the decision to use weapons would be made at a far higher level, perhaps by Secretary of Defense, SECDEF.

I’m joined now by two guests. Army Colonel Michael Boatner is future operations division chief of USNORTHCOM. He joins me on the phone from Colorado Springs. We’re also joined from Madison, Wisconsin by journalist and editor of The Progressive magazine, Matthew Rothschild.

We welcome you both to Democracy Now! Why don't we begin with Colonel Michael Boatner? Can you explain the significance, the first time, October 1st, deployment of the troops just back from Iraq?

Col. Michael Boatner: Yes, Amy. I'd be happy to. And again, there has been some concern and some misimpressions that I would like to correct. The primary purpose of this force is to provide help to people in need in the aftermath of a WMD-like event in the homeland. It's something that figures very prominently in the national planning scenarios under the National Response Framework, and that's how DoD provides support in the homeland to civil authority. This capability is tailored technical life-saving support and then further logistic support for that very specific scenario. So, we designed it for that purpose.

And really, the new development is that it's been assigned to NORTHCOM, because there's an increasingly important requirement to ensure that they have done that technical training, that they can work together as a joint service team. These capabilities come from all of our services and from a variety of installations, and that's not an ideal command and control environment. So we've been given control of these forces so that we can train them, ensure they're responsive and direct them to participate in our exercises, so that were they called to support civil authority, those governors or local state jurisdictions that might need our help, that they would be responsive and capable in the event and also would be able to survive based on the skills that they have learned, trained and focused on.

They ultimately have weapons, heavy weapons and combat vehicles and another service capability at their home station at Fort Stewart, Georgia, but they wouldn't bring that stuff with them. In fact, they're prohibited from bringing it. They would bring their individual weapons, which is the standard policy for deployments in the homeland. Those would be centralized and containerized, and they could only be issued to the soldiers with the Secretary of Defense permission.

So I think, you know, that kind of wraps up our position on this. We're proud to be able to provide this capability. It's all about saving lives, relieving suffering, mitigating great property damage to infrastructure and things like that, and frankly, restoring public confidence in the aftermath of an event like this.

AG: So the use of the weapons would only be decided by SECDEF, the Secretary of Defense. But what about the governors? The SECDEF would have — Secretary of Defense would have — would be able to preempt the governors in a decision whether these soldiers would use their weapons on U.S. soil?

MB: No, this basically only boils down to self-defense. Any military force has the inherent right to self-defense. And if the situation was inherently dangerous, then potentially the Secretary of Defense would allow them to carry their weapons, but it would only be for self- and unit-defense. This force has got no role in a civil disturbance or civil unrest, any of those kinds of things.

AG: Matt Rothschild, you've been writing about this in The Progressive magazine. What is your concern?

Matthew Rothschild: Well, I'm very concerned on a number of fronts about this, Amy. One, that NORTHCOM, the Northern Command, that came into being in October of 2002, when that came in, people like me were concerned that the Pentagon was going to use its forces here in the United States, and now it looks like, in fact, it is, even though on its website it says it doesn't have units of its own. Now it's getting a unit of its own.

And Colonel Boatner talked about this unit, what it's trained for. Well, let's look at what it's trained for. This is the 3rd Infantry, 1st Brigade Combat unit that has spent three of the last five years in Iraq in counterinsurgency. It's a war-fighting unit, was one of the first units to Baghdad. It was involved in the battle of Fallujah. And, you know, that's what they've been trained to do. And now they're bringing that training here?

On top of that, one of the commanders of this unit was boasting in the Army Times about this new package of non-lethal weapons that has been designed, and this unit itself is going be able to use, according to that original article. And in fact, the commander was saying he had even tasered himself and was boasting about tasering himself. So, why is a Pentagon unit that's going to be possibly patrolling the streets of the United States involved in using tasers?

AG: Colonel Boatner?

MB: Well, I'd like to address that. That involved a service mission and a service set of equipment that was issued for overseas deployment. Those soldiers do not have that on their equipment list for deploying in the homeland. And again, they have been involved in situations overseas. And having talked to commanders who have returned, those situations are largely nonviolent, non-kinetic. And when they do escalate, the soldiers have a lot of experience with seeing the indicators and understanding it. So, I would say that our soldiers are trustworthy. They can deploy in the homeland, and American citizens can be confident that there will be no abuses.

AG: Matt Rothschild?

MR: Well, you know, that doesn't really satisfy me, and I don't think it should satisfy your listeners and your audience, Amy, because, you know, our people in the field in Iraq, some of them have not behaved up to the highest standards, and a lot of police forces in the United States who have been using these tasers have used them inappropriately.

The whole question here about what the Pentagon is doing patrolling in the United States gets to the real heart of the matter, which is, do we have a democracy here? I mean, there is a law on the books called the Posse Comitatus Act and the Insurrection Act that says that the president of the United States, as commander-in-chief, cannot put the military on our streets. And this is a violation of that, it seems to me.

President Bush tried to get around this act a couple years ago in the Defense Authorization Act that he signed that got rid of some of those restrictions, and then last year, in the new Defense Authorization Act, thanks to the work of Senator Patrick Leahy and Kit Bond of Missouri, that was stripped away. And so, the President isn't supposed to be using the military in this fashion, and though the President, true to form, appended a signing statement to that saying he's not going to be governed by that. So, here we have a situation where the President of United States has been aggrandizing his power, and this gives him a whole brigade unit to use against U.S. citizens here at home.

AG: Colonel Michael Boatner, what about the Posse Comitatus Act, and where does that fit in when U.S. troops are deployed on U.S. soil?

MR: It absolutely governs in every instance. We are not allowed to help enforce the law. We don't do that. Every time we get a request — and again, this kind of a deployment is defense support to civil authority under the National Response Framework and the Stafford Act. And we do it all the time, in response to hurricanes, floods, fires and things like that. But again, you know, if we review the requirement that comes to us from civil authority and it has any complexion of law enforcement whatsoever, it gets rejected and pushed back, because it's not lawful.

AG: Matthew Rothschild, does this satisfy you?

MR: No, it doesn't. One of the reasons it doesn't is not by what Boatner was saying right there, but what President Bush has been doing. And if we looked at National Security Presidential Directive 51, that he signed on May 9th of 2007, Amy, this gives the President enormous powers to declare a catastrophic emergency and to bypass our regular system of laws, essentially, to impose a form of martial law.

And if you look at that National Security Presidential Directive, what it says, that in any incident where there is extraordinary disruption of a whole range of things, including our economy, the President can declare a catastrophic emergency. Well, we're having these huge disturbances in our economy. President Bush could today pick up that National Security Directive 51 and say, "We're in a catastrophic emergency. I'm going to declare martial law, and I'm going to use this combat brigade to enforce it."

AG: Colonel Michael Boatner?

MB: The only exception that I know of is the Insurrection Act. It's something that is very unlikely to be invoked. In my 30-year career, it's only been used once, in the LA riots, and it was a widespread situation of lawlessness and violence. And the governor of the state requested that the President provide support. And that's a completely different situation. The forces available to do that are in every service in every part of the country, and it's completely unrelated to the — this consequence management force that we're talking about.

AG: You mentioned governors, and I was just looking at a piece by Jeff Stein — he is the national security editor of Congressional Quarterly — talking about homeland security. And he said, “Safely tucked into the $526 billion defense bill, it easily crossed the goal line on the last day of September.

“The language doesn’t just brush aside a liberal Democrat slated to take over the Judiciary Committee” — this was a piece written last year — it “runs over the backs of the governors, 22 of whom are Republicans.

“The governors had waved red flags about the measure on Aug. 1, 2007, sending letters of protest from their Washington office to the Republican chairs and ranking Democrats on the House and Senate Armed Services committees.

“No response. So they petitioned the party heads on the Hill.”

The letter, signed by every member of the National Governors Association, said, “This provision was drafted without consultation or input from governors and represents an unprecedented shift in authority from governors … to the federal government.”

Colonel Michael Boatner?

MB: That’s in the political arena. That has nothing to do with my responsibilities or what I’m — was asked to talk about here with regard to supporting civil authority in the homeland.

AG: Matthew Rothschild?

MR: Well, this gets to what Senator Patrick Leahy of Vermont was so concerned about, that with NORTHCOM and with perhaps this unit — and I want to call Senator Leahy’s office today and ask him about this — you have the usurpation of the governor’s role, of the National Guard’s role, and it’s given straight to the Pentagon in some of these instances. And that’s very alarming. And that was alarming to almost every governor, if not every governor, in the country, when Bush tried to do that and around about the Posse Comitatus Act. So, I think these are real concerns.

AG: Matt Rothschild, the Democratic and Republican conventions were quite amazing displays of force at every level, from the local police on to the state troopers to, well, in the Republican convention, right onto troops just back from Iraq in their Army fatigues. Did this surprise you?

MR: It did. It surprised me also that NORTHCOM itself was involved in intelligence sharing with local police officers in St. Paul. I mean, what in the world is NORTHCOM doing looking at what some of the protesters are involved in? And you had infiltration up there, too. But what we have going on in this country is we have infiltration and spying that goes on, not only at the — well, all the way from the campus police, practically, Amy, up to the Pentagon and the National Security Agency. We're becoming a police state here.

AG: Colonel Michael Boatner, a tall order here, could you respond?

MB: Well, that's incorrect. We did not participate in any intelligence collection. We were up there in support of the U.S. Secret Service. We provided some explosive ordnance disposal support of the event. But I'd like to go back and say that, again, in terms of –

AG: Could you explain what their — explain again what was their role there?

MB: They were just doing routine screens and scans of the area in advance of this kind of a vulnerable event. It's pretty standard support to a national special security event.

AG: And are you saying there was absolutely no intelligence sharing?

MB: That's correct. That is correct. … We're very constrained–

MR: But even that, Amy, now the Pentagon is doing sweeps of areas before, you know, a political convention? That used to be law enforcement's job. That used to be domestic civil law enforcement job. It's now being taken over by the Pentagon. That should concern us.

AG: Why is that, Colonel Michael Boatner? Why is the Pentagon doing it, not local law enforcement?

MB: That's because of the scale and the availability of support. DoD is the only force that has the kind of capability. I mean, we're talking about dozens and dozens of dog detection teams. And so, for anything on this large a scale, the Secret Service comes to DoD with a standard Economy Act request for assistance.

AG: Boatner, in the Republican Convention, these troops, just back from Fallujah — what about issues of, for example, PTSD, post-traumatic stress disorder?

MB: Well, my sense is that that's something that the services handled very well. There's a long track record of great support in the homeland. If those soldiers were National Guard soldiers, I have no visibility of that. But for the active-duty forces, citizens can be confident that if they're employed in the homeland, that they'll be reliable, accountable, and take care of their families and fellow citizens in good form.

AG: Last word, Matthew Rothschild?

MR: Well, this granting of the Pentagon a special unit to be involved in U.S. patrol is something that should alarm all of us. And it's very important to the Army.

Army Orders Pain Ray Trucks; New Report Shows 'Potential for Death'

David Hambling – Wired.com October 10, 2008

After years of testing, the Active Denial System – the pain ray which drives off rioters with a microwave-like beam – could finally have its day. The Army is buying five of the truck-mounted systems for $25 million. But the energy weapon may face new hurdles, before it's shipped off to the battlefield; a new report details how the supposedly non-lethal blaster could be turned into a flesh-frying killer.

A truck mounted laser weapons system

The contract for the pain ray trucks is "expected to be awarded by year's end," Aviation Week notes. "A year after the contract is signed, the combination vehicle/weapons will start be fielded at the rate of one per month."

It's been a very long time coming. As we've previously reported, there have been calls to deploy the Active Denial System in Iraq going back to 2004. But it's always been delayed for legal, political, and public relations reasons. Anything that might be condemned as torture is political dynamite. Interestingly, the version being bought is not the full-size "Version 2," but a containerized system known as Silent Guardian, which Raytheon have been trying to sell for some time. They describe Silent Guardian as "roughly 1/3 the size and power of the other Active Denial Systems," and quote it's range as "greater than 250 meters." The larger system has a range somewhere in excess of 700 meters.

Silent Guardian weighs a shade over 10,000 pounds all up, and will be mounted on an "armored ruggedized HEMTT [Heavy Expanded Mobility Tactical Truck]."

The announcement arrives on the same day as a new report from less-lethal weapons expert Dr. Jürgen Altmann that analyzes the physics of several directed energy weapons, including Active Denial, the Advanced Tactical Laser (used as a non-lethal weapon), the Pulsed Energy Projectile (a.k.a. "Maximum Pain" laser) and the Long Range Acoustic Device (a.k.a. "Acoustic Blaster").

Dr. Altmann describes the Active Denial beam in some detail, noting that it will not be completely uniform; anyone unlucky enough to be caught in the center will experience more heating than someone at the edge. And perhaps more significant is his thorough analysis of the heating it produces -- and the cumulative effect if the target does not have the chance to cool down between exposures. In U.S. military tests, a fifteen-second delay between exposures was strictly observed; this may not happen when the ADS is used for real.

"As a consequence, the ADS provides the technical possibility to produce burns of second and third degree. Because the beam of diameter 2 m and above is wider than human size, such burns would occur over considerable parts of the body, up to 50% of its surface. Second- and third-degree burns covering more than 20% of the body surface are potentially life-threatening – due to toxic tissue-decay products and increased sensitivity to infection – and require intensive care in a specialized unit. Without a technical device that reliably prevents re-triggering on the same target subject, the ADS has a potential to produce permanent injury or death. "

This potential hazard need not be a show-stopper -- existing less-lethals, such as plastic bullets and tear gas, can also be fatal under some circumstances (and I'm not even going to get into the argument about Tasers).

Dr. Altmann notes that "the present analysis has not found convincing arguments that the ADS would be immoral or illegal in each foreseeable circumstance," and that acceptance will depend very much on how it is used. If the ADS prevents small boats from approaching a U.S. vessel without harming anyone, then it will be seen as a humane option. If it is used to clear protesters out of the way it may be seen differently.

Meanwhile, the National Institute of Justice is still has a reported interest in a "hand-held, probably rifle-sized, short range weapon that could be effective at tens of feet for law enforcement officials." That's just one of the likely domestic applications of Active Denial technology which are likely to follow if the Army's experiment with ADS is successful. A lot of people will be watching this one very closely.

Antifascist Calling reported October 6 that nine months prior to the 9/11 terrorist attacks, Donald Rumsfeld signed off on revisions for the Pentagon's secretive Continuity of Operations Program (COOP).

Based on a document (AR 500-3) published by the whistleblowing website Wikileaks, it described "all hazards COOP planning" as the mechanism by which "the Army remains capable of continuing mission-essential operations during any situation, including military attack, terrorist activities, and natural or man-made disasters."

The Wikileaks document is all the more relevant since a September report in Army Times described how the 3rd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade Combat Team (BCT) would be deployed October 1 "under the day-to-day control of U.S. Army North," the "service component" of NORTHCOM.

Since that article appeared September 8, Army Times has done a partial climb-down and now claims that the "non-lethal crowd control package" described earlier for operations in the heimat, "is intended for use on deployments to the war zone, not in the U.S., as previously stated."

But this mendacious claim by Army Times is belied by current political trends in the U.S. Under cover of the "war on terror," driftnet surveillance and moves toward suppressing dissent, most recently on display when protests during the Democratic and Republican National Conventions were criminalized and organizers were charged with "domestic terrorism" under the Patriot Act, are but the tip of the proverbial iceberg.

Wholesale spying on activists by the Pentagon's now defunct Counterintelligence Field Activity (CIFA), as well as revelations that State police agencies in Maryland routinely spied on antiwar organizers, shared this information with the National Security Agency and classified them as "terrorists" in government-run databases, are viewed as exemplary means to "keep the rabble in line"--and under wraps, if necessary.

A highly-disturbing report by Christopher Ketchum in the May/June 2008 issue of Radar Magazine, outlined how the top secret Main Core database linked to Continuity of Government contingency planning, "includes dissidents and activists of various stripes, political and tax protesters, lawyers and professors, publishers and journalists, gun owners, illegal aliens, foreign nationals, and a great many other harmless, average people."

Reporting in July for Salon, investigative journalist Tim Shorrock was told by a source that Main Core is "'an emergency internal security database system' designed for use by the military in the event of a national catastrophe, a suspension of the Constitution or the imposition of martial law. Its name ... is derived from the fact that it contains 'copies of the 'main core' or essence of each item of intelligence information on Americans produced by the FBI and the other agencies of the U.S. intelligence community'."

As the historic economic and political crisis gripping capitalism deepens and intensifies, and as stop-gap measures deployed by the U.S. Treasury Department intended to shore-up the crumbling financial sector crash, one by one, "forward thinking" ruling class factions are openly preparing a "Pinochet option" for the American people.

In this context, the militarization of domestic law enforcement is now coupled with the military's own rapid development and deployment of "non-lethal weapons" systems which inevitably, will be "shared" with civilian police for "crowd control." As with data mining, DHS spy-satellite surveillance, blanket CCTV coverage of American cities, illegal FBI deployment of infiltrators and provocateurs, "mission creep" by the Pentagon into civil affairs are signs that stronger measures to blunt the crisis may be in the offing. (For more on the Pentagon's development of NLW's, see: Antifascist Calling, "'Non-Lethal' Weapons: Where Science and Technology Service Repression," July 8, 2008; and, Antifascist Calling, "The Calmative Before the Storm," July 12, 2008)

During the recent Vibrant Response exercise at Fort Stewart, Georgia, three units of NORTHCOM's Consequence Management Response Force (CCMRF, pronounced "sea-smurfs"), including two combat units from the 1st Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Army Division and the elite 82nd Combat Aviation Brigade participated in mock drills designed to "coordinate with local governments and interagency organizations such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Emergency Management Agency," according to a report on U.S. Northern Command News.

Interestingly enough, Fort Stewart is also the site of a top secret NSA listening post that routinely "intercepted and transcribed satellite phone calls of American civilians in the Middle East for the NSA," according to a whistleblower and former Arab linguist attached to the illegal NSA project, Wired reports.

Code-named "Operation Highlander," the top secret program was initiated in the wake of the September 11 attacks on orders from the Bush administration. According to Wired,

If the allegations are true, it would seem to indicate that warrantless spying of Americans approved by President Bush following 9/11 expanded rapidly beyond U.S. borders to citizens overseas, notwithstanding United States Signals Intelligence Directive 18, or USSID 18--an NSA rule that bars overseas surveillance of Americans without authorization and probable cause. (Kim Zetter, "Inside Operation Highlander," Wired, October 10, 2008)

While the ostensible purpose of Vibrant Response was to wargame scenarios where chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, or high-yield explosive incidents (CBRNE) were launched "in the nation's heartland," what other events could trigger the declaration of a "national security emergency," or even martial law in the U.S.?

As Amy Goodman reported in a column for Democracy Now!

Military participation in domestic operations was originally outlawed with the Posse Comitatus Act in 1878. The John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007, however, included a section that allowed the president to deploy the armed forces to "restore public order" or to suppress "any insurrection." While a later bill repealed this, President Bush attached a signing statement that he did not feel bound by the repeal. ("Invasion of the Sea-Smurfs," Democracy Now!, October 2, 2008)

As I pointed out in my October 6 article, current Army doctrine is heavily-weighted towards contingency planning for "civil disturbances." While these programs are not new and in fact, plans such as Garden Plot and Cable Splicer have been integral to military doctrine since the late 1960s, what is new--and highly disturbing--is the launch of NORTHCOM's Joint Task Force Civil Support (JTF-CS).

Located at Ft. Monroe in Hampton, Virginia, JTF-CS is described on NORTHCOM's website as "a subordinate command of U.S. Northern Command, a unified combatant command formed in October 2002 to plan, organize and execute both homeland defense and civil support missions."

While NORTHCOM claims that JTF-CS would be deployed "only after a Governor requests federal assistance from the President, and after the President issues a Presidential Disaster Declaration," the Bush signing statement as well as secret annexes in updated Continuity of Government planning documents, National Security Presidential Directive 51/Homeland Security Presidential Directive 20 (NSPD 51/HSPD 20) means, as Commander-in-Chief,

The President shall lead the activities of the Federal Government for ensuring constitutional government. In order to advise and assist the President in that function, the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and Counterterrorism (APHS/CT) is hereby designated as the National Continuity Coordinator. ...

Federal Government COOP, COG, and ECG plans and operations shall be appropriately integrated with the emergency plans and capabilities of State, local, territorial, and tribal governments, and private sector owners and operators of critical infrastructure, as appropriate, in order to promote interoperability and to prevent redundancies and conflicting lines of authority. The Secretary of Homeland Security shall coordinate the integration of Federal continuity plans and operations with State, local, territorial, and tribal governments, and private sector owners and operators of critical infrastructure, as appropriate, in order to provide for the delivery of essential services during an emergency. (The White House, President George W. Bush, NSPD 51/HSPD 20, May 7, 2007)

It should be kept in mind that top secret annexes of this document have been withheld from Congress, despite repeated requests--and legal oversight requirements--by the House Homeland Security Committee, as Peter Dale Scott reported in March for CounterPunch.

NORTHCOM avers that,

The Primary Federal Agency [PFA] is the federal civilian agency designated to coordinate and direct the government's response to a disaster or emergency situation. Presidential Decision Directive 39 designated the Federal Emergency Management Agency as the PFA for managing the consequences of CBRNE events. In most instances, FEMA will be the PFA, however, the Federal Bureau of Investigation serves as the PFA for crisis management in events designated as an act of terrorism. Although the JTF-CS supports the PFA throughout a CBRNE consequence management operation, the unit operates within a clear Department of Defense chain of command. (U.S. Northern Command, Joint Task Force Civil Support, FAQ, no date)

In other words, although civilian agencies are the nominal PFA's during a "disaster or emergency situation," JTF-CS "operates within a clear Department of Defense chain of command" that begins and ends with the Executive Branch, that is, the President in his role as the leader of the "unitary executive branch" and Commander-in-Chief. Were a "national emergency" of any kind declared by the President, rules governing Continuity of Government operations would place civilian agencies, including "State, local, territorial, and tribal governments, and private sector owners and operators of critical infrastructure," under the effective control of the military.

This is clearly delineated in Department of Defense Directive 3025.12 (DoD 3025.12), "Military Assistance for Civil Disturbances (MACDIS)":

Ensure continuous planning by the DoD Components, both in the Department of Defense and in cooperation with civil government agencies for MACDIS operations that may be required during any time or condition of peace, war, or transition to war, including any national security emergency. ...

The President is authorized by the Constitution and laws of the United States to employ the Armed Forces of the United States to suppress insurrections, rebellions, and domestic violence under various conditions and circumstances. Planning and preparedness by the Federal Government and the Department of Defense for civil disturbances are important due to the potential severity of the consequences of such events for the Nation and the population.

Military resources may be employed in support of civilian law enforcement operations in the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the U.S. territories and possessions only in the parameters of the Constitution and laws of the United States and the authority of the President and the Secretary of Defense, including delegations of that authority through this Directive or other means.

The primary responsibility for protecting life and property and maintaining law and order in the civilian community is vested in the State and local governments. Supplementary responsibility is vested by statute in specific Agencies of the Federal Government other than the Department of Defense. The President has additional powers and responsibilities under the Constitution of the United States to ensure that law and order are maintained. ("Military Assistance for Civil Disturbances [MACDIS]," Department of Defense Directive, No. 3025.12, February 4, 1994, pp. 1, 3) [emphasis added]

The Executive Branch's leading role in MACDIS operations are underscored by the following:

Delegations of Authority. The Secretary of Defense shall be assisted in executing his responsibility for MACDIS by the following:

The Secretary of the Army shall be the DoD Executive Agent and shall act for the Secretary of Defense in accordance with this Directive and any supplemental direction or guidance received from the Secretary of Defense. In that capacity, the DoD Executive Agent shall develop planning guidance, plans, and procedures for MACDIS, in accordance with this Directive. The DoD Executive Agent has the authority of the Secretary of Defense to task the DoD Components to plan for and to commit DoD resources, in response to requests from civil authorities under MACDIS. The DoD Executive Agent shall coordinate with the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff any commitment of Military Forces assigned to the Combatant Commands.

The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff shall communicate to the Commanders of the Combatant Commands appropriate guidance issued by the DoD Executive Agent for their compliance with this Directive, and also shall assist the DoD Executive Agent in developing MACDIS planning guidance for all conditions of war or attacks on the United States or its territories. ...

For response to domestic terrorist incidents and other purposes, the DoD Executive Agent shall obtain authority from the Secretary of Defense for any employment of U.S. counterterrorism forces. The DoD Executive Agent shall coordinate with the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff any request, contingency plan, directive, or order affecting the employment of such forces and, simultaneously, shall provide all applicable information to the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Special Operations and Low-Intensity Conflict), who provides policy oversight for the Secretary of Defense, in accordance with DoD Directive 5138.3 (reference (h)).

The Secretary of Defense reserves the authority to modify or terminate the Executive Agency established by this Directive if operational needs so require in a particular situation. (MACDIS, op. cit., pp. 5-6)

What those "operational needs" are that might require the Secretary of Defense to "modify or terminate" the "Executive Agency" are not specified in the MACDIS Directive. However, in this regard, it is clear that a leading role of U.S. military "civil disturbance" operations will be assumed by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) and not a "Prime Federal Authority," that is a civilian agency. The JCS will,

In coordination with the DoD Executive Agent, facilitate communications by the DoD Executive Agent with Commanders of Combatant Commands, as appropriate.

Ensure the compatibility of MACDIS plans with other military plans.

Assist in the DoD Executive Agent's determination of military units and capabilities sufficient for all contingencies of the GARDEN PLOT plan.

Support training for and coordinated evaluation of MACDIS plans and capabilities by the Commanders of the Combatant Commands through exercises or other means, as appropriate. (MACDIS, op. cit., pp. 10-11)

Clearly, NORTHCOM's Vibrant Response exercise, initiated by the Joint Task Force-Civil Support falls under the broad purview of Garden Plot and other planning "contingencies." In terms of dealing with a "national security emergency" declared by the Executive Branch under rules governing Continuity of Government operations, DoD 3025.12 describes "civil disturbances" as,

Group acts of violence and disorders prejudicial to public law and order in the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the U.S. possessions and territories, or any political subdivision thereof. The term "civil disturbance" includes all domestic conditions requiring the use of Federal Armed Forces under this Directive. (MACDIS, op. cit., p. 17)

Would, let's say, the eruption of mass protests as a result of a stolen presidential election or mass actions as a legitimate and exemplary civilian response to limiting bank withdrawals, a freeze on Social Security payments, a prohibition on strikes or the declaration of a "national security emergency" as a result of prerevolutionary challenges to the legitimacy of federal authority (as took place in Argentina in 2000 during that nation's economic meltdown) trigger MACDIS and other Continuity of Government operations?

DoD 3025.12 states, "Under reference ®, the terms "major disaster" and "emergency" are defined substantially by action of the President in declaring that extant circumstances and risks justify Presidential implementation of the legal powers in those statutes." In other words, "extant circumstances" are "defined substantially" by the President. Once triggered by Executive Order, the scope of operations undertaken by the military acting as the enforcement arm of the "unitary executive branch" are virtually unlimited.

Under these rules, martial law, suspension of habeas corpus, indefinite detention would render lawful rules guiding a constitutional republic moot; mere footnotes written on the "blank page" of America's "new normal," what Naomi Klein has termed "disaster capitalism." Klein writes,

A more accurate term for the system that erases the boundaries between Big Government and Big Business is not liberal, conservative or capitalist, but corporatist. Its main characteristics are huge transfers of public wealth to private hands, often accompanied by exploding debt, an ever-widening chasm between the dazzling rich and the disposable poor and an aggressive nationalism that justifies unlimited spending on security. For those inside the bubble of extreme wealth created by such an arrangement, there can be no more profitable way to organize a society. But because of the obvious drawbacks for the vast majority of the population left outside the bubble, other features of the corporatist state tend to include aggressive surveillance (once again, with government and large corporations trading favors and contracts), mass incarceration, shrinking civil liberties and often, though not always, torture. (The Shock Doctrine: The Rise of Disaster Capitalism, New York: Metropolitan Books, 2007, p. 15)

Now that the economic bubble for the vast majority of Americans has burst, "shrinking civil liberties" are rushing headlong towards the vanishing point.

While DoD 3025.12 states that "any employment of Military Forces in support of law enforcement operations shall maintain the primacy of civilian authorities," as noted above JTF-CS "operates within a clear Department of Defense chain of command," answerable to the President, the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of the Army as the "DoD Executive Agent for MACDIS."

Clearly, a "terrorist attack" or "any national security emergency" so designated by the President would trigger MACDIS guidance for "civilian law enforcement operations" and fall under the purview of NORTHCOM and JTF-CS as "a subordinate command" and would play a leading role in responding to "any national security emergency" declared by the President.

Despite the repeal of the "Insurrection Act Rider" to the 2007 Defense Appropriations bill that gave the President sweeping emergency power to deploy the military for any "condition" he might cite, not merely a terrorist atrocity or CBRNE "event," the Bush "signing statement" reported by Amy Goodman above, effectively nullified Congress' intent not to give the president carte blanche to station U.S. troops on American streets.

While NORTHCOM insists that JTF-CS, "will not be called upon to help with law enforcement, civil disturbance or crowd control, but will be used to support lead agencies involved in saving lives," as I have outlined above, citing the DoD's own documents and Executive Branch National Security Presidential Directives, contingency plans for suppressing "civil disturbance" such as the Garden Plot scenario are, like an iron fist inside a velvet glove, already in place and capable at a moment's notice of striking the American people.

During these dark times, it is well-worth recalling the sage advice of the great American revolutionary Thomas Jefferson: The strongest reason for the people to retain the right to keep and bear arms is, as a last resort, to protect themselves against tyranny in government.

Atlanta Cops Roll Out SWAT APC

October 12, 2008
http://www.infowars.com/?p=5253

It's no big deal, insists the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. It's just the local cops with a $500,000 APC. For you civilians, that's Armored Personnel Carrier.

"Don't be surprised to see an Army tank rolling down a street near you," chides the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. "The Cobb County police department has refurbished a donated Armored Personnel Carrier for officers to use in SWAT situations."

Apparently, the cops think those on the receiving end of any SWAT operation using this military vehicle are armed to the teeth like the resistance in Iraq or maybe the Taliban in Afghanistan. It certainly is not needed for busting the average dope dealer, even one hopped up on PCP.

Equipped with thermal sensors, computerized tracking devices, night vision, tear gas launchers and other gadgets, the all-black six-wheel unit can hold up to nine SWAT officers.

It has a new engine and transmission, which will allow it to reach a speed of 60 miles per hour.

"In these times, you don't know what you are facing," Cobb police chief George Hatfield said. "We want the maximum safety for our officers and the public. We want to be prepared for whatever comes up. This is another tool that will allow us to be quicker and faster in our response."

The L.A.V. 300 will also send a message to the civilians — increasingly, there is little difference between the cops and the military. In order to get the message out, the APC will be on display at Marietta's town square, reports the Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

Can You Say Martial Law? I thought You Could.

Sunday, October 12
http://smokingmirrors.blogspot.com/2008/10...hought-you.html

Let's track the timeline. A wanna be Caligula who is also a natural born coward runs for the office of president on the corporate dime and the election is stolen and the highest court in the land is compromised by five vultures sitting on a dead branch of government overlooking a wasteland of material excess.

Dual national neo-cons who forged a manifesto for treason flowed into the critical areas of power and went to work on the centerpiece of their intent, that being the 9/11 attack whose purpose was to turn world opinion against the Muslim world. This tight lock-step of deluded Christians and Zionist Jews, in concert with leaders in the banking, corporate and media worlds laid claim to the souls of nearly every member of the Senate and House of Representatives.

The constant drumbeat of terror over a dead Saudi boogeyman kept the hoi polloi in an endless state of acid reflux and irritable bowel syndrome. After the second presidential election was stolen, the terror alerts went away. It was on to changes in The Constitution and the Bill of Rights; the removal of Posse Comitatus and Habeas Corpus. Prior to this Homeland Security snuck into town in the dead of the night and stuck its 700+ pages up the ass of the American people and then set it on fire.

A new fashion house was opened called Vitorrio Blackwaters and soon there were legions of black suited robo-cops with scanner rings and vomit spray along with designer clubs to beat the crowds away. All through the festivities, Dick Cheney and Antonin Scalia gave each other reach-arounds in a duck blind during an orgy of celebration for the rising of the Fifth Reich; rat packs of Zio-Nazis wormed into every area of American life and ate the foundations of the culture, the infrastructure and economy.

Slowly they goose-stepped across the years to the tune of • rape and pillage, rape and pillage, let's go out and burn a native village •. They launched wars based on fabricated intel and murdered and destroyed with impunity. On they marched to the last year of the years in which they had set in place all that was necessary to suspend everything that had held the empire in place and then a select group of bankers and their associates in various countries stole everything that wasn't nailed down and then sent out for crowbars to get the rest. All was in readiness.

The First BCT Army Brigade was relocated to American soil. A presidential election was taking place as the stock market crashed and millions were being evicted from their homes. Everything that looked like what it was when it started turned into exactly what it looked like it was going to be. • And they said it couldn't happen here. Who's your daddy? Ask Ozzy Osborne. He can tell you.

Meanwhile, the American public flocked to the call to arms against each other. The incipient racism and violent nationalism that always percolates beneath the surface broke out in festering boils and the movers and the shakers and the media poured rock salt into the open sores. Non-violent protest groups were legally designated as terrorists because all the laws that would have protected them from this were dressed in orange jumpsuits and imprisoned behind chain link fences woven out of obliging lawyers.

Okay… let's move along into a little Game-Boy theory. What are the possibilities? Everything that happened was necessary to protect the American people from threats external and internal? I think that's a big solid, "No!" Everything that happened was just a series of random accidents that seems to happen every now and then and no one knows why and we'll just have to make the best of it? It's safe to say that that is another rousing, "No!" This has all happened because Jesus is coming soon and may well be in the duck blind according to Dick and Antonin? I'm going to go with, "No!" one more time. How about… how about… this was all engineered by a group of psychopaths whose intention is to decimate certain portions of the Earth and enslave the remaining survivors? Well… you look at everything that's been done along the way and where we are now and you tell me. Remember, Bin Laden's been dead a long time and there never was an Al Qaeda.

It might clear things up a little to look at those firms on Wall Street and those banks around the world that have not been affected by the present crisis. Surely there are those who are weathering the storm and even prospering. Wouldn't you think it a little strange that we get no mention of them? I haven't heard the name of David Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan yet. Well, that may not mean anything. What about the Rothschild banks? How are they doing? The trick is to look at who's not in trouble to see who's causing the trouble.

The economic crisis of today was engineered in this manner. Some number of groups and individuals baited a hook with the promise of a boatload of fish. They threw in their reels with everyone else. They put bunting over the lake and brought in brass bands, teenage hookers; girls for the Democrats and boys for the Republicans and the booze and other comestibles flowed from an endless tap. Then, when everyone they invited to the party was 'all in', drunk and hunting through their pockets for more Viagra they… they cashed out. It was a sucker play orchestrated by sucker-fish, by lampreys, by vampires.

Any day now something is going to happen. They're fine tuning it right now. Will it happen abroad? Will it happen at home? Will it happen in a city? Will it happen in the countryside? It's safe to say that even if it does happen abroad it will also happen at home as well. It's safe to say that it's got to be really big. It's got to be big enough to get all the Schmoos in agreement that anyone who isn't in agreement should be hunted down and killed or locked up forever. It's safe to say that the same people who did 9/11; The CIA and Israeli Mossad, along with sympathetic hands at various levels in various places will be the instigators and that the blame will be directed at whoever they don't like and that is most likely Iran and indirectly whoever may be supporting Iran.

I wouldn't know what to tell you, if someone should ask me, "What should we do?" The things you should have done were the requirements of a time now past. Oh… there is definitely a joker in the deck or maybe two so… no one knows how it's going to play out. I'm just waiting and watching like the small collection of others who don't have their heads stuck in 'a place where the sun don't shine'. "Now… that's an intoxicating scent. Is that Chanel? I'd swear that was Chanel."

It's a possibility that the thing is going to crash down around the ears of the ones who pulled the linchpins out. It's a possibility that this is all part of the movie that you had better hope WAS NOT made in Hollywood. It's possible that they go right on to the planned fait accompli and all the good little proles get to drop even further down the ladder of awareness and well-being. I'm confident of the outcome but my interests and expectations are somewhat different than the main.

It may be you get to stick around and watch the season premier of "America's got Herpes!" It might just limp on the way it has from excess to excess from darkness into darkness. No matter what anyone fears or anticipates it isn't going to turn out quite the way anyone expects. We're soon to find out what you value and believe in and to what extent. Armageddon and all of the other nametags for cosmic rock and roll do not actually require religious overtones to occur. Sometimes shit happens because shit happens. So far it hasn't affected AIG or Barclays bank holidays.

In so many ways it is so classic that you just have to imagine there's a director involved. It's so Shakespearean. It's as if enough people had the script inside their heads that it had to play out the way it does. Whether the truck that hits you is powered by a conscious force or a random series of numbers doesn't make any difference on impact.

Blackwater Contracted to Evict People in Foreclosed Homes

http://www.holyjuan.com/2008/10/blackwater...ict-people.html

CHICAGO (AP) – Sources have just confirmed that mortgage loan companies are contracting with Blackwater Worldwide to assist in the eviction of people still living in foreclosed homes. Though Blackwater Worldwide has not yet confirmed this, we have several reports of Blackwater contractors stealthily lurking through Chicago in full military fatigues with camouflaged furniture dollies and armored moving vans.

Blackwater Worldwide, better known for contracting with the US State Department for “protection” work in Iraq, is moving forward with the company's newest initiative, Operation Deadbeat. Just recently, it has been confirmed that model homes are being constructed at Blackwater training sites for what is presumed to be tactical planning purposes.

Joan Readford of Easthampton was removed from her home this morning. “The men ran up to my door in formation. After serving the papers, they staged an attack of the first floor, packaging up my breakables and putting my appliances in a separate interrogation area. The house was packed up in about thirty minutes. Those assholes were very efficient and swept the floor right before they jumped into the armored moving van.”

In recent news, Cook County sheriff Dart has refused to evict renters whose landlords have quit paying the mortgage. He was quoted as saying that eviction can be part of his job but, “What isn't part of our job, however, is to carry out work on behalf of the multi-billion-dollar banks and mortgage industries.” It seems that the multi-billion-dollar banks and mortgage industries can’t wait for Sheriff Dart’s morals to be changed so they have taken the evictions into their own hands.

An unnamed Blackwater source has shared with us that he and several other Blackwater employees have undergone intensive moving training. “Many people think our only job is to kill and torture. This isn’t so. We undergo weeks of training in the art of wrapping valuables and box labeling. Just last week, we blew up a townhouse, moved it to a ¾ acre lot with a view of the lake and pieced it back together. That's customer service.”

Dildos for Justice

Monday, July 18th, 2011
http://www.theagitator.com/2011/07/18/dildos-for-justice/

I'm currently working on a story about a pot raid in which the cops emptied a woman's "lady drawer" onto her bed, lined up her sex toys, took a photo, then mocked her for what they found. That's only a small part of the story. But it's a weird part.

As it turns out, there's also a Facebook group dedicated to cops' fascination with the sex toys they find on drug raids.

When Oakland County Narcotics Enforcement Team raided several businesses and homes in August they confiscated guns, cash, a computer, business records from the safe and filing cabinet, and at least one vibrating dildo out of the one of the victims bedrooms.

Cannabis Attorney Matt Abel relayed a similar situation with one of his clients, victims of a drug raid who had personal items taken by the SWAT team. Matt's take on it is that the Narcotics Officers hope the victims won't go to trial for fear their highly private devises will be publicly displayed.

"What do they think?" he asks, "that the vibrators were used in a crime? Used to transport drugs? Bought with drug money?'

Well folks, I figure it's likely that those fellas at Oakland County Narcotics Enforcement just need a little more love in their life. Perhaps a cup of hot tea, a good friend that listens unconditionally, and more dildos might assist in elevating their compassion level.

That's why we're starting the Dildos For Justice Campaign.

Also, an oldie but goodie

Oklahoma City parents complain police wrongly rounded up teenagers in Bricktown

Oklahoma City Police Chief Bill Citty said some of the complaints parents made after a curfew sweep Saturday night were valid.

Oklahoma City Police Chief Bill Citty agreed Tuesday his officers made mistakes Saturday when they rounded up about 20 teenagers on curfew violations in front of the Harkins Bricktown Cinema and hauled them away in what one parent described as a “paddy wagon.”

Several parents complained about the curfew sweep at Tuesday's Oklahoma City Council meeting. Parents said officers arrested the teens at least 20 minutes before the 11 p.m. curfew began.

Some of the children arrested were waiting for rides after attending a movie, which is allowed under the city's curfew statute. Others were accompanied to the theater by adults but arrested anyway while their parents retrieved their vehicles.

Peggy Hammons' daughter, Kelsea, and her friend, Brittney Campbell, both 15, attended an 8:20 p.m. showing of “Transformers” at Harkins with Brittney's mother. The movie let out just before 11, and the two teens waited in front of the theater while Brittney's mom got the car.

“A female police officer approached them, instructed them to hand over their cellphones and get over and get in that paddy wagon,” Peggy Hammons said. “My daughter and her friend were never once asked, ‘Were you there to see the movie and do you have a ticket?' They tried to explain to the police officers, and they were told to shut up and be quiet.”

Valenthia Doolin, of Oklahoma City, said she arrived to pick up her kids at 10:40 p.m. and found a line of police cars and vans. Her children were not answering their cellphones. Panicked, she parked and walked to the theater but could not find her kids.

She eventually received a text message from her son saying they had been picked up on a curfew violation.

Doolin said officers refused to listen when they pointed out their mom's car and said their ride was there minutes before the curfew began.

“We felt violated, harassed and frightened at the hands of Oklahoma City law enforcement,” Doolin said. “Something has to be done to ensure that it never happens again.”

Citty said officers conducted the sweep because of an increase in assaults and other complaints involving juveniles in Bricktown after hours. He said at least two of the citations issued Saturday have been dismissed because they shouldn't have been issued to begin with. Others could also be thrown out.

Citty said police are investigating their handling of the situation to see what went wrong.

“The ordinance does provide for legitimate reasons for someone who is underage to be out past 11 p.m.,” Citty said. “If they can show they were attending the theater and are waiting for a ride to be picked up, the arrest of that juvenile would not be appropriate.”

The kids were taken to the Crisis Intervention Center, a holding facility for juveniles picked up on minor complaints. It is run by Youth Services for Oklahoma County Inc., a nonprofit organization that contracts with the city and the state.

‘Called kids liars'

Parents complained they were treated unprofessionally by staff at the center and had to wait six hours or more to get their kids back.

“The C.I.C. staff used profanity, harsh language and called kids liars when they weren't given the information they wanted to hear,” Peggy Hammons said. “My husband and I arrived at the C.I.C. before midnight. I could hear my daughter and her friend just in the other room bawling.”

Kelsea Hammons said she and Brittney held hands in a holding cell because they were scared but were told by staff to separate because they were publicly displaying affection.

Peggy Hammons said staff members were curt with her and made her wait until 6 a.m. to take her daughter home while they completed paperwork.

Debby Forshee, president and chief executive of Youth Services, said she is working with police on their investigation and is also looking into the incident. She said the center has to follow procedures and complete paperwork as a matter of its contracts with the city and state.

“When you have such a large number of kids all at one time, you can imagine it takes longer than if it was one or two people,” Forshee said. “We are looking at a couple of our processes on how we handle large groups.”

Peggy Hammons said even if the citations are thrown out, it won't erase the experience the kids went through after they were arrested and booked like common criminals even though they did nothing wrong.

“You tell your daughter the police are there to protect her,” Hammons said. “What do I tell her now when it is the police doing the harm?”

Riot police demand toilet breaks every 45 MINUTES 'to stop them from wetting themselves'
Fear that lack of breaks drives force to 'incivility'

Last updated at 4:23 PM on 20th July 2011
http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-20...themselves.html

The fearsome reputation of riot police comes from their lack of toilet breaks, a top policeman claimed today.

Police are demanding to be rotated every 45 minutes when supervising riots and demonstrations - so that they can go for a toilet break.

Members of the West Midlands Police Federation complained in a survey of a 'lack of comfort breaks' during pre-planned public order duties.

Police chiefs fear the lack of loo breaks is behind complaints from members of the public of 'incivility, impoliteness and intolerance'.

Bryan Higgins, lead on health and safety for the force's federation, said officers cannot carry out duties effectively when they are desperate to use the toilet.

He told Police Review magazine: 'If you have not been able to go to the toilet and you desperately need to go, you are not going to be concentrating on the task in hand.

'You are going to be concentrating on not wetting yourself or not making a mess of yourself. It does cause major problems.

'If you do not have sufficient staff on, the first thing to go is the ability to take a meal break or to go to the toilet.'

Mr Higgins revealed incivility was the biggest cause of complaints against the force, and warned the situation would be made worse by a lack of officers.

He demanded public order officers should be rotated from the front line after 45 minutes and forces must review 'safe staffing levels'.

A spokesman for West Midlands Police said that adequate refreshment breaks were 'fundamental' to the planning process for major events.

He said: 'In pre-planned operations, a greater number of staff than the number of fixed posts will usually be deployed, to allow rotation of staff and refreshment, welfare and comfort breaks.

'All police officers are expected to act with self-control, tolerance and professionalism, treating members of the public and colleagues with respect and courtesy even in the most challenging of circumstances.'

A police chief apologised in February after officers complained of a lack of food, clothing and comfort breaks during last year's papal visit.

10 Met staff worked for News Int

19 Jul 2011

Ten members of staff at Scotland Yard's directorate of public affairs (DPA) have previously worked for News International, Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Paul Stephenson said.

Giving evidence to the Commons Home Affairs Committee, Sir Paul said that former News International employees and interns accounted for almost a quarter of the DPA's staff of 45.

"I understand that there are 10 members of the DPA staff who have worked in News International in the past, in some cases journalists, in some cases undertaking work experience with the organisation," he said.

Sir Paul spoke of his "personally painful" decision to resign in the light of the Metropolitan Police's links to former News of the World deputy editor Neil Wallis.

In a final statement to the committee, he said: "Contrary to much ill-informed media speculation, I'm not leaving because I was pushed, I'm not leaving because I have anything to fear or threatened, I'm not leaving because of any lack of support from the Mayor (Boris Johnson), the Prime Minister (David Cameron) or indeed the Home Secretary (Theresa May).

"And until the point of informing them of my resignation, their support was very strong and afterwards their comments most generous.

"I'm going because I'm a leader. Leadership is not about popularity, it's not about the press, it's not about spinning.

"It's about making decisions that put your organisation, your mission and the people you lead first. It's about doing things that will make them proud of the leaders and that's much different from being popular with them. It's about making decisions that may be difficult and personally painful. And that's leadership and that's why I'm going."

Sir Paul said there had been "huge events, regrettable events" and he spoke of his "sincere regret" that Assistant Commissioner John Yates had also chosen to resign.

"I think the work he has done, particularly in counter-terrorism in this country, has been splendid and I think will be poorer for his passing, frankly," he said. "However, the Met will recover, the Met has over 50-odd thousand people, the large majority of whom are decent, honest, hard-working professionals."

Top murder cops probed over talks with suspect in station cell

Jul 17 2011 Exclusive by Derek Alexander, Sunday Mail
http://www.dailyrecord.co.uk/news/scottish...86908-23277384/

TWO detectives leading one of Scotland's biggest murder inquiries are at the centre of a high-level probe over their dealings with a suspect.

Detective Superintendent Michael Orr and his deputy Detective Inspector Callum Young are being investigated by colleagues at Strathclyde Police over alleged conversations with the man, who cannot be named for legal reasons.

The force's Professional Standards Unit are scrutinising CCTV footage of the pair allegedly speaking to the suspect, who was being held in custody by Lothian and Borders Police.

Orr and Young allegedly visited the 43-year-old's cell at Craigmillar police station in Edinburgh four times. Two other Strathclyde officers were present but are not part of the investigation.

It is understood Lothian and Borders Police submitted a complaint to their Strathclyde counterparts following the incident last July.

Strathclyde Deputy Chief Constable Neil Richardson ordered the inquiry - headed by Chief Superintendent Ruaraidh Nicholson - at the start of April.

Nicholson wrote to the suspect asking 14 questions about his conversations with Orr and Young. He wants to know why the suspect was spoken to by the detectives but he has, so far, refused to be quizzed.

Officers visited his home a fortnight ago and asked him to co-operate with their inquiry.

Both Orr and Young are aware of the investigation but have not been suspended from their duties.

Orr comes from a line of top officers. His dad John once led the Strathclyde force and his uncle Jim was the first head of the Scottish Drugs Enforcement Agency.

One source said: "This is a very sensitive investigation and a lot is at stake."

A man has been arrested in connection with the murder being investigated by Orr and Young but no details of the case can be revealed for legal reasons.

Strathclyde Police confirmed the force were investigating two serving officers.

A spokeswoman said: "It would be inappropriate to comment at this stage."

HOUSTON (KTRK) -- A Houston police officer was caught on camera Thursday taking a swing at a handcuffed robbery suspect. Eyewitness News investigates these shocking images captured by SkyEye 13 HD. And now the police chief is responding.

The Houston Police Department has been working to rebuild the public's trust for the last couple years after we first showed you video of officers punching and kicking teenage burglary suspect, Chad Holley.

Now another Houston police officer is under investigation over her actions at the end of a chase Thursday morning.

Many people watching the video are saying the officer's behavior doesn't make the department look good. And that could be why the police chief and his supervisors are taking quick action.

From SkyEye 13 HD, two Houston police officers are seen handcuffing and arresting a suspected armed robber who's in the middle of the screen. Police say the man in the torn white shirt lead them on a foot chase along some train tracks on the north side.

Then a female officer approaches the group and our cameras catch her taking a swing at the suspect.

"To me, the suspect was in custody, and certainly in handcuffs," Houston Police Chief Charles McClelland said.

We sat down with Chief McClelland after showing him the exclusive Eyewitness News video of what appears to be an officer taking a punch at a compliant and restrained suspect.

"I have been informed by supervisors of this department that they have already initiated an Internal Affairs investigation, and the officer that I saw on the videotape has been relieved of duty," said Chief McClelland.

Shortly after 8am, police were investigating a robbery at a convenience store in the 1400 block of Cavalcade near Terry. The store clerk told Eyewitness News he had just opened the store and moved behind the security glass when three armed robbers wearing masks barged in, demanding money. The clerk called 911 from behind the bulletproof glass.

The suspects knocked down some shelves and ran off. They didn't get away with any money.

We found out the officer who took that swing is Angela Horton. She signed on with HPD in January 2007 and is currently based out of Central Patrol. Police say she joined the foot chase for the suspect Thursday morning after three masked gunmen tried robbing a clerk at the S.K. Food Store on Cavalcade.

At one point in the video you can see another officer pushing Horton out of the way, after she aggressively approached the handcuffed man.

So how often does HPD deal with excessive force complaints?

According to Chief McClelland on average officers make about 110,000 arrests a year and receive about 1,200 excessive force complaints annually, or a little more than 1 percent.

After seeing the video Chief McClelland had little tolerance for Horton's hit on a handcuffed suspect.

"Her duties are suspended. She will not be coming in to work. She will be at home. She will still be receiving pay," said Chief McClelland.

This video has a lot of people across this community fired up right now. City council members and community activists are speaking out about the officer's alleged actions.

"You know the video speaks for itself," said City Council Member Jolanda Jones. "The young man was clearly compliant and walking, and she just came out of nowhere."

"We know that police officers are human, and they get angry, but come on now," said Deloyd Parker of SHAPE Community Center.

The community activist calls the officers behavior excessive and out of line.

"We can't continue to let this happen over and over again because, you know, people are tired of going down to City Council and complaining and nothing is done," Parker said.

"I'm just thankful to KTRK for having the video, because videos are what they are," said Council Member Jones.

She and others say behavior like this is unacceptable.

"I ask the union, police officers, to stand with me and Houstonians to weed this kind of behavior out. Because it gives a black eye to HPD and there are good, decent officers out there," said Councilwoman Jones.

The other two robbery suspects remain on the loose. Police are hoping surveillance video will help in the investigation.

Another Photographer Detained in Southern California

Possibly following LAPD's guidelines to treat photographers as suspicious

By Carlos Miller -... Topics News
July 13, 2011 @ 3:10PM
http://www.pixiq.com/article/another-photo...hern-california

The photo that got Sander Roscoe Wolff detained by Long Beach police.

For the second time in a month, police in Long Beach, California detained a photographer for taking pictures in public.

And now it is becoming apparent that they are probably following guidelines issued by the Los Angeles Police Department that explicitly states that people taking photos are to be viewed as suspicious.

According to page 40 of the LAPD's "Suspicious Activity Report," published in June 2008:

Takes pictures or video footage (with no apparent esthetic value, i.e., camera angles, security equipment, security personnel, traffic lights, building entrances, etc.).

This gives police the green light to detain photographers who are doing nothing but taking photos.

The Suspicious Activity Report was highlighted in an article by Greggory Moore of the Long Beach Post, who was detained by Los Angeles County sheriff deputies for photographing a courthouse on June 2.

In the article, Moore writes about another incident involving his colleague, Sander Roscoe Wolff, who was detained on June 30 for photographing an oil refinery for artistic purposes.

Even though Wolff wasn't breaking the law nor was he driving, Long Beach police officer Asif Kahn demanded his driver's license.

According to Moore's article:

"I asked him if I had to show him my driver's license," says Wolff. "He said 'yes.' And at that point I did feel detained. Because if he was demanding that I identify myself, then I couldn't just walk away."

Wolff says Kahn apparently ran a check on Wolff's driver's license, then came back and said that everything was okay. "He said because of Homeland Security and new laws, [the police] have the authority to ask for my driver's license and run it when they feel that there's cause."

The cop then allowed him to continue taking photos.

Moore points out that while the Suspicious Activity Report supposedly applies only to LAPD cops, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence wants to make it a "national model."

Although Special Order No. 11 applies only to the LAPD, as the American Civil Liberties Union points out, "Rather than criticize the LAPD efforts, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence said the LAPD program 'should be a national model.' Not surprisingly, in June 2008 the Departments of Justice and Homeland Security teamed with the Major City [sic] Chiefs Association to issue a report recommending expanding the LAPD SAR program to other U.S. cities."2

The Office of the Director of National Intelligence is a federal agency that serves as "the principal advisor to the President, the National Security Council, and the Homeland Security Council for intelligence matters related to national security, according to Wikipedia.

Moore said he will continue looking into the matter for an upcoming article.

For Part 2 of this story, I will report on my efforts to continue this discussion by reaching out to the LBPD in general and Kahn in particular; to the City Attorney's Office; and to Councilman Steve Neal, in whose Ninth District Wolff found himself detained.

We are happily encouraged each time we see a peace officer who not only honors his Oath but also digs to the depth of understanding about the nature, character, and spirit of the intent of the founders who drew up that document. This kind of exemplary responsibility to one's sacred obligation, the Oath itself, is an inspiration for all patriotic Americans.

OREGON SHERIFF STANDS UP AGAINST THE U.S. FOREST SERVICE

Josephine County, Oregon -When Gil Gilbertson was sworn is as Sheriff of Josephine County, a rural county in southwest Oregon, in 2007, he had 30 years of law enforcement experience behind him, both in the United States and with various military missions overseas.

So when citizens of the county began coming to him complaining of “harassment” by U. S. Forest Service law enforcement officers (LEO), he said he’d investigate their concerns, figuring he could work things out with the local ranger district. After all, as the county’s chief law enforcement officer he was in the “club” and moreover had gotten along with the “feds” — though he disagreed with their road closing policies and other efforts to keep the public off public lands which cover 68 percent of the rural county.

“You know, until about a year ago this wasn’t even on my radar,” Gilbertson told NewsWithViews. “It was the miners that were coming to me saying they were being harassed. I said I’d look into it.”

He contacted the local ranger district for information, but instead of answers he was bluntly told that No, they couldn’t, wouldn’t discuss anything about any complaints with him, but he could file a FOIA (Freedom of Information Act) request and they’d get back to him.

“Go Pound Sand”

As talk-radio host Bill Meyer [of KMED] put it in an interview with Gilbertson, the Forest Service had essentially told the sheriff to “go pound sand.” Federal agencies are notorious for taking months and years to answer FOIAs Meyer said.

“I’m not going to file any FOIA,” Gilbertson told Meyer. “I think that they’re obligated to impart that information to me.”

On May 5, Gilbertson sent a blistering letter to the District Ranger of the Wild Rivers Ranger District in Caves Junction, setting down in no uncertain terms his objections not only to the Forest Service response to his requests for information but his dissatisfaction with USFS policies.

“Frankly, I was somewhat taken aback by your legal department’s position advising you to not discuss issues with me,” he wrote, adding he was “aghast” at the refusal to provide information without a FOIA “to find out what your agency is doing in regards to the citizens of this county.” He continued:

As the CLEO [chief law enforcement officer] of this county, elected by the citizens, saddled with the expectation and responsibility to safeguard their rights, I fully intend to uphold the laws against any threat, inappropriate or unlawful actions against them.

The issues of illegal road closures, grazing, logging, minerals, taking land under the auspices of 'Monument' status, citizen complaints against your LEO agents, high unemployment and other socio-economic issues we all face today; coupled with the uncooperative nature presented by the USFS are causing me great concern about our relationship and future cooperation.

Go here to read the full letter.

The following day he released the contents of the letter to the public at a meeting of the South West Oregon Mining Association which posted it on their website. He explained he'd been discussing the issue and sharing information with Sheriff Glenn Palmer of Grant County, Ore., who sent a similar letter [dated March 31] to Teresa Raaf, supervisor of Malheur National Forest.

In his letter Sheriff Palmer questioned the USFS's authority to engage in law enforcement within Grant county, declaring: "your jurisdiction as I see it is limited to the Federal Building in John Day" [the county seat]; and that the presence of USFS "Law Enforcement" violates Article 1, Section 8 of the U.S. Constitution.

"Within the confines of Grant County, Oregon, the duties and responsibility of law enforcement will rest with the County Sheriff and his designees," he wrote.

Palmer's letter was apparently prompted by Forest Service attempts to pressure him into signing a "co-operative policing agreement" that would allow the agency to engage in law enforcement activities inside the lines of Grant County.

Palmer said that in the near future, he'll be raising other issues about USFS's activities in Grant County, including its recent treatment of the local citizenry, illegal road closures, grazing, logging and other concerns that he and his community have. He also expressed concern about the way Forest Service LEOs had treated "treated citizens of this county in Oct. and Nov., 2010," but deferred giving details until a later time.

Drawing the Line

Sheriffs Gilbertson and Palmer have crossed personal Rubicons to join a growing cadre of sheriffs in western states who are drawing the line against federal agencies like the Forest Service.

For instance, Sheriff Greg Hagwood, of Plumas County in northern California, has publicly stated he will not enforce federal regulations laid down by the Forest Service that demand road closures and restrict vehicle access to the land.

Asked if he agreed with Hagwood, Gilbertson said he was not familiar with Hagwood's action, but agreed with him and pointed to the famous case of Prinz v. United States (1997).

"The Supreme Court ruled that the federal government cannot force us [local law enforcement] to enforce federal regs, rules or laws," he said. "They can't force sheriffs to do that. The sheriff is the highest law enforcement official for that county. My understanding is that there is no other authority that supersedes the sheriff's office for that county."

Gilbertson said that he had recently signed a cooperative policing agreement with the Forest Service, "but I will rescind it immediately if I determine that it was a mistake," he promised.

Since his letter was released Gilbertson has appeared on various talk shows, where he discusses the issues that affect not only Josephine County but the entire country.

Meanwhile, at a meeting of the Oregon State Sheriffs' Association, Gilbertson agreed to head a committee to research the many questions that have arisen regarding federal jurisdiction and the limits – if any — to federal authority.

"We're checking to see if things are being done appropriately according to the U.S. Constitution and the laws that govern all this," said Gilbertson. "So it's a process right now that we're in the research phase. … I'm looking at doing all the research before I make a final decision.

Gilbertson also explained that for him the road-closing issue is a safety issue. "If I need to go Search-and-Rescue, or if I need to go look for crime or marijuana grows, I don't need those roads closed; I need them open so I can get to them.

"You're not supposed to take any vehicles onto certain federal lands. But guess what. If I've got somebody missing, if I need to take a helicopter in I will. That's my authority as a sheriff and I'm not going to let anyone stand in my way to protect the people of this county."

Gilbertson pointed specifically to the "Biscuit Fire" in July 2002, which burned nearly 500,000 acres of Siskiyou National Forest and much of the Kalmiopsis Wilderness.

"They had a big tanker loaded with chemicals ready to go, but were told not to dump because it was on a wilderness area," said Gilbertson bitterly. "Had they been allowed to dump they would have suppressed the fire right there. The same thing is happening in Arizona right now," he added. "It's nonsense."

"They've let these forests grow so you have all this fuel that burns and just goes crazy.

If they would go in and thin it out – that's good stewardship. But they've gone from being good stewards to being over-lords that think they have unlimited authority."

D.C. Firefighters To Help Police Streets?

Thursday, Jul 14, 2011
http://www.nbcwashington.com/news/local/Fi...5552998.html?dr

Both D.C. firefighters and police officers are upset over a new program that forces the fire department to help fight crime.

For the past three weeks, D.C. Fire and EMS personnel have been parking their trucks at high crime neighborhoods.

"It's to prevent things from bubbling up. The idea is that if you have a fire engine with adults there no one is going to commit a crime," said D.C. Deputy Mayor Paul Quander.

City officials said they just want firefighters to call 911 if they see suspicious activity.

The D.C. police union and firefighters union say the plan is not safe.

"I think it is a disaster," said D.C. Police Union spokesman Kris Baumann. "You're putting untrained, unsupervised, unequipped firefighters in some of the most dangerous neighborhoods in town to perform a law enforcement function."

Right now, the plan is to keep the policy in place at least through next spring.

Man Videotapes Himself Getting Detained For Openly Carrying Gun In California

Two men were openly carrying firearms in a Southern California strip shopping mall when they were detained by police and handcuffed.

One of the men managed to videotape the incident, except for a portion when one of the officers turned his camera off.

However, the man managed to turn the camera back on and the officer made no further attempt to stop him from recording.

It is legal to open carry firearms in California as long as the guns are not loaded and the carrier abides by other restrictions, according to this site.

The officers detained them while they checked the serial numbers on their weapons and for possible warrants on the men.

The men were eventually released with their weapons.

The incident took place in Upland, which is just east of Los Angeles County.

The two videos were uploaded Wednesday, July 13 (yesterday) although it does not state when the incident took place. Part one of the video is above. Part two is below.

The men were clearly testing the system and one of them kept complaining about his rights being violated.

Upland Police Officer Duran maintained a professional demeanor except for that brief moment when he turned the camera off.

But he didn't do anything once the camera was turned back on, even though the man kept taunting him about putting him on Youtube.

The officers told the men that there had been a string of armed robberies in the shopping center, which was why they had to be detained.

I know the open carry advocates are extremely passionate about their rights, but I can also understand police can be spooked by people carrying guns.

I'm a gun owner, but I don't believe I have to flaunt it everywhere I go, not that my state would even allow it.

It's bad enough I get harassed for carrying cameras. I can imagine the issues I will have by openly carrying my guns.

But if the law states that people are allowed to open carry guns, then it should also state how police are expected to deal with these situations.

Maybe it does. I haven't really looked into it.

Earlier this year, a Philadelphia man was detained for openly carrying a weapon, even though he was allowed to do so. He was arrested for uploading a recording of the incident. He was set to go on trial this month although I haven't heard any updates on the case.

Where do you stand on the open carry issue?

Benefits scam police officer, Colin Burgoyne, sentenced

Edinburgh Sheriff Court heard Burgoyne scammed about £10,000 one year and £5,000 the second year

14 July 2011 Last updated at 13:22
http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-scotland-edin...t-fife-14154336

An ex-policeman who conned the benefits system of £16,000 to pay for his children to go to private school has been given 150 hours community service.

Colin Burgoyne, 48, from Edinburgh, initially legitimately claimed child tax credit to pay for nursery but when they left he carried on claiming.

Edinburgh Sheriff Court heard Burgoyne scammed £11,341.69 one year and £5,197 the second year.

Burgoyne admitted the offence that was between April 2006 and September 2007.

Burgoyne, a police constable, retired from service in April this year.
Health difficulties

Burgoyne, whose time with the police force included at stint at Edinburgh Sheriff Court, was initially accused of scamming £35,662.26 from the benefits system between 2002 and 2007 but the Crown accepted his guilty plea to a lesser amount in a smaller time frame.

His wife Kathleen Burgoyne, 46, was also initially charged but was later dropped from the complaint.

The court heard the matter was brought to light through an anomaly which was discovered through a cross-referencing exercise.

Defence agent David O'Hagan said: "He worked as a police officer for 30 years and has now retired and is receiving a pension.

"He was entitled to the payments in respect of the children but the circumstances changed and the payments went from being applicable to inapplicable and he did nothing to check this or contact the benefits agency and he admits that it was his responsibility to do that.

"He has fairly difficult domestic circumstances, he cares for his wife, who has considerable health difficulties and their four children."

The court heard that a small amount, £1423 of the £16,538 taken had been repaid.

The lawyer added that Burgoyne was in a position to pay back the rest within a month.

Sheriff Neil MacKinnon told Burgoyne it was a serious offence but that in the circumstances he was prepared to impose community service as an alternative to custody.

He reduced the amount of hours from 200 to reflect Burgoyne's guilty plea.

Burgoyne declined to comment as he left court.

'Emergency' declared in AZ town over allegations

By AMANDA LEE MYERS - Associated Press | AP – Mon, Jul 11, 2011
http://news.yahoo.com/emergency-declared-a...-211928629.html

PHOENIX (AP) — The far western Arizona town of Quartzsite was in a state of upheaval Monday after the town council ousted the mayor from power and declared a state of emergency, all over an online video that shows a woman being arrested.

Mayor Ed Foster told The Associated Press on Monday that the town council held a last-minute meeting that was closed to the public Sunday night, declaring a state of emergency in the 3,600-person town just east of the California city of Blythe.

The council's declaration put police Chief Jeff Gilbert in charge, making Foster the "deputy chief executive of nothing right now," he said. It also allows the five-member council to meet without public notice and suspend all public comment at the meetings until they declare the state of emergency over.

"I'm going to tell you frankly, this council is out of control," Foster said. "The chief has been out of control for some time and I've asked the state government to help a number of times," to no avail.

Foster described the government and Gilbert as corrupt and abusive of their power, and said all their recent actions are frantic efforts to cover up millions of dollars of money from lining some of their pockets.

Both Gilbert's and the town hall's phone numbers rang busy most of the day Monday, and all five council members and the town manager did not immediately return email requests for comment.

A man who answered the town hall's phone later Monday and did not identify himself said he would deliver a message to Town Manager Alex Taft but said council members were unavailable.

Vice Mayor Barbara Cowell told The Arizona Republic on Sunday that Foster's characterization of the council imposing "martial law" was inaccurate, saying that a recording of the meeting will be made available to the public Monday.

There was no evidence that the recording or meeting minutes had been posted by Monday evening.

Cowell defended Quartzsite's leaders by saying the town is audited every year and that they're not corrupt.

"Our people work so hard," she said. "We've had to cut back on staff ... just to keep us solvent."

Foster said the council declared the emergency because they claim they've received threats from members of the public who saw a video posted on YouTube.

The video shows a woman identified as Jennifer Jones being arrested and hauled away from a council meeting after she said the council was violating open-meetings laws. Jones was speaking during a public comment period, and Foster is heard on the video telling other council members who ordered her removed that "the lady has the floor."

"She's exercising her First Amendment rights," Foster says in the video before telling officers: "You are in violation of my rules of order."

The officers remove her, anyway, and in the process injure her elbow, which is now in a sling, Foster said.

The video has gotten nearly 30,000 views and has people from across the U.S. and world sending messages of support to Foster and messages of outrage to the council. Foster has a Facebook page of supporters and on it, people have posted messages that include, "Kudos from Mississippi. Keep the rats scurrying" and "You have Colorado's support!"

Foster said a woman from England sent him a note with just one line: "How could America be considered a beacon of democracy in the world when freedom of speech does not exist in Quartzsite, Ariz.?"

Foster was elected in May 2010 on a campaign promise to investigate corruption allegations in the town.

He said since being in office, he has discovered that every pay period, eight to 10 paychecks go to unnamed people and that he has been denied access to financial records to find out where the money goes at every turn.

He said that's been happening since 1991 and amounts to $250,000 every year. "That's literally millions of dollars," he said.

He said he's gone to Gov. Jan Brewer's office, the Attorney General's Office and the FBI with his allegations and pleas for an investigation, and that he's been ignored. He said he was contacting the FBI on Monday with information about Sunday's meeting declaring an emergency, which he said was illegal because it was closed to the public and in violation of open-meetings laws.

Amy Rezzonico, a spokeswoman for Attorney General Tom Horne's office, said that the office has gotten phone calls and emails from people "interested in issues dealing with the town of Quartzsite," but that no formal complaint had been filed.

Brewer's office and the FBI did not immediately respond to requests about whether Foster has come to them for help.

Foster also said he has been targeted repeatedly by police Chief Gilbert, arrested or investigated for "bogus" reasons that weren't prosecuted and didn't prove any wrongdoing.

Most recently, he said Gilbert cited and released him on charges of disorderly conduct and interference six weeks ago when he tried to stop him from arresting Jones for the third time because she had sued the town for $2 million on allegations of police harassment.

"She called me and I went to the scene and I told the chief, 'What, are you crazy? Are you trying to give her and her attorney a field day in court?" he said. "And then he arrested me."

He said he also is the target of a recall election, in which 171 signatures were gathered, and that one of the town council members resigned to run against him in hopes of ousting him next month.

"I ran on a campaign promise to look into this money and I've been stymied, stifled, stopped at every turn," Foster said. "Every time you get into a political thing like this, it always goes back to money."

When three girls in Midway, Georgia set up their lemonade stand, they intended to raise enough money to go to the water park. But the ever-vigilant local police quickly identified the girls’ effort as criminal enterprise and shut them down.

“It’s kind of crazy that we couldn’t sell lemonade,” 14-year-old Casity Dixon told WJCL. “It was fun, but we had to listen to the cops and shut it down.”

The police chief and another officer discovered the stand only one day after it had opened.

“They told us to shut it down,” 10-year-old Skylar Roberts said.

“We had told them, we understand you guys are young, but still, you’re breaking the law, and we can’t let you do it anymore,” Midway Police Chief Kelly Morningstar explained. “The law is the law, and we have to be consistent with how we enforce the laws.”

A city permit that would have allowed the lemonade stand to stay open costs $50 a day. In contrast, a child’s water park ticket goes for about $27.

Charges dropped against Oak Park woman over veggie garden
Kim Kozlowski/ The Detroit News

Oak Park— Charges against the woman who planted a vegetable garden in her front yard have been dropped, her attorney said Thursday.

But other charges against Julie Bass have been resurrected for not having licenses for her two dogs — even though she took care of that issue, lawyer Solomon Radner said.

"This is really nothing other than a personal vendetta against the Basses either because somebody doesn't like them, or because they had the nerve to fight this unjust prosecution," said Radner, who plans to file a motion to dismiss.

City officials could not be immediately reached for comment.

Bass was charged with a misdemeanor for growing cucumbers, tomatoes and other vegetables in raised beds in her front yard, leading to a blog and Facebook page — "Oak Park Hates Veggies."

Last week, her plight went viral, gaining her an army of international supporters.

City officials — who were barraged with emails and even threatening phone calls — have since filed the paperwork to drop the charges without telling Bass, Radner said.

He wondered if they made the move to get the city out of the spotlight.

"Charges are dropped for the time being," Radner said. "Based on the games the city has been playing, I would not put it past them to drop the charges just to get the media off their back."

He reported Bass got licenses for her dogs after she was charged in June, and showed the paperwork to officials. Typically, cases are closed after the issue is addressed.

But Radner spoke to an Oak Park city attorney colleague who informed him that the dog license charge is not dead against Bass, something he called "a very dirty move."

Misdemeanor charges — including failure to have a dog license — typically carry a 93-day jail sentence, Radner said.

Mayor Ed Foster Comments On The State Of Emergency In Quartzsite, Arizona

July 14, 2011

QUARTZSITE, AZ – The far western Arizona town of Quartzsite was in disarray Monday after the town council ousted the mayor from power and declared a state of emergency, all over an online video that shows a woman being arrested.

Mayor Ed Foster said the town council held a last-minute meeting that was closed to the public Sunday night, declaring a state of emergency in the 3,600-person town just east of the California city of Blythe.

The council's declaration put police Chief Jeff Gilbert in charge, making Foster the "deputy chief executive of nothing right now," he said. However, Vice Mayor Barbara Cowell denies the city is under any type of emergency order and told ABC15 "it's business as usual."

Cowell did admit city council members, on advice from the city attorney, had an emergency meeting Sunday night after all six council members received threatening e-mails, even death threats, over a video posted online .

“It scares the hell out of me, I’m sorry to say,” said Cowell.

The video shows a woman identified as Jennifer Jones being arrested and hauled away from a council meeting after she said the council was violating open-meetings laws. Jones was speaking during a public comment period, and Foster is heard on the video telling other council members who ordered her removed that “the lady has the floor.”

“It was emergency measures pertaining to the emails we’ve gotten, what we can do to protect our people,” said Cowell.

On Monday, Foster filed paperwork with the Arizona Attorney General’s Office complaining Sunday’s emergency meeting violated the state’s open meetings law.

DEADLINE LIVE EXCLUSIVE: U.S. Government Builds First Law Enforcement Base in Puebla, Mexico

July 12, 2011 by supermario

A new 'state-of-the-art' U.S. base, currently under construction in Puebla, would be used to launch covert operations against drug cartels, says the Mexican opposition party.

By Mario Andrade
July 12, 2011
http://deadlinelive.info/2011/07/12/deadli...-puebla-mexico/

Earlier this year, in May, the governor of the Mexican State of Puebla, Rafael Moreno Valle, and the U.S. Coordinator for Plan Merida in Mexico, Keith W. Mines, held an inauguration ceremony for what they described as the most 'sophisticated and modernized' police academy in Mexico.

The 54-acre facility will cost $22 million. It will have barracks for about 500 personnel, two conference auditoriums, two chow halls, a helicopter landing area, four watch towers, a gun range, a forensic lab, a training court room, as well as smoke and fire simulation buildings, according to Mexican journalist Raul Rodriguez Cortes.

At first glimpse, to most Mexicans, it would seem logical to modernize the federal police; after all, there is an unprecedented crisis of violence and corruption throughout the country. Therefore, building a militarized police training base would seem like the best solution to tackle the problem… or so it seems.

According to local activists in Puebla, the new 'Ignacio Zaragoza Militarized Academy' or AMIZ will serve as a covert U.S. Military base, where U.S. Special forces will train, rehearse, and launch black operations against Mexican drug cartels. Many Mexicans are in favor of this idea. However, there are many who oppose what they call a violation of their national sovereignty.

Others accuse the Mexican Government and the United States Government of building 'a school of the Americas on steroids,' even if the facility was only going to serve as a police academy.

Local Mexican Congressman from the 'Convergence Party,' José Juan Espinosa Torres is one of the biggest opponents of opening any military base in Puebla -whether Mexican or foreign. Also, a representative from the PRD Party, Enrique Alcántara Dzgaip has been organizing street protests against the construction of the base, calling it an 'American intervention.'

The U.S. Coordinator for Plan Merida in Mexico, Keith W. Mines, the Governor of Puebla, and other pubic officials have admitted that many U.S. federal agents will serve as instructors at the base in order to 'modernize' the Mexican police force. Some U.S. Agencies will include the FBI, DEA, BATF and even NCIS, which is a military organization since it's part of the U.S. Navy.

Some of the street protesters in Puebla accuse the BATF (Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms) of destabilizing Mexico because of the notorious 'operation gunrunner' or 'fast and furious,' where BATF agents sold weapons to the drug cartels. Using bullhorns in the streets of Puebla, the protesters are saying that the new 'militarized police base' will serve as a point of U.S. Government weapons distribution for the drug cartels. Furthermore, they claim that the so-called 'modernized' training will be received by many future police or military officers that will eventually switch sides and join the drug cartels. This has happened many times before in Mexico, like the time when Los Zetas deserted from the military and became the strike team for the Gulf Drug Cartel (which consists mostly, at least at the leadership level, of former state police officers from Tamaulipas).

But even if Mexicans were to oppose this, they may 'supposedly' not have a voice any longer. Last October, DeadlineLive.info reported that the Mexican Government -or at least the Mexican military and law enforcement- is now under under the command of NORTHCOM and the CIA through the 'Office of Binational Intelligence.'

The CIA, the Department of Defense, the FBI, DEA, BATF, and many other U.S. Government federal agencies have been operating in Mexico for a long time. In fact, the U.S. Government recently built an intelligence super center at Paseo de la Reforma in Mexico City, not very far from the U.S. Embassy. Furthermore, the death of ICE Agent Jaime Zapata in San Luis Potosi, or even further back: the death of DEA Agent Kiki Camarena in the 1980′s demonstrates that U.S. Federal Agents have been operating in Mexico for decades.

How did this happen? And how was it even possible? One of the biggest root causes of this problem is the prohibition and criminalization of narcotics, which causes the prices of drugs to increase in the black market, which causes the drug cartels to increase their profits and become more powerful, which enables them to bribe politicians, public servants, military generals, law enforcement officials, and even intelligence agents on both sides of the border. All of these events happen as part of one gigantic vicious circle called the 'War on Drugs,' which is used as a pretext to carry out the agenda of the globalists and the international banks as they advance in one of their most significant steps: the integration of Canada, Mexico, and the United States, as well as the creation of what's called 'the North American Union.'

Phone hacking: Britain's most senior police officer facing calls to resign over employment of former NOTW executive Britain's most senior police officer, Sir Paul Stephenson, was facing calls for his resignation last night after admitting that a News of the World executive arrested on suspicion of phone hacking was recently employed as his personal adviser.

By Mark Hughes, Crime Correspondent
10:00PM BST 14 Jul 2011
http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/pho...-executive.html

Neil Wallis, the former deputy editor of the tabloid, was paid more than £1,000 a day to work two days a month at Scotland Yard as a consultant to Sir Paul Stephenson, the Metropolitan Police commissioner.

Mr Wallis, known in Fleet Street as The Wolfman, was employed between October 2009 and September 2010 when the Met was facing repeated calls to reopen the investigation into phone hacking amid claims that executives at the newspaper were involved.

Yet Sir Paul had made no mention of the contract with Mr Wallis, Andy Coulson's deputy, until forced to admit it yesterday. It led to claims that his appointment was an error of judgment which gave the appearance that the force was "colluding" with the newspaper.

Last night the Met was unable to say whether Sir Paul, who is ultimately responsible for the phone hacking investigation, had told deputy assistant commissioner Sue Akers, the officer leading the day-to-day inquiry of Mr Wallis's professional relationship with the force.

It also emerged that Sir Paul held eight meetings with Mr Wallis while he was an executive at the tabloid.

One of the meetings was a dinner which took place less than a month after Clive Goodman, the News of the World's royal editor, and Glenn Mulcaire, the private detective, were charged with phone hacking.

Mr Wallis, who worked at the tabloid when it was originally investigated, also advised John Yates, the officer once in charge of the phone hacking investigation. Mr Yates and Mr Wallis are personal friends.

Mr Wallis, 60, was arrested on suspicion of phone hacking yesterday and later released on bail. The revelations that he was employed by the Met have caused huge embarrassment to senior officers. A Scotland Yard source said: "We know how bad this looks." Politicians and members of the police authority said his decision to employ an executive who served on the News of the World while it was being investigated over phone hacking raised serious questions about Sir Paul's judgment.

Jenny Jones, a Green member of the Metropolitan Police Authority, called for Sir Paul and Mr Yates to resign. She said: "Both Sir Paul and Mr Yates have shown their judgment is very poor. It is absolutely time for them to move on."

The Home Secretary has written to Sir Paul demanding an explanation, while the home affairs select committee has asked that he appear in front of them next week.

Boris Johnson, the London mayor, last night summoned Sir Paul to a meeting. Mr Johnson did not know until yesterday that Mr Wallis had been given a job at the Yard. The appointment of Mr Wallis will form part of the public inquiry into the scandal. His company, Chamy Media, won the contract in October 2009, two months after the force decided not to reopen the hacking inquiry. His role included writing speeches and giving public relations advice. The contract was terminated in September 2010 after the News of the World was further implicated in the hacking scandal in an article in the New York Times.

Mr Wallis appeared to have enjoyed close relations with the force's most senior officers. Sir Paul had seven dinners and one meeting with him between Sept 2006 and June 2009. Mr Yates met Mr Wallis 12 years ago while working as a staff officer to the then commissioner Sir Paul Condon.

Mr Yates has made his relationship with Mr Wallis known to investigators. Sources close to Mr Yates insist that he played no part in the appointment of Mr Wallis, who beat competition from two other companies to land the contract.

The decision to award him the contract was made by Dick Fedorcio, the Met's director of public affairs. Mr Wallis was said to be cheaper than the other bidders.

Sir Paul did not mention the fact that Mr Wallis was employed by the Met when he appeared in front of the Metropolitan Police Authority yesterday. The force released a statement confirming the appointment after the meeting. Sir Paul said: "I had absolutely no involvement with the inquiry in 2006 and I had no reason to suspect anyone, including the individual you are talking about [Mr Wallis] of involvement in the inquiry in 2006. I do not believe on any occasion I have acted inappropriately. I am very satisfied with my own integrity. But I do accept … and acknowledge that perceptions can be different from reality."

Chris Bryant, the Labour MP who was a victim of phone hacking, said: "Sir Paul Stephenson has questions to answer about his judgment because this smacks of collusion."

PORTLAND, Tenn. – One of the Portland officers who were fired for threatening to pistol whip city leaders has gotten his job back.

Both of the officers made a plea to get their jobs back, but only Lt. Melvin McLerran was rehired.

Portland City Mayor Ken Wilbur was forced to reconsider his initial decision of firing these two officers after talks of a potential lawsuit surfaced.

His decision remained unchanged for Sgt. Dana Heckart, saying the threats he made were too serious to dismiss.

An audio recording was secretly made during a meeting with patrol officers in 2010. They were upset with council over proposed job cuts and hikes in insurance rates.

While the mayor said he understands this was a military tactic to motivate workers, he reminds them this is not the military it is Portland Police Department that deserves the public's trust.

He went on to say "I would like to personally as you and all citizens to give support to our officers and all of our city employees. This has not been easy for them and we need to move forward."

Lt. McLerran will also face a demotion in rank and pay and must attend anger management sessions when he returns to the police force.

The city is also searching for a new police chief and council members said it is not connected to the incident with these two officers.

How Is This Different From Armed Robbery?: Cops in Oakland County, ...

So How Is This Different From Armed Robbery?

Thursday, January 20th, 2011 http://12160.info/group/marijuanagodsplant...-different-from

Earlier this month, police in Oakland County, Michigan raided a medical marijuana dispensary in the town of Oak Park. The deputies came in with guns drawn and bulletproof vests, with at least one wearing a mask.

They made no arrests, but they did clean the place out. The confiscated all of the dispensary's cash on hand and—in a particularly thuggish touch—also took all of the cash from the wallets and purses of employees and patients. In this update, police officials say the raid was the result of street dealers telling police they were buying marijuana from the dispensary. I suppose we'll see in time if that's true, and if it is, if the dispensary was actually aware that it was selling to dealers. But at first blush, the claim sounds like a pretty good way for street dealers to put a legitimate competitor out of business.

Under Michigan's asset forfeiture law, 80 percent of the cash the deputies seized will go directly to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. The other 20 percent goes to the local prosecutor. Medical marijuana is legal under Michigan law but is of course still illegal under federal law. And apparently there's some debate about the legality of dispensaries. All of which means this particular dispensary will have a hard time proving it earned the seized cash legitimately. I doubt the patients and employees will get their cash back, either. The cost of challenging the seizure is likely several times more than the amount of money most people carry on their person.

There's been some talk in the Michigan legislature about reforming the state's asset forfeiture laws, but there's been no action so far. Last February, a former prosecutor described the Michigan forfeiture law to the Detroit News this way:

"It's a money grab, pure and simple; a sneaky way of getting a penalty on something prosecutors can't prove. It's like shooting fish in a barrel."

Put Down Your Rights and No One Needs to Get Hurt!

Few activities are as dangerous as watching a cop too closely, as John Kurtz knows well. Kurtz is the founder of the Orlando, Florida, branch of CopWatch, a network of activists in the United States and Canada who patrol the streets on foot or in a vehicle to monitor and document police activity in order to spotlight misconduct and brutality.

Kurtz's recent arrest for "obstructing justice" and conviction for "resisting arrest without violence" spotlight a growing trend in law enforcement. Police are arresting peaceful people virtually at will based on vaguely worded laws that are an invitation to rampant abuse. Such laws have become a standard police intimidation tactic.

Consider "obstruction of justice." The typical definition as it relates to police officers is "the interference with an officer who is discharging his duty." Depending on the state, obstruction can include providing a false name, the interception of police radio communication to avoid detection, eluding a police officer, and refusing to assist an officer or to comply with a command.

In reality, obstruction charges have been laid for arguing with a policeman or asking him questions, gesturing in almost any manner, invoking the Constitution, refusing to produce I.D., and recording a police officer even when it is legal to do so.

The penalties vary widely not merely from state to state but also on the type of obstruction being charged. Non-violent obstruction is usually a misdemeanor punished by a fine but some acts are deemed felonies, punishable with jail time. As the case of John Kurtz illustrates, however, both the bringing of charges and the ultimate punishment often depend not on the actual “offense” but upon the desire to pound authority into the non-subservient. Disrespecting authority is fast becoming the worst “crime” in society.

The case of John Kurtz

On January 1, 2011, Kurtz was in downtown Orlando when he observed police officer Adam Gruler arresting a man on a domestic-violence charge. The arrest involved “the use of tasers, a violent take-down and the pepper spraying of a man already subdued and in handcuffs.” Kurtz announced himself, stood to one side, and began recording the incident. Florida law allows in-person recordings in public places where there is no expectation of privacy; it further allows the recording of police officers as long as it does not obstruct the enforcement of law. Nevertheless, Gruler demanded Kurtz cease recording. When Kurtz informed Gruler that he “knew his rights,” the officer threw Kurtz to the ground and arrested him as well.

Kurtz was charged with three offenses: obstruction of a law-enforcement officer; battery on a law-enforcement officer; and resisting arrest without violence. The latter charge can refer to any nonviolent “resistance” to arrest, from running the other way to asking, “What am I charged with?” Resisting arrest without violence is another increasingly popular intimidation tactic used by many police departments. Of the Orange County, Florida, police department that conducted the Kurtz arrest, local news channel WFTV reported as early as 2006, Defense attorney David Bigney says he rarely sees a case now where resisting isn’t a charge. “All these people want is to know why, what’s going on here, but the officer decides I’m just going to arrest you," said Bigney. And often it’s the only charge. In more than 25-percent of the 4000-plus cases Eyewitness News tracked, resisting was the only charge. That begs the question: if there’s no arrest for something else how could they be resisting arrest?

Kurtz had an advantage, however; he taped the entire incident. But, somehow, during his subsequent processing at the police station, Kurtz’s camera went missing and never showed up either in evidence or in his returned belongings. Fortunately, a Big Brother street camera captured the incident; it discredited the police account and agreed with several witnesses who claimed Gruler committed the only violence that occurred. The camera evidence was most fortunate because Kurtz faced a 6-year prison sentence for the three charges and, in the absence of hard evidence, the court tends to believe police officers. Gruler’s initial report on the arrest stated that Kurtz was too close as he and another officer restrained the first man (obstruction) and that Kurtz pushed him (assault). With the street camera evidence, however, Gruler’s initial account of the event changed significantly. But, as a press release noted, the street camera “effectively disproves all three versions of arresting officer Adam Gruler’s story as to where, when and how the supposed battery took place."

Thus, on June 30, a jury found Kurtz not guilty of battery on a law-enforcement officer but guilty of resisting arrest without violence. (The obstruction charge had been dropped.) The judge imposed the stiffest penalty possible upon the unrepentant Kurtz: 30 days in jail (less 7 days served), a one-year probation, and a 12-month restraining order to stay at least 100 feet from police officers engaged in duty. Typically, resisting arrest without violence receives a slap on the wrist; a sentence such as Kurtz's is almost unheard of. Moreover, Kurtz commented, "In the multiple plea deals I was offered, jail time was never mentioned, in fact my last plea offer didn't even include probation and this is when I was charged with a felony, as well as resisting arrest without violence."

Punished for his activism
The stiff sentence had been foreshadowed by the judge's attitude in court, which Kurtz — an activist for jury nullification — described as "statist bull-crap." For example, the judge refused to allow disciplinary reports or other evidence of Gruler's extensive history of police misconduct and brutality.

In 2006, the Orlando Sentinel reported, "Adam Gruler is a hunter. That's one of the nicknames given inside the Orlando Police Department to the young, aggressive cops.... Their job: create a "no-tolerance zone" for crime of all kinds.... He also has become one of the department's top Taser users…." Gruler has had dozens of complaints lodged against him for behavior similar to that captured in a YouTube of 2007 unlawful arrest by Gruler of another man who had been legally recorded him .

The stiff sentence may have also been prompted by Kurtz's high-profile acts of local civil disobedience. For example, he is one of the videographers of the recent arrest of members of Food Not Bombs, an organization devoted to sharing food with the homeless. An Orlando ordinance forbids the feeding of homeless people within 2 miles of City Hall. Kurtz and others of Food Not Bombs maintain that the ordinance is an unconstitutional restraint of First Amendment rights. On June 6, the Huffington Post reported, "Over the past week, twelve members of food activist group Food Not Bombs have been arrested in Orlando for giving free food to groups of homeless people in a downtown park." They have been charged with trespass and "intent to feed." Kurtz — who was featured at the recent libertarian gathering PorcFest — was instrumental in creating the viral YouTubes of Food Not Bombs arrests, which have embarrassed the police by showing them arresting peaceful "people who are simply trying to help their fellow man." The title of one YouTube video showing an arrest for feeding the hungry asked police officers, "Do You Really Support What Your Co-Workers Are Doing Here?"

Currently, Kurtz is raising funds to appeal his conviction. The main reason he cites for the appeal is the 100-foot restriction on approaching police officers, which means "effectively ending my participation in Orlando Copwatch." He is attempting to involve the American Civil Liberties Union on constitutional grounds. A CopWatch press release explains, Kurtz sights [sic] that the prosecution during closing arguments and judge during sentencing, say that when Kurtz approached the scene with his camera and told the officers “calm down, I am filming you” that act by itself was interfering, obstructing or opposing a police officer, and thus, the form of resisting arrest without violence. Kurtz insists that this form of free speech is absolutely protected by the First Amendment of the United States Constitution.... This is specifically upheld by the US Supreme Court in case Houston vs. Hill, 1987, and Florida Supreme Court Case, Florida vs. Saunders, 1976, as well as other case law. These rulings have never been overturned.

Private property no defense

Time after time, when punitive arrests or punishments for obstruction or resisting arrest have been appealed, the appellant has won. And, yet, the police continue as though there were no higher authority than themselves. As a lawyer specialized in obstructing justice has stated,

This broadly written law can be the subject of abuse by law enforcement. Even though the courts have made it clear that mere verbal criticism is not enough, police and municipal prosecutors still charge citizens with this offense for minor verbal acts. In cases of police brutality, this charge will often be filed in the hope that a citizen will take a quick plea, eliminating any ability to get compensation later.

In short, police routinely charge people with obstruction or resisting not merely to intimidate but also to give themselves negotiating leverage.

The future of CopWatch may well be a challenging one because it does not matter if the recording is legally performed in a public place; the police are likely to arrest you. It doesn’t ever matter if you are recording the police from your own property. On July 7, the InfoWars site reported,

In a video making a stir on You Tube, an Arkansas man looks on in horror as officers handcuff an innocuous looking woman, and then conduct a TSA-style search of her breasts and other body parts before releasing her. The cameraman filming police across the street from his garage yells “Nazis," continuing to warn the officers that they were violating the 4th Amendment.

Their response? According to the Infowars site, three police officers enter his property and demand his papers. “They then begin to discuss what they’re going to charge him with: ‘disorderly conduct.’ No, let’s charge him with ‘obstruction of justice.’ The officers then decide to go with ‘racial slur.’ They then grab the camera away from the man and clap on the cuffs. The camera is then turned off.”

Whether you in a public street or on your own property, whether you are peaceful or not, the mere questioning of a police officer can get you arrested. They can charge you with “disorderly conduct” for standing alone in your own driveway. They can charge you with “resisting arrest” if you ask what the charges are. If you gesture, they can interpret that as the beginning of an attack and charge you with “battery on an officer.” If you refuse to assist them in sexually frisking a neighbor, they can charge you with "obstruction of justice."

Police discretion means a police state.

Copwatcher Founder Convicted For Resisting Arrest In Missing Camera Case

By Carlos Miller -... Topics News

John Kurtz, the Orlando Copwatch founder who was facing six years in prison for battery on a law enforcement officer, was acquitted of that felony charge last week.

But he was convicted of resisting arrest without violence – even though the officer testified he was not resisting – proving once again that Florida has an unethical and unconstitutional habit of dishing out resisting arrest convictions without underlying charges to justify the arrest in the first place.

And I'm still not clear on what the judge stated about Kurtz's missing video camera, the one that was confiscated from him, never to be seen again, which would have proved he never physically pushed the cop. Nobody who attended the trial has been able to explain that to me (and yes, I've been asking).

In fact, it was surveillance footage from a security street camera shown in court that showed jurors Kurtz did not attack Orlando Police Officer Adam Gruler.

But despite all that, Judge Alan Apte still sentenced Kurtz to 30 days in jail along with one year probation, indicating that he didn't seem to keen on upholding any shred of legal objectiveness in the courtroom.

Judge Alan Apte

According to Orlando Copwatch:

Kurtz sights that the prosecution during closing arguments and judge during sentencing, say that when Kurtz approached the scene with his camera and told the officers “calm down, I am filming you” that act by itself was interfering , obstructing or opposing a police officer, and thus, the form of resisting arrest without violence. Kurtz insists that this form of free speech is absolutely protected by the First Amendment of the United States Constitution, as well as Article I, Section 4 of the Florida Constitution. This is specifically upheld by the US Supreme Court in case Houston vs. Hill, 1987, and Florida Supreme Court Case, Florida vs. Saunders, 1976, as well as other case law. These rulings have never been overturned.

Kurtz’s trial is an extreme version of my trial stemming from my first arrest for photographing cops in Miami.

I was acquitted of disorderly conduct and refusing a lawful order but I was also convicted for resisting arrest without violence.

Judge Jose Fernandez, a former police union attorney, sentenced me to a year probation as well as anger management classes. He had also allowed improper evidence into the trial despite my attorney's objections.

Just to put these sentences into perspective, a Chicago judge sentenced a cop to two years probation and no jail time for beating up a female bartender and a male patron in a bar, both incidents which were caught on video. There are many more examples of cops receiving lighter sentences after being convicted for violent crimes.

Kurtz’s probation will require him to stay 100 feet away from all police officers, which means he won’t be able to participate in Copwatch for that period.

I served my entire probation, during which I was arrested a second time for taking photos of cops, which could have landed me in jail for a year on a probation violation.

But I eventually reversed the resisting arrest conviction in an appeal I prepared myself because I was unable to afford the $10,000 for an appeal lawyer (at the time, I didn't have nearly the readership I have now, so a donation drive would have been futile and I was already in debt for having fought the case to begin with).

Judge Jose Fernandez

In my appeal, I proved Judge Fernandez allowed improper evidence to be introduced when he allowed the prosecutor to use my blog against me and paint me as a cop-hater, which is how I got myself arrested (I didn’t launch it until after my arrest so it had no relevance on the arrest).

So that nullified the probation violation.

I also proved that Fernandez violated my Constitutional rights by issuing me a harsher sentence than sought by the state on the basis that he was upset that I had maintained my innocence throughout the trial.

Kurtz states on Orlando Copwatch that Judge Apte seemed to take a disliking to him, which was one reason he handed him a harsh sentence.

“Dozens if not hundreds of people go through the Orange County Courthouse everyday with charges of and similar to resisting arrest without violence, these people get nothing more than ‘a slap on the wrist’” Kurtz said.

“In the multiple plea deals I was offered, jail time was never mentioned, in fact my last plea offer didn’t even include probabtion and this is when I was charged with a felony, as well as resisting arrest without violence. Now that I have been found not guilty of a felony and all I have is this little misdemeanor, which is the first charge of my life, Judge Apte stuck me in jail for 30 days and a year probation. Judge Apte made it clear that he was annoyed that I wasted the courts time by excercising my right to trial instead of accepting the plea offers and he wants to punish me for it. It is that simple”.

Miami Beach Police Officer David Socarras

After I had won my appeal, the cop who arrested me in the second incident, Miami Beach Police Officer David Socarra (pictured above), never showed up to court on two seperate trial dates, which lead to that single charge of resisting arrest without violence to be dismissed.

Kurtz is also planning to appeal his resisting arrest conviction and should have a good chance of winning.

He is asking for donations to hire a lawyer, which he estimates will cost between $10,000 to $15,000.

I recommend Kurtz read through this article where he will find my appeal brief, the state's answer brief and my reply brief, which might help him and/or his attorneys in preparing a successful appeal.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - A Salt Lake City man has been arrested and jailed after authorities say he pelted a flight attendant with peanuts and pretzels on a Southwest Airlines plane from Los Angeles to Utah.

Pogos Paul Sefilian faces a federal charge of interference with a flight crew.

Authorities say Sefilian was on a flight Monday evening when he attempted to smoke an electronic cigarette. A complaint filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court says a flight attendant repeatedly told him it was against airline policy and to put away the device.

Authorities say Sefilian became enraged and threw peanuts and pretzels at the flight attendant.

He remained held. His attorney declined to comment.

This is what happens when we do not pay attention to the people we elect on the local level because we are so preoccupied with the State and national politics. We forget that corruption is ripe more than ever on the local level. When a corrupt city council and a police chief violating parliamentary procedure over riding the mayor because a citizen was exercising their freedom of speech exposing the corruption in the city government.

What we are seeing is a hostile takeover of the city of Quartzsite Arizona where the corrupt unelected and appointed city council and a Police chief is trying to fire an elected mayor for his opposition to the corrupt policies in city government and the underhanded methods they been using to enact laws in an illegal manor. I wonder if the Police chief is receiving federal money from Homeland security to remove the civil power from the local municipalities and run the city with an iron fist as a dictator. Is this a move by the Police chief doing the dirty work for the authoritarians in Washington DC? Is the Police Chief is under orders to remove the troublemakers on the local level who might stand in the way of tyranny? Is he doing the bidding for Homeland Security to subdue the people and the local leaders?

The Federal government knows if we take back our cities, counties and states. It is over for them if the people take back the powers to self govern. One if things that might happen is cities removing Police Chiefs who are taking federal money to violate people's rights when the patriots are in charge and place someone in that position who will be an actual peace officer who respects the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. If we take, back our cities and county governments. It is over for the tyrants in Washington DC. We must not allow Police chiefs like in Quartzsite Arizona have their way attacking free speech using official oppression. These tactics to declare Martial Law in the city shows his intention to use intimidation and fear to keep the people in line.

This is nothing new. We have seen Police Chiefs all over the country arresting city Council members for speaking out against Police Policies and conduct of the officers. We seen police beat up people protesting in front of city council meetings. This is showing the training the police are receiving from the ADL, SPLC and the Federal government have created hostility between the police and the people. We can see not so much the regular member officers on the beat who hate this corruption too. The corrupt officers are who get the reward moving up to positions of power within departments, not the good officers who respect human dignity. The Police Chief of Quartzite Arizona is a prime example of the corrupt reaching positions of power.

When repeated humble petitions with a long train of abuses to follow. This might trigger an uprising on the local level removing corrupt Police Chiefs and politicians on the local level. This happened in 1946 when World War II veterans in Athens Tennessee took back the county government that was trying to become a dictatorship. They took up arms and once they bad people surrendered. They stripped the politicians naked and sent them to the county line. When we see city government usurping power and over reaching where people cannot grow gardens and Sheriff does house-to-house searches without search warrants after a court ruling in Indiana. This might push people over the edge to finally act and take matters into their own hands when the system fails. We might see similar actions like the people in Athens where the corrupt government is dealt with and the civil government is restored.

What is going on in Quartzite Arizona might be an indicator that may have the Federal government scared. Why because if the right people take back city and county government from their corrupt minions who might be doing the dirty work for the Federal government to tyrannize the people. This could spoil their plans to dominate and take over. If the Federal government does not have corroboration with the local governments so, they can carry out an authoritarian agenda to subjugate the citizens. It is over. An Athens type of rebellion on the local level does pose a threat to the tyrants because it can encourage other revolts in cities nationwide or put fear into already in place small city governments that have large armed populations. I hope what is happening in Quartzite Arizona that civil government is restored in a peaceful manner with the Police chief arrested instead of an armed revolt.

Ex-cop admits helping to cover up Hurricane Katrina shootings

Jeffrey Lehrmann claims gun used as evidence to implicate Lance Madison was taken from Sgt Kaufman's house

By Rachel Quigley
Last updated at 4:07 AM on 12th July 2011
http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-20...-shootings.html

A former police detective testified Monday that he participated in a plot to fabricate witnesses, falsify reports and plant a gun to make it seem police were justified in shooting unarmed residents on a New Orleans bridge after Hurricane Katrina.

Jeffrey Lehrmann, a government witness in the federal trial of five current or former officers, said he saw Sergeant Arthur 'Archie' Kaufman retrieve a gun from his home several weeks after the deadly shootings on the Danziger Bridge.

Kaufman later turned the gun in as evidence, claiming he found it under the bridge a day after the 2005 shootings that left two people dead and four others wounded.

Mr Lehrmann said Kaufman instructed him to fill out paperwork that claimed the gun belonged to Lance Madison, whose mentally disabled brother, Ronald, was shot and killed on the bridge.

Lance Madison was arrested on attempted murder charges and held for more than three weeks before a judge freed him.

Mr Lehrmann said Kaufman, his supervisor, had grown concerned because the judge who freed Madison didn't believe Kaufman's testimony at the hearing.

'Therefore, we needed a gun,' Mr Lehrmann said.

He said Sergeants Robert Gisevius and Kenneth Bowen joined him and Kaufman when they drove to Kaufman's house to retrieve a gun.

Kaufman emerged from his garage carrying the gun in a brown paper bag, calling it a 'ham sandwich', Mr Lehrmann said.

Kaufman's attorney, Stephen London, suggested during cross-examination that Mr Lehrmann was trying to shift blame to his client and has changed his story over time.

On 4 September, 2005, Mr Lehrmann drove himself to the Danziger Bridge after a truckload of officers responded to another officer's distress call and began shooting. He isn't accused of firing his gun that day.

Mr Lehrmann said he handcuffed Ronald Madison on the west side of the bridge after he was shot, then felt badly about it when another officer told him he already was dead.

Mr Lehrmann said the officers immediately afterward started to 'get their stories straight'.

'We had a lot of problems because it was a bad shoot,' he said.

'What was the goal of the cover-up?' prosecutor Cindy Chung asked.

'Protect the officers from legal ramifications,' he said.

Mr Lehrmann said he helped Kaufman with an initial, 32-page report that was bounced back by Lt Michael Lohman, who also has pleaded guilty to participating in a cover-up.

He recalled: 'Lt Lohman became irate with Archie because he thought Archie's report was garbage.

'The lies changed whenever we needed to change them.'

Mr Lehrmann said the false accounts of what officers did on the bridge continually changed as they honed their cover story.

He admitted making up the name Lakeisha for a phony witness to the shootings when Kaufman called out, 'Hey, somebody give me a name!'

He said they also fabricated a witness named James Youngman and reported he lived at a large, storm-damaged apartment complex where it would be hard to prove the witness didn't exist.

Weeks after the shooting, Lehrmann said he and Bowen returned to the bridge a day before crime scene technicians were to collect evidence.

Lehrmann said he saw Bowen kick shell casings off the bridge where police shot several people.

Gisevius, Bowen, Officer Anthony Villavaso and former officer Robert Faulcon are on trial for charges stemming from the shootings. Kaufman is charged in the alleged cover-up.

Mr Lehrmann, who already has been sentenced to three years in prison, is one of five former officers who pleaded guilty to participating in a cover-up. He is the fourth of those officers to testify at the trial, now entering its third week.

Alex continues his conversation with Jennifer Jones, the Arizona woman who was arrested for daring to speak her mind during a city hall meeting in the town of Quartzsite.

Quartzsite Police Chief Jeff Gilbert has asked the town council to declare a "state of emergency" due to all of the publicity the town has received over the arrest of a reporter at an open meeting in June.
The town council voted 5-0 in favor of the action; Mayor Ed Foster did not attend the emergency meeting Sunday afternoon. Gilbert reportedly said the action was needed because Jennifer Jones was "inciting riots" after videos of her arrest at the meeting sprung up across the Internet.
It was not immediately clear what outside assistance, if any, Gilbert seeks to enforce the state of emergency. http://www2.az-independent.com/?p=4582

Jailed for cashing Chase check at Chase bank

by LINDA BYRON / KING 5 News

http://www.king5.com/news/125105599.html

AUBURN, Wash. - Buying his own home was a big accomplishment for construction worker, Ikenna Njoku, of Auburn. He's only 28 years old.

"I was really excited. For the first time, I actually got to buy a lawn mower, mow my lawn and everything," said Njoku.

Njoku qualified for the first time home buyer rebate on his tax return.

"It was really important, I had a vehicle I was looking on paying off," said. Njoku. And it wasn't just any vehicle. "It was a 2001 Infinity I-30, silver…just like my favorite car, "he said.

Njoku signed up to have the rebate deposited directly into his Chase Bank account. But when the IRS rebate arrived, there was a problem. Chase had closed Njoku's account because of overdrawn checks in the past. The bank deducted $600 to cover what he owed them and mailed him a cashier's check for the difference--$8,463.21.

But when Njoku showed up at the Chase branch near his house intending to cash the check, he was in for a nasty surprise.

The check had Njoku's name and address on it and was issued by JP Morgan Chase. But the Chase Customer Banker who handles large checks at the Auburn branch was immediately suspicious.

“I was embarrassed,” Njoku said. “She asked me what I did for a living. Asked me where I got the check from, looked me up and down—like ‘you just bought a house in Auburn, really?’ She didn’t believe that,” he said.

The Customer Banker said the check looked fake, so she took it, along with Njoku’s driver license and credit card, and called Bank Support.

After waiting for about 15 minutes, Njoku said he got impatient and told Chase he was leaving to do an important errand. By the time he got back, the bank was closed. Njoku said he called customer service and asked them what he should do. He says they told him to go back to the bank the next day to get his money.

But when Njoku arrived, it wasn’t the money that was waiting for him.

“They just threw me in jail; they called the police and said this guy has a fraudulent check,” Njoku said.

Auburn police arrested him for forgery - a felony crime.

“I was like - you’re making a mistake, you’re making a mistake, don’t take me to jail, I got work tomorrow. I can’t afford to miss work,” he said.

Njoku was taken to jail on June 24, 2010, which was a Thursday. The next day, Chase Special Investigations, realized it was a mistake. The check was legitimate. The Investigator called Auburn Police and left a message with the detective handling the case, but it was her day off. So Njoku stayed in jail for the entire weekend. Finally, on Monday, he was released.

Auburn Police Commander Dave Colglazier said Chase could have done a lot more to let them know they’d locked up an innocent man.

“We do have a main line that comes into our front office,” he said. “There are ways to reach someone 24/7 at a police department.”

For Njoku, going to jail for five days meant a lot more than just losing his freedom. He said the entire time he was “just stressed out…trying to figure out what was going on with my vehicle. I love my vehicle,” he said.

Njoku’s car had been towed from the bank parking lot and his check seized as evidence.

“I had to wait a couple of weeks,” he said, “and my car got sold, auctioned off."

Njoku says he didn’t have the money to pay the impound fees and fines to get his car back before it was sold. He said he also lost his job because he didn't show up for work while he was in jail.

After all of that, Njoku said he never heard a word from Chase.

"They haven't even sent me a letter or apologized," he said. "It's been a year we've been trying to contact these guys."

Finally, A Seattle attorney offered to help. Last week, Felix Luna sent Chase a scathing letter. Read the attorneys' letter to Chase

"It's one thing to make a mistake," Luna said. "It's one thing to make multiple errors of judgment like Chase has made and then, once you realize that your error has caused such harm to somebody else, to just ignore it for a year. I think he deserved better. I think all their customers do."

Like Njoku, KING 5 had a difficult time getting answers from Chase. A week after first contacting them, they sent a two line e-mail.

"We received the letter and are reviewing the situation. We'll be reaching out to the customer," wrote Darcy Donoahoe-Wilmot, from Chase Media Relations.

But on Thursday, Chase issued an apology.

Njoku said that even after he got out of jail, he said was confused and upset. "For a month, two months, I was just down and depressed," he said.

He's still happy he bought his house, but sad that his experience with his own bank was so humiliating.

"They treated me like a criminal," he said.

LYRICS

Now here’s a little story I got to tell about 3 officers you don’t know so well
It’s started way back last January with officers Ewing, Sisak, and Saldutte
They ran into boy named Jordan Miles a real good kid who for sure was mild but he was found guilty before a trial cause he’s a young black man in the wrong part of town Jordan is a kid that gets good grades not a thug bragging that he’s hood raised
He takes care of his grandmother cause she’s older went to performance arts school and plays the viola
He never did a crime one day in his life
His favorite TV show is CSI when he graduated he wanted to learn how to catch a criminal like Lawrence Fishburne
Then one night like he always did
He made the short walk to his grandmother’s crib cause grandma didn’t like to be alone by her self at night so Jordan stayed in her home
Now these 3 cops were undercover so they could sneak up and snatch a brother catch you in the act pull the gat and bust ya throw you on the ground pat you down and cuff ya rollin through the hood looking for they next victim like every other night so they know how to pick em
They saw Jordan walking they lips they start lickin there’s a young black male hell yeah let’s get him
They jumped out the car as the tires spun yelling where’s the drugs, where’s the money and guns Jordan stops walking his face was stunned he thinks he’s being robbed so he starts to run
He didn’t get far before the cops catch em
Now they got em they gotta teach him a lesson
Because he ran that means they gotta wreck him they slam him on his neck and start to chin check him Blow after blow till his face was swollen
He thinks their gonna stop but they just keep going he calls on God whispering the lords prayer they grab him by his locks just to rip out his hair beaten and bloody they finally hand cuff him but then when they search they don’t find nothing they’re minds was boggled then lies start to follow let’s say inside his coat he had mountain dew bottle and we thought that it was a weapon we had to hit him cause he resisted arrest and Let’s take him to jail and get him drug tested because if he’s high we won’t look so reckless Now Jordan’s Mom is really scared cause she called his grandma’s and he isn’t there What his in jail she headed there on the double it must be a mistake Jordan’s never been in trouble Outside the jail and she saw this man who was beat so bad it made her think damn

It looked like he was hit with by bomb then he walked right up to her and said Mom
She was shocked she couldn’t believe that disfigured face was he’s son indeed she fell to her knees she couldn’t even breathe Her son has been a victim of police brutality
she rushed Jordan to emergency And every time she looks at him it hurt to see her son in a hospital bed in pain police took no blame and claim its how they trained Jordan got charged but when it went to court
We found out the police falsified they’re report
They said a neighbor called the cops crying
She got up on the stand and said stop lying
Now the whole community wants justice for Jordan
And the cops charged for the crimes they reported
Call the DA and tell him to press charges we demand justice and we just getting started

New Hampshire Judge Caught On Video Ordering False Arrest

Incident sparks court order banning cameras in courtroom

Adam Mueller, aka Ademo Freeman, stood inside the Keene District Courthouse in New Hampshire, waiting for Judge Edward Burke to step inside so he could ask him a question.

Less than two minutes later, he was arrested for threatening the judge, a felony charge called “improper influence.”

But Mueller had his camera rolling, so he captured the entire exchange on video.

And there is absolutely no evidence that he threatened Burke.

Here is that exchange, but you can also hear it for yourself in the above video:

(Judge Burke enters the building)

Mueller: “Judge Burke, can I ask you a few questions about a hat … and how that constitutes contempt.”

(Burke ignores him and heads for the stairs)

Mueller: “You think people want to pay for somebody to be in jail for five days for wearing a hat?”

(Burke continues to ignore him as he walks up the stairs with Mueller walking behind him)

Mueller: “It’s kind of ridiculous to waste tax-payer money on something like that, isn’t it?

(Burke reaches the top of the stairs)

Mueller: “Sir, I just want to have a conversation.”

(Burke opens the door and motions to the bailiff)

Burke: “Bailiff, bailiff, this person is threatening me about a decision I just made.”

Mueller: “I’m not threatening you ….”

Mueller is then taken into custody and thrown in jail where he spent two nights before he was bailed on a donated $5,000 bond.

On Wednesday, after viewing the above video, the district attorney’s office dropped the charges against him

But that hasn’t solved the issue that Burke had Mueller falsely arrested.

And it hasn’t solved the issue that Burke directed a court order that now forbids photography or videography in the Keene courthouse.

According to the court order, which was filed July 1, 2011, three days after Mueller’s arrest.

In recent months certain members of the public have caused disruptions of the court's ability to conduct business in Keene. In addition to their refusal to abide by court rules related to the conduct of trials and conduct in the courtroom in general, these members of the public have also congregated in the court's lobby for extended periods of time making it difficult for other members of the public to conduct business with the court and, in particular, creating conditions and disturbances which have obstructed court staff from performing their duties in an orderly way.

Additionally, these members of the public have, on occasion, accosted the presiding judge as he enters and leaves the building in which the court is housed, creating an atmosphere of hostility and intimidation and a legitimate fear for the safety and well-being of the judicial and nonjudicial staff at this court.

Based upon these conditions and facts, and mindful of the holding of the New Hampshire Supreme Court in State v. Moquin, 105 N.H. 9 at 11 (1963) that, it is ordered as follows:

" ... it is the duty and responsibility of courts to be alert to protect the judicial processes from being brought into disrepute and to act vigorously when confronted with acts or conduct which tend to obstruct or interfere with the due and orderly administration of justice ... "

1. No cameras or audio equipment may be used at any time in the court's lobby or anywhere in the public area of the court's leased premises;

There are some exceptions, which can be read by clicking on the court order in the above link.

William Toler of the Independent Register reported that the ban may be unconstitutional.

“A blanket ban likely would be unconstitutional,” says David Hudson from the First Amendment Center. “Trial judges are granted discretion to determine whether cameras might unduly prejudice court proceedings but generally they must make particularized findings, such as whether there would be prejudice, whether the ban is no broader than necessary and whether there are reasonable alternatives to not permitting coverage.”

As I’ve reported in previous stories, the tensions between Burke and the Free Staters have been ongoing for the past few years as Keene becomes a growing community of activists.

Many of the activists have long accused Burke of being a bully, but it is also obvious that they try their best to test his authority by not removing caps in the courtroom or refusing to disclose their name when arrested.

And those incidents are debatable (we all have our issues we fight for and those don’t rank up there for me).

But here we have a clear case of a judge having a citizen falsely arrested on felony charges.

That issue is not debatable. Burke blatantly lied about Mueller's actions.

With a judge like that, there is simply no expectation of justice in his courtroom.

'State of emergency' in 'Nazi'-cop town

'They've got their tactical gear on ... I am very concerned for my safety'

Posted: July 10, 2011
By Joe Kovacs
http://www.wnd.com/index.php?fa=PAGE.view&pageId=320829

The Arizona town that's become a YouTube sensation for its police department hauling away a woman speaking at a town-hall meeting declared a state of emergency this afternoon, leaving many local residents in fear of what officers dressed in full riot gear might do.

Jennifer "Jade" Jones, 45, the woman forcibly removed by police from a recent public meeting in Quartzsite, Ariz., despite the vocal objections of the mayor, says an illegal secret meeting was held today with the public locked out of the building.

"About noon today, the town council, at the request of the police chief, declared an official state of emergency," Jones said online. "Please help!"

The Arizona Republic reported the emergency meeting was held "to beef up security after receiving death threats."

Jones told WND there's actually no emergency of any kind, as it's a peaceful Sunday with people attending church; but in the wake of a WND report which exposed allegations of wrongdoing by local government officials, the town council and police convened an unpublicized meeting to declare an emergency for their own protection.

"Obviously it has put a fear into them, as they realize, 'Oh my God, everyone's looking at us now,'" she said. "There's been no incident to warrant this. They did this to protect themselves. The people are in danger."

She says local residents have no idea what may be coming next.

"They've got their tactical gear on, the police chief and his sergeant," Jones said. "I don't know what that means. I need to get the word out in case they come here. I am very concerned for my safety. We're two hours from Phoenix, out in the middle of nowhere. A lot of things can go wrong before someone gets here."

A former Hitler youth gives a chilling, but life-saving warning to America in "Defeating the Totalitarian Lie," just $4.95 today only!

WND continues to seek comment from the Quartzsite Police Department, but no one has responded to discuss the specific reasons for the state of emergency.

According to Jones, police escorted Mayor Ed Foster to today's special meeting, but he refused to take part in what he believed to be an illegal event.

While citizens were reportedly barred from entering town hall, they put their ears up to windows to listen in as the council went ahead with its session.

Jones says officials specifically mentioned the news coverage of her removal, the YouTube video that has gone viral and several citizens including herself in making their declaration.

She says police made comments today such as, "We feel that they are trying to incite a riot. We feel we need to do this."

"I have no idea what their intention is," Jones said. "I called the FBI in Washington, D. C., and the guy just laughed at me and asked, 'Ma'am, how come I haven't seen this on the news?'"

Jones explained the emergency declaration just happened this afternoon, and that's when the FBI representative told her not raise her voice and then hung up.

As WND reported last week, the original incident took place June 28 during the "call to the public" section of the meeting, as Jones, a pet groomer who also publishes the Desert Freedom Press, was addressing matters of taxation and meeting protocol.

Some councilmembers interrupted Jones as she was addressing the council and audience, ordering her to relinquish the microphone.

Councilman Joe Winslow of Quartzsite, Ariz., led the charge to have Jennifer Jones removed from speaking.

"You may leave, or you may be escorted out," Councilman Joe Winslow warned Jones.

Jones immediately told Winslow, "You can leave or be escorted out as well. You are out of order."

Then, as police Sgt. Fabiola Garcia attempted to take the microphone away from Jones, Mayor Foster came to the defense of Jones and interjected, "Officer, that woman has the floor. You're violating my rules of order here. Sergeant, I have control of the meeting."

Jones was able to speak for a few moments more, but councilmembers insisted police move in and subdue her.

"Do not resist the officer!" Police Chief Jeff Gilbert instructed Jones, who responded, "I am not resisting!"

When Jones refused to give up the microphone, officers forcibly removed her from the premises, and cited her for disorderly conduct. Jones suffered a torn ligament in her elbow during the scuffle, and was transported to La Paz Regional Hospital.

Jones said she was never informed she was "under arrest," and so she'll seek charges of kidnapping and aggravated assault against the officers.

"That's what I'll ask for. It'll be up to the state attorney general," she said. "I've never seen in my entire life such a group of people with such contempt for the law."

Jones, who claims she's been previously harassed by police, says recently some officers – including Chief Jeff Gilbert – have been acting more erratically and dangerously, and says he even gave a speech comparing outspoken citizens like herself to Jared Loughner, the gunman who shot Arizona Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords in Tucson on Jan. 8.

Just three days after the shooting that killed six people and left 14 others injured including the congresswoman, Gilbert quoted a comment published in Jones' paper that read in part: "So Jeff and Q.P.D., the next time you piss off a patriot, think maybe, just maybe they won't be as calm as I am. You think nothing bad will ever happen to you because you are a cop with a 10-cent badge and a gun? Don't be so sure. ... As this economy gets worse and the people get more desperate, remember that desperate people do desperate things. And as people start to lose it, they simply lose it."

Gilbert then explained, "These words are warning signs. The propaganda that's being spread about the local government – these are warning signs. The behavior, the outbursts, the actions that have been taking place in some of these council meetings, they are warning signs."

"'He's setting up to shoot us!' That's what we thought. He's coming up with a pretense to pull a gun," Jones said. "Police are to protect and serve, not to harass and intimidate. It has to stop. Someone's going to get really hurt, not just a torn ligament."

When asked about the actions of the non-partisan town council, Jones said, "I liken them to monkeys in the zoo. They make a lot of noise and throw a lot of feces around, but at the end of the day they're just primates and don't deserve to be writing checks for [a town of] about 3,800 people. They don't deserve to be managing money. They don't act like they're at the top of the food chain. It's embarrassing."

Mayor Ed Foster of Quartzsite, Ariz., says his town is filled with massive corruption among government officials.

Mayor Foster, a retired Marine and former engineer for Wrigley Chewing Gum, is standing by Jones' account, and says the town council and police department are filled with corruption.

"He's just an insane person, that chief of police," the mayor said of Gilbert. "He's a Nazi ... he's completely out of control. He thinks he's running the town."

Mayor Foster said it's not just the police chief, but also the town manager and tax collector who are creating a terrifying atmosphere.

"People in town are scared to death of them," he said. "It's just a clear pattern of harassment and intimidation by this government. These people have run this town like they owned it. It's got to be fixed and I'm not going to quit until I see them in jail."

The mayor says the council has even precluded him from examining the payroll. He believes he's uncovered some possible financial wrongdoing involving checks being paid to unknown personnel, and he speculates the recipients could be councilmembers themselves.

"They're playing a sleight-of-hand with federal money," Foster said. "I've tried to get the FBI, the governor and attorney general involved, and no one has paid attention. But since this video, people are asking, 'What's going on in Quartzsite?'"

The next regularly secheduled council meeting is slated for this Tuesday night.

"It promises to be just as dynamic as they've been," Mayor Foster said.

Quartzsite, Arizona, the town now infamous for arresting a citizen for speaking during a public city council meeting, has apparently declared martial law.

This, according to Quartzsite Mayor Ed Foster, happened after a secret meeting was held during which the city council voted in favor of declaring a state of emergency.

Jennifer Jones, the woman who has gone on a full scale crusade against corruption in the small town of 3,600, posted an urgent update on here blog The Desert Freedom Press.

“At about noon today, the town council, at the request of the police chief, declared an official state of emergency. Sgt Xavier Frausto was dressed in tactical gear when he and the police chief demanded the mayor get in their car,” wrote Jones.

That’s right, according to this report, police in tactical gear ordered a sitting mayor to a potentially illegal secret meeting.

The Mayor instead drove himself to the meeting which he himself later called illegal.

Jennifer Jones is Arrested at City Council Meeting

World Net Daily spoke with Jennifer Jones who now fears for her safety in the small town 2 hours outside of Phoenix.

“They’ve got their tactical gear on, the police chief and his sergeant,” Jones said. “I don’t know what that means. I need to get the word out in case they come here. I am very concerned for my safety.”

An Arizona Republic report confirms that Quartzite Mayor Ed Foster has indeed called the situation in his town a form of martial law but also quotes the Vice Mayor as saying that while she condems the meeting, martial law is not necessary the right word to use.

“Foster said the council had imposed martial law, but Vice Mayor Barbara Cowell said that does not accurately characterize the action. She added that the city attorney had condoned the meeting and that a recording of the session will be made accessible to the public today,” The Arizona Republic reported.

The situation in Quartzsite has been heating up as the story of Jennifer Jones and her unlawful arrest during a city council meeting has gained momentum after being covered by multiple mainstream newspapers.

The initial arrest came as Jennifer was exposing the corruption of the local city council as well as the police chief who is already under investigation by The Arizona State Dept of Public Safety.

Police probe after pensioner, 82, is Tasered by officers and hospitalised for six days

A police watchdog was today probing why an 82-year-old man was Tasered by armed officers and hospitalised for six days.

The pensioner was shot with the 50,000-volt stun gun after apparently 'threatening' a man.

A team of armed police officers swooped on him in a west London street before firing the electroshock weapon.

An 82-year-old was in hospital for six days after being shot with a 50,000 volt Taser

He was later arrested on suspicion of carrying an offensive weapon and criminal damage to a vehicle in Ealing, west London.

However, he was later rushed to hospital by ambulance after complaining of 'pain' after arriving to Acton police station.

The gun fires darts attached to lengths of wire which carry an electric charge causing temporary paralysis.

The 82-year-old was kept in Central Middlesex Hospital for six days after being Tasered before being discharged.

The case is now being investigated by the Independent Police Complaints Commission following the shooting on the morning of June 28.

IPCC Commissioner Rachel Cerfontyne said: 'Our investigation will examine whether the use of a Taser in these circumstances was proportionate and appropriate.'

A spokesman for the Metropolitan Police refused to comment while the investigation is being managed by the watchdog.

An 89-year-old man from Llandudno, North Wales, is the oldest man to have been shot by a Taser.

The war veteran was shot by officers after escaping from his care home and threatening to cut his throat with a piece of broken glass.

North Wales Police said they shot the retired carpenter for his own safety in January 2009.

Hailed as a non-lethal alternative to firearms, Tasers, which have a range of around 20ft, have been linked by human rights groups with hundreds of deaths in the U.S. and Canada.

Experts have warned against using them on children and vulnerable adults because of the risk that they can trigger a heart attack.

Man Arrested for Filming Police from His Own Yard

Alex Jones & Aaron Dykes
July 7, 2011
http://www.infowars.com/man-arrested-for-f...-from-own-yard/

A Jonesboro, Arkansas man was arrested after filming police conduct a warrantless search of a woman's vehicle and body who was his neighbor. Across the United States, police are adopting tactics not even seen in the worst Third World nations. Infowars.com has reviewed literally hundreds of videos which document the fact that police at routine traffic stops handcuff drivers with no probable cause and then search their cars and persons.

In a video making a stir on You Tube, an Arkansas man looks on in horror as officers handcuff an innocuous looking woman, and then conduct a TSA-style search of her breasts and other body parts before releasing her. The cameraman filming police across the street from his garage yells "Nazis," continuing to warn the officers that they were violating the 4th Amendment.

[dohtml]<object style="height: 390px; width: 640px"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/LOYDjGgGtBM?version=3"><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"><param name="allowScriptAccess" value="always"><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/LOYDjGgGtBM?version=3" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowfullscreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" width="640" height="390"></object>[/dohtml]

Three police officers then march across the street, up the driveway and into the man's garage to demand that he show his papers. They then begin to discuss what they're going to charge him with: "disorderly conduct." No, let's charge him with "obstruction of justice." The officers then decide to go with "racial slur." They then grab the camera away from the man and clap on the cuffs. The camera is then turned off.

Here are just a few of the glaring issues that need to be addressed:

1. Why are police now routinely putting people in handcuffs, then conducting warrantless searches of their cars and bodies?

2. Even if calling police "Nazis" from your own yard offends some people, it is still protected speech under the First Amendment. Also, officers can't just arrest you because their egos are bruised.

3. Europe and Canada have passed anti-free speech laws dubbed "hate speech" laws, but in the United States, 'racial slurs' are not illegal. On top of that, calling someone a "Nazi" is not a racial slur, it is a criticism of the fascistic policies of Adolf Hitler and his followers, and is a pejorative used in modern parlance for people engaged in tyrannical activity.

4. In the video posted above, we witness the police grasping at straws, looking for a reason to arrest the man; they even talk about his grass being too long, and that he'd better look out for the code enforcement bureaucracy.

Upon completion of this article, we learned that this incident took place 11 months ago and is just now garnering attention on the web. Below is the statement of the cameraman arrested in his own garage. First police clearly state on the video that they're arresting him for a "racial slur," but he was later booked on the charge of 'felon in possession of a firearm,' even though he was not a felon. The charge was dropped the next day.

[dohtml]<object style="height: 390px; width: 640px"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/xrkjdIYEVkI?version=3"><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"><param name="allowScriptAccess" value="always"><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/xrkjdIYEVkI?version=3" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowfullscreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" width="640" height="390"></object>[/dohtml]

Account from the man who was arrested sent to PrisonPlanet.com.

On Tuesday, August 17th 2010 at around 7:45pm I returned home to find one cop interrogating a woman who was apparently pulled over across from my driveway.

I got out my video camera to record the incident happening across the street from within my garage. I was leaning on the back of my car (in garage) to steady the picture and recorded for several minutes. Two more patrol cars, now totaling three, had arrived.

The lady was standing outside her car, looking quite distressed at the situation. Cops then begin to search her vehicle and then let her go. One of the officers asked if I was “enjoying myself” from the road. I told him “you are a Nazi”. He cupped an ear like he couldn’t hear me, so I said it louder, “you’re a Nazi”.

One officer then pointed at me and said, “Arrest him for interfering”. Even though their traffic stop was complete and the lady driver was back in her vehicle preparing to leave. The cops were also preparing to leave when I spoke this.
A d v e r t i s e m e n t

Then he and his cohorts came up my driveway and into my garage. I told them all to leave and that they were not welcome. I repeated it several ways such as, “you are trespassing”, “leave my property”, etc…

One of three officers asked for my ID and I stated that I was on my property and had committed no crime. He quickly became aggressive and intimidating… belligerently pointing “I am a cop. Here is my badge. Show me your ID, NOW!”

I asked what he would do if I refused and he said I would be arrested. I then produced my ID and continued to request they leave my property, assuring them I had no warrants and clean history.

The second officer went to his vehicle and upon his return barked that he would arrest me with “hate crime” or “racial slur” for calling him a Nazi. I pointed out that Nazi was a political party, not a race.

After calling in my credentials, Ptl. Ben Runnels told me to put my hands behind my back. I asked, “Am I being detained?”. Ben replied, “Put your hands behind you back.” I asked if I was being arrested and if so what charge. He said, “Yes, disorderly conduct”

I put my hands behind my back and turned around. Ben took the camera haphazardly and bound my hands.

After marching me down the driveway next to their vehicles, all three began sifting through my pockets and locking the cuffs. The camera was turned off sometime around here.

I asked them to let me close the garage and they said, “no, we’ll close it when we’re done here”.

The lady who was originally pulled over had then turned around back towards Airport Rd. (was facing away) and stopped next to the shake down taking place near where she was originally pulled over. She rolled her window down calmly said, “thank you” several times. After she departed, the cops laughed and said she was thanking the “tree” behind us.

They collected the possessions on my person and put me in their paddy wagon.

Next all three officers went back into my garage, rummaged through my car and found my dog Ike in the back seat. Ike happily jumped out and pee’d on the grass while the enforcers pointed tasers at him. Then one of the cops discovered the leash from the back seat of my car and put it around his neck, then lead him inside without entering himself.

Next, while I was watching from caged patrol card, they rummaged in the front seat and found one of my many legal firearms. This was all done with the excuse of trying to find the garage door button or opener. The button to the garage door was on the wall, directly behind him but they decided to violate my 4th amendment after kidnapping me for exercising my 1st.

I was informed after they found the garage door opener and closing the door that I would now be charged with “felon in possession of a firearm”. I said, “who’s a felon?” and they shut the door and took me to jail.

Since I was charged with a felony, court appearance would be required to issue a bond. This meant I needed to stay in the felony side of jail with rapists, pedophiles, and others until the next court date. The man I was locked in a small cell came onto me several times and was completely insane.

The next afternoon was court. Upon arriving I was informed the felony gun charge would not be pursued, but the misdemeanor of Disorderly Conduct would stick. They are keeping my camera which contains the evidence of their violations of my rights by suggesting it evidence of my “disorder” charge.

Luckily I was booked on Tuesday, since court is only on Wednesday. Had it been Thursday, I would be locked into the cell for an entire week… all for a bogus charge that was dropped.

Immediately after being released on misdemeanor bond and having spend nearly 24 hours in felony jail, the firearm was returned to my possession.

'Nazi' police 'kidnap' woman at town hall

Outraged mayor: 'I'm not going to quit until I see them in jail'

A small town in Arizona is suddenly a YouTube sensation after a town-hall meeting devolved into a physical clash as a woman was forcibly removed from speaking during the public portion of the event.

Jennifer "Jade" Jones, 45, of Quartzsite, Ariz., was taken into custody by local police at the behest of Quartzsite councilmembers, over the objections of the mayor, who pleaded with officers not to remove the woman.

The incident took place June 28 during the "call to the public" section of the meeting, as Jones, a pet groomer who also publishes the Desert Freedom Press, was addressing matters of taxation and meeting protocol.

Some councilmembers interrupted Jones as she was addressing the council and audience, ordering her to relinquish the microphone.

Councilman Joe Winslow of Quartzsite, Ariz., led the charge to have Jennifer Jones removed from speaking.

"You may leave, or you may be escorted out," Councilman Joe Winslow warned Jones.

Jones immediately told Winslow, "You can leave or be escorted out as well. You are out of order."

Then, as police Sgt. Fabiola Garcia attempted to take the microphone away from Jones, Mayor Ed Foster came to the defesne of Jones and interjected, "Officer, that woman has the floor. You're violating my rules of order here. Sergeant, I have control of the meeting."

A former Hitler youth gives a chilling, but life-saving warning to America in "Defeating the Totalitarian Lie," just $4.95 today only!

Jones was able to speak for a few moments more, but councilmembers insisted police move in and subdue her.

"Do not resist the officer!" Police Chief Jeff Gilbert instructed Jones, who responded, "I am not resisting!"

When Jones refused to give up the microphone, officers forcibly removed her from the premises, and cited her for disorderly conduct. Jones suffered a torn ligament in her elbow during the scuffle, and was transported to La Paz Regional Hospital.

In an interview with WND, Jones said she was never informed she was "under arrest," and so she'll seek charges of kidnapping and aggravated assault against the officers.

"That's what I'll ask for. It'll be up to the state attorney general," she said. "I've never seen in my entire life such a group of people with such contempt for the law."

Jones, who claims she's been previously harassed by police, says recently some officers – including Chief Jeff Gilbert – have been acting more erratically and dangerously, and says he even gave a speech comparing outspoken citizens like herself to Jared Loughner, the gunman who shot Arizona Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords in Tucson on Jan. 8.

Just three days after the shooting that killed six people and left 14 others injured including the congresswoman, Gilbert quoted a comment published in Jones' paper that read in part: "So Jeff and Q.P.D., the next time you piss off a patriot, think maybe, just maybe they won't be as calm as I am. You think nothing bad will ever happen to you because you are a cop with a 10-cent badge and a gun? Don't be so sure. ... As this economy gets worse and the people get more desperate, remember that desperate people do desperate things. And as people start to lose it, they simply lose it."

Gilbert then explained, "These words are warning signs. The propaganda that's being spread about the local government – these are warning signs. The behavior, the outbursts, the actions that have been taking place in some of these council meetings, they are warning signs."

"'He's setting up to shoot us!' That's what we thought. He's coming up with a pretense to pull a gun," Jones said. "Police are to protect and serve, not to harass and intimidate. It has to stop. Someone's going to get really hurt, not just a torn ligament."

When asked about the actions of the non-partisan town council, Jones said, "I liken them to monkeys in the zoo. They make a lot of noise and throw a lot of feces around, but at the end of the day they're just primates and don't deserve to be writing checks for [a town of] about 3,800 people. They don't deserve to be managing money. They don't act like they're at the top of the food chain. It's embarrassing."

Mayor Ed Foster of Quartzsite, Ariz., says his town is filled with massive corruption among government officials.

Mayor Foster, a retired Marine and former engineer for Wrigley Chewing Gum, is standing by Jones' account, and says the town council and police department are filled with corruption.

"He's just an insane person, that chief of police," the mayor said of Gilbert. "He's a Nazi ... he's completely out of control. He thinks he's running the town."

WND sought comment from Gilbert, but a 9-1-1 dispatcher said the town was dealing with a massive power outage this afternoon, and the chief could not be reached.

Mayor Foster said it's not just the police chief, but also the town manager and tax collector who are creating a terrifying atmosphere.

"People in town are scared to death of them," he said. "It's just a clear pattern of harassment and intimidation by this government. These people have run this town like they owned it. It's got to be fixed and I'm not going to quit until I see them in jail."

The mayor says the council has even precluded him from examining the payroll. He believes he's uncovered some possible financial wrongdoing involving checks being paid to unknown personnel, and he speculates the recipients could be councilmembers themselves.

"They're playing a sleight-of-hand with federal money," Foster said. "I've tried to get the FBI, the governor and attorney general involved, and no one has paid attention. But since this video, people are asking, 'What's going on in Quartzsite?'"

The town of Quartzsite is located some two hours by car west of Phoenix, at the intersection of Interstate 10 and U.S. Highway 95.

"There's nothing but jack-rabbits and coyotes here," noted the mayor. "We're in the middle of nowhere, 40 miles from the nearest Walmart."

Foster calls the councilmembers "idiots depriving people of their First Amendment rights," and thinks a reckoning could soon be forthcoming for them.

"I got 1,200 emails yesterday," he said, as the YouTube video has soared to nearly 40,000 views. "All of a sudden, everyone's commenting. If I were them, I'd be scared to death."

One of those emails was from Robert Bright, stating, "I hope to dear God Jennifer Jones sues your city for every penny she can get! Your type of thuggish governing is why our Founding Fathers of the American colonies decided to throw off the tyrannical rule of King George of England in 1776."

Town officials are also being verbally scorched in online messageboards.

Byron Brunskill commented, "Liberty does not exist in the United States under the rule of people like this council. We need the right of recall of all elected politicians including the Congress and the president of the United States."

Dave Kawasaki said, "People seem to have forgotten just how to control their local governments. I hope the arrestee sues everyone involved, in both personal and professional/elected capacity. I hope she wins enough to bankrupt them all, and I hope she runs for office on the proceeds."

The next council meeting is slated for Tuesday night.

"It promises to be just as dynamic as they've been," Mayor Foster said.

Police inspector in court on child sex offences

A police inspector accused of child sex offences is expected to enter a plea at Swansea Crown Court next month.

Geraint Lloyd Evans, of Manor Drive, Coychurch, Bridgend, was bailed to return to the court on August 12 for a plea and case management hearing.

The 47-year-old, who worked in the central division (Barry and Bridgend) for South Wales Police, is charged with conspiring with others to incite engagement in unlawful sexual activity with a child under 13, as well as possession of section one ammunition and child sex offences.

Evans' co-accused, who are also charged with a number of offences relating to indecent images, are Colin Champion, 49, of Crumlin Drive, St Mellons, Cardiff; Leslie Ronald Asser, 54, of Wilton Post Office, Ross-on-Wye; Wayne Barnes, 50, of Old Road, Neath; and Nicolas Bishop, 49, from Stryd Hywel, Ystrad Mynach.

Champion and Asser were remanded in custody and the other defendants were granted bail.

Judge Paul Thomas QC varied Evans bail conditions so that he only has to report to Bridgend Police Station once a week rather than twice, as the court heard it is "distressing" for Evans to report to his former police station.

Eight detectives accused of framing trio for vice girl murder 'told fellow prostitute her children would be taken into care if she did not collude'

Last updated at 4:25 PM on 8th July 2011
http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-20...id-collude.html

Bullying police told a mother that her children 'would be taken into care' if she didn't help frame three innocent men for murder, a court heard today.

Eight detectives allegedly framed five men over the killing of prostitute Lynette White, 20, after failing to solve her murder and now stand charged with persuading her friend to change her evidence.

In what is thought to be the UK's biggest ever police corruption case, the retired officers are accused of conspiring to 'mould, manipulate, influence and fabricate evidence' which led to three men being wrongly jailed for the murder of Lynette White.

The 20-year-old vice girl was stabbed more than 50 times at a flat in the docks area of Cardiff on Valentine's Day in 1988.

Stephen Miller, Yusef Abdullahi and Anthony Paris - who became known as the 'Cardiff Three' - were convicted of her murder in 1990 before being freed by the Court of Appeal in 1992.

Chief superintendent Thomas Page, 62, chief inspectors Graham Mouncher, 59, and Richard Powell, 58, are said to have colluded with five other detectives, Michael Daniels, 62, Paul Jennings, 51, Paul Stephen, 50, Peter Greenwood, 59 and John Seaford, 62, to fix evidence and pervert the course of justice.

All deny the charges.

Swansea Crown Court was told how fellow prostitute Leanne Vilday was friends with Lynette, 20, but was 'persuaded completely to change her evidence.'

Vilday was allegedly told to place innocent men Stephen Miller, Yusef Abdullahi and Tony Paris at the scene of Lynette's brutal murder.

Retired Detective Inspector Grahame Mouncher is accused of threatening her - and showed her photographs of other children taken away from their mothers.

Prosecutor Nicholas Deans QC said: 'Two detectives were responsible for moulding and manipulating what she had to say but it was Graham Mouncher who "broke" her.

'Mouncher told her she would be charged with the murder of her friend Lynette.

'She remembers being shown photographs of young children who she was told were in care. That was what she was told would happen to her own young son.

'Eventually Vilday gave in and agreed with what she was being told she had seen and heard. Mouncher left the room and Vilday recalls hearing the sound of celebrations from a neighbouring room.'

Miller, Abdullahi and aris - known as the Cardiff Three - were jailed for life for murder in 1990 but later cleared on appeal.

In 2003 another man, Jeffrey Gafoor admitted killing Lynette after a cold-case review discovered his DNA in the flat where she died.

The court heard how the three innocent men were 'brain-washed' by officers after a series of lies.

The jury was told how Lynette's boyfriend was 'bullied' into 'confessing' he was at the scene on the night she died.

Mr Deans said: 'Another feature of the questioning of the original defendants was the willingness of police officers positively to mislead them - indeed to tell outright lies.

'It seems clear that officers were perfectly happy to use outright lies or deliberate deception in their efforts to obtain evidence.

'Miller was in effect brain washed over these 13 hours into repeating back to the officers facts they had asserted many times to him.

'This brain-washing succeeded in convincing Miller he must have been involved and was so effective Miller appears to have continued to believe what he'd been told he'd done for a period of time.

'Miller is clearly being bullied - short of physical violence it is hard to imagine a more hostile and intimidating approach.'

The retired officers all deny the charges.

Some officers were promoted after the conviction - Powell retired later as a Superintendent and Mouncher and Page as a Chief Inspectors.

Former trial witnesses Violet Perriman, 61, and Ian Massey, 57, both deny perjury.

The trial is due to last seven months.

* Another four retired officers are due to stand trial on the same charges at a later date.

Think it's a coincidence?

Alexandra - September 14, 2008 03:46 AM (GMT)

I don't think it's a coincidence.

I view Ron Paul as the Order's finger in the wind...trying to see what they can get away with.

tlthe5th - September 14, 2008 03:52 AM (GMT)

Don't get me wrong. The way I hear Ron Paul speak, I would love for someone like him to be prez of USA but it would never happen and beside, we know Dr. Paul can not be legit and sincere when he praises the Pope who is renowned as being an instrument of fascism. It's contradictory.

Alexandra - September 14, 2008 04:13 AM (GMT)

My thinking's the same here, Thomas. We need someone like Ron Paul, or at least who actually WOULD be pro-Constitution and not let the black pope boss him around.

One can only dream, I suppose.

theresa - September 14, 2008 04:48 AM (GMT)

A few short months ago infowhores.CON servers 'magically' went down SUN Day following his SATURN Day TV camera's/equipment Money Bomb. Clearly to do as Ron Paul did...con his sheople out of their dwindling and hard earned cash.
Once the site came back up it had 'magically' dropped the 'Recent Comments' spot where one could find the INTELLIGENT Commenters, avoiding bots, psy-ops and 'plants'. Comments were no longer 'numbered' preventing us to post answers to each other, flesh out the information with a trail of documentation.
Many comments were sloooow in posting (if they did at all) or tagged Your comment is awaiting moderation which was truly interesting as we noticed this occurred when certain links, names or words were used. It became obvious heavy censorship was being conducted on GCN-Midas-AdnanKhashoggi-ABC.
Some of us 'dorks' who did what he urged.....don't believe [him], go do the homework.... were referring to him as 'daddy'. :wacko:
Suddenly Alex was online ranting about Secret Service spooks contacting him for comments some made about 'killing'. I only saw those from aforementioned Bots, psy-ops and plants. He repeatedly ranted YOU DO NOT TURN YOUR BACK ON DADDY! DON'T YOU DARE TURN YOUR BACK ON DADDY! again in a threatening manner.
Look at all his guests.....
[B][/B][/I]JESUITS EVERYWHERE! ALEX JONES is a bottom feeder. I think I know why Luke, Alex and the ST.-MARKS-CATHOLIC-CHURCH-911-'Truth'-movement never demanded an investigation into Dan Wallace's 'natural death'. Google Duncan/Black 'suicides.' :ph43r: Alex Jones discordant voice is a 'seizure-inducing' health risk.

truthersseeker01 - September 14, 2008 08:17 AM (GMT)

I like when Walt Williams called in not too long ago and Alex clearly censored him because he was on damage control and said that Eric was threatening his family and believing in magic nukes and such. :lol: Wow I never thought he'd get this pathetic but I think he's giving himself away now that he's been doing damage control with all the people wondering why he's not covering the Jesuits any.

ExposeTheFascists - September 15, 2008 01:53 AM (GMT)

Well said, Truthseeker01. Perhaps more interesting, is Alex Jones' flip-flopping on the issue of the Jesuits, a month ago he was suddenly all into the Jesuits (after many exposures of his lies, of course), and this week he doesn't want to know. It's "quack garbage" again to him. And what about his comment that he has "always exposed the Jesuits." Clearly Alex can be proven to have engaged in damage control by mentioning the Jesuits in recent weeks, as now he has returned to his previous state of dismissal and ridicule of anyone who mentions the idea. Quite a jump. As expected, Jones did not continue to deal with the subject; his mentions of it were most likely and simply to provide a few sound bites for the 9/11 Truthers to spit out in response to Alex being accused of being a Coadjutor.

For me, the most laughable part of the recording in question was when Jones claimed that the Vatican is against the war because they say so. So, Alex, when the Bilderberg Group say they aren't part of a conspiracy, I guess that must also be true, because they say so.

Alexandra - September 15, 2008 11:31 AM (GMT)

Just like it was guys with towels on their heads that did 9/11, just because the government says so. :D

I met him in the restroom and shook his hand and I instantly had a real bad feeling. He barely even said hello let alone look me in the eyes, what a Scumbag! My feelings were obviously correct. Now Jim Marrs was awesome! Super nice down to earth Texas boy! We talked about the Jesuits and he is very knowledgeable on them. Texe Marrs and Alex Jones gang up on Eric Jon Phelps without ever mentioning his name. Marrs makes a ridiculous attempt to portray Phelps as a wealthy Israeli diamond merchant (simply because his wife runs an online jewellery store!).

This recent radio show segment is a desperate attempt at character assassination of Phelps due to his efforts (and many others) in exposing Alex Jones & others in the "truth movement" as nothing more than shills for Rome.

The shadowy "illuminati" was in fact founded by a Catholic Jesuit, a professor of Cannon Law, who was working for the Pope - Adam Weishaupt.

If you want to know who is behind the "coming holocaust" you only have to look and see who has been behind all the prior holocausts: THE VATICAN.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: Eric Jon Phelps never said a "black magic ritual" causes nuclear bombs - that is an outright lie.

This lie is an intentional misrepresentation of one of the proposed scenarios described in Phelps' book to explain why at Hiroshima five Jesuits were able to emerge from ground zero completely unscathed. They attributed their survival to "a miracle of the Virgin Mary" - but a more likely scenario is that they placed ground detonations that were timed to coincide with an aerial flash bomb. According to Phelps one of those Jesuits was Pedro Arrupe himself, who later became the Jesuit General. This is an interesting scenario that may or may not be true - however it has NOTHING to do with "black magic rituals" causing nuclear bombs. And of course Phelps never said the earth hangs "on a string" either - he merely holds a geocentric perspective of planetary motion (as described in Psalm 19). Jones & Marrs (who spent their broadcast alleging that buildings cast illuminati black-magic spells over neighborhoods) had to resort to such falsehoods only serves to confirm the suspicions many already had against them as disinformation agents serving Rome's interests.

Alex Jones is Central Intelligence Agency controlled through and through and he's scared of losing his mass funding by them. Yet another phony Protestant who enters Jesuit establishments and praises them. Reminds me of that phony Protestant Rowan Williams! A true Christian is not friends with any Maltese Knightsor their craig-oxley - October 22, 2008 10:42 PM (GMT)

Dear Mack,

Thank you for contacting me and for your concern for the truth.

Concerning the earth, I have never said that it hangs by a string. I have said that the sun revolves around the earth and the earth is at rest as per Psalm 19 and a host of other scriptures. True objective science further validates geocentricity which I defend in antithesis to heliocentricity.

Concerning the detonations at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, I have stated in my book that both were ground detonations set up by Jesuits on site. One of those Jesuits was Pedro Arrupe who later became the Jesuit General. The bombs that were dropped by the B-29s were magnesium flash bombs with uranium or plutonium contained therein so as to give the illusion that "atomic" bombs were dropped over those cities. When the flash bombs detonated above the sites, the Jesuits on the ground and shielded beneath the atomic devices, then detonated the atomic devices. First came the flash, then came the detonation on the ground. At Hiroshima, five Jesuits emerged from ground zero unscathed and attributed their survival to "a miracle of the Virgin Mary." I have said nothing about a black magic nuclear bomb.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in faith,

Brother Eric

Complete CIA psy-ops!

On Jones Infowars there's an article where we read of his deference to Jesuit-trained John F. McManus, President of the JBS, that Catholic/high-level Masonic front with links to the Popes Knights of Malta & CFR.

Jones is also good friends with Jesuit-trained, US Knights of Malta, Uber-Catholic Pat Buchanan. He never seriously examines the extent of Rome's covert global manipulation. Most alternate media stars run intelligence-gathering psy-op setups for the Profane.

Not a bad idea Craig. That banner of intelligence assets in the truth movement with Jones, Icke, Moret, etc would be awesome to have up again. Just to further irritate these punks. What's hilarious is that Marrs and Jones can't even say Phelps' name on air. They know that to utter his name is to arouse a person's curiosity. That is Alex

Jones at one of his lowest moments. Siding with a Jew blamer to take the heat off of the Vatican.

He says of Geraldo, "Such comments are designed by CIA"

i wonder what he thinks now that Alex Jones has appeared on FOX with Rivera?? <_<

I'm sure there still a couple of bottomfeeders out there who still hang out AJ's every word because their hopeless but I'm curious as to how many out there still follow this goon. The Alex Jones Affair
A Christian Patriot Family Betrayed

hen one remembers that messy business in Waco involving the Branch Davidians, it's not difficult to think that Texas seems to be particularly in the grip of the Antichrist spirit. At this writing, another family there is also under siege. John Joseph Gray and his wife and kids have been in a stand-off with the authorities since January, 2000. His daughter and grandchildren were being sought for a custody battle as well. As in the Jane Davila case (see Christian Media Volume VI #1), this is simply the Beast encroaching into constitutionally guaranteed rights that are reserved to the individual.

As a patriotic Christian man, John Gray has simply declared enough is enough and has refused to cooperate any further with the Beast system. The conflict stems from yet another attempt by the government to steal the children, because the government thinks they make better parents than children's own parents. This is particularly true for Christians, patriots, home-schoolers, and anyone else that stands up for their God given rights.

This is the shape of things to come. Because the Texas authorities are still smarting from the extensive criticism they received during the Waco murders, in addition to the recent election of Texas favorite son George Bush Jr, thus far the Beast has not moved to take the Grays by force. However, they will most likely make a violent move against them at some point as government consistently tries to give the public the impression that 'resistance is futile.'

What makes the Gray case particularly interesting is how the Patriot community has been deceived concerning what has really occurred there in Trinidad, Texas. The Genesis Communications Network, a so-called "patriot" network, and their premier host Alex Jones, have now been implicated in the betrayal of the Gray family.

In addition to his visibility as a Shortwave/Satellite radio host on the Genesis Communications Network, Alex Jones is best known for his investigative videos that seek to expose various New World Order practices. Alex Jones' broadcast on Genesis is considered the flagship program of the network. Furthermore, Alex Jones is widely seen as one of the top patriot leaders in the American political underground. Likewise, Genesis (also called GCN) enjoys the leadership role in so-called "patriot" broadcasting.

After the Gray siege began, Alex Jones and an associate named Mike Hansen went to the Gray property and asked John Gray if they could videotape an interview. John Gray agreed under one proviso: the tape footage was to be used for a documentary that could only be viewed after the siege was concluded. Alex Jones agreed to these conditions.

It seems that after Jones shot the video he wanted, including footage from within the premises showing crucial defensive locations from within the Gray residence, Alex Jones turned around and sold the video tape to a television network to be aired on the 20/20 news magazine program! Furthermore, it has now been established that Ted Anderson, the head of the Genesis Communications Network, has participated in a cover-up to keep the public from learning the truth about the treachery of his top host!

This incredible betrayal is very similar to that of Judas with his famous kiss. Both betrayals involved monetary compensation for the treachery. In the case of John Gray, the Alex Jones betrayal has placed the lives of the entire Gray household in jeopardy. Remember, the last time the authorities moved against Christians in Texas in a siege situation, they murdered everyone there • including the children.

Because the Gray's revealed significant logistical information to Alex Jones on camera, that information is now in the hands of the Texas authorities because of the unwanted television broadcast.

John Gray sought to get these facts out to the public. Based on his contacts with Genesis, it quickly became clear that Genesis was seeking to cover up the matter. Thinking that Genesis was unaware of the type of treachery Alex Jones had committed, Gray attempted to inform the radio network of what had happened. After several attempts of this nature, John Gray concluded that Ted Anderson, the head of Genesis, directly censored one of his own hosts (John Stadtmiller) that was attempting to tell the Gray story on the air. At that point, Gray was under the impression that Stadtmiller was interested in airing the truth, but he was being censored by Anderson. This was only partially true.

After John Gray realized he had been betrayed by both Alex Jones and the Genesis Network, he wrote a letter to Christian Media's James Lloyd. We have reproduced that letter in its entirety (see John Gray Letter attached to this work).

When I received the letter from John and Alicia Gray, I had already had several interactions with the Genesis people and had become convinced that the organization was completely corrupt and unscrupulous.

It should be noted at this juncture that Alex Jones represents what is usually called 'the franchise' at Genesis. His program is the number one show on the network. Indeed, the entire business plan at GCN has been focused on furthering the listenership of Alex Jones through affiliate AM and FM stations. It's clear GCN has sought to make Alex Jones the next Michael Savage or Rush Limbaugh.

The fact that radio figures like Savage (and even the CFR affiliated fraud Rush Limbaugh) have become so popular is because the country has experienced a shift in consensus to a hipper Republican right from the previous liberal left. Thus, GCN clearly hopes to ride that political swing to riches with their golden boy Alex Jones.

Such media 'franchises' are worth millions of dollars - thus any public scrutiny that would expose Alex Jones as a cheap entertainer posing as a patriot would be disastrous for the large investment that Genesis has made in the Austin based broadcaster.

After the Christian Media newspaper printed the story of Alex Jones' betrayal of a patriot Christian family to the mainstream television media, I received an angry phone call from John Stadtmiller. Although John Gray seems to be under the impression that Stadtmiller would have told the truth on the air concerning Alex Jones had it not been for Anderson's censorship, it is clear that John Stadtmiller's sympathies are with Alex Jones.

The veteran "patriot" radio host indicated he would tell me the "truth" of the matter • a version of the "truth" that would presumably discredit John Gray and exonerate Alex Jones' from his role as Judas to John Gray's version of Jesus in the affair. However, Stadtmiller said he would only speak to me concerning the Alex Jones affair "off the record."

This is precisely the sort of back-room tactic that brought Amerika to the desperate straits the country is currently experiencing. Indeed, if the US had a powerful media that was independent of the giant multi-national corporate tentacles of commerce, we would at least have a measure of balance in our present precarious political quagmire. A media 'watchdog' is a good thing as evil is frequently afraid to misbehave for fear of exposure. Thus, the 'smoke-filled room' deals that are made under conditions of secrecy are the antithesis of a fair and balanced media.

It should also be stated that there is probably at least one inaccuracy in the John Gray letter (reproduced at the end of this essay). For example, there are indications the amount of money received by Alex Jones for the videotape he sold of the Gray siege defenses is likely overstated. John Gray can hardly be faulted if this figure is too high (having some familiarity with television, it sounds high to me for file clips purchased on the open market), as the flow of information to him has been severely hampered by the fact that he is barricaded away without regular contact with the outside world. And that's just the point.

On the one side, the Gray family is in a siege position with arrest warrants issued if they come out of their defensive posture. On the other side, Alex Jones and Genesis refuse to comment in any way concerning the matter. Thus, a thorough examination of what really happened is being thwarted to this very day. Because the Grays are simply unable to provide more detail due to their circumstances, and Genesis is after all, a media organization that obviously wants no media attention to the matter, we can't help but conclude that Genesis is seeking to cover-up the truth of the Alex Jones affair.

When John Stadtmiller called me after the story was printed in the Christian Media newspaper and said he would only speak off the record, I was faced with a choice. Because we are sincerely trying to behave in a New Testament fashion, and Jesus Christ has instructed me to "Let your yeas be yeas, and your nays be nays," I refused to speak off the record with John Stadtmiller. He angrily screamed at me and hung up the phone. I'm told by others this is how John concludes a significant number of his telephone conversations.

Of course, one might theorize that John Stadtmiller wanted to 'dish the dirt' about Alex Jones and Genesis without jeopardizing his own position; but then John would have to explain why, as a professing Christian, he continues to maintain such close ties with such a sleazy bunch. After all, the Bible is very clear about being "unequally yoked" with evil.

Or, it could be that John wanted to slander John Gray in some fashion in an effort to whitewash the simple fact that Alex Jones betrayed a patriot Christian family for money. The fact that Stadtmiller has since drawn considerably closer to Alex Jones • even regularly co-hosting programs with him on Genesis • leads me to believe that this phone call was just another effort at damage control, and that the entire organization is one large commercial mouse-trap simply masquerading as patriots in a transparent effort at empire building. Indeed, in virtually every exposure I've had with Alex Jones, the Genesis management, and the network's hosts, I've had the impression that GCN is just a loose coalition of liars that posture as patriots so the public will support their programs

And apparently the listeners are considered fair game. For instance, at least one GCN listener wrote to me stating that GCN (which is backed by a gold and silver brokerage and the Berkey water filter people) had offered a precious metal coin as a premium to anyone that made a specific donation to another "paytriot" broadcaster named Pastor Butch Paugh.

This listener sent in funds, but Ted Anderson (who heads Midas Resources as well as Genesis) refused to honor his own offer! There are several other incidents of this nature that indicate John Gray's expectation that Alex Jones and GCN are actually interested in the truth is unrealistic.

Christian Media has repeatedly sought to expose the treachery at the Genesis Communications Network for several years now. They stole their original equipment from another patriot network named Republic Radio. Fraudulently claiming they had purchased the network, the management of Genesis literally backed up a U-Haul, and loaded up the broadcasting equipment while the rightful owner was out of town!

The victim of this theft was Loris Thompkins, then owner of the now defunct Republic Radio Network. Loris then formed the Heritage Network and promptly sued Genesis for their theft of her assets. In an interesting side note, although the Genesis Network was defended by a high-priced law firm, Loris was helped by certain patriot figures conversant in law as she sued Genesis on a pro-se basis representing herself.

This was because the stolen network represented her entire net worth and she was virtually penniless after being fleeced by Genesis. Ted "Goldfinger" Anderson (the key man at Genesis and gold broker Midas Resources), on the other hand, is said to be a millionaire.

In case anyone is interested, Loris Thompkins has now been proven to be the wronged party. On February 22, 2001, Genesis settled with Loris Thompkins for a significant sum of money. This is the equivalent of a tacit admission of guilt. Incidentally, a complete history of the Genesis Communications Network, including its unsavory origin through theft and deceit, is covered in the book Shortwave Wars (see the catalog at Christianmedianetwork.com). Also, Loris Thompkins periodically addresses the subject on radio as she now broadcasts on The Christian Media Network with a program called To Tell The Truth.

Over the last couple of years, John and Alicia Gray have sent out several handwritten letters updating their status. They have steadfastly stuck by their charges that Alex Jones sold them out to the authorities. Conversely, Alex Jones has steadfastly refused to publicly account for his role in the matter.

Genesis, and every host that has any knowledge of the matter, has uniformly refused to address the issue in any public forum. All callers to any of the various GCN programs that even hint of mentioning the matter are immediately taken off the air and hung up on. The Genesis tactic has been to completely bury the story, and refuse to allow any scrutiny of Alex Jones.

At this point, it should be clear to all informed parties that the trust which has been placed in the Genesis network in general, and Alex Jones in particular, is misplaced. To put it another way, would you want to be in a foxhole with someone who would sell you out for money?

The John Gray Letter

(The following is a computer transcript taken word for word, without editing, from the handwritten letter sent to Christian Media by the Gray family - as it was printed in Christian Media, Volume VII, Issue 3)

Dear James Lloyd, we support you in what you are teaching. We know the frustration within your heart about friends you think you have that forsake you.

A story I can tell you about Ted Anderson and Alex Jones (Genesis Communications Network). I don't know if you are familiar with my situation here in Trinidad, Texas or not, but my name is John Joe Gray. I've been in a standoff with the highway bandits since January 8, 2000 when I was released from jail.

We got word the authorities were coming in on us in August of 2000. Alex Jones and Mike Hanson came out late that night and did some video taping at the gate. Alex promised me this would only be used for documentary purposes when this was all over. We had several witnesses to this. Alex came back twice within a week or so and wanted to film more. He also assured us again none of the video would be shown anywhere.

Alex later called and asked about 20/20 interviewing me. I did the interview at my gate, not down at my house. Alex kept asking me to let 20/20 video at my house which I kept telling him no! I told Alex he was the only one I had let video around the house and that was only for a documentary. The day 20/20 was to air my story, Alex called me and said he had done something very wrong. He had let 20/20 have the video. They aired it, then patriots came and talked to me • John Stadtmiller being one of them.

I told John that Alex said he had sold the video to 20/20 for $700.00. A few days later, Alex and Mike showed back up out here wanting to know how we could work this out. I told Alex just to apologize to me and to get on the air and apologize and tell the patriots what he had done. Alex was afraid the bad patriots would take him out, those were his words.

I talked with John Stadtmiller on the air about people betraying me and mentioned Alex's name. After I got off the air a guy by the name of Keith who knew Alex came on the air. Keith said Alex told him that he had a signed contract with me. John wanted me to come back on the air to verify if this was true. When I called back, Ted Anderson would not let John put me back on the air.

After the show I called Ted Anderson at his request. He wouldn't let me talk on the air because he didn't want his hosts to be squabbling on the air. I just wanted to verify that I didn't sign a contract or give Alex any permission to air the video on 20/20. This guy Keith also said on the air that day that Alex received $25,000 for the video he sold to 20/20. We found out later that Alex had sold the video to 20/20 before coming back the second time. This is what Alex told us.

We shall know them by their fruits. You cannot serve two masters! God be with you and keep you and bless your network.

PROOF: Alex Jones Sells-Out to ABC
by Victor Thorn

Investigative researcher Thomas Holbrook has done some outstanding work in shedding new light on a case which has become known as The Alex Jones Affair: A Christian Family Betrayed. For those of you not familiar with this inexcusable example of betrayal, allow me to quickly rehash what took place. Before beginning, though, I must add that all credit for what follows goes to Mr. James Lloyd, whose outstanding article this overview is based upon. Then, after introducing you to this story, we'll follow-up with Thomas Holbrook's latest revelations.

In January, 2000, patriot John Gray and his family came under siege from government authorities in Trinidad, Texas; and they have been living under these conditions ever since. Shortly after this Waco-like situation developed, Alex Jones and his cameraman Mike Hansen visited the Grays and requested a videotape interview. Mr. Gray gave his permission under one condition: the film could only be released after the siege came to an end. Jones agreed to this request, as John Gray recounts (verbatim): “Alex promised me this would only be used for documentary purposes when this was all over. We have several witnesses to this. He also assured us again that none of the video would be shown anywhere."

Please keep these words in mind, for they will become very important.

So, after gaining Gray's trust, Jones was permitted to film this family's residence, including, as James Lloyd writes, "crucial defensive locations" that "revealed significant logistical information." This point is also vital, because the last time there was a stand-off in Texas against a family of Christian patriots, we all know what happened. David Koresh and 80+ other men, women and children were burned to death in a blazing inferno. And, considering 9-11, Oklahoma City, Randy Weaver, and many other government-sponsored acts of terrorism, another Waco is not outside the realm of possibility.

Anyway, shortly after documenting the Grays, Jones returned to their home a few days later, but this time he had a very peculiar request. He wanted John Gray to let the ABC News show 20/20 videotape him.

Now, before continuing, I have a question. First, how did Jones come in contact with 20/20? In case you need reminding, ABC is the enemy! In fact, they epitomize the New World Order's corporate-controlled mainstream media; and they've done serious damage to the Truth Movement over the past few decades with their cover-ups and lies. Why in God's name is Alex Jones working in unison with them? Please think long and hard about this point, because just recently the station which Jones broadcasts his radio show on – GCN – became an ABC satellite affiliate, and they're also carrying ABC programming and advertising. How can the alternative media remain viable and trustworthy if they're openly consorting with the enemy?

Naturally, John Gray refused time-and-again Jones' persistent requests to let ABC inside his house, so when 20/20 was set to broadcast this story, guess what happened. Jones told Gray that he SOLD his videotapes to ABC's 20/20! According to Gray, "Jones called me and said he had done something very wrong. He had let 20/20 have the video." In addition, "Alex said he had sold the video for $700.00."

Consider for a moment that Alex Jones was the only person allowed inside the Gray residence. He was also the only one allowed to shoot any video, and he was the only one entrusted by John Gray. Yet what does Alex Jones do? He blatantly betrays this family and endangers their lives by selling his soul to ABC for a lousy $700.00. Not only is such an act despicable, it should also send red-flags up to every patriot in this movement; because if Jones could so easily sell-out this family, how much loyalty do you think he has to the rest of us?

But, despite being Judas'd by Jones, John Gray showed his true Christian colors by telling Alex that all he wanted him to do was "get on the air and apologize and tell the patriots what he had done." That's not much to ask, yet Alex responded that he was "afraid the bad patriots would take him out" (his exact words).

Incredibly, once again we see Jones' unbridled paranoia and drama queen theatrics – y'know the kind where he gets all hysterical every few months and says the New World Order is trying to kill him. But as we've pointed-out numerous times before, if these monsters truly wanted to snuff Jones, guess what they'd do. They'd KILL HIM and not just talk about it for ten years. How do you think government hit men operate? Do they post a flier in town square saying they're going to murder Alex Jones? Hell no. They just off him, no questions asked. Thus, the whole "death threat" scenario is another hyperactive ruse where Jones is either a bald-faced liar, or he's so whacked-out off his rocker that he should be locked in a rubber room and fed massive doses of thorazine.

To make matters worse, Jones began lying by telling people that John Gray had signed a contract with him. But as Gray states very clearly, "I didn't sign a contract to give Alex any permission to air the video on 20/20."

To prove that he was telling the truth, Gray contacted GCN president Ted Anderson and wanted to broadcast his grievances on-air. But he soon discovered that, "The Genesis tactic has been to completely bury the story, and refuse to allow any scrutiny of Alex Jones." James Lloyd also adds, "Every host that has any knowledge of the matter has uniformly refused to allow the issue in any public forum. All callers to any of the various GCN programs that even hint at mentioning the matter are immediately taken off the air and hung up on."

I don't know about you, but doesn't this sound exactly like the way the government and mainstream media operate? If they don't want you to know about something, they simply bury it. It seems Ted Anderson and Alex Jones are absolutely horrified of this story; for once they're exposed as money-grubbing turncoat betrayers for the world to see, their Wizard of Oz cover will be blown to kingdom come once-and-for-all.

So, this is where journalist Thomas Holbrook enters the picture. He's been investigating GCN and the Gray Affair for the past few months, and has finally tracked down the elusive John Gray via United States Postal Service general delivery. The following responses came to Holbrook via a letter, where John Gray unflinchingly says, "After this thing with Alex Jones, we do not trust anyone in the media, newspapers, magazines, even shortwave."

After being raked over the coals and betrayed by Alex Jones, I can't say I rightly blame Mr. Gray for his suspicions.

Also, Gray stated that he stood by everything written by James Lloyd in his article, and that, "90% of everything Alex and Mike [Hansen] said were lies! Alex has all the people on shortwave convinced that we are feds and nuts." He continued, "We did not contact Alex for publicity. We are not feds or Masons!!!"

Y'see, Jones was the one who opportunistically contacted John Gray, and similar to every other venture he engages in, Jones found a way to make $$$$$ off of it (this time by selling out the Grays to ABC News). Also, Jones has used the exact same disinformation techniques on us here at WING TV when we started uncovering his censorship practices (among other things). Y'see, whenever Alex gets exposed for his dirty-dealings, the first thing he does is lie and say that the ones exposing him are COINTELPRO or government agents. This tactic is pathetic beyond words, especially when Jones contacts a family under siege – the Grays – then betrays their trust, endangers their lives, and ultimately profits from selling them out to a tentacle of the NWO. In my book, this makes Alex Jones a coward and a low-life rat that absolutely cannot be trusted any longer.

Finally, John Joseph Gray reiterated much of what James Lloyd covered in his original article, while adding a new twist:

Alex got real jealous because we wouldn't call them when Chuck Norris came out here. That's when he began to badmouth us.

Alex just sold us out. He thought we would be dead before 20/20 was aired. He's just trying to cover himself. Alex tried to talk me into letting 20/20 come up to the house and video. I told him he was the only one who had taken video around the house which wouldn't get out till this was all over with, and I didn't want 20/20 up here. I met 20/20 at our front gate when they came in, and stayed several yards away from the house."

After reading these words, I feel it is appropriate to hearken back to how John Gray opened his letter to Thomas Holbrook: "Thank you for being concerned. The truth will get out on Alex before it's over with." God bless John Gray, and yes, he is correct - the truth is getting out about the way Alex Jones operates.

Of course there are still many unanswered questions, such as how Chuck Norris fits into the picture. But Thomas Holbrook is following up with the Grays, and hopefully more information will arise in the near future.

In the meantime, we are going to post a list of questions to Alex Jones on Monday concerning his betrayal of John Gray, along with his affiliation with the ABC News network. In addition, I did leave a message for Alex Jones before running this article, but once again he chose to hide instead of returning my phone call. Considering his repeated exhibitions of cowardice, how are we supposed to believe that this guy is going to "fight the New World Order" when he's not even man enough to answer our questions and take responsibility for his actions? Worse, if Alex Jones has already sold his soul to the dark-side once, who's to say that he hasn't done it again?

Please know that Eric Hufschmid exposed Wingtv as a Jewish ADL psyop. But some of their stuff was solid.

Eric, I have watched the linked clip here on YouTube of Jones and Marrs-they have proved their un-biblical stance by refusing to use your name while talking about you and making patently false assertions concerning statements you have made, wresting your words. If they were following the Bible model, they would name your name, as Paul and John named the names of trouble makers in their epistles. They will not say your name because they do not want anyone to investigate the information on your site. Also, it is a rather funny (to me anyway) side note that Texe failed to mention in this clip that he sold the first edition of your book. Texe believes that it is fine to use an "image" of the Lord (this is in one of his books where he mentions that a woman went to buy an image of her new found Lord and was shocked when the Christian book store gave her an image of Maitraya), he he has said on his show "maybe they should do penance," then added dthe caveat "of course I am no Catholic" butd we klnow Protestants do not blurt things like that out, and he stated years ago that Esther in the same named Bible book was a "sexually proficient" Jewess who displaced the good Queen Vashti, and that essentially Haman was the good guy and Moredechai the bad guy. I have sermon audios of my broadcasst from the times when I laid these things out and will place them on my site in the future.. As far as you being in the pay of the Jews, if that were so, your financial cirucmstances would be a whole lot better than what I know them to be. IN fact, if your were the disinformation agent they claim, you would be the one with his own publishing house (like Texe) and the one with a major 3 hour a day broadcast on an expensive short wave carrier (WWCR) like Jones. You would also have a daily changing web site like Jones does administered by employees like Jones does and you would pander and push your work hard like Jones does. You would of course have a state of the art sound studio like Texe does, instead of having to come over here to do recording with me when my work obligations (they will attack me on that someday, working with my hands like early Christians did in Nero's or Caeser's palace,so to speak), and your time permits. You also would not ask me to locate books for your research; your extensive hidden Jew staff would do the job for you, as they spoon fed you the information you need.

I am glad that He who searches the reins and tries the hearts will someday deal with these sinners in judgment. In the mean time, let us continue to be up and doing our duty, knowing of a surety that we will give an account of ourselves to God as well.
I have bcc'ed most of my e-mail correspondents and those familiar with me and my preaching, so they can view for themselves the level of dishonesty and perfidy engaged in by these impenitent Vatican toadies and lap dogs. I will address some of this on Friday on the Investigative Journal with Tom Friess.

KNIGHT OF MALTA LEN "COINTEL" HOROWITZ & SHERRY KANE ATTACK PHELPS, SZYMANSKI & ZAGAMI

Dear friends

In the video on the Youtube link below, Knight of Malta Len Horovitz & his counterintelligence counterpart Sherry Kane - both Jesuit-backed, pro-Rome, US Psy-Op diversionist agents - lash out at Eric Phelps, Greg Szymanski (who is apparently the Supreme Head of US Disinformation if we are to believe these transparent Psy-Op agents - I haven't laughed so much in a long time) & reserve the most drawn out attack consisting of a litany of fabrications about Leo Zagami.

Note how Eric, Greg & Leo are being blamed for the death of leading British Counter-Intelligence operative Christopher Edward Harle Story! Let this be a warning as to who is behind the defence of Story being a genuine defender of truth. As a high profile New World Order "exposing" public speaker & writer, Story - whether he is dead or alive - had to be taken out of the picture as his cover would have otherwise been blown during the forthcoming UK Papal visit had he found himself in the uncomfortable position of having to attack his Roman masters. The coverage of his death in July 2010 in the alternative media also helped to divert truthseekers & info-activists from focusing on & raising the profile of genuine efforts to expose the genuine coverup of the July 2003 murder of UK microbiologist & weapons expert David Kelly in the immediate aftermath of the March 2003 start of the Iraq Invasion.

Where their lies begin & end in this video is at the start & end of the clip. Their most desperate attempt at smear tactics is when they associate Tim White with Eric & Greg. Eric publicly disassociated from White over a year ago & to my knowledge Szymanski has had only tangential past contact with him as many of us in the Rome-exposing arena have via receiving batch/group email posts that often led to email flame exchanges with him.

Notice how these nitwits Horovitz & Kane never list the Jesuits, Vatican or Papal knighthoods amongst the New World Order key players. Diversionists exposing themselves.

Notice how Horovitz has a World Health Organization logo behind him & Kane has a CIA logo behind her. It strikes me that those who are drawn under their spell are being laughed at as it is revealed who these two deceivers work for themselves!

FBI COINTELPRO AGENTS EXPOSED--PART 3-PharmaWHO Murder Scandal.mov

DrLenHorowitz | September 07, 2010
MURDER & LIBEL CONSPIRACY EXPOSED IN INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM & ASSASSINATIONS RING

1) Dr. Horowitz was the first researcher, internationally, to decree the World Health Organization's pharmaceutical fraud from the start of the 2009 H1N1 Swine Flu fright.

2) News that the European newspapers are just now (August, 13, 2010) coming to terms with this fact coincides with an investigation into the murders of journalists Edward Harle (Pen name, Christopher Story) and Don Harkins, in the UK and USA, respectively, by Dr. Horowitz and journalist Sherri Kane.

3) Horowitz and Kane have learned that independent journalists and whistleblowers are increasingly being reported murdered and libeled (discredited) in an apparent conspiracy targeting leaders in the alternative medicine (anti-vaccination), patriot, activist, communities.

4) The latest murder is the world's most esteemed financial industries analyst and whistleblower, Edward Harle.

5) Harle's last writing was forged by Benjamin Fulford, who threatened Harle's life, and then doctored Harle's "last report" to make it seem like the "Knights of Malta" assassinated Harle.

6) Key on that forged and doctored list is Dr. Horowitz, the Editor-in-Chief of Medical Veritas Journal.

7) An investigation into how Horowitz's name got on that list reveals an organized conspiracy involving white supremacist agent provocateurs engaged in libeling and discrediting him and numerous other leaders in alternative medicine, the patriot movement, 9-11 truth movement, conspiracy movement, and whistle-blowing communities.

8) Further investigations revealed the white supremacist Bible Believers group, founded by alleged Church of Satin members, appears linked through a Jewish philanthropist, to the 9-11 terrorist attacks and the liquidation of stocks and accounts by indicted Muslim terrorist suspect, Amir "Tony" Elgindy.

9) The investigation is ongoing at this time, and threats and libel against Dr. Horowitz are increasing, as they are against lead investigative journalist, Sherri Kane.

10) Editors and Journalists worldwide are requested to investigate this matter urgently, to aid fellow journalists working to protect human rights and freedom of the press.

Personal message from Dr. Horowitz:

"If you wonder what happened to "peace on earth and goodwill toward men" here is a simple summary.

A long time ago wealthy, powerful, evil people invested in ways to keep their family's riches. They developed a plan to weaken people with fear, confusion, and spiritual suppression. This way, people would not revolt and overthrow them.

These people started banks that loaned money to every government and religious organization. The bankers hired bad men, criminal infiltrators, to provoke wars between nations and religious groups. To protect themselves and their people, the nations and religions borrowed more money from the bankers to pay for weapons. This pleased the bankers, and increased their wealth and power.

Soon, the bankers took control over governments, and even the world's great religions.

They took control over the media, too.

They used their "bad news" presses and networks to frighten people with propaganda. This is how they pinned people, from various nations and religions, against each other.

So successful have they been, justified by their terrorists, agent provocateurs, and propaganda, their governments and religions now use fear to get We The People to give them more money to fight more wars, and make more money.

They are now gearing up to invade Iran following this "crisis capitalist" agenda, prompting WWIII with Russia and China against the "Allies."

At this time too, they are rapidly advancing biochemical warfare against We The People for population reduction because many of us are awakening rapidly to their evil antics—chemical (e.g., chemtrails and polluted water) intoxications coupled with biolab creations spread by poisonous vaccinations.

This is the reason why my work in health science, consumer health protection, and humanitarian activism, is now under attack; why I have been framed in the murder of journalist Edward Harle, and falsely alleged to be Knights of Malta member linked by CIA operatives to Harle's murder."

Dr Horowitz himself attacking me with an ex fox news bitch as an assistant in this video and a CIA logo on the back,Im fed up of being associated with things I have nothing to do with he is saying I was created to imitate him,WTF? I didnt even know he existed!

As I said my patience is coming to the end with these people, bunch of idiots gonna sue him for slander if this thing goes on and Im gonna get Dr.Horowitz exposed very soon for his Knights of Malta membership!

By the way the picture of me mentioned in the video bellow by that ignorant or even worst malignant knight of Dr.Horowitz is a pic of me in the the Degree of Knight of Malta (Order of Malta) not a pic of me as a Knights Hospitaller:
This degree is universally associated with the Masonic Knights Templar. In the York Rite system it is conferred before the Templar Degree; in the 'stand-alone' tradition it is conferred subsequently to the Templar Degree. It is known by varying degrees of formality as the Order of Malta, or the Order of Knights of Malta, or the Ancient and Masonic Order of St John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta. In practice this last, and fullest, version of the name tends to be reserved to letterheads, rituals, and formal documents.The ceremony for conferring the degree (which is always worked in full) contains a mixture of masonic tradition, historical accounts of the Order of St John, moral teaching, and the communication of modes of recognition between members. A series of banners is employed in the ceremony, each representing one of the great battles of the historic medieval Order of St John, whose story is the basis of the moral teachings of the degree.

He also states in another video that he is a Knights Hospitaller not a Knight of Malta and as you can see in this wiki article this is absolute rubbish because a Knight Hospitaller is a Knight of Malta!

Is Craig Oxley now Christian? (You'd have to ask him) Is Barry Chamish now Christian? (No, he's Jewish by religion still, as well as by race) Is Vivan Vivaldi now Christian? (He's a Catholic - Do you count that as Christian?)

Is Leo Zagami now a Christian?

What is the relevancy of the question? I'm not being argumentative, but I cannot see your point. Was Jesus Christ a "Christian"?

Leo Zagami's "Christianity" is Rosicrucian Templarist Christianity the last that I knew. Even if you consider this to be "Christian", what is the relevancy of this question to the matter at hand?

Can anyone on the internet that you've never met before be trusted? Can Eric Phelps be trusted? Can Craig Oxley be trusted? Can Marco Ponce be trusted? Can Doug Willinger be trusted? Can I be trusted? Can you be trusted?

Again, I'm not trying to be argumentative, but I do wish to raise awareness about how much we take for granted as being so or being not so, when it may in fact it may be provisional & never fully knowable.

> Leo Zagami's "Christianity" is Rosicrucian Templarist Christianity the last that I knew. Even if you consider this to be "Christian", what is the relevancy of this question to the matter at hand?

The point of my question was because the last I heard of Zagami I seem to remember him pointing people towards "enlightenment"/new age beliefs and if that's the case I would throw him in with other disinfo agents.

I know there's good researchers like Barry who aren't Christian, but I think for the most part if people are pointing people away from Jesus then I see them as diverters and it's probably right to call them disinfo agents.

I have never heard of Zagami "pointing people away from Jesus", but then I have never heard of the Pope doing that either. The difference between them is that Zagami has helped reveal a massive part of Rome's covert global power structure, whereas the Pope has ceaselessly worked to cover it up & present a false front.

Non-Catholic denominations of Christianity have been so heavily infiltrated by Rome's agents that what people say & what they think is immaterial in this arena in regards to being able to make use of their information. What Zagami's personal beliefs (or yours) are I will never know for sure. However, the information that he has revealed that has been later verifiable has proved itself invaluable to my researches. Eat the meat & spit out the bones.

Alright back on topic of these two, this is my exchange with Sherri Kane in the comments to this video.

JaimesPhazon These people are the diverters. Horowitz is a Knight of Malta. Phelps, Szymanski and Zagami• are all exposing the Knights of Malta and their masters the JESUITS, who are the head of the serpent. The Jesuits and the Catholic Luciferian hierarchy are the wolves in sheeps clothing that Jesus warned of. Trust in no man, trust in Jesus and God's word, the Bible (KJV), that is the only place you'll find real truth in this wicked world full of false prophets and deceivers.

Folks this is an example of how they create these aliases to attack whistleblowers.
The reason why they waste so much time is they are on the clock working as CointelPro agent provocateurs.

See my blog SherriKaneDotCom and find out how they also manipulate Wikipedia.

JaimesPhazon @sherrikane Anyone reading this can see that your comments are completely ludicrous. If I'm a satanist as you accuse me of being, why then would I be directing people to trust only in the Bible and Jesus? If you're really worried about satanists misdirecting people, why aren't you telling people in your videos and comments that Jesus is the answer and that they should go to the Bible for truth?

Subject: IS MASS INTERNATIONAL GENOCIDE (& OTHER N.W.O. CONSPIRACY "SACRED COW" BELIEFS) ACTUALLY A LONG TERM PSY-OP? THOUGHTS ANYONE? + LEN HOROVITZ'S ASSERTIONS QUESTIONED
Date: 22 September 2009

Dear Dr Len Horowitz & friends (I am addressing both Dr Horowitz & others in the body of text below, so this should be taken in consideration when reading the following)

I am starting to wonder if a lot of the widely-proposed & believed key "New World Order" conspiracy "must be's" are not actually long term intell-agency generated psychological-operations in themselves? Despite all the evidence that on face value seems to indicate that this agenda will come to pass, it seems far more likely to me that the long term financial & social control goals of the covert controllers are far ore likely to be satiated by their current path of slowly drugging & toxifying people to death, rather than getting rid of the vast majority in the west. Maybe I'm wrong - but perhaps not. I still think that people should avoid these vaccines, & will continue to post warning about such money-making & health debilitating vaccines but I think that we should all start shining the spotlight on conspiracy "sacred cow" beliefs, such as the much-touted near-overnight Global Mass Culling, which may actually aid the real agenda of keeping us all herded & trapped in a fear-based mental/emotional/spiritual prison. It is interesting to me when some people have kneejerk reactions to the questioning of these matters. Perhaps the Georgia Guidestones were even created as part of such a Psy Op? Lots of smaller, drawn out, health debilitating attacks on the common people seem more effective on many levels. Again, I'm open to suggestion here, but hardline defending of a seemingly flawed & increasingly questionable assertion seems necessary at this point in proceedings.

I'm not entirely convinced of Dr Horowitz being free of any covert agenda either, contemplating both his long term high international profile in conspiracy research circles (what radio show - whether controlled or authentic - has Dr Horovitz - who's claims would ostensibly seem to be a great threat to claimed intentions of the Powers That Be - not been on?) & his problematising, question-raising Knights Hospitaller knighthood. Are any Knights Hospitaller derivatives - e.g. Queen Elizabeth II's Knights of St John, the Pope's Knights of Malta (SMOM), truly independent, as claimed? Are those which are "in dispute" truly so at the top? The latter two are most tight & more investigation should be done into the membership of all Knights Hospitaller branches, regardless of the claims of such organisations themselves.

Some of Dr Horowitz's notions that I find most interesting - such as those relating to musical frequency (being a musician myself) - seem hard to independently validate & cast doubt on the accuracy his other info. Studying some of his sites are low in substantiable evidence & thorough, internally logical explanation & bear the dubious hallmarks of chalatanesque deceptiveness (i.e. listing "stars" & putting up "me & them" photo opportunity snaps to promote a musical event that they have only been invited to & are not confirmed as participating at seems like appalling lack of judgement & gratuitous self-promotion at best (see evidence below). Sorry Dr Horovitz, this may sound harsh, but I would apply the same criteria to anyone. It's not the photos themselves that I object to, so much as their application. This is intended to be constructive criticism.

http://web.mac.com/len15/LOVE528/SCHEDULE.html
http://web.mac.com/len15/LOVE528/Pi,_PHI_%26_528.html

Check the lists of "invited performers", why no list of "confirmed performers"? Did this multi-nation event ever take place in June 2009? I'd bet not & wonder how much cash was generated from contributions for this fantasy-fest?

http://web.mac.com/len15/LOVE528/SPONSORS.html

"Royal Bloodline of David" & "Sovereign Orthodox Order of Knights Hospitaller" as sponsors, anyone? Who is this self-proclaimed "Royal Bloodline of David" - the Windsors or European royals - unlikely - or other claimants? No surprise top see Jeff Rense's name there too (& Jordan Maxwell's - isn't he meant to be near bankrupt according to his most vociferous supporters? Is he sponsoring the project with his beer bottle returns or something?)

Dr Horowitz asserts that the frequency of 528 Hertz is the "Love frequency" because it is supposedly the centre of both the audible & visible frequency ranges (light & sound). How is this even possible? "Sound" only becomes visible at the 47th (or is it 48th? 47th I'm pretty sure) octave (i.e. the frequency being doubled around four dozen times, according to comprehensive studies that I have examined in the past, so these are two completely different ranges of frequencies anyway!

So how do we incorporate such a pitch as 528 Hz into a musical tuning & playing context (regardless of its having any special metaphysical properties or not)? If one tunes a guitar's open A string to 444 Hz (rather than the standard 440 Hz), then the note of C - three frets up - produces 528 Hertz. So tuning to 444Hz, not 443 or 445 Hertz or any other produces a note that is pitched at 528 Hertz (albeit actually slightly higher at 528.008 Hz - of course if we tuned to just under 444Hz at 443.993 Hertz

Using the tools at http://shakahara.com/pianopitch2.php we find that:

relative to a pitch of 444 hz for pitch number 49 on the keyboard (A49, whose standard pitch would be 440 hz)

pitch 49 is 444.000
pitch 52 is 528.008

relative to a pitch of 528 hz for pitch number 49 on the keyboard (A49, whose standard pitch would be 440 hz)
pitch 46 is 443.993
pitch 49 is 528.000

So tuning to 444 Hertz (or just under at 443.993 Hertz - if you could find a non-computer based tuner capable of doing such offsets, which you can't, but is so slight as to be irrelevant anyway, considering how easily most non-synthetic instruments go out of tune), we can start to experiment with Dr Horovitz's "love frequency" with the knowledge of the precise equivalent tone - which appears to be closest to what is conventionally considered to be the note of C within the octave above 440 Hz. Close scrutiny of Dr Horowitz's "528" related site digs up no substantial evidence as to the special value of his toted 528 frequency. I don't want to "demonise" the theory (if it can be called a theory), but the only thing special that I can find about 528Hz is that it requires tuning to 444 Hz & 444 is 2/3 of 666 - which Dr Horovitz argues is not "evil" or "negative" in itself - again with no explanation as to what leads him to this conclusion - whether he is right or wrong! Len, I'm all ears (no pun intended), but please explain yourself. I even studied this page & have to conclude that the evidence is almost bizarre in its absence: http://web.mac.com/len15/LOVE528/Technology.html

Dr Horowitz maintains that the Rockefellers funded a move to set 440 Hz as standard musical tuning reference pitch - but provides no evidence. I can see that there is a logic that a number that is divisible by three, such as Dr Horowitz's touted 528 Hz, would be more "balanced" than one merely divisible by two, but why hold back on the evidence & how is 528 Hz the center of the sound & vision frequency ranges? Believe me, I'd love to know of a special frequency that was God-given & capable of spiritual uplift, but I would like solid, reasonable evidence, not diversionary mumbo-jumbo & half-baked excuses, which I may seem harsh in saying appear to litter the interview at the above link.

Much of the info at the Rense site is also of dubious authenticity & Jeff Rense is in my opinion (note: not intended to be a declaration of fact, unlike the claims of Dr Horovitz that I am critiquing & seeking further elucidation of here) one of the conspiracy-info world's more likely paid intell shills - but that is another story which I don't intend to get distracted by here. At the end of the day though, I am more concerned about whether or not we are letting our energies be drained by focusing on devised distractions? Almost certainly in some cases, though when & where is another matter. That which directs us into the above-mentioned fear-based mental/emotional/spiritual prison certainly merits closer scrutiny & those who reject such a valid contention equally so.

I would hope that you take this in the spirit of a much-needed challenge Dr Horovitz & rise to that challenge - for all of our benefits. The alternative perceptions & research world is an arena appallingly low on thorough, critical analysis & we do need to apply such analysis, while bearing in mind the need to be open-minded & giving a reasonable chance for all evidences to be heard before reaching conclusions. I am sticking to an area that I have some knowledge of here, others refute the existence of HIV - which existence is a principal contention of Dr Horovitz - & I will leave that to them to raise with him.

It is my hope that Dr Horovitz can not only enlighten us with clear, lucid evidence & independent, checkable sources to defend his 528 Hz assertions (& in the process dispel a few niggling doubts about his authenticity & agenda) & partake in te spirit of sportsmanship here.

Thank you all for reading. Please email me with any thoughts & observations, regardless of your take on things - especially Dr Horowitz.

In truth & awareness

What is going on with Rumor mill news?•Why are you posting my subscription newsletter for free and with an inflamatory headline?
Why not post the latest free article I wrote instead with my own headline?
Also, please post the following in order to set the record straight.

Response to recent accusations against Benjamin Fulford:
Although it is my policy to not engage in mud-slinging and focus on constructive ideas, I have been asked by many people to respond to two recent lines of attack against me.
First of all there is the accusation that I killed Christopher Story. That is serious slander and I may decide to sue. First of all, I was asked by MI6 to please cooperate with them and not reveal the fact that Christopher Story AKA Edward Hale, was never killed. It was all part of a psy-ops. However, they are using Story's baseless accussation that I threatened him with murder as part of a campaign to discredit me so I am now revealing the truth: Christopher Story was not killed and I never threatened him.
The other concerns the ongoing mud-slinging surrounding the OITC. The fact of the matter is that the lawsuit against the OITC and their backers at Davos and the UN has been delayed twice. First by the sudden suspicious death of Joe Bendana (the man who was going to file the lawsuit against them) and now by the fact that all the cables leading to Neil Keenan's server were cut. The lawsuit will go ahead and the courts can decide the truth as far as I am concerned.

The Federal Reserve Board crime syndicate has found itself in a situation it cannot mathematically get out of no matter how hard they try. In their death throes, however, they are revealing their entire global network of bought and paid for servants. My message to them: accept the inevitable, help start the new financial system and then appear before a truth and reconciliation committee in exchange for forgiveness.
Believe me, the average people and the legal system will be a lot less forgiving if you continue to try to drag the rest of humanity down with you.

Response to George Karavelis about Christopher Story

09/26/2010
http://benjaminfulford.typepad.com/benjaminfulford/

George Karavelis has publicly asked when I found out about the death of Christopher Story. The answer is that I was informed he was alive by a senior member of MI6 that his death was fake because they were afraid I would set in motion actions to avenge his death. The article I wrote about the group behind his murder is something I wrote before I found out he was still alive so I did not deliberately lie in that article. It was after that article appeared that "they" informed me he was still alive. That would have been sometime in early August.

I have not heard any details other than that he was alive and his death was faked in order to put pressure on certain factions in the battle for control of the new financial system. They asked me not to mention his death and, usually if a source tells me to keep something off the record, I do so in order not to lose the confidence of that source. That is why I kept silent for a while. In this case, I was forced to break my promise to the source because there was an intensive campaign on the net to blame me for Story's death. Story did not help his case because he falsely accused me of threatening him. He can be a prickly character but that is part of his charm.

I have also since heard that Story was forced to agree to his faked death and become silent or else be "horizontalised" because certain very powerful people were upset with his disclosures.

We are hoping to use money earned by our subscription blog to hire a reporter in London to try to fill the gap he left. This may take a couple of more months to set into motion. We all miss his reporting and the gap he left will be hard to fill.

Yes, please send it, I'd like to see what he has to say. However, do not assume everything (or anything) he says about John DeCamp or Ted Gunderson is true. The CIA is in the background on this smearing campaign and their agent is the MK Ultra mind controlled liar, Barbara Hartwell. It's a long story and I won't attempt to get into it here, but there's much more going on than you are aware of.

John DeCamp was involved with the CIA in Vietnam during their Project Phoenix torture/assassination operations against mostly non-threatening Vietnamese. He worked with William Colby who later became director of the CIA and was subsequently murdered in a canoeing "accident."

John DeCamp, who became an attorney and Nebraska state senator, got on the wrong side of the CIA when he wrote his book and made a video documentary (Conspiracy of Silence) on the Nebraska Franklin Cover Up which involved children snatched off the streets of America under the CIA's "Finders" program, interviewed victims of CIA mind control/satanic ritual abuse, including children-victims being flown into Washington DC for sex parties with prominent Washington politicians, and sundry other overlapping illicit activities of drug running, money laundering, child porn, snuff films, satanism, white slavery, and the selling of children at auctions. Since John DeCamp at one time was working with the CIA and then later exposed them, he put himself on their 'smear & discredit' hit list.

The CIA has been using Hartwell since the late 1990s to smear both John DeCamp and Ted Gunderson. John DeCamp was looking to sue Hartwell for libel in 2005, but didn't know where to find her in order to serve her. Hartwell began to lose credibility in the earlier half of the 2000 decade because I had exposed her insane fabrications in a series of articles written between 2000 - 2008. After that, I stopped writing about her since she no longer seemed to have an audience. It seems that her reputation for lying had finally caught up with her. Recently, however, she latched onto to Len Horowitz and his girlfriend, Sherri Kane, and has once again found a forum for doing what she does best: lie through her teeth about Ted Gunderson and John DeCamp.

Tim White, a two timing back stabber if there ever was one, has also injected himself into the Hartwell/ Gunderson/DeCamp embroilment from the very beginning. For a time he had ingratiated himself with me until he showed me his true colors in 2006, after which I broke off with him completely. He has since tried to bad mouth me with the same intensity as his fellow CIA agitation troll, Barbara Hartwell

I agree that Alex Jones is too heavy handed and too much on the doom and gloom side. Most of what he reports about the NWO takeover game is true, but he's too invested in sensationalism; not unlike Jeff Rense who also reports many truthful things, but Jeff too grooves on sensationalism (the current Fukushima radiation psyops over reactor "meltdowns' which never took place) and dire story telling, not to mention his flat out endorsement of pharmaceutical shill, Dr. Henry Niman, whose rabid pro-pharma diatribes about "explosive" lab-created "disease" outbreaks all over the world (which is mostly fabricated or grossly exaggerated) is also telling. Niman's performance on Jeff's web site and radio show during all of 2009's Swine/Bird Flu "pandemic" season, made it perfectly clear that he's a pharmaceutical propagandist. In fact, he owns his own pharmaceutical company and lab.

Open Letter to George Noory of Coast Radio on the Slanderous Accusations by Len Horowitz Against Ted Gunderson (June 5, 2011)

Subject: From Ken Adachi in defence of Ted Gunderson
From: Ken Adachi
Date: Mon, June 6, 2011
To: Geroge Noory <george@coasttocoastam.com>

Hello George,

I just heard a recording of your June 2 show with Len Horowitz. Len Horowitz's slanderous statements about Ted Gunderson are more than defamatory, they are outrageous and disgusting.

Hour 1: http://educate-yourself.org/cn/LenHorowitz...partAedited.mp3

Hour 2: http://educate-yourself.org/cn/LenHorowitz...partBedited.mp3

Len's "outstanding investigative reporter", Sharri Kane, an ex-FOX News reporter, is as loose an uninformed canon as you can possibly get since she bases her entire "investigative research" on the utter fabrications and fantasies of one Barbara Hartwell, well known CIA mind controlled slanderer and character assassin of both Ted Gunderson and John DeCamp, (among others).

I exposed Hartwell's lies about Gunderson in a series of rebuttal articles I wrote between 2000 and 2008 to counter the unbelievable torrent of lying swill that flows from the poison pen hand of CIA- sponsored Character Assassin, Barbara Hartwell.

http://educate-yourself.org/tg/index.shtml#barbarahartwell

Almost everything that Horowitz and Kane are accusing Ted Gunderson of being "dirty" about such as satanism, involvement with Michael Aquino, kidnapping of children for pornography, white slavery, snuff films, satanic sacrifice, with CIA/FBI involvement and protection of these abusers, have in most instances, been a description of the individuals and scandals that Ted Gunderson EXPOSED....ALONE in the 1980s and 1990s before you ever heard of Sharri Kane, or Len Horowitz, or Barbara Hartwell.

This putrid slander against Ted Gunderson will not stand and Horowitz, his girlfriend, Sharri Kane, and Hartwell are priming themselves for a libel lawsuit.

Horowitz's slanders against Dr A True Ott are equally mind boggling and outrageous. I cannot believe what I'm hearing from Horowitz. Horowitz has simply lost him mind.

Ted Gunderson is 81 years old and currently suffering from 4th stage liver and bladder cancer. He's being treated at a clinic in Costa Mesa, California. He doesn't have two nickels to rub together and can't even pay for the treatment. To be saddled with this outrageous assault by Horowitz and Kane--now-- is beyond the pale.

Horowitz's reckless disregard for investigating the accuracy and truthfulness of Hartwell's galling lies and his willingness to jump in with both feet to so maliciously slander Ted Gunderson, or True Ott, will come to bear in a court of law, I think, where wild accusations will not hold water against cold, hard facts. Lies and liars will be exposed to the judgment of a jury and a price will be paid for those who possess such a reckless contempt for truthfulness.

Anyone who is aware of the reputation and accomplishments of Ted Gunderson or John DeCamp or Dr. True Ott knows full well that Horowitz is virtually destroying his career and any remaining integrity that the public has invested in his character.

Sincerely, Ken Adachi, Editor

The terms “we”, “us” or “our” shall refer to Go Daddy. The terms “you”, “your”, “User” or “customer” shall refer to any individual or entity who accepts this Agreement. Nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to confer any third-party rights or benefits.

Go Daddy, in its sole and absolute discretion, may change or modify this Agreement, and any policies or agreements which are incorporated herein, at any time, and such changes or modifications shall be effective immediately upon posting to this Site. You acknowledge and agree that (i) Go Daddy may notify you of such changes or modifications by posting them to this Site and (ii) your use of this Site or the Services found at this Site after such changes or modifications have been made (as indicated by the “Last Revised” date at the top of this page) shall constitute your acceptance of this Agreement as last revised. If you do not agree to be bound by this Agreement as last revised, do not use (or continue to use) this Site or the Services found at this Site. In addition, Go Daddy may occasionally notify you of changes or modifications to this Agreement by email. It is therefore very important that you keep your account (“Account”) information, including your email address, current. Go Daddy assumes no liability or responsibility for your failure to receive an email notification if such failure results from an inaccurate or out-of-date email address.

2. ELIGIBILITY; AUTHORITY

This Site and the Services found at this Site are available only to Users who can form legally binding contracts under applicable law. By using this Site or the Services found at this Site, you represent and warrant that you are (i) at least eighteen (18) years of age and/or (ii) otherwise recognized as being able to form legally binding contracts under applicable law.

If you are entering into this Agreement on behalf of a corporate entity, you represent and warrant that you have the legal authority to bind such corporate entity to the terms and conditions contained in this Agreement, in which case the terms "you", "your", "User" or "customer" shall refer to such corporate entity. If, after your electronic acceptance of this Agreement, Go Daddy finds that you do not have the legal authority to bind such corporate entity, you will be personally responsible for the obligations contained in this Agreement, including, but not limited to, the payment obligations. Go Daddy shall not be liable for any loss or damage resulting from Go Daddy’s reliance on any instruction, notice, document or communication reasonably believed by Go Daddy to be genuine and originating from an authorized representative of your corporate entity. If there is reasonable doubt about the authenticity of any such instruction, notice, document or communication, Go Daddy reserves the right (but undertakes no duty) to require additional authentication from you.

3. ACCOUNTS; TRANSFER OF DATA ABROAD

Accounts. In order to access some of the features of this Site or use some of the Services found at this Site, you will have to create an Account. You represent and warrant to Go Daddy that all information you submit when you create your Account is accurate, current and complete, and that you will keep your Account information accurate, current and complete. If Go Daddy has reason to believe that your Account information is untrue, inaccurate, out-of-date or incomplete, Go Daddy reserves the right, in its sole and absolute discretion, to suspend or terminate your Account. You are solely responsible for the activity that occurs on your Account, whether authorized by you or not, and you must keep your Account information secure, including without limitation your customer number/login, password, Payment Method(s) (as defined below), and shopper PIN. For security purposes, Go Daddy recommends that you change your password and shopper PIN at least once every six (6) months for each Account you have with Go Daddy. You must notify Go Daddy immediately of any breach of security or unauthorized use of your Account. Go Daddy will not be liable for any loss you incur due to any unauthorized use of your Account. You, however, may be liable for any loss Go Daddy or others incur caused by your Account, whether caused by you, or by an authorized person, or by an unauthorized person.

Transfer of Data Abroad. If you are visiting this Site from a country other than the country in which our servers are located, your communications with us may result in the transfer of information (including your Account information) across international boundaries. 5. YOUR USE OF Go Daddy CONTENT AND USER CONTENT

In addition to the general rules above, the provisions in this Section 5 apply specifically to your use of Go Daddy Content and User Content posted to Go Daddy's corporate websites (i.e., those sites which Go Daddy directly controls or maintains). The applicable provisions are not intended to and do not have the effect of transferring any ownership or licensed rights (including intellectual property rights) you may have in content posted to your hosted websites.

Go Daddy Content. Except for User Content, the content on this Site and the Services found at this Site, including without limitation the text, software, scripts, source code, API, graphics, photos, sounds, music, videos and interactive features and the trademarks, service marks and logos contained therein ("Go Daddy Content"), are owned by or licensed to Go Daddy in perpetuity, and are subject to copyright, trademark, and/or patent protection in the United States and foreign countries, and other intellectual property rights under United States and foreign laws. Go Daddy Content is provided to you "as is", "as available" and "with all faults" for your information and personal, non-commercial use only and may not be downloaded, copied, reproduced, distributed, transmitted, broadcast, displayed, sold, licensed, or otherwise exploited for any purposes whatsoever without the express prior written consent of Go Daddy. No right or license under any copyright, trademark, patent, or other proprietary right or license is granted by this Agreement. Go Daddy reserves all rights not expressly granted in and to the Go Daddy Content, this Site and the Services found at this Site, and this Agreement do not transfer ownership of any of these rights.

User Content. Some of the features of this Site or the Services found at this Site may allow Users to view, post, publish, share, store, or manage (a) ideas, opinions, recommendations, or advice ("User Submissions"), or (B) literary, artistic, musical, or other content, including but not limited to photos and videos (together with User Submissions, "User Content"). By posting or publishing User Content to this Site or to the Services found at this Site, you represent and warrant to Go Daddy that (i) you have all necessary rights to distribute User Content via this Site or via the Services found at this Site, either because you are the author of the User Content and have the right to distribute the same, or because you have the appropriate distribution rights, licenses, consents, and/or permissions to use, in writing, from the copyright or other owner of the User Content, and (ii) you do not violate the rights of any third party.

Security. You agree not to circumvent, disable or otherwise interfere with the security-related features of this Site or the Services found at this Site (including without limitation those features that prevent or restrict use or copying of any Go Daddy Content or User Content) or enforce limitations on the use of this Site or the Services found at this Site, the Go Daddy Content or the User Content therein.

6. Go Daddy'S USE OF USER CONTENT

The provisions in this Section 6 apply specifically to Go Daddy's use of User Content posted to Go Daddy's corporate websites (i.e., those sites which Go Daddy directly controls or maintains). The applicable provisions are not intended to and do not have the effect of transferring any ownership or licensed rights (including intellectual property rights) you may have in content posted to your hosted websites.

Generally. You shall be solely responsible for any and all of your User Content or User Content that is submitted through your Account, and the consequences of, and requirements for, distributing it.

With Respect to User Submissions. You acknowledge and agree that:
Your User Submissions are entirely voluntary.
Your User Submissions do not establish a confidential relationship or obligate Go Daddy to treat your User Submissions as confidential or secret.
Go Daddy has no obligation, either express or implied, to develop or use your User Submissions, and no compensation is due to you or to anyone else for any intentional or unintentional use of your User Submissions.
Go Daddy may be working on the same or similar content, it may already know of such content from other sources, it may simply wish to develop this (or similar) content on its own, or it may have taken / will take some other action.

Go Daddy shall own exclusive rights (including all intellectual property and other proprietary rights) to any User Submissions posted to this Site, and shall be entitled to the unrestricted use and dissemination of any User Submissions posted to this Site for any purpose, commercial or otherwise, without acknowledgment or compensation to you or to anyone else.

With Respect to User Content (Other Than User Submissions).

If you have a website hosted by Go Daddy or another service provider, you shall retain all of your ownership or licensed rights in User Content posted to your website.

However, if you post or publish your User Content to this Site, you authorize Go Daddy to use the intellectual property and other proprietary rights in and to your User Content to enable inclusion and use of the User Content in the manner contemplated by this Site and this Agreement. Accordingly, you hereby grant Go Daddy a worldwide, non-exclusive, royalty-free, sublicensable (through multiple tiers), and transferable license to use, reproduce, distribute, prepare derivative works of, combine with other works, display, and perform your User Content in connection with this Site and Go Daddy's (and Go Daddy's affiliates') business(es), including without limitation for promoting and redistributing all or part of this Site in any media formats and through any media channels without restrictions of any kind and without payment or other consideration of any kind, or permission or notification, to you or any third party. You also hereby grant each User of this Site a non-exclusive license to access your User Content (with the exception of User Content that you designate "private" or "password protected") through this Site, and to use, reproduce, distribute, prepare derivative works of, combine with other works, display, and perform your User Content as permitted through the functionality of this Site and under this Agreement. The above licenses granted by you in your User Content terminate within a commercially reasonable time after you remove or delete your User Content from this Site. You understand and agree, however, that Go Daddy may retain (but not distribute, display, or perform) server copies of your User Content that have been removed or deleted. The above licenses granted by you in your User Content are perpetual and irrevocable. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained herein, Go Daddy shall not use any User Content that has been designated "private" or "password protected" by you for the purpose of promoting this Site or Go Daddy's (or Go Daddy's affiliates') business(es).

7. MONITORING OF CONTENT; ACCOUNT TERMINATION POLICY

Go Daddy generally does not pre-screen User Content (whether posted to a website hosted by Go Daddy or posted to this Site). However, Go Daddy reserves the right (but undertakes no duty) to do so and decide whether any item of User Content is appropriate and/or complies with this Agreement. Go Daddy may remove any item of User Content (whether posted to a website hosted by Go Daddy or posted to this Site) and/or terminate a User's access to this Site or the Services found at this Site for posting or publishing any material in violation of this Agreement, or for otherwise violating this Agreement (as determined by Go Daddy in its sole and absolute discretion), at any time and without prior notice. Go Daddy may also terminate a User's access to this Site or the Services found at this Site if Go Daddy has reason to believe the User is a repeat offender. If Go Daddy terminates your access to this Site or the Services found at this Site, Go Daddy may, in its sole and absolute discretion, remove and destroy any data and files stored by you on its servers.

8. ADDITIONAL RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

Go Daddy expressly reserves the right to deny, cancel, terminate, suspend, lock, or modify access to (or control of) any Account or Services (including the right to cancel or transfer any domain name registration) for any reason (as determined by Go Daddy in its sole and absolute discretion), including but not limited to the following: (i) to correct mistakes made by Go Daddy in offering or delivering any Services (including any domain name registration), (ii) to protect the integrity and stability of, and correct mistakes made by, any domain name registry, (iii) to assist with our fraud and abuse detection and prevention efforts, (iv) to comply with applicable local, state, national and international laws, rules and regulations, (v) to comply with requests of law enforcement, including subpoena requests, (vi) to comply with any dispute resolution process, (vii) to defend any legal action or threatened legal action without consideration for whether such legal action or threatened legal action is eventually determined to be with or without merit, or (viii) to avoid any civil or criminal liability on the part of Go Daddy, its officers, directors, employees and agents, as well as Go Daddy's affiliates.

Go Daddy expressly reserves the right to review every Account for excessive space and bandwidth utilization, and to terminate or apply additional fees to those Accounts that exceed allowed levels.

9. NO SPAM; LIQUIDATED DAMAGES

You acknowledge you have read, understand and agree to be bound by Go Daddy's Anti-Spam Policy referenced above and available here. You agree Go Daddy may immediately terminate any Account which it believes, in its sole and absolute discretion, is transmitting or is otherwise connected with any spam or other unsolicited bulk email. In addition, if actual damages cannot be reasonably calculated then you agree to pay Go Daddy liquidated damages in the amount of $1.00 for each piece of spam or unsolicited bulk email transmitted from or otherwise connected with your Account.

10. TRADEMARK AND/OR COPYRIGHT CLAIMS

Go Daddy supports the protection of intellectual property. If you would like to submit (i) a trademark claim for violation of a mark on which you hold a valid, registered trademark or service mark, or (ii) a copyright claim for material on which you hold a bona fide copyright, please refer to Go Daddy's Trademark and/or Copyright Infringement Policy referenced above and available here.

11. LINKS TO THIRD-PARTY WEBSITES

This Site and the Services found at this Site may contain links to third-party websites that are not owned or controlled by Go Daddy. Go Daddy assumes no responsibility for the content, terms and conditions, privacy policies, or practices of any third-party websites. In addition, Go Daddy does not censor or edit the content of any third-party websites. By using this Site or the Services found at this Site, you expressly release Go Daddy from any and all liability arising from your use of any third-party website. Accordingly, Go Daddy encourages you to be aware when you leave this Site or the Services found at this Site and to review the terms and conditions, privacy policies, and other governing documents of each other website that you may visit.

12. DISCLAIMER OF REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES

YOU SPECIFICALLY ACKNOWLEDGE AND AGREE THAT YOUR USE OF THIS SITE AND THE SERVICES FOUND AT THIS SITE SHALL BE AT YOUR OWN RISK AND THAT THIS SITE AND THE SERVICES FOUND AT THIS SITE ARE PROVIDED “AS IS”, “AS AVAILABLE” AND “WITH ALL FAULTS”. Go Daddy, ITS OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, EMPLOYEES, AND AGENTS DISCLAIM ALL WARRANTIES, STATUTORY, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, ANY IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF TITLE, MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE AND NON-INFRINGEMENT. Go Daddy, ITS OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, EMPLOYEES, AND AGENTS MAKE NO REPRESENTATIONS OR WARRANTIES ABOUT (I) THE ACCURACY, COMPLETENESS, OR CONTENT OF THIS SITE, (II) THE ACCURACY, COMPLETENESS, OR CONTENT OF ANY SITES LINKED (THROUGH HYPERLINKS, BANNER ADVERTISING OR OTHERWISE) TO THIS SITE, AND/OR (III) THE SERVICES FOUND AT THIS SITE OR ANY SITES LINKED (THROUGH HYPERLINKS, BANNER ADVERTISING OR OTHERWISE) TO THIS SITE, AND Go Daddy ASSUMES NO LIABILITY OR RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE SAME.

IN ADDITION, YOU SPECIFICALLY ACKNOWLEDGE AND AGREE THAT NO ORAL OR WRITTEN INFORMATION OR ADVICE PROVIDED BY Go Daddy, ITS OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, EMPLOYEES, OR AGENTS (INCLUDING WITHOUT LIMITATION ITS CALL CENTER OR CUSTOMER SERVICE REPRESENTATIVES) WILL (I) CONSTITUTE LEGAL OR FINANCIAL ADVICE OR (II) CREATE A WARRANTY OF ANY KIND WITH RESPECT TO THIS SITE OR THE SERVICES FOUND AT THIS SITE, AND USERS SHOULD NOT RELY ON ANY SUCH INFORMATION OR ADVICE.

THE FOREGOING DISCLAIMER OF REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES SHALL APPLY TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY LAW, AND shall survive any termination or expiration of this Agreement or your use of this Site or the Services found at this Site.

13. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY

IN NO EVENT SHALL Go Daddy, ITS OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, EMPLOYEES, OR AGENTS BE LIABLE TO YOU OR ANY OTHER PERSON OR ENTITY FOR ANY DIRECT, INDIRECT, INCIDENTAL, SPECIAL, PUNITIVE, OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES WHATSOEVER, INCLUDING ANY THAT MAY RESULT FROM (I) THE ACCURACY, COMPLETENESS, OR CONTENT OF THIS SITE, (II) THE ACCURACY, COMPLETENESS, OR CONTENT OF ANY SITES LINKED (THROUGH HYPERLINKS, BANNER ADVERTISING OR OTHERWISE) TO THIS SITE, (III) THE SERVICES FOUND AT THIS SITE OR ANY SITES LINKED (THROUGH HYPERLINKS, BANNER ADVERTISING OR OTHERWISE) TO THIS SITE, (IV) PERSONAL INJURY OR PROPERTY DAMAGE OF ANY NATURE WHATSOEVER, (V) THIRD-PARTY CONDUCT OF ANY NATURE WHATSOEVER, (VI) ANY UNAUTHORIZED ACCESS TO OR USE OF OUR SERVERS AND/OR ANY AND ALL CONTENT, PERSONAL INFORMATION, FINANCIAL INFORMATION OR OTHER INFORMATION AND DATA STORED THEREIN, (VII) ANY INTERRUPTION OR CESSATION OF SERVICES TO OR FROM THIS SITE OR ANY SITES LINKED (THROUGH HYPERLINKS, BANNER ADVERTISING OR OTHERWISE) TO THIS SITE, (VIII) ANY VIRUSES, WORMS, BUGS, TROJAN HORSES, OR THE LIKE, WHICH MAY BE TRANSMITTED TO OR FROM THIS SITE OR ANY SITES LINKED (THROUGH HYPERLINKS, BANNER ADVERTISING OR OTHERWISE) TO THIS SITE, (IX) ANY USER CONTENT OR CONTENT THAT IS DEFAMATORY, HARASSING, ABUSIVE, HARMFUL TO MINORS OR ANY PROTECTED CLASS, PORNOGRAPHIC, “X-RATED”, OBSCENE OR OTHERWISE OBJECTIONABLE, AND/OR (X) ANY LOSS OR DAMAGE OF ANY KIND INCURRED AS A RESULT OF YOUR USE OF THIS SITE OR THE SERVICES FOUND AT THIS SITE, WHETHER BASED ON WARRANTY, CONTRACT, TORT, OR ANY OTHER LEGAL OR EQUITABLE THEORY, AND WHETHER OR NOT Go Daddy IS ADVISED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGES.

IN ADDITION, You SPECIFICALLY ACKNOWLEDGE AND agree that any cause of action arising out of or related to this Site or the Services found at this Site must be commenced within one (1) year after the cause of action accrues, otherwise such cause of action shall be permanently barred.

IN ADDITION, You SPECIFICALLY ACKNOWLEDGE AND agree that in no event shall Go Daddy's total aggregate liability exceed the total amount paid by you for the particular ServiceS that ARE the subject of the cause of action.

THE FOREGOING LIMITATION OF LIABILITY SHALL APPLY TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY LAW, AND shall survive any termination or expiration of this Agreement or your use of this Site or the Services found at this Site.

14. INDEMNITY

You agree to protect, defend, indemnify and hold harmless Go Daddy and its officers, directors, employees, and agents, from and against any and all claims, demands, costs, expenses, losses, liabilities and damages of every kind and nature (including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees) imposed upon or incurred by Go Daddy directly or indirectly arising from (i) your use of and access to this Site or the Services found at this Site; (ii) your violation of any provision of this Agreement or the policies or agreements which are incorporated herein; and/or (iii) your violation of any third-party right, including without limitation any intellectual property or other proprietary right. The indemnification obligations under this section shall survive any termination or expiration of this Agreement or your use of this Site or the Services found at this Site.

15. FEES AND PAYMENTS

(A) GENERAL TERMS, INCLUDING AUTOMATIC RENEWAL TERMS

You agree to pay any and all prices and fees due for Services purchased at this Site at the time you order the Services. All prices and fees are non-refundable unless otherwise expressly noted, even if your Services are suspended, terminated, or transferred prior to the end of the Services term. Go Daddy expressly reserves the right to change or modify its prices and fees at any time, and such changes or modifications shall be posted online at this Site and effective immediately without need for further notice to you. If you have purchased Services for a period of months or years, changes or modifications in prices and fees shall be effective when the Services in question come up for renewal as further described below.

Where refunds are issued, Go Daddy's issuance of a refund receipt is confirmation that Go Daddy has submitted your refund to the Payment Method charged at the time of the original sale. You acknowledge and agree that the associated payment provider and/or individual issuing bank establish and regulate the time frames for posting your refund. Refund posting time frames may range from five (5) business days to a full billing cycle.

Except as prohibited in any product-specific agreement, you may pay for Services by providing a valid credit card, an electronic check (from your personal or business checking account, as appropriate), PayPal (as defined below), Alipay (as defined below), or by using Go Daddy's "Good As Gold Prepaid Services" to establish a cash reserve for charge by Go Daddy (each, a "Payment Method"). For Services that offer "Express Checkout", clicking the Express Checkout button will automatically place an order for that Service and charge the primary Payment Method on file for your Account. Confirmation of that order will be sent to the email address on file for your Account. Your Payment Method on file must be kept valid if you have any active Services in your Account.

If you are being billed on a monthly basis, your monthly billing date will be based on the date of the month you purchased the Services unless that date falls after the 28th of the month, in which case your billing date will be the 28th of each month.

In order to ensure that you do not experience an interruption or loss of Services, most Services offer an automatic renewal option. The automatic renewal option automatically renews the applicable Service for a renewal period equal in time to the original service period. For example, if your original service period is for one year, your renewal period will be for one year. While the details of the automatic renewal option vary from Service to Service, the Services that offer an automatic renewal option treat it as the default setting. Therefore, unless you disable the automatic renewal option, Go Daddy will automatically renew the applicable Service when it comes up for renewal and will take payment from the Payment Method you have on file with Go Daddy at Go Daddy's then current rates, which you acknowledge and agree may be higher or lower than the rates for the original service period. In order to see the renewal settings applicable to you and your Services, simply log into your Account manager ("Account Manager") from this Site and follow the steps found here. You may enable or disable the automatic renewal option at any time. However, should you elect to disable the automatic renewal option and fail to manually renew your Services before they expire, you may experience an interruption or loss of Services, and Go Daddy shall not be liable to you or any third party regarding the same.

In addition, Go Daddy may participate in "recurring billing programs" or "account updater services" supported by your credit card provider (and ultimately dependent on your bank's participation). If you are enrolled in an automatic renewal option and we are unable to successfully charge your existing Payment Method, your credit card provider (or your bank) may notify us of updates to your credit card number and/or expiration date, or they may automatically charge your new credit card on our behalf without notification to us. In accordance with recurring billing program requirements, in the event that we are notified of an update to your credit card number and/or expiration date, Go Daddy will automatically update your payment profile on your behalf. Go Daddy makes no guarantees that we will request or receive updated credit card information. You acknowledge and agree that it is your sole responsibility to modify and maintain your Account settings, including but not limited to (i) setting your renewal options and (ii) ensuring your associated Payment Method(s) are current and valid. Further, you acknowledge and agree that your failure to do so, may result in the interruption or loss of Services, and Go Daddy shall not be liable to you or any third party regarding the same.

If for any reason Go Daddy is unable to charge your Payment Method for the full amount owed for the Services provided, or if Go Daddy is charged a penalty for any fee it previously charged to your Payment Method, you agree that Go Daddy may pursue all available lawful remedies in order to obtain payment. If you pay by credit card and if for any reason Go Daddy is unable to charge your credit card with the full amount owed for the Services provided, or if Go Daddy is charged back for any fee it previously charged to the credit card you provided, you agree that Go Daddy may pursue all available lawful remedies in order to obtain payment. You agree that the remedies Go Daddy may pursue in order to effect payment shall include, but not be limited to, immediate cancellation without notice to you of any domain names or Services registered or renewed on your behalf. Go Daddy reserves the right to charge you reasonable "administrative fees" or "processing fees" for (i) tasks Go Daddy may perform outside the normal scope of its Services, (ii) additional time and/or costs Go Daddy may incur in providing its Services, and/or (iii) your noncompliance with this Agreement (as determined by Go Daddy in its sole and absolute discretion). Typical scenarios include, but are not limited to, customer service issues that require additional personal time or attention, fees incurred by third-party payment providers such as PayPal, Alipay, and Certegy (as defined below), fees incurred as the result of chargebacks or other payment disputes brought by you, your bank, or a Payment Method processor, and disputes that require accounting or legal services. These administrative fees or processing fees will be billed to the Payment Method you have on file with Go Daddy.

Go Daddy may offer product-level pricing in various currencies; however, transaction processing is supported only in U.S. dollars and a select number of the currency options displayed on this Site ("Supported Currency" or “Supported Currencies”). If the currency selected is a Supported Currency, then the transaction will be processed in the Supported Currency and the pricing displayed during the checkout process will be the actual amount processed and submitted to your bank for payment. If the currency selected is not a Supported Currency, then the transaction will be processed in U.S. dollars and the pricing displayed during the checkout process will be an estimated conversion price at the time of purchase. In either case (whether the currency selected is a Supported Currency or not), if the transaction is processed in a currency that differs from the currency of your bank account, you may be charged exchange rate conversion fees by your bank. In addition, due to time differences between (i) the time you complete the checkout process, (ii) the time the transaction is processed, and (iii) the time the transaction posts to your bank statement, the conversion rates may fluctuate, and Go Daddy makes no representations or warranties that (a) the amount submitted to your bank for payment will be the same as the amount posted to your bank statement (in the case of a Supported Currency) or (B) the estimated conversion price will be the same as either the amount processed or the amount posted to your bank statement (in the case of a non-Supported Currency), and you agree to waive any and all claims based upon such discrepancies (including any and all claims for a refund based on the foregoing). In addition, regardless of the selected currency, you acknowledge and agree that you may be charged Value Added Tax ("VAT"), Goods and Services Tax ("GST"), or other localized fees and/or taxes, based on your bank and/or the country indicated in your billing address section.

(B) GOOD AS GOLD PREPAID SERVICES

Service Details

By using Good As Gold Prepaid Services, you may transfer funds to Go Daddy in order to fund your Good As Gold Prepaid Services account (“Good As Gold Account”). You may then use your Good As Gold Account to purchase any of Go Daddy’s Services. You may fund your Good As Gold Account by providing (i) a paper check (from your personal or business checking account, as appropriate), (ii) a money order, or (iii) a wire transfer. All payments must be for the full amount required at purchase. All paper checks and money orders may be delayed up to ten (10) business days until the money is credited, which may delay your use of the Services, and any paper check or money order that does not clear will result in a $25.00 processing fee by Go Daddy, which may be debited from your Good As Gold Account. The $25.00 processing fee is in addition to any fee(s) your bank may charge you.

You can verify the remaining funds in your Good As Gold Account at any time by logging into “Manage Your Account” or through the shopping cart on the Go Daddy website. Should you decide to terminate your Good As Gold Account and seek a refund, your refund will be made by check net of any discounts, including, but not limited to, reduced or waived wire transfer fees and/or the Cash Discount (as defined below).

You acknowledge that funds transferred to your Good As Gold Account will be held by Go Daddy and will not accrue or pay interest for your benefit. To the extent any interest may accrue, you understand and agree that Go Daddy shall be entitled to receive and keep any such amounts to cover costs associated with Good As Gold Prepaid Services.

You acknowledge that all transactions using Good As Gold Prepaid Services will be conducted in U.S. dollars and that it is your responsibility to arrange for foreign currency translations prior to funding your Good As Gold Account. Wire transfers received by Go Daddy in foreign currencies will be returned and you will be responsible for the cost of returning such funds. Your Good As Gold Account must be funded on an initial basis with no less than $100.00 paid in U.S. funds. You agree that you will be responsible for all wire transfer fees, both incoming and outgoing, associated with your Good As Gold Account. Any non-U.S. wire transfers may be subject to fees by your bank, intermediary banks, or Go Daddy’s bank, which may reduce the amount of the money received by Go Daddy’s bank and subsequently funded into your Good As Gold Account. Customers funding a Good As Gold Account with a wire of $1,000.00 or more shall not be subject to a $20.00 wire transfer processing fee from Go Daddy. You hereby expressly give Go Daddy permission to reduce your Good As Gold Account by the amount of wire transfer fees Go Daddy incurs in order to receive your funds. All fees are subject to change at any time, and such changes shall be posted online at this Site and effective immediately without need for further notice to you.

Good As Gold Accounts will receive a two percent (2%) discount on purchases (the “Cash Discount”). The Cash Discount will be reflected in your Good As Gold Account balance. Thus, purchases will reduce your Good As Gold Account balance by ninety-eight percent (98%) of the total purchase price of each transaction. For example, if your Good As Gold Account is funded with an initial amount of $100.00 and you make a $10.00 purchase, your Good As Gold Account will be reduced by only $9.80. Go Daddy reserves the right to discontinue or change the Cash Discount at any time, without notice.

Your Use of Good As Gold Prepaid Services

Use of funds in your Good As Gold Account can only be made through the Go Daddy purchase process at Go Daddy’s website. Purchases may not be made unless there are sufficient, available funds in your Good As Gold Account at the time of purchase to cover the entire purchase amount, including any related fees as set forth herein or in other relevant agreements.

Additional funds may be added to your Good As Gold Account at any time. The minimum increment for funds transfers is $100.00.

You will be able to access your Good As Gold Account activity and records from the “Manage Your Account” link on Go Daddy’s website. Your Good As Gold Account will show purchases and the amount of funds remaining in your Good As Gold Account. Go Daddy reserves the right at all times to disclose any information about your Good As Gold Account as Go Daddy deems necessary to satisfy any applicable law, regulation, legal process or governmental request, or to edit, refuse to post or to remove any information or materials, in whole or in part from your Good As Gold Account, in the sole and absolute discretion of Go Daddy.

In connection therewith, you agree to allow Certegy Check Services, Inc. (“Certegy”) to debit the full amount of your purchase from your checking account (“Checking Account”), which is non-refundable. Certegy will create an electronic funds transfer (“EFT”) or bank draft which will be presented to your bank or financial institution for payment from your Checking Account. The Checking Account must be at a financial institution in the United States, and the check must be payable in U.S. dollars.

It is your responsibility to keep your Checking Account current and funded. You acknowledge and agree that (i) Certegy reserves the right to decline a transaction for any reason (including, but not limited to, payments that fail to go through as a result of your Checking Account no longer existing or not holding available/sufficient funds) and (ii) in such event, neither Certegy nor Go Daddy shall be liable to you or any third party regarding the same. If for any reason Certegy is unable to withdraw the full amount owed for the Services provided, you agree that Certegy and Go Daddy may pursue all available lawful remedies in order to obtain payment (plus applicable fees). Go Daddy is not responsible for the actions of Certegy. You agree that if the EFT or bank draft is returned unpaid, you will pay a service charge in accordance with the fees provided below, or as otherwise permitted by law. It seems that the Handler, Barbara Hartwell of the Central Intelligence Agency has her puppet, Leonard Horowitz creating phony domain names so he can then spread MI6 Sherri Kane's libel venomous spew based on Hartwell's work for the CIA in trying to attack people giving out real knowledge. A lot of this backing behind Len Horowitz will be tied to the murdering black operative Otis Johnson a Ret USAF Lieutenant General who kills enemies of the State for a living like the Jackal he is.

KNIGHT OF MALTA, LEONARD HOROWITZ AND HIS JESUITICAL ARGUMENT SPEECH

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=t7uLc3_FY7A

[dohtml]<iframe width="480" height="390" src="http://www.youtube.com/embed/t7uLc3_FY7A" frameborder="0" allowfullscreen></iframe>[/dohtml]

Speech taken from the ConCon event.

Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz shows his true alliance is with the Vatican, the very real enemy of mankind. The biggest enemy of America destroying our lands whilst we speak under many veils and guises including their open policy whilst having a secret policy which the open policy shields nicely such as Horowitz's comments on the Vatican's vaccine open policy. Remember folks who created vaccines, it was Jesuit solder, Francis Xavier SJ and who was the first big pusher of vaccines? It was Jesuit soldier, Edward Jenner SJ. Are you shocked?

Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz is a very devious being who knows exactly what he's doing. Who controls the medical industry? Its The Worshipful Company of Apothecaries closely knit with The Worshipful Company of Barbers, both controlled by the Crown which has been controlled since the 14th Century by the KNIGHTS OF MALTA. Note how Leonard Horowitz is anti-Christian whilst he also trys to divert attention onto a Jew World Order rather than explaining how these people he's referring to are really Sabbatean Frankists who're Hofjuden to the Pope of Rome such as Jesuit trained Shimon Peres who handed the Vatican the city of Jerusalem in 1993 through the Oslo Accord which was secretly created by then Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger who used Shimon Peres and Edgar Bronfman to help bring this plan forth. For this victory of bringing the Latin Kingdom home the Vatican made Cardinal Ratzinger the Pope of Rome in 2005 under the title Pope Benedict XVI.

Michael Tsarion does a great job in highlighting whats going on with this Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz. Please remember who's your real enemy and that is Rome. True Christianity is the biggest enemy of Rome and always has been this is why the Roman Empire had to try to usurp it and try give the illusion that it was Christianity when it is proven its anti-Bible and anti-Christos.

Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz also is tied in with a Central Intelligence Agency handler by the name of Barbara Politis Hartwell who is pulling the strings of Sherri Kane and Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz. I'm sure if you look deep enough you'll also find the connection to Mossad along with the Anti-Defamation League and finally the Southern Poverty Law Center. This is why Knight of Malta Leonard Horowitz is attacking many people right now and making up illusionary lies. Its also a plan by his new handlers to destroy his work but he's lacking the intelligence to see this either through his own ego or via some kind of mind-re-framing upon himself by this crowd.

Please remember that J.P Morgan Chase & Co, Citibank and Goldman Sachs are all controlled by the Universal Postal Union in Berne, Switzerland one corner away from their master, the Papal Nuncio. This is all tied in with The Worshipful Company of International Bankers all controlled by the Crown which has been controlled since the 14th Century by the KNIGHTS OF MALTA.

By the way Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz attacks the greatest exposer of the Jesuits & Vatican called Eric Jon Phelps. One of his lame duck arguments is that Eric is part of some cult which uses the term 'brother' when addressing someone. First of all the brother is simply because Eric Jon Phelps is a true-Christian and nothing more. May I suggest Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz is trying to put Christianity down as a cult as Luciferians regularly do. May I also point out how Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz uses the term 'brother' more than once at this conference.

Whilst we expose this Knight of Malta tied in with Central Intelligence Agency handlers such as Barbara Hartwell along with other hardcore facts. Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz continues to spew hateful deceitful libel vomit. To understand the mindset of deceit this character has you should note how he's buying up domain names of those he's out to attack and libel with illusionary lies. So when someone looks for that being on the Internet they come across all these underhanded venomous lies from Knight of Malta, Leonard Horowitz. Please note how he has over 400 domain names registered mostly with Godaddy.

How anyone can still believe a word this man has said is beyond me, even if you've always followed him. Do you think he's pathetic of low intelligence or a smart being? Do you really think he's be this pathetic unless he was up to something and having an agenda? He knows exactly what he's doing unless as I said he's mind re-framed by his handlers. Do your homework people on the real conspiracy going on that most will not tell you or try to attack and cover up. May I remind you that without true-Christianity there would never have been a Leonard Horowitz in the beginning and most likely you'd never have owned a hifi, TV, VCR or computer to listen to his work. Its all thanks to the Protestant Reformation you have all these inventions and freedoms which covertly Rome is now openly taking away from you by the day. So think again people when you're taught by people like these to hate Christianity and the King James AV1611 Bible.

Lenny boy certainly has upped the stakes with this one. He went on GoDaddy and got himself the domain trueott.com and has created a site of nothing but complete falsehoods, aimed at discrediting research of Dr A. True Ott PhD and slandering him professionally. I can only imagine that Dr Ott's legal team is busy getting court orders to have the site removed and retaliatory actions being prepared in the form of lawsuits for damages. The accusations that Dr Ott has made death threats to anyone is just humorous. Lenny boy, you really should consider stopping smoking crystal meth. Just look at what it's done for Charlie Sheen.

TheUnhivedMind - June 11, 2011 05:31 PM (GMT)

I've been made aware that the attack on myself and others by KNIGHT OF MALTA, Leonard Horowitz has nothing to do with British SiS directly. The attack is coming from the Anti-Defamation League along with the Southern Poverty Law Center with Mossad controlled by the Central Intelligence Agency. Please remember the CIA are the proxy army of the KNIGHTS OF MALTA headed in Rome and St John's Wood, England controlling the Crown.

Very proud of Michael Tsarion for standing up and delivering the barrage of musket fire towards Horowitz!

Thanks for removing ALL DOUBT with your latest blog dribble and half-truth smears against Don Nicoloff and others. “Bonnie and Clyde” indeed. Who do you think you’re fooling??

FYI I was very close friends with Don Harkin – I was there with Ingri at his burial to offer my love and support — funny – I don’t remember seeing you nor “Clyde” anywhere around! How DARE YOU accuse Nicoloff of complicity in his death??? How dare you attempt to smear me for what OTHERS have written?

Thanks also for finally admitting the truth about Lenny “the Shill” Horowitz and his Knights of Malta affiliation. Truth is truth.

Also known as KNIGHTS OF MALTA

The most important of all the military orders, both for the extent of its area and for its duration. It is said to have existed before the Crusades and is not extinct at the present time. During this long career it has not always borne the same name. Known as Hospitallers of Jerusalem until 1309, the members were called Knights of Rhodes from 1309 till 1522, and have been called Knights of Malta since 1530.

The origins of the order have given rise to learned discussions, to fictitious legends and hazardous conjectures. The unquestionable founder was one Gerald or Gerard, whose birthplace and family name it has been vainly sought to ascertain. On the other hand, his title as founder is attested by a contemporary official document, the Bull of Paschal II, dated 1113, addressed to "Geraudo institutori ac praeposito Hirosolimitani Xenodochii". This was certainly not the first establishment of the kind at Jerusalem. even before the crusades, hostelries were indispensable to shelter the pilgrims who flocked to the Holy Places, and in the beginning the hospitia or xenodochia were nothing more. They belonged to different nations; a Frankish hospice is spoken of in the time of Charlemagne; the Hungarian hospice is said to date from King St. Stephen (year 1000). But the most famous was an Italian hospice about the year 1050 by the merchants of Amalfi, who at that time had commercial relations with the Holy Land. Attempts have been made to trace the origin of the Hospitallers of St. John to this foundation, but it is obvious to remark that the Hospitallers had St. John the Baptist for their patron, while the Italian hospice was dedicated to St. John of Alexandria. Moreover, the former adopted the Rule of St.

In summation,

August 2010 Emails Between True Ott, Sherri Kane, & Len Horowitz That Got the War Started

[Editor's Note: Leonard Horowitz and Sherri Kane have been engaged in a continuing and viscous smear campaign against A. True Ott since at least August of 2010. Highly inflammatory and accusatory statements were apparently being made by Lenny and Sherri against True Ott, Don Nicoloff, Ted Gunderson (and others) via Horowitz newsletter, radio shows, and Sherri's blogs from 2010 forward. The wild accusations being leveled by Sherri (an unguided missile if there ever was one) and Lenny (a libido driven sap who's bent on publicizing his megalomania and destroying his career at the same time) against True Ott and Don Nicoloff alone, are stunning and incredible to read.

You would think that someone like Len Horowitz, who took so many years to build up his reputation as a "good guy," would be more cautious and sober in his public statements and rein in his top-heavy girlfriend to commentary that was at least somewhat believable, even in theory. The two of them are shouting to the whole world that Don Nicoloff MURDERED Christopher Story (also called Edward Harle), a British financial advisor and writer who ran a web site called worldreports.org and Don Harkins, the late editor and owner of

The Idaho Observer (along with his wife Ingri Csssel).

Don Harkins died of cancer. (Read his obituary with comments from his wife, Ingri, and others)

Christopher Story died of cancer. ([url=http://announcements.telegraph.co.uk/deaths/119694/story]Read his obituary notice submitted by his wife Elizabeth Janet Story to the UK Telegraph[/url)

You will notice that all news items for both men will report their deaths as due to "illness" and that they both died at home. Neither of them were murdered by Don Nicoloff who lives in Ohio and has never physically met either Don Harkins or Christopher Story while they were alive, although he talked to both of them on the phone on many occasions. It was Don Nicoloff who told Ingri Cassel that he was told by General Jeremiah that a weaponized satellite had been beaming high intensity, ionizing radiation at Don Harkins (who lived in a remote, rural location) for many months prior to his death and that it was this high intensity radiation that played the biggest role in the rapid advancement of Don Harkins cancer which led to his death.

Leonard Horowitz and Sherri Kane now take this information--originally provided by Don Nicoloff --to claim that Don Nicoloff was responsible for the radiation being beamed at Don Harkins and therefore Don Nicoloff had murdered Don Harkins.

They are also accusing A. True Ott of being responsible for Story and Harkins' murders as well!

Who, other than addle-brained nitwits, could believe such accusations? Yet, this is what Horowitz and Kane are claiming repeatedly over the radio, over the internet , and at conferences and Expos. Why would a seemingly intelligent, credible, and well known author and lecturer like Len Horowitz engage is such incredulous behavior? It's crazy, and yet the two of them are boring ahead full speed, trying to gain as much publicity and exposure as possible with these fantastic allegations from every web site and radio show that will give them the opportunity.

You will notice in the following e-mail exchanges that both Sherri Kane and Len Horowitz accuse True Ott of the very smear tactics that they themselves have employed and had initiated against True Ott, Don Nicoloff, Ted Gunderson, etc.

What I haven't emphasized yet is that Tim White has played a pivotal role in provoking both Sherri Kane and Len Horowitz into frenzied and emotion-charged attacks against True Ott, Don Nicoloff, Ted Gunderson, John DeCamp, etc. Tim will e-mail Sherri or Lenny with the most foul mouthed, verbal assaults imaginable and claim to be "working" with Ted Gunderson or John DeCamp and in so doing, make it appear that Ted Gunderson or John DeCamp are aware of and/or approve of what Tim is doing or saying, and of course, nothing is further from the truth. Tim White has been calling Ted Gunderson on the phone for the past 11 or 12 years, pretending that he's some sort of big deal Insider and Confidant who is privy to the most amazing information about everything and everybody, but the reality is that Tim is a Loser of the First Magnitude, an individual devoid of any character, integrity, or honor, who simply revels in foul mouthed bickering and Peyton Place soap opera-like drama. He and his CIA counterpart, Barbara Hartwell, work as a sort of "opposing" tag team to stimulate arguments and dissension among people like Len Horowitz and True Ott in order to keep them occupied with name calling and personal feuding. It's CIA/NSA/DIA/DHS/FBI/military counter-intelligence 101. ...Ken Adachi Copyright 2011 Educate-Yourself.org All Rights Reserved.]

August 2010 Emails Between True Ott, Sherri Kane, & Len Horowitz That Got the War Started (June 12, 2011)

A HoroKane – AKA The Perfect Storm

http://atrueott.wordpress.com/2011/06/11/a...-perfect-storm/

For the record, I am posting PUBLICLY the entire e-mail exchange between myself, A. True Ott, Sherri Kane, and Leonard Horowitz during August, 2010.

Despite numerous slanderous attacks and libelous posts targeting myself and others on Ms. Kane's website and radio talk shows since this initial e-mail exchange took place, I decided to take the "high road" and ignore them. I reasoned I had many other more important issues to concentrate on.

Yesterday I learned that Leonard Horowitz himself has now posted his own vicious and baseless personal attack against me. He has even registered a URL – www.trueott.com for the address of his infamous attack. This is quite shrewd [and indicative of the disgraceful LOWS to which Len Horowitz will descend ... Ken], actually.

Anybody searching for me and my website will be directed to his attack page. Strangely, beginning Monday, I have had all kinds of problems accessing and editing my own blog — and have found numerous respondents posts re-routed and re-directed from my personal e-mail account. Oddly, this has never been a problem before. I would be willing to bet these missing posts have likely ended up in Horowitz' trash can – or perhaps in some NSA "domestic terrorist" data base. This can only be described as mean-spirited and full of pre-meditated malice aforethought. I am not an attorney, but I would think this is also very actionable. I simply ask: why would any humble, peace-loving TRUE CHRISTIAN as "Sir Leonard of the Hospital" claims to be, do such an underhanded thing?

In his attack, found at www.trueott.com he charges me with "anti-semitic" attacks against himself and Ms. Kane. For this reason, in my own defense and for reasons of pure transparency, I am publicly releasing personal e-mail exchanges made last year – in August. I will let my peers decide if True Ott is really an "anti-Semitic Jew-Hater" or not. (It's not only Ivy League, FreeMason-accredited colleges that can have papers "Peer-Reviewed"!)

The first posting – where I angrily weighed in on Kane's charges leveled against Don Nicoloff where she publicly declared via HEARSAY ALONE, that Nicoloff murdered Chris Story and Don Harkins. I admit I was shocked and angry with this, because you see it was Don Harkins who introduced me to his "good friend" Nicoloff to begin with!! I knew Harkin well enough that I trusted his personal opinion and recommendations highly. He thought the world of Don Nicoloff. There is no way that Nicoloff, living in Ohio, had ANYTHING WHATSOEVER TO DO WITH HARKINS' UNTIMELY DEATH.

On Wed, Aug 11, 2010 at 6:37 AM, True OTT wrote:

Sherri Kane, aka Cherie Caine:

You have lost all credibility — and you WILL be exposed for who you and Horowitz really are. (I checked, FOX News has no record of a "Sherrie Kane" ever working for them.)

Thanks for removing ALL DOUBT with your latest blog dribble and half-truth smears against Don Nicoloff and others. "Bonnie and Clyde" indeed. Who do you think you're fooling??

FYI I was very close friends with Don Harkin – I was there with Ingri at his burial to offer my love and support — funny – I don't remember seeing you nor "Clyde" anywhere around! How DARE YOU accuse Nicoloff of complicity in his death! How dare you attempt to smear me for what OTHERS have written!

Thanks also for finally admitting the truth about Lenny "the Shill" Horowitz and his Knights of Malta affiliation. Truth is truth.

"One of the concordant orders of Freemasonry was called "The Knights of the Order of the Hospital," and they were called "Knights Hospitalers." They were the Masonic Order that founded, organizes, directs, and finances Hospitals and health care, throughout the world."— Jordan Maxwell; Matrix of Power

The Knights of Malta is a world organization with its threads weaving through business, banking, politics, the CIA, other intelligence organizations, P2, religion, education, law, military, think tanks, foundations, the United States Information Agency, the United Nations, and numerous other organizations. They are not the oldest but are one of the oldest branches of the Order of the Quest in existence. The world head of the Knights of Malta is elected for a life term, with the approval of the Pope. The Knights of Malta have their own Constitution and are sworn to work toward the establishment of a New World Order with the Pope at its head. Knights of Malta members are also powerful members of the CFR and the Trilateral Commission. — Bill Cooper; Behold A Pale Horse

At the recent "Conspiracy Conference" – Horowitz was asked to comment on his "Knighthood" – and as usual, his narcissistic ego took front stage as he attacked the honest questioner instead of answering this most salient question. I was eager and willing to give Lenny the benefit of any doubt — hoping that he accepted his knighthood out of ignorance and swelled ego — but after this, I am convinced he is sleeping with the enemy. (Literally). Why would the Knights Hospitalier hierarchy ever wish to extend an invitation of "knighthood" to a valiant and vocal opponent in the first place, Ms. Kane — and why would such an honest "opponent" ever accept their overtures??? The answer to this is clearly self-evident! Lenny is very likely another "Hal Turner".

Sherri: Why should anyone believe the writings and speech of a very vocal and shrill PETA activist who concurrently holds an exclusive membership in a preeminent world hunting club whilst promoting anti-hunting animal rights and raising donations from the ignorant masses? Clearly Lenny, and thus you by association, has a serious conflict of interest problem. As Lincoln said so well: "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

In your "blog" – you attack Fulford et.al. for the "false Knights of Malta List" with Horowitz's name attached – while you admit yourself in the same blog that Lenny is a Knight Hospitaler! How stupid do you think we, 'The Goy' are, or are you so mind-warped that you simply can't grasp reality when it is sitting on your Khazarian face?

True Ott

***

In retrospect, I now admit I was incensed over this smear campaign, and probably wouldn't have used the words "goy" and "Khazarian Face" in any other circumstance, because this is likely what touched off the "HoroKane Storm". In response to my post, Kane began the threats as she wrote:

On Aug 11, 2010, at 8:48 AM, Sherri Kane wrote:

Thank you for your email. It's so timely, considering just last night, I received a threatening phone call from your barking dog, Tim White. The light of truth has made you scurry from beneath the covert operation, that you administer, to reveal the cockroach you are! Thank you for exposing yourself, Ott!

You are done and shall be investigated in a murder and libel conspiracy for the assassinations of Edward Harle and Don Harkins and for libeling Dr. Horowitz, and now me, with your obvious Jew hating words.

Because your big lie is that I made the claim that Don Nicoloff was involved in the murder of Don Harkins– It was Edward Harle aka Christopher Story that urged Ingri to investigate Don Nicoloff, and the statement I published is a quote from Ingri, if you read it, you idiot! All we have done, is put the truth out on the table, and all the guilty parties, yourself included, are signing your own warrants for arrest. By the way, did your parents name you “True” “Ott”? If so, that might explain, your lameness, if not, you must have named yourself “True” to promote your lies.

Regarding the libelous “pillow-talk” threats made from both you now and your barking dog, Tim White last night, it is completely transparent, showing everyone, you detract from factual disclosure to apply the standard agent provocateur strategy of character assassinating the messenger, rather than refuting honest evidence-based reporting.

Respond to this question, who in Rockefeller’s organization, pays you?

P.S. You are hereby noticed that your emails are being posted, in an ongoing log of criminal conspiracy, as evidence, to be presented to “We the People,” and investigating officials. Present your evidence of me, changing my birth name, you liar! Your investigation of me defecting from Fox is as pee-brain as you have made yourself look. More of your distraction and delusion. You have nothing to say but libel, and every intelligent person sees it. That’s your game..the counter-intelligence game..libel..smear…degrade… creating dissonance and division. The old Illuminati game. We see you “False Ott”

***

Then, Horowitz jumps in to the fray — and I answer him directly back in RED INK [here in brackets and italics. I also deleted double and triple question marks or exclamation marks...Ken]. The reader will see that I purposefully kicked sand in the Good Doctor’s face. As in the the movie “Marathon Man” – where the deranged dentist keep asking Dustin Hoffman: “Is it Safe?” No, it isn’t safe to enrage the beast, especially when it’s hiding as one of the sheep.

From Len Horowitz, August 11, 2010

Ott,

I am in receipt of your mail, and Kane’s reply. You have totally exposed yourself.

[That’s good — for unlike you, I am totally, 100% transparent! No mistresses meeting up in hotel rooms, no unseen hidden hands influencing my decisions and my rhetoric.]

Jordan Maxwell and I have always been on the same page. Last year I arranged to give Jordan a humanitarian award for his loving labors and truth-telling.

[Wow — I didn’t have any idea you were in charge of “arranging humanitarian awards” thanks for sharing that!]

Your abuse of Maxwell’s disclosures to libel and defame me is the “icing on the cake” of your criminal complicity and provocative agency in conspiracy with Szymanski and White.

[Since when is using Maxwell's quote on the Knights Hospitaler secret society "libeling and defaming" you – unless you are indeed guilty as charged?? Methinks thou protesteth WAY TOO MUCH, Brer Horrorwitch.]

(I am cc'ing Jordan on this for his comment on my position that the current state of the Hospitaller organization is in practical stagnation, primarily due to the dissonance that people within the North American organization that operate like you generate. True humanitarians have little chance to advance loving labors through this, or any organization, because of the agent provocateur infiltrations by people of your ilk.)

[So, are you saying that Mr. Jordan was DEAD WRONG in his characterizations of the Knights Hospitaller and that they are nothing but a charitable bunch of do-gooders and humanitarians??? Oh yes, I see — the Freemasons don't worship the "God of the East" – (Lucifer, the "light-bearer" according to Albert Pike) either, do they Lenny?]

As far as Nicoloff, he has a lot of explaining to do, THANKS TO YOU! You engaged him in this matter; Kane didn't, and I didn't.

[Oh yes, I see! This is ample reason for you to accuse him PUBLICLY of murdering Don Harkin and Chris Story!]

The truth is now out-pouring.

[Yes indeed, thanks to me!]

Don Nicoloff owes me more than an apology, and he knows it. I have never been anything but kind and professional with Don, until YOU engaged him in your personal dialogue Sherri Kane. Now YOU, via your agency of provocation intending division and dissonance among us, have brought Nicoloff, White, Eric Jon Phelps, besides Szymanski, into the spotlight whereby the world shall watch you scurry, as Kane wrote, like a cockroach running from the light, spreading dirt in your wake.

[HUH? Look closer at Ms. Mossad Kane's "e-mail chains" and perhaps you will see that it was Mr. White who forwarded the communications to Phelps et. al. Again, more false character assassination on YOUR part.]

How stupid of you to expose yourself in your e-mails to Kane, as a Jew-hating man.

[Didn't know that Khazars are truly blood-line, racial Jews! Nope, as a true Christian, I agree with Christ's teachings to John found in Revelations 2:9 and 3:9 — i.e. the Khazar Race is the "Synagogue of Satan" and are merely MASQUERADING as racial Jews to control the world. Like Christ said, I too, "Know their abominations" – their rituals and their crimes against innocent children. Are you saying this is YOU, Lenny?]

What percentage of your hate for Jews, in general, tainted your relationship with me?

[That all depends on your covert actions and ties to the secret societies, Lenny!! You are the one who attacked me, not vice verse. I trust nobody, especially you and Kane!]

How self-loathing and stupid of you to hate Jews

[your words, not mine — I only dislike and abhor liars and deceivers as the snakes they are!]

and claim to be Christian; especially when our Messiah was a Jew who came to enlighten the Jews.

[Wrong again, bubba — Christ was an auburn-haired, blue-eyed Galilean – not a racial Sephardic Jew – and MOST DEFINITELY NOT a member of the Synagogue of Satan- the Khazars. The Galileans attended the synagogues – but were of a different race altogether.]

You and your gang, White, Szymanski et al., are slurring Jews like the Jewish hypocrites did to Jesus.

[How convenient for you to use the ADL's proven method of crying anti-Semitism whenever TRUTH is exposed. PLEASE — try again! Or are you, in your ultimate narcissism – claiming to be as important as Jesus?]

YOU ARE EXPOSED, as an agent provocateur, turning tables on truth and light to create deception and darkness by the only ammunition you have–defamation and libel. Everyone shall see what you do. Keep the e-mails coming with revelation you sick man.

[You can bet on it - revelation is synonymous with empirical TRUTH, Leonard.]

Sherri raises a great question. Who pays you to spew your venom. "True Ott"?

[That doesn't even warrant a response. That is such a typical "intelligence operative" pat accusation that it is laughable!]

Len Horowitz

***

In response to my remarks to her "associate" Len Horowitz, Kane then fired this shot showing her special gift of reasoning:

Kane wrote on Wed. August 11, 2011:

If the illuminati has an agenda to divide we the people, why would you be a jew-hater and play right along with the illuminati's game?
Your friend and allied jew hater, Greg Szymanski, put Horowitz's on that phony "Knights of Malta" list, that was linked to another murder beyond Harle's, reported at Cloverdale Bibleway, that your gang member Greg Szymanski is allied with. This church, spews the same propaganda that you do, with the same hate, and is linked to a murder of a young man and financial profiting from 9/11 terrorism. You and and your cronies are being exposed in the light.

No matter how much you trash me or harass me or Dr. Horowitz, the light of truth is now prevailing!

And finally, here is my last and final communication to Sherri Kane nearly a year ago. IS THERE ANY REASONABLE PERSON IN THE WORLD WHO BELIEVES THIS CONSTITUTES "CYBER-STALKING", MURDER, AND A "THREAT TO NATIONAL SECURITY" as Kane and Horowitz charged me pursuant to a restraining order?? I submit that it is only a threat to those who would seek to keep their lies intact and never exposed.

On Wed. August 11, 2010 A. True Ott wrote to Sherri Kane:

I am NOT a "Jew-hater" Sherri — not any more than Sephardic Rabbinical Jews are when they expose the crimes of the “Rothschild elite’s” Khazarian crew (Israeli zionists) to their synagogues around the world. Is this not what you and “non-citizen” Jane B. (and by his own admission, Lenny) are supposedly trying to do??? Are you and Lenny not “jew-haters” as well when you expose these vipers??? How would you feel if I publicly called YOU a “jew-hater” for attacking Rothschild and Goldman-Sachs so viciously???

Oh, I see — it’s ok for “jews” to expose other jews, but “gentile goy” like A. True Ott had better not touch the subject? Or is it your belief that Rothschild and the Illuminati he created is not Khazarian dominated? Is that what you’re telling me now? Are the Sephardic Jews who did the film documentary “The Ringworm Children” “jew-haters” as well?

Look. They borrowed TUM's picture of these two freaks. Not bad.

Warning about Len Horowitz and Cherie Caine [a.k.a. Sherri Kane] http://www.xenacarpenter.com/pages/horrorditz-kane-cain.html

This web page is the result of being harassed and threatened with a "lawsuit" for voicing my opinion. Not to mention hearing from various sources who claim that Horowitz is involved with the Almightywind Cult. You can read about the Almightywind Cult at The Watcher Files Site . Anyone who has any solid info that can back up these claims, please contact me at xenacarpenter@yahoo.com

It never ends with these losers...

That being said, who the hell is Horowitz and Caine and why are they making various threats against me, threatening the life of another patriot, not to mention harassing/stalking innocent bystanders. . .

Here are the 2 audio tapes that were deleted from the new age, Maitreya worshipping site called BBS Radio. Tapes that Leonard "George" Horowitz, Cherie Caine [a.k.a Sheri Kane--maiden/previous married name...Temkin-Kanzelberg] and their followers don't want you to hear. You can either click on the links to listen to them right now or right click the links and select "save link as" or "download link" to download a copy of the tapes to your desktop.

The first tape is:

http://www.xenacarpenter.com/mp3/01-Divine...e_5-25-2010.mp3 about 11 minutes long [15mb to download]. The "Divine Providence" that exposes both of these freaks for who they are. Horowitz and Caine FAILED to disconnect the phone line to BBS Radio before engaging in trash talk. A listener on the phone bridge routinely records Don Nicoloff's "Evident Footprints" show. Instead of hearing Don Nicoloff, the listener overheard this horrid conversation between Horowitz and Caine. In the tape, you can clearly hear Caine talking to Horowitz about "not placing tape on her face" and of "wearing makeup to bed". Not to mention the numerous "F-bombs" falling continuously and the numerous times the listener asked Horowitz to "PLEASE DISCONNECT YOUR PHONE".

One should feel sorry for Mrs. Horowitz and the children. Frankly I hope she takes Lenny to the cleaners. A man who has to have mistresses on the side shouldn't have been married in the first place.

The second tape is http://www.xenacarpenter.com/mp3/The_Insig..._2010-08-10.mp3 about a 57 minute long rant [13mb to download] of all sorts of vain garbage not to mentioned veiled elimination threats. My email commentary of this audio made Horowitz go on a rampage with name calling, police threats and even threatening to sue me for voicing my opinion. And just for that I will publish my commentary [and another email comment that Horrorditz didn't like] and Horrorditz can take his threats and blow them out of his new age butt...

"Scourge of Humanity" is that the best horrorditz can do.... sheesh...

I saw the pile of lies on the bottom from that "anonymous coward"... no doubt it's Loren Bartlett and Shawn Ranta... typical M.O. of theirs....

I had listened to the archive/audio. If anyone is the "Scourge of Humanity", it's horrorditz himself. I have never heard such vain garbage in my life. The typical i i i crap of a new ager putting himself on a high pedestal. Not to mention the typical twisting scripture around to fit his disgusting agenda.

His claim of having "the key to the house of david" is a crock of shit. This "from philadelphia" prophecy is the same garbage "Pastor" Harry Walther aka Richard Landes pulled and you see what he turned out to be.

This stuff about using sound frequency to awaken DNA. Um, HELLOOOO... there was a REASON why the DNA codon strands were SHUT OFF by GOD HIMSELF at the time of the garden of eden..

You wanna look closely at the NUMBER 528 horrorditz is promoting...

5+2+8= 15 [5+5+5= 15]
1+5= 6

15 is the number that corresponds to THE DEVIL in tarot cards [reference http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/15_%28number%29]... not to mention 15 is the atomic number for phosphorous. "hence its name given from Greek mythology, Öùóö?ñïò meaning "light-bearer" (Latin Lucifer), referring to the "Morning Star", the planet Venus." [reference http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Phosphorus]

"love528" in other words is LOVE HERMAPHRODITE [LOSER] LUCIFER PUKE

As for horrorditz claim of being "framed" for murder is because of his oxysilver product.. GOOD FRIGGIN' GRIEF... talk about inane garbage. His oxysilver is simply COLLOIDAL SILVER which is POISON. Silver kills body organs. Same thing with that monoatomic gold crap. Even Hulda Clark stated that Gold causes cancer and kills the pancreas. Who the hell needs bill gates when God gave us Hulda Clark.

This whole speel of how leo zagami was set up to "emulate" horrorditz is an EXAMPLE of high pedestal, vanity, i i i garbage. Not to mention horrorditz song should have been "If I only had a brain"!

As for that tie dyed bimbo Sherri CAIN.. if she was ANY type of researcher like she had bragggged about, she would see that Janet Phelan and Barbara Politis "Hartwell" are two psycho bitch peas in a pod. It was either one or both of them that CAIN was referring to when she said about how Tim White was "stalking a woman". Janet Phelan has screws loose and lives in her "fantasy world". That's putting it NICELY.

And as for horrorditz getting upset about being shown for the asshole that he is... you know what... that is just TOUGH SHIT... he can LIKE IT and LUMP IT... I don't feel sorry for brainless idiots... they get what they deserve...

==========

And here is the other email Horrorditz didn't like. The owl photo was still at Horrorditz' site but now has "disappeared"... You can see the photo below...

Charles,

Please read the harassing emails I have received from Ott and White. (click the first link)
Anyone that can read can see the truth. I have also attached prior emails from Ott and White to my blog and on the latest threats. I am a truth seeker and pacifist, and so is Dr. Horowitz, so we have no interest in getting anything but the facts out there.

Best Regards,
Sherri

Check out this Wiki link http://wikicompany.org/wiki/911:Masonic_media>.
As you read the it, you will notice Eric Jon Phelps (do a (control F-- search for how many times his name is mentioned throughout it) appears to have written the entire thing. His name sticks out like a sore thumb, patting both him and his criminal associate, Greg Szymankski on the back while, everyone else on it is getting a bad wrap.

Tim,

Am I just stupid but why am I not understanding any of this? Don't answer the "stupid" part. Fred and I have worked together for years. If there is a story here with "legs" then write it.

Put it before the public...or as close as we can get.

Here is what is said by HORRORwitz and CAINE and yes, Tim White is FALSELY (yes falsely) portrayed as a MONSTER it is blatantly slanderous, and if I personally would have that kind of character assassination made of me, I would understand nothing else that this is call for my elimination, aka MURDER.

Here is the verbatim of what is said of Tim White:

30 min. 34 seconds to….32 min. 06 seconds

HORRORwitz: "…and this man, Tim White, I guess it's his name, Tim White…

CAINE: "Tim White…he sent a lot of nasty emails to a lot of people…one of the women he sent nasty emails making threats…."

HORRORwitz: "it's a good friend of Greg Szymanski…"

CAINE: "Exactly and he sent me emails as well, same way, same type of threats…I have his picture on my blog and APPARENTLY he is a cross dresser according to the woman he was stalking and threatening…"

HORRORwitz: "A criminal with a record, made a deal with the Feds in order to be some activist under coverup operative…just watching him _____ right now…this is the group Greg Szymanski plays with and operates with…

CAINE: "The scary part is…they are really well connected…to a lot of these religious fanatics…that actually uses the excuses of "you do not believe in Jesus" or "God told me to do it"…and they are out there killing and murdering people…like running to aborption clinics and shooting people or killing people because they say they don't want to accept Jesus…I mean…we are talking about real crazy psychopaths…

HORRORwitz: "We are giving you the specifics as to literally who is doing it, how they are doing it and how this whole operation … not initially from the top down money is spent but literally from the grassroots on up…how this entire "helter skelter" manipulation of the population is administered by literally the worst criminals that you can ever imagine…

Around 41 and 42 minutes:

HORRORwitz: "this is conspiracy reality tv ..we are probably advancing that to the next step…one of the next steps besides connecting with folks like you is to take a camera to the FBI and say: "okay, you want some informations" ..let's see what you guys deal with ..take a reality tv program to the FBI …I pray there will be brave hearted souls who will be able to do that with us right now because the evidence that we currently have is stunning, it's solid and it needs to be investigated not to just save my life but a lot of other's people lives…

CAINE: "Yeah, they are taking out a lot of journalists now, so many being knock off"….

About 43 min…21 seconds…

CAINE: "Interestingly enough…I had contacted Dr. True Ott for an interview and he told Greg Szymanski in a comment when Greg Szymanski answered what he thought about Dr HORRORwitz becoming a Knight of Malta, he has his opinion on him. His opinion…I mean, really….he created a bunch of things that were completely libeling and he said he was busted by the FBI right after Dr. HORRORwitz came to visit him".

HORRORwitz: "The FDA and he claimed that it was ____ and incriminating against me for setting him up for a bust".

CAINE: "Exactly"

Until 44 minutes….

HORRORwitz: "Why would you take a very very personal email and c.c. people, third parties that had nothing whatesoever to do with the very very personal issue…"

CAINE: "Well, Szymanski I can understand…because he was responding to something he wrote…"

HORRORwitz: "So Szymanski was c.c. by True Ott along with Don Nicholas, who will be on _____ (radio program) coming up about 10 minutes…I had not spoken for about 2 years , which I thought that was very strange why Don will fall off my screen as a friend…maybe you listening on BBS radio tonight could call in to Don Nicholas and ask Did you hear Dr. HORRORwitz on his show tonight? because you got some explaining to do, Mr. Nicholas"

Still talking about Tim White at 45 minutes, 22 seconds….

CAINE: "Don Nicholas was copied along with this rude guy named Tim White, he is sort of a Neo-Nazi and this other guy named Jon…Eric Jon Phelps…"

Still talking about Tim White at 46 minutes 57 seconds….

HORRORwitz: "Maybe you will help us find out what is going on. It is not just on Nicholas, Mr. Greg Szymanski, Mr. Eric Jon Phelps, Mr. Tim White"

Name of Tim White mentionned at 49 minutes 02 – 03 seconds…

Now she is talking about Tim White at 49 minutes, 46 seconds….till 51 minutes, 12 seconds…

CAINE: "I am still waiting his connections with Tim White, why would he copy Tim White on this, he opened up a whole can of worms with Tim White because when he copied Tim White it is when he began sending me horrible, mean emails, he does not even know me, making accusations, he called me names…"

HORRORwitz: "Oh you would never believe what he said about me, the lies I could not believe it…it was all reconciled when Chery investigated him and found out that his routine, he is a complete psychopath, a social mess, (not sure that is the word mess but it is what I can make up) with a man named Tim White, again, why would True Ott send This personal mail to this kind of a man, you got to look very carefully, and then this man, and this in fact this whole conspiracy has a lot to do with this Satanic church, this Cloverdale, there are people at the Cloverdale Bible Way Ministry, apparently up in the Vancouver area that are heavily exposed in this, because you see at the bottom of the circulating fraudulent forged Knights of Malta list was this organization, this was the copy that I received circulating all over the Internet in other words Szymanski created, those guys at the Bible Way are promoting it ….

CAINE: "What about that other list being created? About the counsel member…"

HORRORwitz: "The counsel of foreign relations members…I had been on this for a long time…I looked at the counsel of foreign relations for probably at least 15 years…I never saw at the top of the counsel of foreign relations members Jews…

CAINE: "J for Jews…"

HORRORwitz: "pick up which counsel members were specifically Jews those you would want to put a hit on ..that is what we essentially found out to be links to 9/11 …again go to healthy world store dot com "…

Finally connecting Tim White to the church once again at 52 minutes, 33 seconds…

HORRORwitz: "this whole concept of them having this Bible Way, this Cloverdale Bible Way targetting specifically Jewish counsel of foreign relations members and the article that link to 9/11 you see ..the man who is ministering the website, his name is Michael Ray"….

TheUnhivedMind - June 19, 2011 03:35 AM (GMT)

Notice how Len Horror-dipz and Scary Long Chops pain who by way can't breath through her wicked snoozle, attack Tim White with all the lies from two characters working for the National Security Agency's, Otis L. Johnson who's a ret USAF Lieutenant General. What they purposely lie about is the fact that Tim White was the one who blew the whistle on the heroin trade from Vietnam by the method of packing U.S. soldier bodies with heroin for trafficking. So can you see what a major twist these intelligentsia puppets are up to? When have you ever heard Eric Jon Phelps say he's been in any intelligence agency? Never! Why? Simply because he has not and this is a dirty smear campaign handled by sheep-dipped CIA agent, Barbara Politis Hartwell. Interesting how they attack White about cross-dressing yet Horror-dipz and Scary Long Chops Pain love to play sodomy with BDSM sex. Heres a tip to Horror-dipz, next time tape her nostrils up and she'll suffocate to death. A big snoozle but still can't breath through it, maybe she needs an elephant trunk? Looks like Horror-dipz health (joke) skills can be flushed down the toilet too. I guess Tim White called you because you death threated him live on air on a radio show, no doubt about that devious Scary Long Chops Pain.

Notice how they try to play down how many people there are who're against them right now and who they're attacking. This is to try to install doubts in the peoples minds when someone teaches information based on our knowledge or similar. May I remind you how Michael Tsarion exposed wonderfully Knight of Malta, Len Horowitz by highlighting his Jesuitical argument tatics at the ConCon conference. Now notice how he trumps up Scary Long Chops Pain claiming she's a great investigator. Well folks that tells you now that any material and books you have from Horror-dipz need to be burnt or stuffed in the garbage bin. Scary Long Chops Pain is one of the worst researchers I've ever witnessed in my life, I've seen young teens on YouTube do far greater work and far more useful work. So now we see them trying to riddle their way out of the fact they've been recorded in BDSM sex in an hotel room whilst still attached to the radio show phone system. Can't even admit their actions like decent people, why? Simply because they're devious vermin handled by the Central Intelligence Agency which they claim everyone else is. Hows about their handler, Barbara Politis Hartwell a sheep-dipped CIA agent smear artist.

No now we're all supposed to think women are inferior to men. Well thats an utter lie but typical of females like Scary Long Chops Pain who're your typical feminist types stuck up the arse of Rockefeller mind manipulation. Feminines who desire illusionary freedoms which destroy the family unit and society. As evident in our society today and now we see Rockefeller mind influence over in the Middle East with feminines thinking they should go this route and moving away from their religious beliefs which have kept their society strong and with successful families and good birth rates. Remember these elite families wish you, your culture, civilisation and society dead, just look at U.N Agenda 21 and the melting pot mess in the Western World. Only those with a strong religious belief still have strong birth rates for culture/race survival. So see where these two clowns are leading everyone? Remember that Knight of Malta, Len Horowitz promotes the New Age claptrap which Jesuit soldier, Pierre Teilhard De Chardin SJ desired out there for control and destruction of religion and the biggest enemy, the King James AV1611 Bible. Masculines have their role in society and feminines have theres and we don't want this mind re-framing claptrap which is destroying our families, birth rates, happiness and society. So brainwashed blinkered morons clap when Scary Long Chops Pain rants on trying to make out that females are superior over men based on a Praying Mantis and Black Widow Spider for God Sake, hows about talking about the Silver back Gorilla?

Isn't it interesting to see how unprofessional these people really are? This is why folks I've highlighted agents of deception like these for years now. Too many people believe they're Gods and truthsayers when in fact they work to the tune of the intelligentsia taking you to one level and then feeding you nothing further. This sloppy work being put out now by Horror-dipz well it really doesn't deserve our time its that bad. Come on CIA if you want to hit us then use someone better than this please. Its good actually because we no longer need to highlight this opposame, he's done it all himself and now people are turning away from him big time and thinking he's an utter idiot.

So once again we see how this Horror-dipz is completely a liar as he tries once again to smear Eric Jon Phelps with utter nonsense that Eric claims Jews run the Vatican. What utter claptrap nonsense and how does he think he can get away with such blatant lies like this? Eric is attacked by most people who attack the Jews as ruling the New World Order. These Anti-Jew hating Romanist Doctrine followers claim Eric is in favour of jews and in league with Jews for God sake. Great research Horror-dipz and Scary Long Chops Pain real great research not. Eric is one of the biggest promoters of the Torah-Judaics as spoke of in the King James AV1611 Bible and texts its based upon as God's chosen people. The same Bible which bought freedoms around the World never seen before including the amazing America which is hated by the bloodlines for its freedoms to this day. I get this folks, you have one lot call you a Jew then another lot call you something else, but you cannot be both at the same time can you? Its PATHETIC! Just real sloppy unproductive claptrap and I hope horror-dipz goes down the pan and takes his long chops can't breath properly ant eater with him. So Scary Pain you think you can rumble do you? Rumble with me you lying piece of garbage and am I right that you're probably a Sabbatean Frankist Talmudist false Jew? You're certainly controlling and protecting a Romanist piece of garbage who's a product of Rome.

Notice how Horror-dipz has to throw in "where is the love, where is we the people", again my I remind you that America is a Republic by the people for the people thanks to the King James AV1611 and Protestant Reformation. So he wants the love so he can promote his hippy Pierre Teilhard De Chardin SJ claptrap 528hz on you. Notice Scary Long Chops Pain pushes the oneness whilst trumping up her feminism claptrap once again. These people don't want others to research areas such as Sabbatean Frankists or the Vatican they want you just all agreeing its a Brotherhood of Darkness and sitting back going around like a gerbil singing hippy tunes and playing 528hz all day long. They mock a single entity running this World conspiracy when it has been this way for centuries. Horror-dipz detests Christianity and tries to fool the dumbed down that believing and following the King James AV1611 Bible is the work of the Church of Satan. Do people fall for this? Surely not? If the answer is yes then my God the World has become a very sick and twisted place.

Folks what this shows is that our work has had a great impact on the real truth scene. Our knowledge was never known out there for people to finally start to see the clearer picture. The intelligentsia is threatened as they DO NOT have any control over us and therefore we are loose cannons against them. We have no financial support from any agency unlike the typical alternative media out there who are all threating. People are now coming to our information first and sticking with it as it is the truth, they can research it and see clearly whats going on, they also have the King James AV1611 Bible. People also know that the New World Order wants rid of Christianity and therefore you should know the King James AV1611 Bible is the enemy of enemies and it is to the New World Order. True-Christians following the King James AV1611 Bible are the only chance of defeating the enemy as they've done before. We have the answers, we know the enemy and we're battlers not suck up puppets like the rest of them. When you have no funding or ties then you have no one controlling you. So now the Southern Poverty Law Center, Anti Defamation League, Mossad and CIA try to smear us all hoping to grab new comers before they get to our information so they can twist their minds like they've always done. I'm just so happy its occurring because it shows we've won and are winning and it also aids myself in knowing I'm on the right track with my knowledge and teachings.

All I have to say to finish off is that the true Jesus Christ (not the Catholic pagan fraud) will win the battle. All you real Satanists out there all you'll do is empower the likes of myself and Eric further to making sure we win this battle. Puritan truth will come forth and bring real peace and moral hetrosexual, large family Nation state societies Worldwide. The World Scary Long Chops Pain and Horror-dipz with his Amalfi medals of ego desire is in fact hell holes like what we're in and heading too regardless of their Chardin fronts.

This ZM stuff sounds like a Jesuit "monkey wrench in the works" creation similar to their occult society creations of the 19th century.

The common thread to all these groups is that they all end up eating each other when their job is done.

Davis is one of the few British politicians with any shred of integrity: his observations above bear that out. He also recently resigned his position as shadow foreign secretary to fight a by election on issues such as growing state power and increasing surveillance.

Davis won but he has yet to be reinstated as a minister and it may be a while before he is, if ever. For he is too much of a wild card and the Conservative Party hierarchy may try and keep him at arms length.

That way they can minimise his exposure. For Davis is a genuine threat to the establishment and what he says strikes a chord for many.

Which may also explain why prize plagiarist David Icke attacked him recently. We've commented on that elsewhere and believe the above bears out our earlier assertions about Davis.

What does Icke mean by this exactly? Icke is coming with his all one New Age trash! We are not all one David Icke, we are seperates by DNA. This has been the way since Adonai created man on this his Earth. It is you Luciferians who wish to rebel (13) against God Adonai. You and your cliques are trying to indoctrinate the peoples into loving one another as one. Who does this suit people? It suits the Jesuit who wishes us to all be one and mongelised against God Adonai's wishes. First of all the Jesuits will use the division for a little while longer, then they will force this indoctrination crap upon the profane mass. Their just trying to indoctrinate the awakening fools first to help them along and test their brainwashing out before throwing it on the mass profane. David Icke is one of these agents doing their bidding with his books bought in mass and sold in Barnes and Nobel where selection committees easily have his books. Whilst truthsayer, Eric Jon Phelps stands no chance with his Vatican Assassins book. Now tell me why this is exactly? If it was nonsense as many would like you to believe then why don't they still have it? They have millions of nonsense clap-trap books? Because they fear Eric Jon Phelps and his work thats why. Eric is not controlled and therefore cannot be guided as the Jesuit would like.

David Icke on the other hand is fully controlled and a set-up stooge from just prior to his BBC days. The same Tavistock controlled BBC now riddled with Common Purpose working for the Pope's European Union. The BBC with a Roman Catholic head right now! He's another one like this Shayler agent who was put out there with many truths. Shayler then suddenly turns weird and puts off people then on. Intelligensia trickery at it's best to the profane but worse to us intelligent ones. So if you wish to be manipulated by the Jesuit then feel free. Your all one, thats correct, not! Remember how they wish to remove all your natural thinking and actions such as fighting etc. They wish to do this with frequencies, chemicals, Poisons and eventually a brain chip system. This is not how Adonai wanted you to live, it's how Luciferian Dragon greedy noble shits want you to. Wake up to David Icke. His books are riddled with low down conspiracy keeping you still in the dark. Where was Joseph Rettinger and Alcide De Gesperi in the creation of Bilderberg, David? Every man and his dog know about bloody Maltese pion Prince Bernard. Icke will continue to brag he's woke up more people than I. Well David you haven't woke them up, you've just indoctrinated more into another illusion and low level. Of course whilst having them think they can hurt their enemy by ripping and leaf in two haha. I will take the Dragon master of yours down David don't you worry! Back to consciousness for a moment, this is very Luciferian. Reminds me of the circle of the Goddess Circe. Why not put a Yod in it David and have the Generative Principle? Mind you David you like talking about the Mazzaroth don't you?

Just had an email in from a trusted follower of ours. It seems David Icke's forum is now banning people forever if they put up info of mine on that site. It seems 'RealDeal' has been causing a storm amongst the intelligensia controlled idiots. I saw the other week how they claimed RealDeal was myself haha. I was banned from this moron site months ago for speaking truth. I glance over the site but nothing more, I have no access to the site. Just a bunch of spotty teenagers if you ask me, just what British Intelligensia like to grab. Reminds me of Alex Jones and his spotty idiots and their megaphones and Ron Paul stickers. A complete farse. So maybe Real has been hammered due to my new photo for the intelligensia Icke haha. Truth isn't free my friends its suppressed by devious sneaks hiding under phony Aliens haha comical. I bet the Maltese's SS keep Icke happy and fed during the Maltese Depression. It reminds me of when I banned that time, all the idiots who know nothing and more to the point do nothing, were causing the trouble. They stayed! Same for all these idiots like Accuracy who I guess are still there. What a moron member base. A bunch of clowns being wiped onto the Babylonian Mystery religion haha. Icke and his site are full of shit, suppressive cretins of British Intelligensia.

When i was first waking a friend of mine up with who controls the world he bought a DVD about secret societies from the (fake)History Channel. Who's pathetic mug showed up right away? thats right Peter Pan himself David Icke. Oh yeah Alex "don't do any research for yourself" Jones was on there too, and a couple other bullshit artists. Its always the same shits over and over. Watch TV and if you see these jokers on it than they are agents plain as day

AntiSionist - December 21, 2008 03:09 AM (GMT)

History Channel? Sounds like that one special where Icke talked about the Bilderbergers and freemasons and where Jim Marrs and Daniel CFR Pipes made an appearance. Marrs I remember talked about Bilderberg and the Reagan assassination attempt whereas Pipes tried to downplay the role of the CFR and the Trilateral Commission.

semperbry76 - December 21, 2008 04:31 AM (GMT)

yeah, thats the one, we tried to watch it the other day and we couldn't even get past 10 minutes, it was pathetic. You know once the ignorant watch it and maybe the 5% which decide to maybe look further into Icke they will see the reptilian crap he pushes and say oh yeah right these guys into conspiracies are nuts. By the way out of all the people i've tried to wake up only one of them (the friend i was referring too) has bothered to look into the details. He is a member on this most knowledgeable site. The mother of my daughter left me because i can use my brain. This system we live in disgusts me. All i can say is when my child gets older i can't wait till it all comes crashing down around them. I just pray to God she will be with me or knows enough to come to me when it does go down.

I having being banned from the David Icke's forum jet and i have mention that it is the jesuits and The Sovereign Military Order of Malta that pulled the strings not the jews/zionsts. But the forum is full jew bashers.

Alexandra - January 6, 2009 11:00 PM (GMT)

As I indicated in another thread, so far my account is still active and I post Craig's audios there.

I have a feeling, though, that I'm on borrowed time there!

14april2000 - January 15, 2009 03:31 PM (GMT)

I might also be on borrowed time there who knows, i have gone very far on subjects that they probably don`t like.

But i have not posted any infomation about the jesuit order jet except i have mention the order alot times. But i seen other people that have done that and they are already being banned for some reason.

zenmodi - January 15, 2009 04:16 PM (GMT)

i really wonder what the fuck is it, that nobody cares about the jesuit order and the catholic church and its involvements. i know that its much more than just involvements and that they seem to be at the top of the slavesystems. but when i show people evidences that the jesuit order at least is deeply involved into all, they dont listen. they think im a christ, trying to convince them just about any kind of religious issues. even when i speak clear and say i am no bible reader or follower of any religion, they seem to not believe this. they think i have an agenda of disinformation. its so strange. when i post facts in germanys biggest blog i get censored, but im quite sure that the biggest germans blog owner is a cool guy. he just doesnt get it about the jesuits, he cant anyhow imagine that. he thinks the church has lost all its power a long time ago and its the bankers ruling everything. so be aware of that some people even censor and bann you, just because they think you make disinformation. need to find a way to open their eyes to this. experience will show the right way. imo the most important truth to set their eyes free is to make a kind of referat which shows exactly how especially the bankers are connected to the catholic church. maybe we should investigate more time to find evidences about the churchs hofjuden, like the rothschilds and their dependence on the church. in the end the masses are just agreeing to something that is heavily backed up by facts and evidences. we should investigate time into the biggest so called jewish families that everyone pretends they rule the world intensively and find every tie between them and all the existing churchs suborganisations (kofm kofc jesuits etc.). does such a thread yet exist here? kind of like the one i started about raymond james and jeffrey saut? if not, we should use that thread to connect all of this and use it as an awakening guide for them who believe the jewish bankers are at the top. theres yet a huge amount of infos regarind this on craigs board, we just need to connect it all into one thread. its much more power than.

14april2000 - January 19, 2009 07:43 PM (GMT)

I just found this on David Ickes main web. Great going Graig.

Another thing that expose him as British Intelligence asset is the fact that you can search in google after any forum threat, i try search to type this into google : Is War with Islam Avoidable at all?
http://www.davidicke.com/forum/showthread.php?t=50209
The fist 2 links was from that threat.That was never possible on the old forum http://www.davidickeforum.com if you wanted to find a threat from that forum you have to know the usernames in a threat and that was only possible if the username was very special like my username 14april2000. If you search in google or in any other search engine after 14april2000 you will come up with all my posts or threats.

If i continue to post infomation about the jesuit order on his forum i would also be banned someday. I have not even really posted much like my own threat on there forum.

Graig do you think that some or most/all the the people that run his forum/website or both, also are British Intelligence assets on some level with or without there own knowledge?

http://www.davidicke.com/content/view/9176/48/

Confessions of a conspiracy research snob - or - 'I know more than yooou, nah, nah'.

Talk about divide and rule.

It was never going to be long before conspiracy research developed its own establishment and snobbery and here's a classic example. Shouldn't we all be working together for a common cause? I think so. But then ego is a powerful force and it has clearly overwhelmed this chap.

(Presented as written and including all the grammatical, spelling and factual inaccuracies - in terms of the factual too many to mention)

David Icke IS refering to my site and having a dig at this site. What this British Intelligence agent is trying to do is once again lie to the people unaware already. You see he's trying to make out that this site is Christian based when infact it's NOT. I get attacked by many religious people because I speak of the Mazzaroth, Fertility and Bio-Chemical origins to ALL the religions. He can incinuate this as my site exposes the Jesuits which are a religious group and without the true Christians we wouldn't know much about them. So he will use this old agent tatic.

David Icke thinks he's out of the Matrix when infact he's not. David Icke drinks cans of beer one after the other. Alcohol is the oldest form of dumbing down the populance so they no longer become a threat to the powers at be, only themselves and other sheople on the street. Does David Icke look healthy to you guys? Do you think he could run down the street? I doubt it very much. I'm more out of the Matrix than he is by far. I don't speak about something then do the opposite. He speaks of auras yet does something which deminishes his aura. I have no desperation for money like he does. I've given everything out I've found out myself. I do not charge and have subscriptions. I do not put out pathetic newsletters with basically nothing new of use in them and keeping people stagnant. I was one of the first main Jesuit exposers on the web and infact I'm a big reason for the biggest realisation that the Order controls from the Omega point.

David Icke is compromised, he's all over the television for godsake. The Sovereign Military Order of Malta which Icke has never detailed properly, control all the media you have access to. Do you honestly think mainstream UK tv would have Icke on it if the SMOM didn't wish for this? I honestly believe Icke was legit at first unless of course he was simply a mind controlled, groomed figure from start like David Shayler, another agent of British Intelligence. When Icke came out with his book, Biggest Secret that was it for him and Ivan Fraser a once friend of Icke's also says this and warned him at the time.

So David Icke do I not talk about the Saturnalian Brotherhood? More than you ever have. Do I speak of Astro-Theology/Fertility/Bio Chemical sources to the Religions on Earth? Yes! So am I a Christian? NO! Am I religious? Not really except I do believe theres some form of a creator somewhere. Do I follow any of the religions? NO! So don't use the twist tatic on your amateur viewers who aren't aware of me yet. What are you afraid of David Icke? You afraid that right now your loosing many people along with CIA, Alex Jones? Your loosing them to my work with Eric Jon Phelps and friends? You worried because you've stagnated now and cannot go further without going over what you already have done? What you going to do David Icke now the greatest conspiracy exposing book, Vatican Assassins III is out? Your stuck and going down aren't you. Your reptilian diversion is no longer working. British Intelligence will kick you to the curb soon if you loose more followers from the diversions they wish them to have. So keep on spitting your gums on whats simply the Lunar Cult and nothing alien and amazing. You've probably suckered yourself into believing your disinformation. Therefore you'll be suckered in by the fake alien visitation and the destruction of the religions in place for the new one from the Synthetic Society which was created by Balfour.

David Icke I highly respected you at one time. I will and have admitted to people you and Alex Jones were the people who bought me somewhat out of parts of the SMOM Bird Cage. The problem was that you made me believe many untruths and for a while made me stagnant never forwarding. It wasn't till I studied the Jesuit Order and Roman Catholic Institute that I progressed and saw through some of your work. You never addressed any of this in any form of detail. So from then I left your work behind and helped highlight much further to the populance. I have almost all your books and films. I still promote your 'Secrets of the Matrix' film which I believe is one of the best ways of opening someones eyes all round to the actual SMOM Bird Cage system itself, only problem is you don't highlight that the SMOM control it. You then recently wrote a small piece on the Jesuits which was nothing but our work in very little detail infact. I believe this was to only keep some of your followers from moving elsewhere. If you addressed the Jesuits somewhat then you wouldn't be looked at so harsh any longer. You've gone one step further than Alex Jones by doing this but alas I still believe your British Intelligence. Alex Jones on the otherhand is most definately CIA and groomed from day one.

I take it David you didn't like my banner I made for this site highlighting you as British SIS linked. I know you've seen it as you received mail from myself from someone I mail and his list. Well tough, until you prove otherwise then this will stay. Alan Watt highlighted you in the past and Alan is one of the true great researchers out there.

Also I am not from the united states of America. I'm from Birmingham, England. I have not said you've gone mad and you certainly haven't gone further than me. The big difference between you and I is I do not have masses of funds for big fancy looking websites, I haven't been given much funds by Jordan Maxwell like you have. Why? Where did he get the money and why dont you speak of him starting you off? I have no interest in massive sites full of Rothschild worshippers thinking their the greatest family of power and the Jews rule everything, with very little detail indeed.

David Icke regardless what we believe about the religions you should respect the King James Bible and the Reformation regardless. I do this as I know what the Reformation did for the people compared to when we were dominated by the Pope before the RCC got us back covertly during King George III. Whatever we know, that Bible did a hell of a lot for us and what you moan about loosing today is what this book helped us get in the first place. We must always respect the Reformation and people who've died for it. People like myself and unlike yourself who've fought against the Mother of Harlets, the Roman Catholic Church.

David why don't you highlight how the SMOM created shortwave via their CIA? Why don't you highlight that these Christians you speak of were put forth by this CIA to control the opposition. Why don't you speak of the SMOM control David Icke? Just why? Remember folks the Sovereign Military Order of Malta control ALL the Intelligence agencies. Now do we see the picture? I certainly do.

zenmodi - January 19, 2009 09:18 PM (GMT)

when one exposes theseemingly big empire for you and all this stuff is quite new to you, he just needs to mention the jesuits like they were nothing, or they d play a very small role, like giving em 3 minutes on a 2 hours talk, right away you re programmed to put them aside the next time. so was it for me, i heard some of the undergroundmainstreamreporters mention them short enough for me to take focus on them just after a long time. and without the informations of the jesuits craig and eric provide i still wouldnt have thrown my eyes on them. id love to see either craig or eric in a discussion show (not about races, even when its hard to stop beeing philosophical but just about historical facts) with david and on the radio from alex. but alex wont, hehe he banned me from his youtubechannel just by kindly suggesting that.

14april2000 - January 20, 2009 02:17 AM (GMT)

Yes you quit right i didn't give it much thought when Icke mention them very short in his book the biggest secret. I heard about them again in may 2002 when i watch a video named Vatican Assassins by Eric Jon Phelps. it amazed me because just 2 year befor i have read the biggest secret that book blow my head to hell even i had reading some of infomation in other books, that break my illusions with everything i had learn since i was a child.

14april2000 - January 26, 2009 02:22 PM (GMT)

I just found this on his forum. Many members are being banned there and alot them writes about the jesuits and the vatican. I thinking about starting to highlight the 12 Papal Bloodlines on his forum and see how far i go without being banned?

Racism
The issues surrounding Israel are legitimate subjects for debate and David Icke has not flinched from addressing them despite the attacks on him this has triggered over the years. Please be very careful about posting any personal information on this forum. We cannot be held responsible if you choose to post information which reveals your location, identity, or anything else which you may later regret divulging.

We advise that you keep details regarding your employer, your location and your friends/family vague, unless absolutely necessary.

Please do not at any time post your telephone number or postal address on the public forums without permission from the moderators. Do not ask other members on the forum for their personal contact information either. We take privacy very seriously here, and anybody seen deliberately breaking this rule will be banned without warning.

Advertising
Please do not post blatant advertisements, or try to promote health products or links to websites selling products that haven't been endorsed by this website.

Quoting Other Sources & Copyright
You may quote other sources, providing that you name the source before and/or after the quote has been made, and link back to the relevant website if possible. We cannot allow the posting of any copyrighted material.

Please do not quote whole chapters, or upload e-books, as that will be a direct violation of another person(s) copyright.

If there is something in particular you would like to post, but your not sure if it's acceptable - please contact a moderator who'll be able to approve or disapprove the material first. If there is no copyright attached to something, we'll probably be able to make an exception.

Thread Topics
The “general” section is for all matters of a general nature, and the Moderators reserve the right to move posts into more appropriate sub-forums at their discretion.

We have many Sub-Forums, and we ask that before posting a thread, you consider where your post might best be suited. We also suggest before posting that you use the search function to see if there is already a thread you may add your post to rather than starting a new thread on a subject that may have recently been discussed.

Questions to David Icke
David Icke will not be participating or answering questions on this forum. Please do not waste time posting messages or questions to David. If you disagree with David's work, you are free to communicate this on the forum, however as you will see below, we take a grim view of trolling.

Trolling
While David welcomes discussions on his research and doesn’t expect everyone will necessarily agree with every aspect of his work, anyone who joins this forum with the sole intention of flaming David Icke on his own forum will find their user account promptly suspended without warning.

Same applies to anybody who flames other users or deliberately disrupts other users who wish to seriously discuss aspects of David’s work. Forum disrupters who seek to do this will need to find themselves another forum to post on.

While it is perfectly fine to discuss aspects of David’s work you disagree with or do not understand posters who habitually criticize David’s work while offering little or nothing constructive to forum discussions will not be allowed to dominate this forum. Members who try this on will first be issued with a warning to let them know they are being asked to modify their troll-like behaviour. If this warning is ignored, the member will lose posting privileges without further ado.

We will not tolerate those with an axe to grind against David Icke, whilst using this forum to promote the work of other researchers in an aggressive manner. Again, such posters will be issued a warning to modify their approach, and if this is not respected their user account will be suspended.

Report Post Feature
If you see a post you believe breaches any of our forum guidelines, please feel free to report the post to the Moderators, who will decide on what action (if any) needs to be taken. The icon for reporting posts is the exclamation mark within a red triangle below members your user name and avatar. Only signed-in members can use this function.

Avatars and Signatures
Any user using an unsuitable avatar or signature (unnecessarily brash, pornographic or insulting to other members), will be asked to remove it. A Moderator may remove an avatar and/or signature at any time if deemed necessary.

The Rant Room
Threads which are binned due to abusive, off topic or “petty” rants may be moved to 'The Rant Room'. This sub-forum is only accessible by registered members.

It is at the Moderators' discretion whether to delete or lock threads which have descended into rants or to move them to the Rant Room.

Anybody deliberately trying to derail a topic in order for it to be moved to the Rant Room will have restrictions placed on their account or be suspended from the forum. This is not an opportunity to hijack or trash somebody else’s thread.

Moderation, Complaints, and Disputes with regard to Moderation
The Administrators of the David Icke website reserve the right to moderate this forum in anyway they see fit in situations that might arise that are not specifically mentioned in the above forum posting guidelines.

If you have a complaint against a Moderator, or you feel you have been unfairly treated after having attempted to resolve an issue with the Moderator involved, you are free to bring the matter to the attention of the Forum Manager who in this instance will act as an arbitrator to assist both parties to find a resolution they can both agree on. However before taking this course of action, we expect that members will try and resolve these issues with the Moderator involved as a first step. Serious complaints may be forwarded on to the webmaster.

NOTE: When a dispute is brought to the attention of the Forum Manager and there is clear evidence that the forum guidelines have been breached, please don’t expect to find sympathy!

Discussing moderation and moderation decisions on the threads.
While we appreciate that everyone has an opinion, moderation issues may NOT be the topic of thread discussions, no matter how strongly you feel about what may or may not have happened to yourself or another poster. Very often other members are not aware of situations that have transpired if threads and posts have had to be deleted. The Moderation team is NOT at liberty to discuss such matters on the forum threads, and any such attempts to debate a moderator in this way will be swiftly dealt with and may result in infraction points if a poster continues to seek attention in this manner.

If you are genuinely concerned about ANY moderation decision, you may private message (PM) a Moderator for clarification, but you don’t have the right to demand private information that may have transpired between a Moderator and another member. We respect member privacy. If you have serious concerns and you feel you have not received a sufficient response from a Moderator, please feel free to PM the Forum Manager for further clarification.

Harassing Moderators
Any member who feels they have the right to threaten, harass or otherwise intimidate Moderators (either on the forum threads or via PM) will find restrictions placed on their user accounts, or will be banned. The members of the moderation team on the David Icke forum are all volunteers who give of their time freely for the benefit of others. They did NOT sign on to put up with abuse. Please be respectful.

If you do not agree to comply with these guidelines, please do not apply for a forum account. Anybody repeatedly ignoring the guidelines or the advice of a Moderator will have restrictions placed on their account.

Please read Warnings and Guideline Breaches for information on our procedure for dealing with members who ignore the guidelines.
http://www.davidicke.com/forum/faq.php?faq...es#faq_spamming

These guidelines are in place for the sake of allowing other users to enjoy the forums without having to scroll through endless posts which spam threads and disrupt worthwhile communication from taking place.

If you need any help with regards to posting or have an inquiry about anything forum related, please contact a Moderator who will be happy to help.

It is our hope that you will enjoy being a member of our forum community.

Thank you,
The Website Team.

DAVID ICKE ISN'T HAPPY WITH HIS AGING.
PERHAPS HE SHOULD STOP DRINKING BEER AND LIVING LIKE A SLOB!:

QUOTE

Hello all ...

It was my birthday this week. I was 35. I am always 35. I like 35. I think I'll stay there unless something better comes up.

Everyone was telling me I am 57. It was in the 'Today's Birthdays' column in the paper and announced on a radio show or two as 'conspiracy theorist, David dIcke is 57' or 'David dIcke, the former BBC presenter who went all weird, is 57 today'.

No I'm not. I'm 35, if we need such numbers at all, which, of course, we don't. But if I am going to acknowledge a number it will be one of my choosing, not some programmed convention. So 35 it is.

'No, you can't be 35, you've got grey hair and all those wrinkles and you said you bought the Beatles' first hit. You've got to be 50 if you're a day.'

Sorry, I'm forever 35, get used to it. I know it will challenging for you when you think I'm '80', but there we go. Life can be a bummer. Some people grow old gracefully, some disgracefully. My heart is with the latter, except for the growing old bit. I'll drop that and just be disgraceful, I think. Yes, feels good.

Not bad for 35, eh?

It's so funny how obsessed people are with their age. Many spend the first 21 years of their lives trying to look older and the rest trying to look younger. And then we have those game shows when an elderly lady comes on.

'How old are you?' says the host.

'I'm 88 next birthday,' comes the reply.

I have always found what follows to be utterly bizarre and bewildering. The audience spontaneously breaks out into wild applause. Why? Because she's got to that age without dying? What kind of achievement is that? It just is. What could she do to avoid it, commit suicide or something?

'Isn't it wonderful, she's got to nearly 88 without taking her own life, bravo ...'

Now if she's done some good things in her life, or refuses to live and act the blueprint of what an 88-year-old should be, that's worthy of some slapping of hands to say 'good on you, girl'. But just for being alive at 88? Ugh? Maybe it's just me, I can be weird when I want to. And I always want to.

Here's another one: 'You can't do that at your age'. Oh, really, watch me. I hear parents telling their children that they are too young to do this or that and later the children are telling the parents they are too old to do this or the other.

Age is just a program - on many levels - and people at different points on the software keep the others in the program by telling them how, at their stage of the program, they should live and behave. Round ones to that.

You're 60 now, life is over. It says so in this manual.

The more I chill out, step back, and observe what we call 'life' the more obvious it is that we are living in the equivalent of a computer program. We don't have to concede our uniqueness to it, but alas most people do. There was a song posted on my website this week that said it all, really. Give it a listen ...

Why do we live this way, we do it every day? Because we are caught in the software and we don't have to be. The song goes:

There ain't no reason things are this way.
Its how they've always been and they intend to stay.
I can't explain why we live this way, we do it everyday.

In fact, there is an explanation. Our Consciousness - the real, eternal 'us' - experiences this reality through a conduit or interface that we call 'mind' or what I call the Mind because we are all connected to the same one. We are just different expressions of it, like computers connected to the same Internet, but open at different websites.

Think of it this way. If you want to go on the Internet you can't just do it, you have to have a conduit or interface that allows you to experience the World Wide Web. We call this interface a computer and the Mind does the same job on an infinitely more advanced scale.

The body and the Mind are essentially one unit and when they serve Consciousness by providing the vehicle to experience this 'world', this tiny frequency range, all is fine. The enslavement comes when we think we are the Mind.

And, of course, most people think they are. 'Think' is the word because we identify ourselves with our thoughts and allow them to dictate our self-identity. As the French philosopher, René Descartes, said in defining identity: 'I think, therefore I am'.

But Descartes had bought the illusion that we are our minds, or the Mind. We are not. We are Consciousness. This doesn't think, it knows, and it speaks to us (we speak to ourselves) through intuitive knowing. 'I know, therefore I am', would be a more accurate way of putting it and 'I am, therefore I am', would be even better.

It is the Mind that thinks through endless chatter in the head and if we think we are the Mind it is the Mind that is telling us so. Thanks to the manipulation of this reality on so many levels of awareness, the Mind has become a closed-circuit in which it talks only to itself. Round and round it goes like the snake swallowing its own tail.

Once we fall for this, our whole point of observation - attention - perceives only the realm of the Mind. We then become Mind-made people in a Mind-made world devoid of Consciousness. The entire global conspiracy, at its core and foundation, is designed to keep people in the Mind and therefore unconscious in the wider sense.

Now, the Mind is computer-like in its perception and it loves rules, regulations and repeating cycles of behaviour. This is why you can spot someone who is seriously controlled by the Mind by simply observing their behaviour. Does it constantly repeat? Do they get their sense of security from routine and nothing changing? Do they subordinate themselves to hierarchy? The Mind really gets off on hierarchy and structure.

So why, as the song asks, do we live this way? Because people are puppets of the Mind.

What if you went on the Internet and the computer suddenly took over and made the choices of where you went on the Web and what you thought of it? Something very much like that is going on and because our point of attention and focus is within the Mind we think we are the Mind and so the Mind rules, okay?

This is why most people are so predictable. Consciousness is all possibility while the Mind only perceives the limited sense of possibility programmed into its software. Therefore, Mind-made people invariably think in terms of limitation of self and 'life', underpinned by the base-state of the Mind - fear. The manipulators who understand all this use the knowledge mercilessly to entrap the global population in limitation, I can't, Little Me, and fear.

My son. Jaymie, came home from school the other day and said: 'Dad, what's all this about swine flu?'

'Why do you ask?' I said.

'Because the kids at school are all shitting themselves about it. Every time someone sneezes they all look at each other.'

The last time I checked, Mexico, the apparent source of the outbreak, was more than 5,000 miles from the Isle of Wight in the south of England where those kids live. At the time of writing, the media claim that 160 people have died in Mexico from a population of 110 million, although on Wednesday Vivienne Allan, from the World Health Organisation's patient safety program, said that worldwide there had been just seven deaths while the media was then reporting 152.

As Dr. Russell Blaylock, the neurosurgeon, author, lecturer and vaccine expert said this week, the reason for deaths in Mexico can be traced to 'overcrowding, poor nutrition and overall poor immunity, all of which are indigenous to Mexico, ... [and] ... are a certain prescription for death from almost any infection.'

David Spangler who is "the Director of the Planetary Commission" is quoted as saying "No one will enter the New World Order unless he or she will make a pledge to worship Lucifer. No one will enter the New Age unless he will take a LUCIFERIAN Initiation."

The Planetary Commission book which can be downloaded at this site has a number of chapters, see if any of these remind you of what David Icke professes.

Introduction/Part I: The Mission Defined
Chapter One - The Future Is Now
Chapter Two - The Gathering
Chapter Three - The Divine Plan
Part II: The Commission Workbook for Self-Mastery/Introduction to Part II - Know Thyself
Chapter Four - Your Personal World
Chapter Five - The Christ Connection
Chapter Six - No Man's Land
Chapter Seven - The Choice is Yours
Chapter Eight - The All in All of Self Chapter Nine - You Are So Much More Than You Think You Are Chapter Ten - Working in the Energy of the Absolute Chapter Eleven - Reaching Mountaintop Consciousness
Chapter Twelve - Health and Healing
Chapter Thirteen - The Principle of Abundance
Chapter Fourteen - Your Consciousness is Your Faith
Chapter Fifteen - Spiritual Strength and Wisdom
Chapter Sixteen - The Power of Love
Chapter Seventeen - Your Role as the Christ

John Randolph Price is the Founder of The Planetary Commission.

Price was told by his "spirit guides" of a coming Utopia ushered in by "Illumined superbeings," who have guided man's progress toward an "Aquarian Age of Spirituality on Planet Earth."

Icke is simply pushing the New Age, New World Order, Luciferian agenda. The whole shapeshifting reptilians thing is also taught in Freemasonry.

Yes very odd the davidicke.com/forum. Seems like they are all pagans yet still think they are some how opposing this force, complete farce with freemasons and OTO members posting there at liberty and complete comfort!
Seems some posters there simply wish to discuss the agenda which they themselves are designing, perhaps a sneek peek of their future intentions to a small number of naive plebs that think abusing all christians period makes them tuff!.

there was a guy on the icke forum called 'gasrose' who i outed for being involved with the rosicrucians in Liverpool...i pondered his nickname for a quite a while and i think i correctly deciphered it as being the initials of George Alexander Sullivan who started the rose-crucian movement in Liverpool...gasrose aka lee woudberg then changed his nickname to qasrose before becoming inactive.

I think there is a big cell of occultists based in Liverpool who have a big say on the david icke forum...they all seem to worship Tsarion for some reason..i was quite friendly with one but it seems he had another agenda...be careful they play alot of mind games on there.

Out of a so-called six billion figure theres many who will wake up to the deceit around them. Thus they need to control these people whilst still giving them the impression they're breaking free. Now they've indoctrinated the people via using many truths they can now use these new drones as attack, gatekeepers against the real TRUTHsayers speaking of reality.

Why is Conspiritainment closed

http://www.davidicke.com/forum/showthread....#post1058626592

Hi guys,

We've decided to close the conspiratainment section of the forum, after much thought and discussion.

The decision behind this is based on us no longer feeling that this forum is the correct place for people to post abuse, accusations, and other types of unwarranted criticism to other fellow researchers.

David has never been interested in doing this, nor has he wanted this website to become a place which encourages 'in-fighting' amongst researchers and other websites.

It is for this reason that we felt the conspiratainment section had no relevance on David's forum. There are other websites out there who welcome and encourage the types of posts you would find within conspiratainment, but we are not one of them.

The thread some people are referring to here, has now been moved to the rant room if people wish to discuss it.

Roman Catholic Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor CIA Asset Jesse Ventura, 2010

Well, well! It appears that Jesse Ventura has been appointed to mainline the Black Pope's Conspiracy Theory Circuit bringing his brother Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors Alex Jones, David Icke and Stanley Monteith to national prominence. As is the case with this class of Jesuit Coadjutors—unlike Knight of Malta Sean-David Morton and the late F. Tupper Saussy—, Ventura has been put in place to truly expose an active international conspiracy for a world government, but to then divert attention away from the Jesuit Papacy as being the true impetus behind it all. Case in point: he blames The Bilderbergers—established by Knight of Malta Prince Bernhard and Freemasonic Jesuit Joseph Rettinger—as the font of world power; but as does Jones, Icke and Monteith, he never tells the viewer that Bilderbergers Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands and Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain are both Dames of Malta—completely subordinate to the King and Pope of Rome.

Rather Ventura follows his Jesuit script by blaming certain Jews as being the key movers and shakers behind the "New World Order." It is for this reason he states English RIIA/Chatham House-member David Mayer de Rothschild and American CFR-member George Soros to be the grand financiers behind, what can only be concluded to be, a Jewish Conspiracy. Never will he deviate from his assignment by declaring that notorious Jews of high finance or corporate power are merely "Court Jews" for the Papacy controlled by the Jesuit Superior General—NEVER!

Jesse Ventura was born James George Janos to Roman Catholic Slovakian American parents in Minneapolis, 1951. He was a tough Roman Catholic joining the Navy to become a member of its Underwater Demolition Team (UDT) which later became the Navy Seals—the finest soldiers in the world and the leading assassins of Rome's Knight of Malta-directed Central Intelligence Agency. After his Honorable Discharge he became a member of the Mongols, an outlaw motorcycle gang of which he was Sargent-at-Arms and given the nickname "Superman." Later, he went into professional wrestling, excelling at that entertainment as a tough and relentless fighter associating with the Hulk Hogan and other notable wrestlers of national fame. From 1987 to 1991 he worked as an actor, "starring" in several movies with now Roman Catholic, pro-Roman Catholic Latino Invasion, foreign-born, California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger.

In 1990 Ventura entered politics, becoming the Mayor of Brooklyn Park, taking the vote from an 18-year incumbent. In 1998 he won the governorship of Minnesota, serving one term. He was favored by his electorate but must be noted for his wicked and immoral polices. Ventura was pro-abortion, pro-sodomite ("gay") rights, and advocated legalized prostitution. Worst of all, he began "Invisible Day," commemorating the false history that this nation was founded on a "secular Constitution" that separated government from religion, contorting the words of AV1611 Bible-believing, Baptist-Calvinist, James Madison as his source.

Further, Jesse Ventura, since his stint with the Navy Seals, has never ceased to be an asset of the Pope's CIA. He knows its power, makes a show of standing up to the Company, but when push comes to shove, he submits to its decrees. Therefore, acting the part of a patriot in hosting truTV's Conspiracy Theory featured by Turner Broadcasting, owned by Time Warner, he is in fact serving the dictates of the CFR overseen by the Archbishop of New York City, Timothy Dolan. The President, CEO and Chairman of Time Warner is none other than a Freemasonic Jew and CFR-member, Jeffery L. Bewkes (left). Remember it was White Gentile Knight of Malta Henry R. Luce of Time Magazine who covered up the CIA assassination of President Kennedy in 1963 by buying, altering and suppressing the Zapruder film. Even so today, the Knights of Malta direct Time Warner, but have followed Jesuit protocol by installing a papal "Court Jew" at the helm so as to give the impression that "the Jews run the Media."

Jesse Ventura is a long-haired, immoral, profane, ungodly, Bible-cursing, Christ-rejecting, God-hating, presently condemned and damned (John 3:18), White Roman Catholic savage. Ventura's personal friend is the Jesuit-trained and advised, Freemasonic, Roman Catholic, communist mass-murderer Fidel Castro brought to power by Knight of Malta Allen Dulles and his Jesuit-directed CIA! This obstinate sinner wants to be the first U.S. ambassador to Communist Cuba!

Yes, Jesse Ventura is a liar, a deceiver and a highly-skilled player in diverting attention away from the Jesuit-ruled Roman Papacy—the heart and soul of the Devil's human second cause in world subjugation. For it is this Jesuit-ruled Roman Papacy that is shoving anti-nationalist World Government down our throats—in the words of papal court Jew Paul Warburg—"by conquest or consent!" So when watching Ventura hosting truTV's Conspiracy Theory, remember it's all an act for Jesse! His snake eyes, rehearsed intonation and calculating countenance gives away the game!

Therefore, as an accomplished, professional actor both in the ring or on stage, Jesse Ventura is hosted on Rome's Ted Turner Broadcasting owned by CFR-Time Warner; he interviews top Jesuit Coadjutors directing attention away from Rome, reprobates such as Alex Jones, David Icke and Stanley Monteith; and he is making millions at his assigned task of subterfuge and slight-of-hand, all the while deceiving the hearts of the innocent sincerely seeking to understand WHO is destroying their nation, culture, history and condemning their helpless and unsuspecting children to abject slavery.

Thanks Jesse.

The thought occurs to me that some of these agents of deception, like Jesse Ventura, aren't only useful for diversion, but also for dissemination/diffusion of the shock of what is happening.

In other words people posing as "exposers" actually serve to educate people indirectly about the ins and outs of the coming world government and religion.

We wouldn't accept some creepy satanist in a black robe lecturing us on the finer details of his religion, but we will listen attentively to some Jordan Maxwell or Dr Stan or Cutting Edge video doing the same thing. Their ideas are disseminated either way.

It's like the homo-agenda that involved initial steps of creating as much shock as possible with the eventual result that it was less and less shocking, it became nauseating and boring ... and to many, finally accepted.

So the idea isn't just to divert attention from the Vatican, but to inculcate the idea that the "world elite" do exist, to educate people on their antichrist religious ideas, and pass-through the phase of shock and outrage, until it becomes boring and "old news", and then secure eventual public understanding and acceptance, and acquiescence to a world government and world religion HQ'd at the Vatican.

I think if we understand that this is the wider role of the agents, we will understand why a guy like Greg Szymanski would point directly to Rome, yet still be an agent himself. All the agents need not be those who divert attention, some might be direct exposers, but who work at a low level of popularity in the background, and pressure release the shock of what is happening. He's now trying to save some lake (Atitlan?), which must be his strategy for getting out of the ball game (like David Shayler's gimmicks).

Ventura certainly is educating people, but it seems that by the time they wrap the US into the NWO police state, the public will be exhausted hearing about it and just surrender.

Look at the title of his new book.

63. Very Saturnalian number isn't it? These double agent coajutors aren't even hiding it anymore. That's what happens when you have dumbed down wearechange followers.

Mark - May 15, 2011 09:25 PM (GMT)

63 as in 36 backwards as in 3X6 = 666

Insurgent - June 7, 2011 10:25 PM (GMT)

One thing I like about Jesse is that he seems to be disgusted with the whole truth movement or the awakened once, due to our inaction's and stock in neutral ways of behavior.

Today he reiterated this again on the AJ show, he basically said that there are all of these awakened people and yet nobody wants to do anything real but just talk, talk, talk and more talk all day. He said he has given up any hope basically. Especially since he was attacked by the 9/11 truthers for his stand on the WTC take down. He thinks Dr. Judy Wood has the answer, but the majority of the truthers of course reject that.

We don't seem to realize that it is US and not somebody that will change things around in this world. US!!!! Wake up everyday and beat this into your head, "ME, ME, ME, ME, ME, ME!!!!" The more of us that will do that, the faster you will see change come and sweep like a 200 mph tornado.

People of the past did it, they did it, nobody else did it for them. Reformation did not happen because people sat all day at home and read pamphlets on bondage etc....

It seems I was wrong about Alan Watt. He appears to be very anti-Jesuit. He doesn't address it enough, but he may have his own fears about challenging the Jesuit order.

I would like to deeply apologize to Alan. We can not defeat the 'New World Order' divided. We are now being kicked out of thousands of websites simultaneously. It is odd that this has happened. I would advise all of you to NOT attempt to return to these blogs or forums under different names. They are a waste of your energy, and if people discover the truth, they will return to your sites to gain some useful information.

I would also like to communicate to you all that I have seen the Borgo Santo Spirito 'war room.' They are prepared to take us all down. The new campaign is run on discrediting the truth-teller. BUT, if I were, Alan Watt and Eric Jon Phelps, or any other of you, I would get a high caliber 'legally-licensed' handgun for self defense, we don't know what the intentions of these computer hackers and forums are.

It seems to be an experiment, sponsored by these NWO criminal governments.

PEACE TO YOU ALL,

Count Vivian Vivaldi-Pasqua III, O.P.

sounds like much to do about nothing.
of course Alan Watt gets info from other sources, he does not mention where he got it from, whether it is from Glen Kealey or any other source.

others do the same and no one is hounding them or trying to discredit them about it.

most information is derivative to a certain extent.

Alan Watt does not seem to be getting rich by his chosen profession and if he is proven to be 100% genuine in time, he is doing mankind a great service, no matter where he gets his info from.

this Glen Kealey seems interesting in a way also, but there is not much on him in the google world.

Of there is course there is controlled opposition involved in the forum that was just mentioned. The opposition is so controlled they even tell you how it is done. I really do not want accussed of being a part of such opposition; but you still have to do anything but admire their audacity in making something trivial go a long way , which is something I hope I am not doing.

Dear Eric,

First of all Stanford Research Institute is the American branch of the Tavistock Institute controlled by British Intelligence using their Central Intelligence Agency. So does this Webre think we will believe him after coming from there for God's sake? What makes me laugh is he claims it's libel for calling him a 'Jesuit Co-Adjutor,' how can he call it libel when he doesn't even understand what it means? We must remember that people who are Jesuit Co-adjutors doesn't mean your a Jesuit or directly tied to the Roman Catholic Dragon. If one does anything to promote the lie and conspiracy which forces the agenda forward, then one is a Coadjutor for the Jesuit who controls the whole Dragon system. Then if we really think about it, A Jesuit is defined by old dictionaries as simply "A Clever Person who deceives the people." Therefore I contend that anyone who is clever and deceiving is infact a Jesuit. One must also remember that the Jesuits were not actually Jesuits but infact Society Of Jesus, the name sort of was given to them as such and they even took it. So we have Webre push more military intelligence black-ops projects as creepy aliens from out of space. Suits the Vatican's current agenda of one World religion which will be bought forth finally into all realms of the World and it's people by a false Alien contact if they cannot get the people to fall for a false messiah of course. They'll carry on the indoctrinations then test the waters somewhat. If all is fine then the false messiah will come forth. If all is not then they will bring forth the Alien contact to tell us were wrong and to follow their real religion (created by men from the Synthetic Society.) If they can get away with the Messiah then I see the alien issue being used as solely a threat for the World Governance and nothing more. Depends how stupid they make the profane even more.

Thsnkyou
Craig Oxley

Dear Brethren and Friends,

I consider Alfred Webre to be a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor and I will not retract that statement until he begins to attack the papacy. The same holds true for Alex Jones and several others. If Webre will be specific as to the statements that are "libel" (a written statement, remembering that "slander" is a verbal statement and thus moot in this context) then I will reconsider my post on "Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Webre."

Sincerely in faith,

Brother Eric

re: Eric John Phelps

Hi All! - My friend and colleague independent scientist Leuren Moret today pointed out to me the below post of an article by Eric John Phelp, which I had not seen and I wanted to set the record straight on Phelps statements, which rise - in the opinion of my attorney - to libel and slander. That is they are reckless misstatements of fact done maliciously to impugn my good standing in the community.

For the record, just prior to 2008 Conspiracy Con conference at which Eric Jon Phelps was a Keynote Speaker, on the advice of legal counsel, I approached the organizer and brought to his attention a similar libelous article which Phelps had published on CTRL. As a result, the organizer of Conspiracy Con offered me a free pass to the conference to monitor Phelps, as he understood that Phelps article was libelous. In addition he called Phelps and cautioned against any further libel. The Conspiracy Con organizer indicated to me that Phelps agreed he would cease this libel. I agreed I would not pursue any further legal action at that point against Phelps. In addition, I was verbally invited to speak at the 2009 Conspiracy Con.

It is a preposterous fabrication that I am "A Jesuit Co-Adjutor" whatever that term might be. I have not formal or informal connection to the Jesuits or the Catholic church or any of its agencies. I went to Georgetown Preparatory, a Jesuit High School because my parents sent me there. I have not been a practicing Catholic since 1960, the year I graduated from Georgetown Prep and entered Yale. My family was very Catholic. My uncle Richard Chisholm, SJ, worked for Arrupe the Father General of the Jesuits during Vatican II. The last time I saw my uncle, who is now dead, was on a summer vacation in Rome in 1969, when I saw him briefly for two hours as a tourist. We were estranged because I rejected Catholicism.

At Yale I was not in Skull & Bones or any of the above ground Secret Societies. I was in Torch & Talon, a now defunct underground Secret Society. We rented a beach house in Branford CT and held a psychological encounter group twice a week, supporting ourselves through our problems at that life stage.

As my affidavit at the Disclosure Project shows, I was a whistleblower at Stanford Research Institute and led an Extraterrestrial Communication Project, for which I was attacked with electromagnetic weapons by US military intelligence agents.

I have been a broadcaster and activist all of my public life, and am extremely proud of my record.

> Google...ALFRED WEBRE..to see his photo on the WIKIPEDIA entry of him Papal Knight Alfred Lambremont Webre (1942–Present), 2007
> Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Rome's Gatekeeper for the 911 Truth Movement As it was after the Order's assassination of President Kennedy, so it is now after the Black Pope's 911 demolition of the World Trade Center and aerial attack on the Pentagon. Rome's Gatekeepers behind the movement to discover the real assassins of JFK were men such as Mark Lane, Robert Groden, Knight of Malta William F. Buckley, Jr., using his National Review, and our apostate Protestant/Lutheran Supreme Court Chief Justice, 33rd Degree Freemason Earl Warren, who gave his approval to the Warren Commission's CIA/FBI-devised, cover-up conclusion—The Warren Report.
> Even so it is today. Rome's Gatekeepers suppressing the real masterminds behind 911, which murdered over three thousand Americans, are out in full force (including Alex Jones and Ron Paul), and are backed by the Bush Royal Family intensely loyal to the Pope of Rome. Knight of Malta George H. W. Bush and his brother, Knight of Malta Prescott Bush, Jr., were complicit in the "termination" of President Kennedy in 1963. Even so their son and nephew, President George W. Bush, was Rome's tool in fulfilling the wishes of Pope John Paul II on that fateful day, nearly six years ago. After JKF was assassinated, Cardinal Spellman had his Vietnam War; after 911, Cardinal Egan had his "War on Terror," intended to destroy the last western nations born out of the Protestant Reformation. Just as "Spelly's War" on the Vietnamese people lasted for thirty years (1945-1975), even son "Egan's War on Terror" against the Moslems will last for decades.
> Rome's deliberate act of terror perpetrated against the American people on September 11, 2001, is the catalyst for the propaganda espoused by Cardinal Egan's press lords, both Jewish and Gentile, many of whom are members of the Black Pope's Council on Foreign Relations. One of the CFR's most notorious members is a Roman Catholic half-Jew and Knight of St. Gregory/Knight of Malta/Australian Knight of the British Empire, Rupert Murdoch, the mogul overseeing Pope Benedict XVI's "New Right" fascist Fox News Network. The Order's "Crusade" against North Americans enjoying a Presbyterian Protestant Constitution and personal liberties secured by a Baptist-Calvinist Bill of Rights must continue; the "Crusade" against the majority Moslem peoples for the security of the Vatican's anti-Jew, "Kingdom of Jerusalem in Roman Palestine" precipitating the building of the Third Hebrew Temple must continue. Therefore, a constant barrage of fascist propaganda must deluge our minds > preparing the American peoples to fight a two-front world war, all of which will be in the words of the Jesuit, "For the greater glory of God"—the god who sits in St. Peter's Chair!
> Indeed, there is much at stake! This Crusade must not be brought to a close: "America cannot retreat from complete victory!" Thus, the drugged and brainwashed American "human resource" people cannot be permitted to discover the real authors of 911. Realizing there would be genuine truth-seekers within the military, politics and academia, the Jesuit Order has called upon its most obedient soldiers to take command of overseeing and directing the cover-up. A few of them are Jeff Rense, Texe Marrs, Alex Jones and Eric Hufschmidt (whose sister is married to the son of "Sir" Rupert Murdoch). But the most important appears to be the hitherto unknown Alfred Webre. A review of the life and connections of this servant of Rome is necessary if we are to understand that the entire 911 Truth Movement is now compromised.

> Alfred Webre, author lawyer and environmentalist, was born in 1947, graduating from Yale University in 1964. He then attended Yale Law School receiving his J.D. in International Law in 1967. As a Fulbright Scholar in Economic Integration, Webre is an internationalist and thoroughly versed in the Vatican's Uniform Commercial Code and Federal Taxation, which specialties are essential to the creating of a world of nations united by commercial treaties for the benefit of Rome's merchants, "the great men of the earth" (Rev. 18:23). This author assumes that Webre is an occult member of one of Yale's secret societies and possibly a Knight of Malta evidenced by his association with Skull and Bones members, specifically President George W. Bush and his father, former President George H. W. Bush. Webre's highly influential employment with the Jesuit Order's Ford Foundation in 1973 and the Stanford Research Institute (the American Tavistock Institute) in 1977 further > incriminates him as a tool of Rome.

> From 1982 to 1987 Webre was a Non-Governmental Organization (NGO) Delegate to the United Nations in New York City. The U.N. has always been a tool of Rome intended to destroy the national sovereignty of the once Protestant and Baptist United States. Its treasonous policies facilitate the creation of a world government espoused by the Jesuits at the Second Vatican Council (1962-1965). (It is most intriguing that at the time of this Council when Rome was pretending to be benevolent to its once "heretic and liberal" opponents, Pope Paul VI murdered our "liberal" Roman Catholic American president, John F. Kennedy.) The murderous and deceptive U.N. was established in the Jesuit haven of San Francisco at the hand of President "Dirty" Harry Truman, a 33rd Degree Scottish Rite Freemason.

> In 2001 Alfred Webre and Dr. Carol Rosin founded the Institute for Cooperation in Space. Webre's General Counsel was Papal Knight of Malta Daniel Sheehan, a the long-time General Counsel for the Jesuit Order's Christic Institute, a left-wing Washington, D.C.,-based law firm. This is a most important connection between Webre, the Knights of Malta and the ubiquitous Jesuit Order. Webre is a supra-internationalist, an elite amidst the highest initiates of the "globalists." He even goes so far as to believe in advanced alien life forms in the universe, that earth has been "quarantined" and that we cosmopolitan earth-dwellers of all nations "have been given an opportunity to join the rest of the spiritually evolved Universe Society in peace, thus an opportunity to avoid environmental global destruction through war." In translating this double-talk, Webre is a world citizen (as are all Knights of Malta), a promoter of the radical, left-wing, environmentalist agenda despite > the fact that his Papal brothers have kept the world enslaved to fossil fuel pollution, further destroying the very earth he claims to protect, and openly advocates world peace when his occult masters in Rome have now incited Cardinal Egan's American-led Crusade called "the War on Terror."

> Alfred Webre is a Papal Knight, a heavyweight among the "globalist insiders" vying for a world government at the expense of the national sovereignty of the United States and Canada—the last bastions of the Protestant Reformation. He is tied to Yale's Skull and Bonesmen, the Knights of Malta and, worst of all, the diabolical and perfidious Society of Jesus—the most powerful secret society in the history of man. An unabashed enemy of both the American and Canadian people, he talks peace when war is his true aim. Therefore, we should not be surprised to observe that Alfred Webre has been appointed Gatekeeper of the "911 Truth Movement." By pretending to genuinely pursue the truth as to the real malefactors behind our mass-murder on September 11, 2001, he is positioned to conceal the truth for the benefit of his master, the Black Pope. Make no mistake; Alfred Webre is a treasonous Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor at a key apex of power.
> At the most recent "911 Truth Conference" held in July of 2007 in Vancouver, British Columbia, Alfred Webre was the master of ceremonies. He was the Black Pope's Gatekeeper pretending to reveal truth when in fact he did all to conceal the real power behind the World Trade Demolition. It is for this reason not one of the featured speakers went into any detail about the Vatican's involvement on that day of infamy. No one said a word from the platform about the Knights of Malta, the Jesuits, the Black Pope or Rome's "Crusade" against Islam and the Protestant Reformation having founded Western Civilization, including American and Canada. Webre was there to make sure none of these topics were raised.
> There was a bright light at the conference however. He is a personal friend and avid "point man" for the exposure of the agents of Rome on many, many fronts. That man was Tim White. Upon confronting Alfred Webre inside of the conference hall, words passed after which Webre admitted to White that his Uncle was a Jesuit, a very powerful Jesuit who, in his time, was next to Jesuit Superior General Pedro Arrupe. That was all it took. Thereafter, White was not admitted into the conference and was threatened with arrest by the RCMP and deportation back to the United States from one of Webre's assistants,Wayne Prante. Without this confrontation, we would have never known of Webre's family connection to the Jesuit Order. We owe a debt of gratitude to Tim White.
> In conclusion, the "911 Truth Movement" is now totally compromised. Never will any truth about Vatican involvement on that fateful morning be promulgated from this seemingly respectable channel. The Jesuits, with their Temporal Coadjutor Alfred Webre and Knights of Malta ("the great men of the earth" Rev. 18:23), now dominate the field. All of their servants, including Alex Jones, Texe Marrs, Dr. Stan Monteith, Jeff Rense, Congressman Ron Paul, Michael Collins Piper, Stew Webb, Tom Heneghan, Hal Turner, Tom Flocco, Constance Cumbey, Rupert Murdoch and his next of kin, Eric Hufschmidt, George Noory, Butch Paugh, Eustace Mullins, Pat Robertson, and any other radio host, network broadcaster or established author who refuses to expose the Vatican "Black Hand" in 911, will continue the great Jesuit Cover-up of the Twenty-first Century. The Jews are to be blamed; the Jesuits are never to be unmasked.
> But there is hope. As long as God the Father is on His throne; as long as His beloved Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, is at His right hand; and as long as the Word of God, the AV1611 Reformation English Bible, in the hands of His elect "in Christ," the devil and his powerful servants have much to fear. For the Book is "quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart."

> Therefore know this, Alfred Webre, and all of your agent provocateurs attempting to conceal the dreadful reality that Rome is behind our greatest of civil disasters: the truth will out and your sin will surely find you out. The war is on, but you have not won the final battle. For my master, the risen Son of God, Head of His true Church—the Body of Christ—and King of Israel, will direct all of his elect to relentlessly fight this "good fight of faith" against "that man of sin" in the Vatican. We are "obstinate heretics" and we shall never relent in our mission to "preach the Word" when it is received and when it is not received, which preaching includes bringing to light the "unfruitful works of darkness." Those works include the premeditated murder of thousands of my countrymen on 911 and during the Black Pope's subsequent "War on Terror." Those works include the deception and murder of those—my elect brethren "in Christ"—in the Twin Towers, the Pentagon and in the > theaters of Iraq and Afghanistan. Their pastors did not tell them of Rome's design upon our country or of the Jesuits in command of our armies; they acted in good faith upon a deception and have now paid with their lives, indeed their "last full measure." Who cannot but weep at the downfall of our nation having departed from the Word of God? And our children, do we not groan in despair over a generation to suffer for the sins of their fathers for the last four generations?
Who will tell them the truth, or will they grow into adulthood only to curse our name for our cowardice and silence as they were enslaved to fight the Pope's crusades and pay his taxes, robbing them of their wealth, health and national inheritance?
> Alfred Webre is a traitor. He is a Papal Knight and loyal to the Pope of Rome. He is thee Vatican Gatekeeper in preventing the truth behind 911 from ever being known. Therefore let every honest man depart from this liar, deceiver and worker of iniquity.

Eric - Hi! If you are going to go after the Vatican, go after the Vatican, not after whistleblowers like me who have been exposing the Vatican for longer than you.

BTW, the Vatican is just a front for the Zionists and the City of London.

Is that what you are, an agent of the City of London and the Zionists?

9/11 War Crimes Tribunal:

http://peaceinspace.blogs.com/911/

Alfred Webre

Dear Dr. Webre,

Herein is my formal reply to this, your second email to me. My formal reply to your first email demanding a full retraction and apology was sent to you last night, September 27, 2008. I resent it again adding the name of Tim White as an aide in documenting your beliefs.

Below, you tell me not to go after "whistleblowers like me who have been exposing the Vatican for longer than you." You then predicate your "exposure" of the Vatican by stating:

"BTW, the Vatican is just a front for the Zionists and the City of London."

This admission and confession betrays your true intent behind your supposed "exposure" of the papacy.

The facts, as set forth in Vatican Assassins III, are these:

1. The papacy has claimed the right to Universal Spiritual Power (as of 606 AD) and the right to Universal Temporal Power (as of 756 AD). The right of private judgment regarding biblical and/or religious matters and the right of national sovereignty without oversight and/or control by the papacy are strictly forbidden. If these two basic rights of private judgment and nationalism are asserted by any people in the face of the pope's "power of the two keys," those individuals or nations are punishable with death or war.

At this time there was no financial colossus called "City of London" or the political movement called "Zionism," the prevalent "Zionism" of today being "Labor Zionism."

2. From approximately 606 AD to 1517 AD the papacy ruled Europe. Kings and people quaked at the dictates of the false "Vicar of Christ" in Rome. Then God, in his great providence, sent the Protestant Reformation into Europe via the hand of Martin Luther. The Bible began to be circulated in the "vulgar" tongue of the Northern European peoples to the utter rage of the papacy. Because of the Bible being read by the common man in his own language, the pope's Universal Spiritual Power began to be broken. This foundation provided the impetus for the breaking of the pope's Universal Temporal Power, the White Anglo-Saxon-Celtic Protestants and Baptists ending Rome's Dark Ages and birthing the Modern Era with the end of the First Thirty Years' War (1618-1648) and the end of the Dutch Civil War against Spain that raged for eighty years (1562-1648).

At this time there was no financial colossus called "City of London" or the political movement called "Zionism," the prevalent "Zionism" of today being "Labor Zionism."

3. As a result of the Protestant Reformation breaking the Dark Age, feudal empire of the papacy, the Devil brought about his Counter Reformation via the hand of his most devoted servant, Ignatius Loyola. Loyola would found the Society of Jesus, first known as the Knights of the Virgin Mary, to fight and down the Protestant Reformation. The Order would also be used to continue the Vatican's quests of: taking Jerusalem from the Moslems; and the systematic theft, persecution and murder of racial Hebrew/Jewish/Israelites dispersed among the nations of the earth. The Order would come to be the greatest persecutor of both the spiritual seed of Abraham and the physical seed of Abraham. Both of these seeds are illustrated in the constellation of Pisces---the two fish, one pointing heavenly, the other earthly.

At this time there was no financial colossus called "City of London" or the political movement called "Zionism," the prevalent "Zionism" of today being "Labor Zionism."

4. The forces of the Bible-based Protestant Reformation and the anti-Bible Counter Reformation would clash throughout the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries. By 1750 the Jesuits would be the confessors and advisors of nearly every king in Europe not to mention the Emperor of China. Then the risen Lord Jesus Christ stretched out his hand against the political/temporal power of the Black Pope ruling the papacy, including the White Pope. In 1759 the Jesuits were expelled from Portugal; in 1764 they were driven from France; in 1768 they were driven from Malta ruled by the Knights of Malta; and in 1767 they were expelled from Spain. These legal expulsions, pronounced by the monarchs aided by their Freemasonic secretaries, included the jurisdictions of all the South American holdings of Portugal and Spain. In 1773, the pope himself signed the Bull "Dominic ac Redemptor noster," suppressing and extinguishing the Order "forever." At this time the first Great Masonic Schism was in full force, it being used by God to set back the ubiquitous power of the Society of Jesus. The Devil's house was now divided---for a time! In 1774 both Austria and Bavaria would expel the Jesuits in obedience to the pope's Bull of Suppression.

At this time there was no financial colossus called "City of London" or the political movement called "Zionism," the prevalent "Zionism" of today being "Labor Zionism."

5. With the military Company of Jesus suppressed, it fought back. In 1776 the "Chiefs" of the Order created their Bavarian Illuminati. Bavaria was the Order's greatest stronghold north of the Alps. The Wittelsbach dynasty had been the faithful servant of the Order for over 150 years, directing the First Thirty Years' War. Now, the Wittlelsbach King of Bavaria, loyal to the pope, expelled the Order from his dominions. Therefore, under perpetual vows to the General of the Order, and in obedience to the maxim that "the ends justify the means," the Order secretly continued as several secret societies under new names. One of those secret societies was the Illuminati; Weishaupt occupied the Chair of Canon Law at Ingolstadt University, he being the first man to occupy that office without being a Jesuit priest. Thus, at that University, the Order created its Illuminati by which it would: seek to punish the Wittelsbach dynasty; unite all the Freemasonic societies, thus ending the first Great Masonic Schism; cause the French Revolution, including the beheading of French Bourbon King Louis XVI and his Austrian Habsburg wife, Marie Antoinette; punish and mass-murder the Dominican Order for taking the Holy Office of the Inquisition away from the Jesuits; bring Napoleon Bonaparte (the Jesuit Avenger called "Robespierre on Horseback") to power from their island prison of Corsica who then would punish the Vatican Empire and the Roman Catholic monarchs who dared to suppress the Jesuit Order; destroy the Protestant Dutch Republic and weaken Protestant Prussia---just to name a few of the goals. With the Order formally protected by Frederick II "the Great" of Prussia and Catherine II "the Great" of Russia, the pope was poisoned in 1774, and the Braganzas of Portugal and the Bourbons of Spain were driven into exile. The Order, via Catherine II, began to herd the Jews of Russia into what became "The Pale of Settlement," later to serve as the killing ground for the migrated Jews of Khazaria (who were in fact racial Jewish Israelites descended from the Assyrian captivity of the northern ten tribes in 722 BC); thus Jesuit Hitler's SS and Jesuit Stalin's NKVD---working together--- would see to that "burnt offering." The Knights of Malta were driven from Malta into Russia by Napoleon in 1798; the Mamluks, they being the bodyguards of the Sultan of Cairo, were annihilated with Napoleon's invasion of Egypt, this deliberately failed campaign of Napoleon being in fact secret Jesuit vengeance for the Mamluks driving the Knights Templars from the Kingdom of Jerusalem in 1291---thus ending that Kingdom the Order was now plotting to re-establish. In fact, Napoleon called for "Palestine" to be a homeland for the Jews, betraying that fact that the Jesuits, advising Napoleon via Abby Sieyes (the second Consul), at that time began to put their plan in motion of re-establishing the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem.

At this time, the Jesuit Order began to use the Hebrew/Jewish Rothschilds as the keepers of their vast fortune which financed the Black Pope's war on the Vatican Empire and upon the Empire's Papal Caesar who would dare to suppress the Society of Jesus. In full control of King George III since no later than 1761, the Order was protected by this damnable monarch. Thus, during the entire Napoleonic Wars (1798-1815) the Black Pope would be in full control of both the British Crown and the French Emperor. He would direct both sides to the ends of his pleasure. In 1814, George III would "rescue" Pope Pius VII from his captors in France, restoring that antichrist and enemy of the English Reformation to "the Chair of St. Peter!" In 1815 Napoleon would deliberately throw the battle of Waterloo (according the General Stonewall Jackson after he reviewed the battlefield), sacrificing his truly nationalistic troops thereby enabling Louis XVIII to return to France, readmit the Jesuits and re-establish the Inquisition. Further, it was arranged that a message would be sent via roost to London from Waterloo stating Napoleon had won the battle. With the stocks dropping to pennies on the pound, the Order's faithful Rothschild bankers were there in London to buy up the market. When the truth was finally told, stocks rose once again but now the Company of Jesus was in full possession of their new world financial colossus---the City of London---and the Order's Illuminized Freemasonic Rothschilds would continue to serve as the Order's bankers. When the Jesuits were restored by the pope in 1814, the papacy was then back in their hands and their "money-men"---the Rothschilds---became the "Keepers of the Vatican Treasury" as they are at this moment.

At this time, the Order ruled their City of London, but Freemasonic Labor Zionism was not yet born.

6. Throughout the 19th century, the Jesuit Order used its Freemasonic leaders, including the treasonous Queen Victoria, ruling the British Empire to implement the maxims of the Black Pope's wicked Counter Reformation Council of Trent. This is why the Order, beginning in 1842---one year after the Order was readmitted into China---used the British to conduct its Opium Wars against the Chinese, who were ever loyal to their Manchu Emperor---who hated the Jesuits. This is why the Order used the British to ignite the American War of 1812 and later, the War Between the States (1861-1865), thereby destroying our once anti-monarchical, Calvinist Republic of Federated Sovereign States (these United States of America). That limited Republic was replaced with the pope's "Holy Roman" Fourteenth Amendment, Socialist-Communist, Corporate-Fascist American Empire (1868) to be used to restore the pope's Universal Temporal Power around the world for over one hundred years---including the present Crusade against the Shia Moslems in Iraq. This new Jesuit Empire would be united with and subordinated to the English monarchy, that witch Queen Victoria giving the "Resolute Desk" to President Rutherford B. Hayes in the 1880s---disgracing the Executive Mansion, later called by President Theodore Roosevelt, "the White House."

At about this time, the Zionist Movement was born calling for the creation of a Jewish homeland in Palestine held by the Moslem Ottoman Empire. Please note that from the founding of the Order in 1540 to the 1880s, over three hundred years had passed with no presence of "Zionism." Obviously, the Jesuit Order came first---with its control over centralized, Illuminized Freemasonry---then came Freemasonic Labor Zionism. First the chicken, then the egg. Yes, the Jesuit Order hatched the egg of Labor Zionism.

7. By 1880 nearly seven million Jews had been confined to the Pale of Settlement which included Western Russia and Eastern Europe. Most of these racial Jews were migrants from Khazaria after it fell to Byzantium, Islam and later Ghengus Khan. As referenced above, the Order began to create this Pale of Settlement in 1791 using their protector and notable whore (according to her son, Paul), Catherine II "the Great," Empress of Orthodox Russia. By 1880 this Pale of Settlement contained approximately 40-50% of the world's Jews. But Czar Alexander II was a good, and truly liberal Czar, which liberality included removing legal restraints upon the Jews of the Empire. For his emancipation of 40 million serfs, his breaking off diplomatic relations with the Vatican---as did Bismarck in the 1870s---, for seeking to eliminate the Okhrana (the Russian secret police) and for being about to sign a Constitution limiting the powers of the Czar, he was murdered by anarchists (blowing off his legs), which anarchists at that time were the Black Pope's international secret society of assassins. For this terrible murder in 1881, the Jews were blamed. Pogroms broke out all over Russia, and in 1882 the Jesuit-authored May Laws were passed greatly oppressing the Hebrews. As a result, these persecutions and May Laws (which laws were in place for over thirty years, only to be rescinded in 1917 with the abdication of Czar Nicholas II) forced the emigration of over two million Jews from Russia, all of them going to historic White Anglo Saxon Protestant lands---America, Canada, South Africa and England. The majority of these destitute Jews who had lost all their property via the theft of the Jesuit-ruled monster, Czar Alexander III, immigrated to America. They were aided by Sephardic Jew Emma Lazarus, she being the author of the poem placed within the Statue of Liberty titled "The New Colossus." Thus, that statue became a symbol for the Jews of the world denoting America to be a safe haven for themselves and their children. (This is another reason why I believe the Statue of Liberty must be blown up by the Order's SS/CIA/FBI/NSA/DIA, for America will cease to be a haven for the Jews in the very near future. No statue, no haven.) God, used the May Laws to drive the physical seed of Abraham, yet to inherit the promises given to the fathers, to lands of refuge that would not be touched by the Black Pope's coming Eurasian Jewish Holocaust.

It was about this time, in the 1890s that the Order authored two events that would serve to begin the creation of the re-establish Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem. Those events were the Dreyfus Affair and the production of The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion. As you must know, Captain Alfred Dreyfus, a Jewish officer in the French Army, was accused of treason in favor to the Germans. He was tried and unjustly convicted for the treason of Roman Catholic Charles Esterhazy, and sent to Devil's Island. In the courtroom was the father of the Labor Zionist movement---Theodor Herzl. This Jesuit design of injustice served as the impetus for Herzl to call for the establishment of a Jewish homeland in Palestine, then controlled by the Turks. What we are not told is that Herzl was a Freemason, a dear friend of Vatican Treasurer/Bank of England director Lord/Baron Walter Rothschild, and that Herzl had an audience with the pope in 1904! Dreyfus was freed two years later, in 1906. The Protocols served to begin to place the blame on the world's Jews for the deeds of the Jesuits. Irish ex-priest Leo Lehmann declared in his Behind the Dictators, that the Order wrote The Protocols.

From this time on, the Jesuit Order was not only in control of the British Empire, including the Bank of England as well as the City of London, it was also in full control of the Black Pope's Freemasonic Labor Zionist Movement backed by the Order's British Labour Party, backed by the Order's Fabian Socialists who were an outgrowth of the Roundtable overseen by 33rd degree Freemasons Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Milner---the murderers of the White Protestant Boers. And further, it was Henry Cardinal Manning, Archbishop of Westminster, who was also a member of the Roundtable! And Manning was the tool of the Jesuit Provincial in London!

Concluding Remarks:

Dr. Webre, you asked me if I was a Zionist? My reply is "What type of Zionist?" There are six types of Zionists. They are:

1. Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists: These are evil Jews ruling the revived Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem for the papacy. Thus, these "Court Jews" rule the Israeli government, the CIA/Nazi-SS/SD-created Mossad, and all that transpires in Israel, to the detriment of the Hebrew/Jewish/Israelites who live in their land promised to the racial descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Case in point: the removal of the Jews from Gaza which is historically part of the land given to the tribe of Judah.

2. Revisionist Zionists: They were Jews who sought to truly establish a nation for Jews, to be ruled for the benefit of Jews. These Revisionist Zionists were either driven from power or murdered, including Vladimir Jabotinsky, falsely labeled to be a "fascist." These Zionists no longer exist.

3. Orthodox Talmudic Zionists: These are religious Jews loyal to the Talmud who do not believe that any Jews have a right to their land prior to the coming of Messiah. This position is an outright denial of specific prophecies regarding the coming of Messiah to a revived nation of Israel and a Jerusalem inhabited with Jews (Ezekiel 38:8; Zechariah 12:10). These Orthodox Zionists unite with the Moslems against the prophetically revived nation of Israel, which nation is considered by the Vatican to be the pope's revived Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem.

4. Arminian Dispensational Christian Zionists: These are supposedly Bible-believing Christians, most of whom have departed from the Reformation Bible, the AV1611 for English-speaking peoples. This type of Christian Zionist backs both the Jesuit-ruled, CFR-directed, evil government of Israel as well as the right of the Hebrew/Jewish/Israelitic people to live in their land in accordance with Genesis 15 and a host of other OT passages to be read literally. I was once of this erroneous position.

5. Calvinist Dispensational Christian Zionists: These are Bible-believing Christians who have not departed from the Reformation Bible, the AV1611 for English-speaking peoples. They read the prophetic scriptures literally even as they read the other scriptures from which they derive the doctrines of grace promulgated in such confessions of faith as the Westminster Confession of Faith, the London Baptist Confession, not to mention Calvin's Institutes of the Christian Religion. Thus, they despise the Jesuit-ruled, CFR-controlled, evil government of Israel, yet defend the right of the racially Hebrew/Jewish/Israelitic people to live in their own land, promised to them via the racial Abrahamic Covenant of Genesis 15. I tenaciously hold to this position. Luther believed in a future restoration of the Nation of Israel under the governance of her returned Messiah. For that to happen, her Messiah must return to a regathered, geographic nation of Israel, in unbelief not knowing her Messiah, and about to be annihilated by the Gentile armies of your World Government controlled by the final pope, risen from the dead after his murder, then to be the Beast/Antichrist.

6. The Lord Jesus Christ: The promised Messiah, the Hope of Israel, is the ultimate Zionist. He will bring peace to Zion as per the prophecies of Isaiah and all the other Hebrew prophets.

"Therefore, thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste." (Isaiah 28:16) This passage is quoted in I Peter 2:6 referring to the Lord Jesus Christ. He is indeed, the ultimate Zionist who will bring peace to Zion---the surname for Jerusalem.

Your second question inquired if I was an "agent for the City of London." This question is answered by my first, most thorough response to your previous question. But for the record, I am not an agent for that damnable papal conclave called the City of London. Its Lord Mayor and all the high Freemasons and Knights of Malta who rule that city for Rome are traitors to their English and Scottish people. Just as Rome rules London, she rules Washington and New York. I attack all the governments of those cities as nothing more than papal conclaves serving as home bases for the pope's International Freemasonic White Power Structure.

Dr. Webre, since you believe that Zionism and the City of London are the real powers in the earth, that the Vatican is merely an agent for what are in fact the creations of the papacy, you, Dr. Webre, are just as much a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor as is Texe Marrs, Michael Collins Piper, Webster Tarpley, the late radio priest and father of hate radio, Charles Coughlin and any other disinformation specialist who has the nerve to deny obvious, easily documentable history. I believe your purpose is to foment fanatical anti-Jewish fury here in North America. May the risen Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ, reward you according to your works.

Sincerely in faith,

Dear Eric - Zionism is a derivative of the Lucifer Rebellion and goes back at least 200,000 years. Zionism seeks to further enslave humanity in an oppresive system, first engendered during the rebellion of Lucifer and Satan against the Universe Administration representatives Adam and Eve. This historical drama is allegorically depicted in sacred texts of our civilization such as the Book of Genesis.

You are obviously caught in the trap that human history began approximately 6000 years ago, and no great civilizations existed on Earth prior to the Great Flood.

Please read my book EXOPOLITICS: POLITICS, GOVERNMENT AND LAW IN THE UNIVERSE (Universebooks.com)

I had not realized before that you were Exopolitically illiterate.

With all best wishes, Alfred

Dear Friends and Brethren,

Notice that Dr. Webre has not addressed one charge leveled against him.

Notice that Dr. Webre believes that Lucifer and Satan are two different beings, which belief is not taught in God's Word, the Reformation's AV1611 Bible. The Bible teaches that Lucifer, "the anointed cherub that covereth" (Ezekiel 28:14), fell when "iniquity was found" in him (Ezekiel 28:15) via his five "I wills" (Isaiah 14:13-14). As a result of this fall, Lucifer lost his glorious body of a Cherub and became a disembodied spirit. That spirit's new name was then Satan. The pre-incarnate Son of God personally saw that historical fall (Luke 10:18). That fall brought darkness into the universe and made the earth "formless and void" (Gen. 1:2). After the creation of man (Adam and Eve) six days later, Satan is found indwelling the body of a beautiful and subtle "serpent" through which he (Satan) literally spoke to the woman, Eve (Gen. 3:1-5). All of this is quite literal and held to be such by the Lord Jesus Christ Himself when he said:

"When he [the devil] speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it" (John 8:44).

The first lie ever told was spoken by "the devil" (whose proper fallen name is "Satan") when he indwelt and spoke through the serpent to Eve in the Garden of Eden.

Notice that Dr. Webre regards the book of Genesis as an allegory---a fairy tale along the line of Aesop's Fables. Unfortunately, Jordon Maxwell---the man who rightly blames this entire world conspiracy on Rome and the Jesuits, as he said, "All roads lead to Rome," believes the same thing, that the Bible is a fairy tale as well as there was no literal Adam and Eve, no literal Abraham, etc., thereby making the literal Lord Jesus Christ Who literally appeared in time and space (29-32 AD) out to be a liar as He believed in the historical existence of Adam and Eve (Mark 10:6-8) as well as Abraham (John 8:56-59).

Notice that Dr. Webre believes the "Lucifer Rebellion" (as indeed it was) is at least 200,000 years old. This is strictly a pseudo religious belief of Dr. Webre, for there is no such fact recorded either in the Bible or in verifiable, secular history. This false religious belief is not founded upon objective science but a predisposed faith premised on nothing.

I most assuredly do believe the earth that we presently occupy is not one day older than 6200 years, that is, if Adam fell shortly after he was created in the literal Garden of Eden. Sumer, the oldest civilization known to archeology (further validating the truth of the Word of God as man was created in Mesopotamia and began to resettle the earth after the Great Flood in that same "land between two rivers," in contrast to Africa as now taught in every major university), is no older than 2500 BC. All the dating methods employed today involve subjective guesses (carbon dating, potassium argon, etc.), which guesses bias and prejudice the findings of the supposed scientists (Leaky, Lyell, Darwin, De Chardin, etc.). The nonsensical, atheistic tenet of "evolution of man" as supposedly traced through "ape to man" has been disproven to the extent such "scientific belief" is laughable. The unverifiable belief that the earth is millions of years old and that man is hundreds of thousands of years old is pure religion based neither on the Word of God nor true science.

I most assuredly believe that the worldwide, global Great Flood of Noah (Genesis 6-9) is a true event in history, first and foremost because the Lord Jesus Christ spoke of it as a real event (Matthew 24:37-39). Secondly, the Ark of Noah has been discovered and well documented by G. Edward Griffin in a most excellent video on the discovery of the Ark. Thirdly, the Creation Research Society has sponsored much work in the analysis of geologic formations which prove that not only all sedimentary rock was formed under water, but certain igneous rock discovered at high altitudes (14,000 ft in Turkey) cooled under water. Science, Scripture and Salvation is the Society's motto.

Therefore, I believe there was a civilization of Man that existed for 1656 years (from Adam to Noah's entering the Ark) prior to the Great Flood of Noah. But all evidence of any such civilization was decimated in the cataclysmic upheaval that accompanied the Flood. Atlantis may well have existed, but that civilization was destroyed, crushed into dust, never to be "rediscovered."

In conclusion, I have chosen not to answer Dr. Webre's reply due to his silence and thus consent of my charges.

Dr. Alfred Webre is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor.

Seems CSIS, Alfred Lambremont Webre is now attacking Eric Jon Phelps with this pathetic diamond smear. They've looked high and low for some dirt on Eric and could not find any. The racism smears do not work as more people keep flocking to our information. So now they have to twist and push this Israel-Diamond issue which is actually meaningless. Amazing how supposedly intelligent people could think they'd get away with this. They know the hardcore researchers of truth wont be swayed by their junk but their aiming all this at the new baby researcher. The ones who long onto these agents and their coat tails. The ones who are being falsely programmed to Jews (Hofjuden Court Jews) ruling the World nonsense. The same information my mother's cats would come out with.

Lets just forget from now on these people completely and continue as usual. They want the bickering and distractions. The Jesuit loves all this! I personally will not entertain debating etc on the subject any more. I will say a big thankyou to the Society of Jesus and their Zionist hating chums, as their simply helping to advertise us all further. Once people with a brain read all our works, links, books etc they will soon see the truth in front of them. So thankyou again, but at the same time death to the Society of Jesus. What makes me laugh is how they claim as if only Eric Phelps has said the Rothschilds are mere pawns. They forget Dr John Coleman speaking of the weak Rothschilds in the grand scheme of things. He spoke of The Fondi of Venice/Italy. Theres others too who've said the same thing. Rothschilds are powerful Hofjudens but their simply that Hofjuden Court Masonic Labor Sabbatean Frankists. Utilising the front of Judism same as the Dragon using Roman Catholism. Both fronts for the Luciferian religion at the top. The more they attack us the more we win, so keep it up!

Wake up people and smell the agents, disinformation and coffee! -Craig

Are you filthy rich? Do you have a lot of excess cash laying around? Are you in the market for fine-cut diamonds and gems? If so, then Eric Jon Phelps would like to hear from you.

Eric Jon Phelps, Vice President and Chief of Sales for an Israeli affiliated company, www.lowvehm.com, wants you to know that the diamonds and colored gems he and lowvehm.com sell come direct from Tel Aviv, Israel. Sure, they will cost you a lot but, Phelps insists, Israeli diamond cutters are the best in the world.

Yes, these fine, luxurious and expensive diamonds are now available for sale to Mr. Phelps "exclusive clients," direct from Israel.

Whoa! Hold on…Wait just a minute! Eric Jon Phelps you say? Isn•t he the guy that authored the book, Vatican Assassins? Yes, indeed, they•re one and the same. It appears that Mr. Phelps wears many cloaks. As one source on the internet wryly notes, "Eric Jon Phelps is quite a chameleon. He•s a jack of all trades." White supremacist, racist, Israeli diamond trader, former concrete mixer, author•Eric Jon Phelps is all these things and more. But he•s probably best known as the author of a very flawed and absurd book, Vatican Assassins, that its mysterious publishers bill as an expos• of the Vatican•s Jesuit Order.

Phelps Busy Labeling People "Jesuit" Infiltrators

Did you know that Alfred Webre, top 9/11 truther, is actually an undercover Catholic Jesuit operative?…that popular talk show host Alex Jones is secretly a Jesuit agent as well as a CIA plant?…that Christian author Constance Cumbey is a Vatican stooge and a "Romish Vixen" controlled by the Jesuits?…

Yep, that•s what this fellow, Eric Jon Phelps claims. He offers no proof, of course, but that doesn't deter Phelps from smearing many good people. Phelps, if you believe him, is very busy spilling the beans on the evil Jesuit Order and its spidery labyrinth of paid secret agents.

According to Phelps, the Jesuits are responsible for just about everything diabolical. They ordered the hit on President John F. Kennedy; they covertly ran the Vietnam War; they secretly control all the world•s banks and they tell the U.S. Congress what to do. Phelps warns that their secret priests are everywhere. Alaska Governor Sarah Palin is a Jesuit stooge; so are Obama and McCain.

Phelps, never shy in asserting his arrogant claims, says that the Jesuits are behind the Order of Skull & Bones. They supervise the Council on Foreign Relations; they control Wall Street•s billions, and if Phelps is to be believed, the Catholic Jesuits are the founders of Communism and Nazism alike.

Zionist Jews? By Phelps reckoning, the Zionists and Israelis are meek little lambs; certainly they are not behind any conspiracy. Phelps absolves the Jews of blame for anything. And even if the ADL is made up of a bunch of Christian hating rabbis, Phelps asserts that the ADL is secretly under control of the Jesuits. They, not the Jewish leaders of the ADL, are the culprits who are defaming Christianity. Tsk Tsk, the Jesuits do the dirty deeds and the poor Jews always get all the blame! That's Phelps assertion, being, as he is, an Israeli diamond profiteer.

Phelps seems to have a special dislike and disdain for Christians who oppose New Age occultism. Take, for example, Constance Cumbey, author of the bestselling Hidden Dangers of the Rainbow. Ms. Cumbey, a pioneer in exposing New Age occultism, has become a key target of his wrath. Phelps forthrightly labels her a deceiver and, he trumpets, a Jesuit monster. Phelps warns that Cumbey is nothing less than a "Conservative Baptist Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor."

Phelps writes on his website that Cumbey is a dangerous woman; indeed, according to Phelps, Cumbey is a "cunning female Coadjutor for the Jesuit Order, a covert member of Opus Dei, Catholic Action or the Dames of Malta." Whew! Quite a list there.

Cumbey is so evil that he, Phelps, considers it "necessary" to expose this woman whom he colorfully describes as a "venomous, vicious, Romish Vixen" with, he colorfully adds, "notorious connections with Rome."

Constance Cumbey a "venomous, vicious, Romish Vixen" involved in "perfidious dealings" with the wicked Jesuit conspiracy? She denies it, says it•s laughable (http://cumbey.blogspot.com/search?q=eric+jon+phelps), and Christians who know Cumbey's long-standing service believe her, not Phelps. Still, smear artist, mud-slinger Phelps labors on, working for and promoting the Zionist cause.

What evidence does Phelps introduce for his outrageous claims against Cumbey, Jones and others? Zilch, nada, not a shred.

Phelps: “Rothschilds Work for the Jesuits”

Amazingly, if Phelps is to be believed (not!), even the Rothschilds, the most infamous of Zionist Illuminati, are not really the guilty source of crimes or conspiracy. Phelps says the Jesuits are actually the hidden controllers of the Rothschilds. (What supermen these Jesuits seem to be!) The Jesuits run Hollywood, too, and the Jesuits are masterminds of the pornography industry. According to Phelps, the Jesuits are guilty of, well, just about everything. They•re probably even behind the extraterrestrial and UFO aliens.

Is Christian author Constance Cumbey or 9/11 researcher Alfred Webre an evil Jesuit infiltrator? Of course not. Neither is Alex Jones a CIA disinformation agent, as Phelps so pompously and ridiculously insists. And that cockeyed theory that Jesuit killers carried out the JFK assassination? Oh boy, is this guy a bizarre and rough-shaped oddball!

Phelps: Silly, Harmless Oddball?

But, is that all that Eric Jon Phelps is•a bizarre and silly, harmless oddball? Defamation, libel, and slander are never harmless. Such crimes leave behind victims and sometimes damaged reputations, and they do injustice to the truth. Consider this: Phelps has guested recently on a number of patriot radio talk shows spouting his ridiculous theories, accusing hapless victims, undermining the truth, and aiding and abetting those who do not want Americans to know the truth about the 9/11 cover-up, Zionist crimes, and the world financial crisis.

Because of his extravagant claims and pretense of being an “expert,” Phelps has apparently gained a sort of “cult” following. Boasting that he is a died-in-the-wool Reformation Protestant opposed to Jesuitism, he has suckered in many who rightly are concerned about the error of the Vatican. Others just seem drawn to his absurdities. Then there are the neocon evangelical, pro-Israel crowd•zealots convinced that the Jews and Israel are the good guys and that the Christians like Cumbey, the workers in the 9/11 Truth Movement, and the patriot leaders are covert agents of Rome.

Phelps has even been invited to a conspiracy conference as an “expert.” Quite an achievement for a guy who has little formal education and who formerly laid cement for a living.

Phelps• victims, unfortunately, are growing in numbers. Phelps• unsupported attack on those leading the 9/11 Truth Movement is especially sad and damaging. He fraudulently labeled Alfred Webre a “covert Jesuit agent.” Who is Alfred Webre? A person who has worked diligently cobbling together the International Citizens 9/11 War Crimes Tribunal, seeking to hold to account Bush, Cheney, Netanyahu and other 9/11 criminals. For his sterling efforts, Mr. Webre was blasted with unsubstantiated false libel by the pompous, loose cannon Zionist zealot, Eric Jon Phelps. Phelps, cloaking himself as “Brother Eric,” sent out this accusatory letter on the internet:
“Dear Brethren and Friends:I consider Alfred Webre to be a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor…The same holds true for Alex Jones and several others…”

Sincerely in Faith,
Brother Eric

Brother Eric, indeed, “How about false accuser Eric?” In fact, Alfred Webre has been at the forefront in exposing elitist machinations, exactly the opposite of what Phelps contends! Talk about sowing confusion and dissension!

Webre is joined as a victim by many others, all good people unfairly smeared. Many of whom are dedicated patriots, 9/11 Truthers, and Christians devoted to exposing the elite. But Phelps sees otherwise, branding them all as Jesuits in hiding.

Phelps: Anti-Semites and Jesuits Are Everywhere!

Eric Jon Phelps gets a kick out of calling targeted people “anti-Semites,” but he especially loves to brand his innocent victims with the label of “Jesuit temporal coadjutor.” According to Phelps, the conspiracy theory woods are just full of Jesuit spies, Jesuit killers, Jesuit provocateurs, Jesuit covert priests, and assorted Opus Dei and Knights of Malta secret operatives.

Phelps even suggested that Congressman Ron Paul is a covert Jesuit, and Michael Collins Piper, author of several excellent books exposing Zionism is, naturally, also a “Jesuit” in hiding. Yeah, that•s right, Phelps accuses Ron Paul, Collins, and a whole host of other folks of working clandestinely for the “Black Pope.”

Just who is this Eric Jon Phelps? And what about his bloated, but unscholarly anti-Catholic book, Vatican Assassins? Who really wrote it, published it, and is now distributing it?

Well, leave it to resourceful true patriots and Christians to come up with the answer to these intriguing questions. Lately, more and more facts about the shadowy Mr. Phelps and his rather unsavory friends have been uncovered by inquiring researchers.

Phelps An Israeli Diamond Merchant

As I stated, it turns out that Eric Jon Phelps has been neglecting to mention on radio the fact that he is Vice President of a Newmanstown, Pennsylvania, firm, www.lowvehm.com. According to the firm•s website, Phelps is a trader and merchant of wholesale diamonds and colored gems from Israel. In a letter posted on the lowvehm.com website with his signature as Vice President, Phelps boasts:
“Lowvehm, Inc. offers the finest quality diamonds on today•s market. Israeli cutters being the best in the world, we order direct from Tel Aviv (Israel•s) famous diamond district. All sales are final. No refunds are given…”

Phelps then closes the offer with:
“Sincerely for your gemological satisfaction,”Eric Jon Phelps
Vice President
Lowvehm Inc.
203 South Fort Zellers Rd., Suite D
Newmanstown, PA 17073

Phelps also brags on the lowvehm.com website that he can assist “our wealthy clients” with “customized,” exclusive international business consultant services. He promises to help “men and women of wealth” survive and prosper in the 21st century.

According to the website, the tenets and beliefs of a Jewish medical doctor, Mendelsohn, are endorsed.

At one point, in his promo to “men and women of wealth”, Phelps actually mentions his book, Vatican Assassins. One supposes this is particularly of interest to wealthy Jewish clients who despise all Christians and would appreciate doing business with a Tel Aviv, Israel, diamond trader who has taken Christians to task.

Phelps A New Ager, says Cumbey

Phelps, on the same website, lowhevm.com, also pushes what most would consider various kooky “New Age” health products, ranging from magnets to magical energy water, hyperbolic pressure chambers, orgone accelerators, and other strange things, such as “healthful, beautiful, inspiring music.” His ad for these “high energy” products seem to be similar to bogus alternative health claims made by rabbis on a number of Jewish cabalistic websites. Cabalist devotees Madonna and Paris Hilton would no doubt appreciate these New Age health aids. Indeed, entertainer Michael Jackson, also into cabalistic sorcery, once used a hyperbolic pressure chamber as an “anti-aging” tool.

Jewish cabalistic rabbis are steeped in magic and New Age practices. They, too, have many websites selling “blessed energy water” and other quack products. And remember Constance Cumbey, the Christian author whom Phelps ridiculously blasts as a “venomous, vicious, Romish Vixen” agent of the Jesuits? Cumbey•s own website reports that after carefully reviewing Phelps• Vatican Assassins book, she concludes, “The book is a New Age book with a New Age agenda.” “It is moreover,” she says, “an ugly book.”

Cumbey also notes that Phelps enthusiastically endorses the New Age “hollow earth” theory. Phelps, however, responds claiming this gobbledygook theory is “truly Biblical and scientific.”

Journalist Forum Exposes Phelps

The very reliable Curt Maynard blogspot has unmasked Phelps and Israeli Zionist diamond connections http://curtmaynardsnewestblog.blogspot.com...eric+jon+phelps. The Outlaw Journalism Forum, too, has an especially enlightening discussion regarding the ridiculous and unsubstantiated•yet harmful•accusations by Eric Jon Phelps against good Christian believers, patriots, and 9/11 truthers (www.outlawjournalism.com/forum/dirtonericjonphelps).

So now we know why Phelps may be so ardently attacking Jones, Piper, Webre, Cumbey, Paul and others. By his own admission, he is a Zionist, an Israeli diamond merchant, a White Supremacist and a “good racist.” Still, questions remain:

1. Phelps is a trader in Israeli merchanted diamonds and gems. Do those Jewish agents finance his bogus anti-Jesuit tirades?
2. Who really owns www.lowvehm.com?
3. Phelps, on his separate Vatican Assassins website, admits that www.lowvehm.com holds the “license” to his book and is the distributor. Yet, Phelps says that he as author, has no legal connection with www.lowvehm.com. We have shown this, however, to be untrue. It is lowvehm.com that licenses and distributes the book, yet Phelps, its supposed author, as “Vice President” of lowvehm.com, has no legal ties? Incidentally, lowvehm.com•s listed address is “Newmanstown, Pennsylvania, and Phelps resides in…Newmanstown, of course…
4. The original publisher of Phelps book is said by him to be a California company named “Halycon Unified Services.” Who is this? Did Phelps really write this book, or was its author the Israeli Mossad? Do the Jewish diamond people own an interest in either “Halycon Unified Services” or lowvehm.com? (According to Amazon.com, Halycon Unified Services only published this one book and no others, before or since.) Hmmm.
5. Is Eric Jon Phelps a covert Mossad operative? We have no concrete evidence that he is. Still, his business connections with Israeli-affiliated lowvehm.com and other information uncovered, in our opinion, surely taint anything he says or writes on the subject of Israel, Zionism, Christianity, and foreign affairs.
6. Is Eric Jon Phelps secretly himself a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor? Consider the fact that he often savagely attacks good Christian people who have exposed Catholicism•s errors. Moreover, his book is so preposterous and unscholarly and his claims so ridiculous it causes the public to laugh at and scorn legitimate Jesuit exposers. These are the marks of a clever Jesuit agent. Phelps could be exactly that!

A final summation:

Eric Jon Phelps has greatly harmed and injured the reputation of a number of outstanding patriotic people with his vicious attacks. We now see why Phelps, in bed with Israeli diamond traders and pushing what some believe to be New Age related products, is so cleverly and insidiously spreading lies and disinformation. He•s been able to dupe many gullible followers.

Phelps heartily supports the Zionist Illuminati agenda by creating “Straw Men” and by authoring a book so flawed and absurd it discredits the whole Truth Movement.

We can easily see that Eric Jon Phelps is a Zionist shill, a false Christian (in our opinion, based on our investigation), and a “White Supremacist.” But let us be on the lookout for future “Eric Jon Phelps” types. Before you take such agent provocateurs at their word, please, check them out. They, too, may just be up to their necks in the Israeli diamond trade and other lucrative pro-Zionist ventures. Don•t be deceived.

REFUTATION & EXPOSE OF ALFRED WEBRE & HIS TACIT ENDORSEMENT OF A COUNTERINTELLIGENCE ATTACK ON ERIC PHELPS

Note to readers:

The following is an amended version of an email to Alfred Webre. In the original I was under the impression that Mr Webre wrote the piece that he forwarded as an email. He has since notified me that this was not the case. I have made slight modifications in phrasing to allow for this. This version has now been posted to him.

Dear Mr Webre

Your email containing an article full of lies, half-truths, & distortions has come to my attention.

This draws me back to an earlier email of yours posted on September 27, where you wrote:

“Zionism is a derivative of the Lucifer Rebellion and goes back at least 200,000 years. Zionism seeks to further enslave humanity in an oppresive system, first engendered during the rebellion of Lucifer and Satan against the Universe Administration representatives Adam and Eve. This historical drama is allegorically depicted in sacred texts of our civilization such as the Book of Genesis."

Now we read in the article below Constance Cumbey's ludicrous assertion in regard to Eric Jon Phelps' "Vatican Assassins" that "The book is a New Age book with a New Age agenda." This is reposted by yourself vebatim without qualification. Whether you agree with the statement or not, it would seem bizarre to repost a statement that in fact is far more suited to your own philosophy.
This is where you show your true deceitful, duplicitous colours, as we can clearly see by comparing these words with the above statement. You see Mr Webre: your arrogance presupposes that your critics are as ignorant as your enthusiasts (assuming they exist). In your Luciferian Masonic presumptiveness you must think that you can get away with such contrariness, leaving all others slack-jawed in your wake. Here you are very much mistaken & I am here to call you out.

Here is the source of your pro-Jesuit, pro-Illuminized Masonic Luciferian philosophy:

Bob Frisell's "Nothing In This Book Is True, But It's Exactly How Things Are". The revised edition is dated 1994.

This great work of pure comedy claims that there were several "Luciferian Rebellions": "the last Lucifer rebellion was about 200,000 years ago…" & it claims that there were at least three before that.

Frisell states in the acknowlegement: "Although it should be obvious from the book how much this is the work and teaching of Drunvalo Melchizidek, I would like to specifically acknowledge Drunvalo"

This is the URL where we find Drunvalo Melchizidek's bio in his own words:

http://www.drunvalo.net/bio.html

Including this psy-ops gem:

"Meeting the Angels

While in Vancouver, my wife and I decided we wanted to know about meditation, so we started studying with a Hindu teacher who lived in the area. We were very serious in wanting to understand what meditation was about. We had made white silk robes with hoods and were very serious about this new endeavor we had begun.

Then, one day, after practicing meditation for about four or five months, two tall angels about ten feet high appeared in our room! They were right there. One was green and one was purple. We could see through their transparent bodies, but they were definitely there. We did not expect this appearance to take place. We were just following the instructions that our Hindu teacher was giving us. I don't believe he fully understood as he kept asking us many questions and he didn't seem to understand either. From that moment on, my life was never the same. It wasn't even close.

The first words the angels said were, "We are you." I had no idea what they meant. I said, "You're me?" Then, slowly they began to teach me various things about myself and the world, and about the nature of consciousness … until finally my heart just completely opened to them. I could feel tremendous love from them which totally changed my life.

Over a period of many years, they led me to about seventy different teachers. They would actually tell me the address and the phone number of the teacher I was to go see. They would tell me either to call first or just show up at his or her house. So I would do this — and it would always be the right person! Then I would be instructed to stay with that person for a certain length of time.

Sometimes, right in the middle of a particular teaching, the angels would say, "Okay, you're done. Leave."I remember when they sent me to Ram Dass. I hung out in his house for about three days wondering what the heck I was doing there; then one day I went to touch him on the shoulder to say something and I got a zap that practically knocked me on the floor. And that was it — the angels said, "That's it. "You can leave now." And I said, "Okay." Ram Dass and I became friends, but whatever I was supposed to learn from him was over within that one second."

Mr Webre, in your reposting of this piece you seem to be happy in helping promote the Vatican's Continued Medical Inquisition, calling all natural & homeopathic "quackery", thus endorsing the sociopathic, allopathic cut-burn-drug methodology.

Your source states the following: "The very reliable Curt Maynard blogspot has unmasked Phelps and Israeli Zionist diamond connections http://curtmaynardsnewestblog.blogspot.com...ic+jon+phelps."

Very reliable? What nonsense is this? Maynard actually does promote HATEFUL racism, as contrasted with a non-hateful racism that is Biblical & promotes self-determinant racial separation as advocated by people of many backgrounds, racially, religiously & philosophically seeking to physically, mentally & spiritually seek solutions to the impediments of self-determination, including Marcus Garvey & Malcolm X! Both enemies of pro-Papal evil white men & their black pawns. What do we have instead: no choice & barely contained fury from all corners.

Maynard used - uncredited of course - his own Mexican wife & mixed-race children in racial-hatred promoting blogs. Let's get one thing clear: I don't think that the illegal Mexicans should be allowed into the USA & allowed to stay, for several reasons, including the fact that they will be used to introduce &/or entrench fascism & the introduction of full-scale use of the concentration camps in the wake of race war. Maynard would love this however & your unqualified reposting of this article, used as a comment on Eric Phelps, is a silent approval of this position as is no surprise.

Also no surprise is Maynard refusing to post my comments with links that easily deconstruct the agenda of his Phelps accusations & then doing a runner.

Please investigate the full story at the links - within my comments to Maynard - looking into the nature of diamond industry today & get a little bit more aware (that's if you don't already know otherwise) of the fact that this "all diamonds are blood diamonds" counterintelligence smear is not even remotely accurate.

Like the author of the article that you posted you may be tempted to start painting a portrait of myself & any other supporters of Eric's research & of the truth as being "agent provocateurs … [who] may just be up to their necks in the Israeli diamond trade and other lucrative pro-Zionist ventures." Far from it, my friend. I have worked in music & technology retail for the past few years & research when I can in my spare hours.

I had to shake my head in pity at the "ivory tower" delusions (not too mention that recurring ignorance - when the author wrote:

"Phelps has even been invited to a conspiracy conference as an "expert." Quite an achievement for a guy who has little formal education and who formerly laid cement for a living."

So Eric has had some working class manual labour experience. How does this disqualify him from learning from a quarter-century worth of private study & having the bottle to put the fruits of his learning & contemplation in book form & to promote it in whatever way he can? No mention of (or deliberately avoiding) his time in the US Air Force both in the USA & Germany from 1972-77, followed by 4 years in two different Bible Colleges, including Lancaster.

What were you doing this time, Mr Webre? Oh, according to your Wikipedia entry you went from working for the Ford Foundation's phony environmentalism agenda to the global elite's policy management group thinktank & hothouse, the Stanford Research Institute! What a surprise! This time being followed up by working for the trojan-horse One World Government, the United Nations, promoting North American disarmament & leading to his statement made only last year in defence of China's anti-satellite missile tests. So China, financial creation & puppet of the Western elite, the new threat that our overt & covert leaders currently openly support until its time to unleash the trauma, this China, with the totalitarian socialist system that I have no doubt you desire for the US & the rest of the world, you justify their actions as being to "stop the United States from proliferating weapons in space". Do you think that we were all born yesterday?

You sir, are the natural inheritor of that Nazi counterintelligence agent & areonautics expert Wernher von Braun, as we can also see by your working with Dr Carol Rosin, von Braun's one-time assistant. To find you are also in the thick of the Disclosure Project (Disinformation Project more like) as "Congressional Coordinator comes as no surprise. This whole enterprise run by Maharishi University of Management-graduate, mind-controlled New Age guru Steven M. Greer. Using a classic counterintelligence tactic of telling a partial truth regarding suppressed energy technology (which exists, but is not back-engineered from physical crashed craft, as the UFO intelligence crowd would have us believe. Roswell was crashed terrestrial flying saucer technology with knowledge derived from Egyptian/Babylonian-derived Rosicrucian/Masonic entity-channeling a.k.a. demonic envocation. This is then mixed in with the "all aliens are good aliens & they're all space creatures & our Galactic brothers" psy-ops that seeks to supplant the angelic/demonic realm of the Bible & even the Koran (used here for illustrative not endorsement purposes). Who supports your contentions though?: Monsignor Balducci & that Jesuit/Vatican/Rockefeller asset Zechariah Sitchin.

See:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Corrado_Balducci

http://www.bibliotecapleyades.net/sitchin/esp_sitchin_9.htm

Ah, the pieces are all starting to come together now aren't they, Mr Webre? All hung out to dry. From your fact-bending smearjob on Eric Phelps to your own Occult-based, pro-Vatican, mind-bending psy-ops diversions.

So when the author of the article that you post to support your stance writes: "According to Phelps, the Jesuits are guilty of, well, just about everything. They're probably even behind the extraterrestrial and UFO aliens," we are led to suppose that they're being tongue-in-cheek, ironic. In actual fact you know that Eric does state this & whats more, he is in fact 100% correct. Oh the webs that one weaves when the plan is to deceive!

I think that you have been caught in your own web now though, don't you, Mr Webre?

Eric's time spent in construction leading to health complications which led him to the natural (alternative) treatments that is dismissed as "bogus", "kooky", in essence "quackery." Words poken like a true inquisitor of Rome. Again, with no qualification from yourself.

So we read the attempt to use against Eric the fact that he has been very open about having visited Israel twice (no big deal for a scripturally-based Christian, with this being the site of the Holy Land, I would have thought) & using his own name in promotional material for his & his wife's businesses. But for you the mysterious author of this piece he “cloaks himself” behind signing off his emails as Brother Eric. This is a common enough practice for many Christians who don’t endorse the Vatican doctrine that clergy & laity are separate, the former being “the Church” & the latter its servants. Ah, but in this epistle we can see that to attack the Vatican & the Jesuits is to “attack Christianity”. Words poken like a true Jesuit fresh out of the Council of Trent. These anti-Biblical, pro-Babylonian usurpers & false Christians are your covert brothers in arms, by your silence & lack of qualification of this you leave us in no doubt.

Of no interest is it to you that Eric has been most outspoken in criticising the Israeli government (which perhaps you confuse with Israelis per se, as a non-American Marxist might conflate Americans with the American government, as if one & the other are indistinguishable. No, you insist reposting an article by some undicerning critic who resorts to fallacies such as him selling to “”exclusive clients,” direct from Israel” Why wouldn’t these Israeli “exclusive clients” buy their own? It’d be like him trying to sell coals to Newcastle! Actually when we examine the ad we see that the wording above is the source of the confusion & that there are no references to clients from Israel.

Like many counterintelligence propagandists both you & those you use as critical support are wary of differentiating between different forms of Zionism & indeed looking into the history of Zionism. No mention of Hitler’s smashing of around 250 Zionist organisations in order to allow the Labor Zionism of the Papal-loyal Frankist-Sabbataians to flourish. The same Nazi partners who have controlled Israel via Papal-assets like Shimon Peres, who deeded the holy sites of East Jerusalem, including Temple Mount & Mt Zion to the Vatican in a later-exposed covert deal with Rome at the end of the 1993 Oslo Accords.

The kind of research that Eric Phelps, Barry Chamish & many other honest researchers bring to the table in showing how both the so-called “Zionists” (Masonic & Papal-knighthood directed Labor Zionist Israeli elite) & “Arabs” (Masonic & Papal-knighthood directed Arab elites) are controlled by Rome can be seen here, via some discoveries of my own & some that fellow truth-seekers have alerted me too:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/category/papal-court-arabs/

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/category/p...court-zionists/

Can anyone in good faith honestly say that such information is one-sided?

The esoteric Zionist elite do not serve the cause of true, Torah-faithful, non-Talmudic (that Babylonian/Roman creation the Talmud) religious Jews & I’m not talking here about those other Jesuit coadjutors like Naturei Karta those who espouse the false & un-Biblical doctrine that their Messiah must arrive before the Jewish nation of Israel is in place. As with Islam & Christianity, the occult Papal-loyal elites rule Judaism, to the detriment of the Jewish people.

Just as the Jesuits' Papal-loyal Nazi partner Arabs control the "other side". Did you know that the Presidents of Syria & Yemen, the former President of Lebanon & the Ambassador to the King of Morocco are all members of the Duke of Castro's Papal-loyal chivalric orders, the Franco-Neapolitan Constantinian Order & Royal Order of Francis I? That two members of the House of Saud: Governor of Mecca Prince Khalid al Faisal & Prince Bandar bin Khalid, both sons of decease Saudi Kings are also members of this Papal-loyal Order of Francis I? That top British-based Iraqi businessman & Papal Knight of St Sylvester, Nadhmi Auchi, friend of Saddam Hussein & Barrack Hussein Obama, an international fraudster & co-owner (via his General Mediterranean Holding) of the Eurozone's largest bank BNP Paribas is also a member? The list goes on & on including 62 Vatican Cardinals & Archbishops; rich & infamous P2 Masonic Lodge members like Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi & House of Savoy head Vittorio Emanuele, Prince of Naples; very rich & influential British-based Iranian businessmen like Nasser David Khalili & another Papal Knight of St Sylvester Mahmoud Kayami also? Or the current & previous Archbishops of Canterbury, the top position in the Church of England?

http://www.constantinian.com/dynastic-constantinian.html

http://www.constantinian.com/dynastic-francis.html

All Papal-loyal, all hiding behind the synthetic syncretism of "inter-religious dialogue" that is one most important aspect of the transition to the New World Religion under the Papacy?

Does it start to click with you when we consider that the family of these Orders' Grand Master's wife (the Duchess of Castro) - the Crocianis - own Vitrociset, manufacturer of military, satellite & radar equipment?

http://www.vitrociset.it/

Did you know that the PLO have had offices in the Vatican since 1994?

http://www.tenc.net/docs/vis.htm

We read in the article: "Phelps even suggested that Congressman Ron Paul is a covert Jesuit, and Michael Collins Piper, author of several excellent books exposing Zionism is, naturally, also a "Jesuit" in hiding".

Well, we can say this for certain: Ron Paul IS a Vatican apologist:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/06/13...ron-papal-paul/

And he DOES support that Bacchanalia of Catholics & high-level Masons with covert CFR & SMOM Knights of Malta links, John Birch Society, run by Jesuit-trained President John F. McManus:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/02/12...uits-the-truth/

The same Jesuit asset that Alex Jones defers to:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/06/13...-birch-society/

And Piper IS a Roman Catholic, so neither of these two are exactly unbiased (nor Jones or his co-coadjutor Texe Marrs). Piper's research has some merits & has had certain aspects included in the third edition of "Vatican Assassins III". Eric's debate with Piper was far from the one-sided fight that the counterintelligence assets of the internet have pushed it as being, as an honest listen to it will reveal. In fact this recording has actually won over a few doubters of the power of Rome.

We also read a defence of that friend of Jesuit-trained Knight of Malta Pat Buchanan: Alex Jones. Nice little club there. Some kind of Bohemian Grove type thing perhaps?

I have read this Outlaw Forum thread that is referenced. While not wishing to spend the rest of my life in some tit-for-tat thread dispute, I will say that none of the protagonists there have even seriously attempted to look into the veracity of Eric Phelps' claims & unparalleled research & I sincerely wish that they would. I shall post this there too & recommend that the readers "eat the meat & spit out the bones", as Eric recommends even for the likes of Jesuit-asset Alex Jones. Eric's research has inspired me to look into covert & disguised connections that all lead to Rome, some of which can be found here:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/10/05...ncis-i-members/

But such research doesn't suit your Rome-protecting position. Deflecting genuine enquiry & dismissing centuries worth of knowledge & effectively suppressed literature on the true undercurrents of European & American history & as verified in Revelation 17 & 18.

You will deny such history, as you will no doubt deny Skull & Bonesmen Bush 41 & 43 being subservient to not only to Pope Benedict XVI a.k.a. former Hitler Youth & head of the renamed Inquisition, SMOM Knight of Malta Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger, but also to the Archbishop of New York, US Knights of Malta head & "America Pope", US director of the events of 9/11, Edward Cardinal Egan, overseeing the following Roman Catholics & Masonic apostate & false "Protestants" NY Mayor/Ground Zero Chief Roman Catholic Papal Knight Rudy Giuliani, Jesuit-trained Roman Catholic CIA Director Tenet, Roman Catholic NSA Director Lt Gen Hayden & the Papl-loyal Skull & Bones & high-level Masonic Bush Crime Mob, including Jesuit-trained US Secretary of Defense/Pentagon-head Rumsfeld. Do you expose these connections Mr Webre? Do you? No I thought not.

And if all these words mean nothing to you or any other readers, then perhaps some pictures which say much of what I have stated above & add some insights of their own?:

After Curtis "CIA" Maynard's feeble attack on Eric Phelps & refusal to publish my comments, he does a runner. No doubt for some new training from his masters.

Here's his blog. My comments to his deceitful Phelps attack blog that he won't publish are below that (In fact he seems to have removed all the comments by others now):

This will be my last post for awhile

It's moving day, everything is packed up and I'm off into the unknown. I'll still post occasionally, but certainly not on a daily basis for quite some time. I hope to come out with my own website in January, at which point I should be able to post more frequently.

As a parting message to all my friends and readers, I'd just like to say thanks for supporting this blog as you have and that Bill White of the ANSWP is a Jew and an agent of the ADL and SPLC, don't trust him, and for God's sake, tell everyone you know that he is NOT a National Socialist!

God bless

To tell the truth I didn't know much about the diamond industry apart from the 'it's all bad' crowd. Having done some research just now, I can see that there is some morally/ethically bad sources, but that's not the whole story. It seems that since 2003 there have been steps taken to ensure that by & large 'conflict diamonds' or 'blood diamonds' getting into the US are mostly kept to a minimum.

Coffee & chocolate industries are almost all brutal slave-like conditions, unless you go fair trade (which I do), but bet that most people knocking Eric's arrangements here don't. Also they are probably buying US products (along with the Chinese ones) & don't associate those with supporting the US Government, so why make equate doing business with Israelis as being the same as doing business with the Israeli government, which Eric ceaselessly criticizes & rejects when he discusses them?

Still its easier to bitch & speculate than do research & consider the facts.

Bearing all that in mind & knowing the responses of the 'conspiracy crowd', I guess that such a 'find' is inevitably going to be used as the number one weapon in a campaign to knock Eric & the Jesuit/ Vatican expose researchers.

Here's some links to brush up on the diamond industry in a balanced manner. Quite interesting:

Rupert Murdoch's mothers name is Elisabeth Joy Greene, born a Jewess in Auistralia. I suspect Phelps is well aware of this. As Piper said, he could also be a member of the Rotary Club, who cares?
September 30, 2008 5:39 PM

The Head of the Rotary Club of New York at the United Nations is P2/Monte Carlo lodge Mason Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri, co-orchestrator of 9/11 with links the SMOM Knights of Malta, the Jesuits & the Carlyle Group.

I have placed the research here:

& here:http://leozagami.wordpress.com/category/leo-zagamis-p2-masons/

The Rotary Club is used by high-level Freemasonry (with its many Jesuit assets) to operate in Muslim countries that ban Freemasonry.

DR ALFRED WEBRE: PROJECTING DISINFORMATIONALIST

Regarding Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor, Dr Alfred Webre of the SRI mind-control operation institute, UN crypto-totalitarian organisation & the bogus “Disclosure” Project:

I am proud to say that this cretin has posted a link to my blog (scroll down a couple of dozen links on the left at: http://peaceinspace.blogs.com/911/2007/08/v911webre1avi.html), listing it as the following:

"Disinformation website - troy space"

HA-HA-HA! WHAT A JESUIT SHILL! I LOVE IT!!!

He is running scared after I wrote & posted the following:

“REFUTATION & EXPOSE OF ALFRED WEBRE & HIS TACIT ENDORSEMENT OF A COUNTERINTELLIGENCE ATTACK ON ERIC PHELPS”

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/10/22...on-eric-phelps/

Still no response to my charges though? No I thought not!

Webre would have found the following section a bit too close to the bone for comfort:

> QUOTE
>
> “I had to shake my head in pity at the “ivory tower” delusions (not too mention that recurring ignorance - when the author wrote:
>
> “Phelps has even been invited to a conspiracy conference as an “expert.” Quite an achievement for a guy who has little formal education and who formerly laid cement for a living.”
>
> So Eric has had some working class manual labour experience. How does this disqualify him from learning from a quarter-century worth of private study & having the bottle to put the fruits of his learning & contemplation in book form & to promote it in whatever way he can? No mention of (or deliberately avoiding) his time in the US Air Force both in the USA & Germany from 1972-77, followed by 4 years in two different Bible Colleges, including Lancaster.
> What were you doing this time, Mr Webre? Oh, according to your Wikipedia entry you went from working for the Ford Foundation’s phony environmentalism agenda to the global elite’s policy management group thinktank & hothouse, the Stanford Research Institute! What a surprise! This time being followed up by working for the trojan-horse One World Government, the United Nations, promoting North American disarmament & leading to his statement made only last year in defence of China’s anti-satellite missile tests. So China, financial creation & puppet of the Western elite, the new threat that our overt & covert leaders currently openly support until its time to unleash the trauma, this China, with the totalitarian socialist system that I have no doubt you desire for the US & the rest of the world, you justify their actions as being to “stop the United States from proliferating weapons in space”. Do you think that we were all born yesterday?

You sir, are the natural inheritor of that Nazi counterintelligence agent & areonautics expert Wernher von Braun, as we can also see by your working with Dr Carol Rosin, von Braun’s one-time assistant. To find you are also in the thick of the Disclosure Project (Disinformation Project more like) as “Congressional Coordinator comes as no surprise. This whole enterprise run by Maharishi University of Management-graduate, mind-controlled New Age guru Steven M. Greer. Using a classic counterintelligence tactic of telling a partial truth regarding suppressed energy technology (which exists, but is not back-engineered from physical crashed craft, as the UFO intelligence crowd would have us believe. Roswell was crashed terrestrial flying saucer technology with knowledge derived from Egyptian/ Babylonian-derived Rosicrucian/Masonic entity-channeling a.k.a. demonic envocation. This is then mixed in with the “all aliens are good aliens & they’re all space creatures & our Galactic brothers” psy-ops that seeks to supplant the angelic/demonic realm of the Bible & even the Koran (used here for illustrative not endorsement purposes). Who supports your contentions though?: Monsignor Balducci & that Jesuit/Vatican/Rockefeller asset Zechariah Sitchin.

See:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Corrado_Balducci

http://www.bibliotecapleyades.net/sitchin/esp_sitchin_9.htm

Ah, the pieces are all starting to come together now aren’t they, Mr Webre? All hung out to dry. From your fact-bending smearjob on Eric Phelps to your own Occult-based, pro-Vatican, mind-bending psy-ops diversions.

So when the author of the article that you post to support your stance writes: “According to Phelps, the Jesuits are guilty of, well, just about everything. They’re probably even behind the extraterrestrial and UFO aliens,” we are led to suppose that they’re being tongue-in-cheek, ironic. In actual fact you know that Eric does state this & whats more, he is in fact 100% correct. Oh the webs that one weaves when the plan is to deceive!

I met Kevin on the Monday afternoon of June 25,2007 at CO-OP RADIO on Carroll St--downtown Eastside Vancouver...this was the day after the so-called Vancouver 9/11 "Truth" Conference where I met ALFRED WEBRE on the Friday evening (June 22) of the first day of the conference--who I then CONFRONTED about his very extensive UN affiliations and his background to the STANFORD RESEARCH INSTITUTE (TAVISTOCK) and to RAND CORP--I also told him directly to his swarthy lizardlike face of my GREAT concern about the UN Agenda and also that the 9/11 INSIDE JOB lead DIRECTLY back to the JESUITS--KNIGHTS of MALTA--and of course BACK to The VATICAN...this is when he suddenly pulled back a few feet from me like I had just stabbed him in the chest and claiming voiciferously that I was completely WRONG as to what I was saying...at this time is when he admitted that his uncle,RICHARD CHISHOLM--a JESUIT,was the right hand SECRETARY to The SUPERIOR GENERAL Of The SOCIETY of JESUS---PEDRO ARRUPE'--during the SECOND VATICAN COUNCIL in 1962...I'm quite sure that I had upset him so much that he did NOT intend to have this come out because it is indeed a VERY damning admission to make...the very next day--I was banned from entering the MARITIME UNION HALL (1880 Triumph St) where this conference was being held..this was done by Alfred Webre himself and his ORDERS to Wayne Prante--the conference organizer--were overheard by one of the security people who then told me what was going on...I actually witnessed Wayne Prante calling the Vancouver PD and the RCMP using his cellphone in order to have me arrested and deported...this banning also was instigated by DR BILL DEAGLE and WILLIAM THOMAS--both of them knew I was to be in attendance and certainly--my reputation as an in-yer-face-activist preceded me....

Tim White is correct. Tim also was told by Webre that Webre's uncle was a top assistant Jesuit to Jesuit General Pedro Arrupe.

Another source told me that AW is a Knight of Malta, the source also having been invited into the brotherhood but refused.

When I attacked Webre with this information, he launched his attack against me along with Marrs and a few other Jesuit Coadjutors.

Title: Lindsay "RICH" Williams

craig-oxley - November 21, 2008 05:09 AM (GMT)

So first of all we hear everyone say that CIA agent, Lindsay Williams is never wrong and always right. Firstly we saw Senator John McCain lose the Election. Wether McCain will be handed it after a Birth "Maritime Admiralty" Certificate case later I don't know. Right now thats one downer for Lindsay. Notice how just prior to the election, Linday was trying to backtrack on McCain. He goes around talking about these all great powerful owners of the United States and that they control everything. Then when he was trying to backtrack he said but hey they don't always get what they want. Something like their not supermen. Hmmm isn't this a bit of hypocriscy? Well anyhow, so far he's completely wrong here.

The next pile of hogwash from Lindsay is that the big announcement of two oil fields would bring the oil down to $50. Well the oil has gone to $50 yes, but there is no announcement of any once secret oil fields. This may come though if stories of nukes in Artic for oil are true on the 17th of Novemberl. If so then it will be Artic oil and not Indonesia and/or Siberian oil as Lindsay spoke of.

What next?

Well we'll see CIA Williams back on CIA Jones controlled radioshow claiming "HEY I WAS FED DISINFORMATION TO DISCREDIT ME!" Thats what will come next, you mark my words. You may even see more pathetic CIA Jones shenanigans where they simply try to still claim he was right. You know where they say hey the oil went to $50 blah blah.

I heard Lindsay recently saying Dubai was having a tough time. Well maybe this is correct but I noticed on the T.V a different story was being shown. Of course the T.V may be trying to give a different impression of the truth but unless you go there you'll never know. We've seen all these $13000 a night hotels etc down there. Reporters claiming its not seeing any signs of the credit crunch. Well I'll leave this one open. The only thing is that people must be taught that this Dubai will be the Maltese Knights financial capital of the entire World. The City of London financial system and New York financial systems will be moved all into Dubai. I believe they may keep Switzerland as some form of safe guard. Mind you if the Pope isn't next to it any longer as he's ruling from Jerusalem, then they may just totally do away with Switzerland as well. So where will the power be in the end of all this? The West as is now? Of course not! It will be in ancient Canaan, Babylon along with the modern city of Dubai. Of course the first two are Israel and Iraq of today. Please note how the Vatican owns Jerusalem thanks to the Oslo Accord and Jesuit trained, Shimon Peres linked in the SMOM Middle Eastern Navigator, King Juan Carlos of Spain. So whilst agents of diversion try to hookwink you into believing Masons have took over Israel you know the real reason. All these changes in Israel are Rome controlled utilising their high level Freemasonry owned by the Society of Jesus now in charge of the Dragon since 1814. The same Society of Jesus who created the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry. The same Scottish Rite who's 32nd degree has the Jesuit motto 'Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam.' The same Roman Gentile control of the Hofjuden Sabbatean Frankist, B'Nai B'Rith these agents claim rule the United States and World haha.

So whilst Lindsay "CIA" Williams constantly repeats he knows the rulers of the World. He knows jack! You know why? The rulers of the World do not reside in the United States or close by. The rulers of the World reside in a little place called Piazza del Gesù. Where is this? Located in Rome on the ancient land of Saturnia. Now housing the dreaded so-called Divine Serpant (Dragon) known as the Vatican. The same Vatican which has it's own sovereign state! Note their other sovereign power centers and you'll see, The City of London along with Washington D.C. Both dominated by Jesuit power pulling the strings. The same D. C founded by Jesuit trained Carroll and Pope Roman Catholics. Infact the land is of these two Roman Catholics. The same family of Carroll's who even founded the dreaded Georgetown University. The very University controlling the United States as a Jesuit Military Fortress. The most powerful Jesuit and man in the United States being Fr' Thomas H. Smolich the President of the Jesuit U.S Conference. The same Smolich who controls all the powerful Provincials of their United States. The same Smolich commanding from 'Little Rome' (Washington D. C). Lets not forget that little place called Piazza Farnese. Why? Well another most powerful Order is down there under the Divine Dragon. Who? A bunch of females called the, Ordine Del Santissimo Salvatore Di Santa Brigida. With their leadership being the Irpinian, Abbess General, Madre M. Tekla Famiglietti. The same Abbess who's controlled the same Order for the last whopping 29 (beast) years. How many puny U.S Presidents last this long? So maybe you should get down Lindsay to Connecticut and meet your female masters. Better still get down to Rome to the Casa di Santa Brigida WHQ.

So whilst Lindsay claims he's been around the rulers, he's living in a dreamworld.

Lindsay when did you met Queen Elizabeth II? By the way even she isn't no where near the power of Rome she's subordinate to. Maltese Knight, David Rockefeller and Maltese Heinz Kissinger do not rule the United States. Until you stand next to the Jesuit U.S President, Jesuit Provincials and/or the SMOM Americas Navigator, Cardina Egan. Then you Lindsay Williams will be a nobody and full of nonsense and dreams. Cardinal Egan holds more power in his red 'Resheph' cloak than these figures you speak of.

Like Eric says, why does Lindsay not attack and highlight the Church of Rome? I thought he was a Christian? Seems he's gone the same way Rowan Shilliams has. Sucking up to the Whore and the beast. Why doesn't he tell you that the Vatican is of Lucifer? Why doesn't he tell you the Vatican is Anti-Christos and the Pope is an Anti-Christos? Why doesn't he tell you how the Pope represents the Pontifus Maximus going back to Nimrod? Known as Satan or the Planet Saturn? Why doesn't he tell you about ancient Saturnia? Interesting isn't it how we have all these Piazza's in Italy! Why is this? Well just look into Saturn and the Square and all will be revealed. Folks the Vatican is the Masculine and Feminine control of this planet working against true Biblical teachings. They are infact of the Satan and Lucifer mentioned in the true Bible. The worshippers of Saturn and Venus! The same Dragon of Lucifer veiling themselves as fighters of the devil with Jesuit soldiers exercising Djinns. All smokes and mirrors as usual to covert up what they really are. Where do we see this? We see this from their Hollywood controlled by the Mafiosi not Hofjuden slaves. We see for example that most popular 'The Exorcist,' why using Jesuit soldiers from Georgetown University of course.

QUOTE

Eric,

These observation couldn't be more accurate. Even as a kid I recognized Lindsey's way of making "his world and words" perfect. He is to never be questioned. Everything MUST be his way and he'll only gravitate to those that give him his way (Jeff Rense, Alex Jones, etc.) He's overly prepared for all speeches, conferences, interviews and Q&A's. He's trained in hypnosis. A huge "How to Win Friends and Influence People" fan. He also lives in a tremendous amount of DENIAL. When pushed about the Vatican his response is quick and course as he'll tell you that's "not my area, I stick with what I know and that's oil". When asked what he knows about Freemasonry he plays absolutely dumb as though he'd never heard of it. I personally rambled about it for an hour and a half on the phone once just to see how long he'd let me go. He never interrupted, he just let me talk about it. It was almost embarrassing to listen to him act surprised about EVERY SINGLE thing I said about Freemasonry. I still have to remind myself that he literally said he "knows nothing about it". It's such a joke. He'd have to be living on a deserted island his entire life and even then he'd still find a bottle with a message in it saying something about Freemasonry. It's a lie. He's lied to me repeatedly these past couple of years or so. I am disgusted. Trying to get me and my family to move with he and his family to St. Kitts in Nevus, a small island hundreds of miles from any other island in the middle of nowhere, West Indies. 26,000 people and nearly all of them BLACK, but don't worry there is a local Royal Bank of Canada there so we're good to go. I'm sure he would have dumped my family there and never looked back. The bottom line is this. He's connected. That's for sure. To what exactly is the mystery that remains to be solved. I know from intimate and personal experience that the man doesn't get out of bed in the morning without a carefully laid out agenda. He only eats the same unique meal twice a day, everyday (looks like a brown cow dung pancakes, tastes terrible). He knows something. He takes some strange supplement and swears he'll live to be in his 120's to 130's (sound Elitist to you?). He's power hungry when it comes to privilege. In considering the source, a source I know very well, I can tell you that I've had trust issues with him from the first day. That day was 23 1/2 years ago and it's only been getting worse.

One last note: Do a background search on "Lindsey Williams" and see how far you get. It's scary. There's nothing there! I'm not a P.I., but I can usually find loads of info on just about anyone, but not LW.

His website www.lwoil.com is gone.

I appreciate this document written, though it could easily be a book.

Blessings,

Jay

Hard to believe that Lindsey Williams did not encounter freemasonry whilst working with top oil executives in Alaska. You would expect many if not all of the top oil executives to be freemasons themselves.

Is the Truth Movement False Opposition?

user posted image

April 20, 2011

http://www.henrymakow.com/is_the_truth_mov...t_false_op.html

The entire truth movement is false opposition.

To suppose that the Elite did not anticipate the truth movement is to suppose that they had no plan for this demographic, and that they stand helpless and slack-jawed while the movement undermines their plans.

Right from the start they released targeted disclosure - such as the story of Atta's passport at ground zero - Surely anyone capable of processing information would smell a rat there - and they knew this - but also knew that to the Lemmings form is everything- and the simple fact that it was passed off as legit by "experts" would be enough for them to be satisfied.

The movement was permitted - planned - because they knew what the truth movement fails to see - that is that the vast majority of humans are totally unconcerned about matters of principle - only direct threats can rouse them.

And then they can easily be diverted. Waking the Sheep was never a possibility. Two videos I recommend - 1) the new world order wants the new world order to fail 2) Gatekeepers of the 20%.

I note that Fulford is now on record as supporting world government as are Mike Ruppert and David Ray Griffin- they are angling for the Zeitgeist solution, which is what the likes of Alice Bailey envisioned all along.

Oh, and Fulford now claims the White Dragon society needs cash, so please donate. I seem to recall that he said that if the Elite did one more bad thing that assassinations would result.

Well that was years ago and I am still waiting. But I cannot hear his regular updates because only paid subscribers can read those. And if you would like to see Alex Jones totally expose himself as a shill, then watch this.

And it amazes me that 911 truthers cheer for Jesse Ventura disclosures and yet fail to note that Time Warner pays for his show, or that mainstream media is sounding the alarm over the new world order.

Or that Ron Paul makes satanic hand signs or that his wife and daughters are in free-masonic organizations. And Rand Paul showed his colors by pushing for austerity on the poor and helpless.

Some patriot! The banks rape us and now its time to trim the fat and kill the poor - many of whom are the most sensitive individuals in the society who don't happen to be well adjusted to slavery. go figure.

There is a reason that mainstream media is spreading the word about the new world order. There is a reason that men like Gerald Celente and Peter Schiff are invited again and again and again onto major networks.

I gotta hand it to the dark ones. They are way more clever than so called people of truth who more times than not settle for idol worship over painful reality.

Its said by some that man is about to be wiped out. Perhaps its for the best because as things stand, our descendant will live in a hell world that will make Mad Max look like sweet freedom.

--Update by JB:

I am not provocative for personal reasons or to divide. Rather it seems that the best and the brightest in society have been duped by a ruthless enemy of greater cunning and intelligence than is generally suspected and the movement needs a wake-up call.

The Illuminati are not bumbling fools who act without intelligent planning. A one world government that was widely despised would not have staying power in the long run.

A permanent scientific dictatorship would need to be something the people were manipulated to ask for. Hence, the concept of the straw-man bankster police state. It can't escape your notice that the mainstream media has been sounding the alarm over the New World Order for some time now.

MSNBC even suggested recently that perhaps the time for violent revolt had come. Persons on Fox, MSNBC, CNN, etc, have made the NWO nearly a household word at this point -(Dobbs, Judge Napolitano,Beck,etc.)

And other less prominent figures including guests who espouse 911 conspiracy theories such as Kevin Barret, etc. And while the hosts may mock them, the fact is that they are invited back repeatedly and often come off as very credible - that is, in the minds of those who look beyond ad-hominem attacks.

This gets to the concept that society breaks down into 2 groups (for purposes of this matter) - 1) a minority that can be roused to anger over a matter of principle & can process information and 2) the herd. To the herd, appearance is everything. To them, simply being mocked by O'Reilly, or whomever they are followers of, is enough to dismiss the matter. So I suggest that the media has engaged in a targeted disclosure of 911 as well as the New World Order. The scope of that disclosure is now being widened for reasons too complex to cover here.

I don't assert or believe that the reason for the Elite's sponsoring 911 Truth was to simply ensnare its adherents for Fema camps (They are not a true threat.) But rather to create a sort of psychic battery - a potential store of energy for change - for the destruction of the current order. The dynamics of it are somewhat complex and I don't want this message to be too long. Suffice to say that that energy for change can easily be diverted to a close similar vector when the time comes - when the general public is hungry and desperate and combined disasters shake the foundations of the world. From the ashes can rise a "true brotherhood" of mankind. The seeds for which may be being planted by the likes of Zeitgeist/Venus project, and Michio Kaku's claims that we need to grow into a Type 1 Society - notice he says that anyone who opposes it is a terrorist.

One small hint that the Truth Movement was not only foreseen but planned can be found in an obscure piece of evidence. Google image search "Gordo Remora" - this game card from 1995 spoofs Geraldo Rivera suggesting that conspiracy theorists should be killed. There have long been conspiracy theorists but it was not until 911 that the issues became so hotly charged and divisive that media persons began openly suggesting that they should be tortured or worse. It just so happens to work out that Geraldo ends up being a central figure in this conflict - several times he has tangled with the truthers and now has been selected as the one to begin to reveal WTC7 truth.

I am not into defeatism, but Charles Forte said that animals that wish to be free must first discover that they are property. i.e. Our perceptions of what may be must not be filtered by the need to be "positive" - which is a New Age trap.

One last point - I do not suggest that everyone spreading the word on 911 or NWO is part of the conspiracy. Many are likely acting out of sincerity. I may have wrongly attacked others in the past due to my misunderstanding their motives and over zealousness due to feeling hopelessly outnumbered. If this is the case then I offer my apologies to them. Hope you will post this update.

Spot on!!!! Spot on!!! Spot on!!!!!

And that is what 99.9% of the "awakened ones" do not understand. They go on about "I'm a sovereign citizen/I'm a freemen/I don't have an ss#/my name is properly typed" etc etc etc. While not looking into the mirror and asking the big questions. "What am I doing about chem-trails? Fluoride? Military grade chemicals in foods? Rapes and slaughters committed daily? Destruction of my country?"

Until you get your own sovereign piece of land, with your own water and food supply, your own defensive gadgets where no foreign piece of military equipment can pass by without being taken out, go back and enjoy your existence.

The first person(s) to set up their own sovereign land(s), to be ruled solely by them and them only, would get a standing ovation from me and a big "Thank you!!!!" Until then we can all live in our illusionary world thinking we are achieving something big and beautiful.

Title: Webster Tarpley is a Temporal Coadjutor

AntiSionist - September 28, 2008 05:52 AM (GMT)

Dear Robert,

Webster Tarpley is an obvious coadjutor. As you know, he denies any Jesuit involvement in the Gunpowder Plot of 1605. We might as well deny the existence of light and darkness.

Concerning the Reformation, it was the work of the risen Lord Jesus Christ in breaking the spiritual and temporal power of the Pope that had enslaved Europe for 1000 years. Do you value freedom of conscience and freedom of the press? Then you must give thanks for the Reformation that secured these rights for you against the work and power of the Jesuits to overthrow them---as in the Patriot Act written at Georgetown Jesuit University.

The Zionists. Which of the four kinds of Zionists are you referring to? Labor Zionists? Revisitionist Zionists? Orthodox/Talmudic Zionists or Biblical Christian Zionists---of which I am one? They are not all the same. And as I prove in VAIII, Labor Zionism is a work of the Jesuits first really advocated by their great avenger, Napoleon I. Labor Zionism has always been a creature of Rome. Thus, the Jesuits are the great protectors and defenders of Labor Zionism via the Pope's Knights of Malta, papal court Jews like Louis M. Bloomfield and Louis Lehrman of Rite Aide.

So please spare me the anti-Reformation rhetoric unless you want to return to the Pope's Dark Ages---the Jesuit Order's "New Age" fathered by the Jesuit Tielhard De Chardin.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

To regain crediblity with me, Mr. Tarpley had better be blaming the Jesuits as the masters of the NWO to be centered in their Kingdom of Jerusalem.

Eric is incorrect above as it was not Knight of Malta, George H.W Bush who attended the Society of Jesus controlled Stonyhurst College in Lancashire, England. It was his Grandfather, George Herbert Walker the banker.

Alternative Media' hard on US; soft on Rome

April 17th, 2011

People like Alex Jones and Ron Paul, while claiming to offer an alternative to American corruption, are strangely silent when it comes to the agency that is historically most culpable. While ostensibly defending our Constitution; they say nothing of the organization that has opposed it the longest. “None of these self-styled ‘freedom fighting’ conspiracy theorists expose the real power behind all the conspiracies at work,” writes Seventh-day Adventist layworker, Roland Temple.

“Alex Jones is hiding the biggest part of the NWO. He’s hiding all this and it’s not by accident,” says (non-Adventist) Christian activist, Thomas Richards. “A lot of the things he covers have a direct connection with The Vatican, but he never mentions it.” That’s suspicious, say some, because the Commander of InfoWars.com seems very well informed about everything else that’s going on behind the scenes, almost as if he’s got a back-stage pass.

Jones may have rock-star appeal, but he doesn’t have a degree. A doctor of political philosophy, however, author John Robbins has well documented Rome’s surreptitious role in global events. Then there’s Jesuit Malachi Martin’s Keys of This Blood, “the untold story behind the Vatican's role in today's winner-take-all race against time to establish, maintain, and control the first one-world government.”

Unwilling to debate these claims, Jones just writes them off as “mental cases,” deferring instead to the wisdom of one such as Representative Ron Paul. Like Alex, this fellow Texan seems to have some good ideas about restoring our rights, but has a stunning disconnect when it comes to the Vatican. In a 2005 letter, the Congressman praises the “commitment to human dignity” of a Pope who shamelessly covered for pedophile priests.

Mail-carriers have known for years that the best way to keep a dog off their trail is to give them a bone to chew on. The “alternative media” may serve this function, occupying listeners with unsatisfying bones of contention—stripped of real meat. “The conspiracy theorists actually tend to point the finger away from the Babylon of the Three Angel’s Messages,” writes Temple. These messages, say Seventh-day Adventists, not only provide a solid Scriptural basis for the conspiracy, but point people to the One who can deliver them from its clutches.

—North America's fastest growing denomination, The Seventh-day Adventist Church is based on Bible prophecy, preparing people for Christ's promised return.

I thought you would set up the skypey and message me... Wasn't sure about what you were up to.

I'm dealing with a rather serious situation right now.

I had my cable yanked out by a cable company employee April 4... right in the locked box.

Here's a technician doing the repairs.

Something is happening, serious and possibly dangerous.

The op being run on me is being coordinated with this Leo Zagami thing that started circa March 4.

I think he is in the states right now... I will listen to the Szymanski interview this afternoon. Zagami called in and Greg didn't actually want him on the show.

I do not know what Leo is doing, nor do I "trust" him. I assume nothing at this point, but something is being coordinated and my guess is that the Jebbies want me dealt with.

It's all kind of ridiculous because this spy vs. spy stuff is bullshit. Either we're moral or NOT.

That's the thing about all this masonic skullduggery. It's a game for clowns and losers, but they're playing it *just the same. I just can't fathom the EXTENT they are going to in my direction. It is bizarre to say the least.*

I'll chat with you if you get this message.

And for god sake install that skypey. It's FREE... and at this point, they're doing REAL TIME surveillance on me. There's nothing electronic between us that's going to be private.

Heck, from my understanding, cell phone switching is the ultimate bugging tool now, that makes snooping easy in public places... So, I live an open book life.

I read Canon Law, the Bible and study morals. I'm working on a rudimentary radio show.

Here we have Tim White using the pseudonym "Patrick Alexander" to pass on emails from himself. We read his confession to this followed by his desperate attempt to maintain some remaining shred of credibility (no, I can't imagine what credibility he thought he retained either), but there you go by attacking me in response to my exposure of his tactic of using multiple pseudonyms to create internet discussion threads to give the impression to readers that there is some groundswell of opinion manifesting of that he's involved in a piece of some action. There is plenty more where that came from.

Note that this "Trevor"(also referred to as "tkra" by some after his email address) of http://honesty.org/ to whom Tim has correspondence with about Zagami is one of Ognir's confidantes/informants & has sided with Ognir in his attack on Eric Phelps, as revealed by Ognir recently on the net. I was asked privately many months ago by Phil - the admin from Leozagami.com forum (http://leozagami.com/index.php?option=com_... board&Itemid=57) - to add this same spy Trevor to my mailing list, leading me to question why I was asked this.

Brilliant, thanks "Tim" for the confession. We can now compare this with your earlier lies:

You now say "SO WHAT ?...this PROVES I'm HONEST ENOUGH to TELL YOU"

However, earlier today you said:

"you have TWISTED everything in these email threads to suit your agenda "Troy" and THAT is 100 % DISHONEST"

You can't have it both ways "Tim". One of these statements is true & the other is false. The former & the latter in that order.

I'm not surprised that your life has been on the line for years. You probably uncontrollably start reversing down the motorway (freeway to you) in full traffic. There's a word for that: "menace". As I've stated before you're mostly a danger to yourself. Was it actually a library that you were in & not some mental secure unit?

As for me being a "SLANDERER" (your capitals, not mine), well I think that we can see from the above proof that that is certainly self-projection on your part.

Adios, amigos!

SO WHAT ?...this PROVES I'm HONEST ENOUGH to TELL YOU..DUH !....well...I have only 5 NOW because I've had several deleted and one of those disappeared right before my eyes one afternoon last year while online at the library in Vancouver..this was less than 10 minutes after I spent about 5 minutes looking over the website of the WHITE HOUSE and this was the last site I was looking at in a series for the previous 45-50 minutes and these sites were EVERGREEN AIR,RAYTHEON,the CIA,the PENTAGON,the OFFICE of NAVAL INTELLIGENCE,DYNCORP,HALLIBURTON,BOEING...and then after looking at the White House site and in the middle of answering an email to CRAIG OXLEY.... POOOOF !..that email addy was GONE..this occured in July of last year and this is NOT the first time this has happened to me(I have saved the proof of this)..when you go looking for the info I do and add it to the personal experience then you POST THAT INFO TO THE INTERNET...people get REAL PISSED because it was never supposed to see the light of day and this includes ALL of those listed in the above...this is ONE reason why I have and USE other ID's....so what NOW ?..because I ALONE am smart enough to connect one helluva LOT OF DOTS from my years of dealing with this crap that I'm "SURE" to be "some kind of agent" so certainly there's no other explanation for you in your FICTION mind..go out and GET SOME REAL person to person experience with the same people I've had experience with but that will NEVER happened in your case...my life has been on the line for MANY years "Troy" and I sure do NOT need a snivelin' SLANDERER like you trying your pathetic best to TRY to make something into what it's NOT...

Dear Tim & Patrick (who I've not had contact with before).

As Tim knows I have been researching Zagami's info for over a year & was recently contacted by him. Him, Eric Phelps & myself were all on each other's mailing lists. After Szymanski blew him out the other night I got an unexpected & first time call from Zagami who, as I understand it, wanted to talk so he could record it & put it out.

I had added Zagami to my Skype before he had announced that he had taken over the P2 Lodge with backing by Giunchihglia, Giudicelli & others. I didn't react much to his militia plans, as they are meaningless to someone living in England, where the only militias (which presumably exist) are intelligence-controled covert forces to bring in in a declared state of emergency/martial law scenario. As you might know, private gun ownership is rare, unless you are in the country or a criminal, the laws are completely different here.

Anyway, Zagami clearly knew that I had researched more of his info than anyone & for whatever reason would be more useful to record what turned into an interview by me from the off. Zagami only asked me about the sunshine over here, as it was sunny in his part of the US.

What solid info does anyone have on him? If I get another call from Zagami, then it's be useful knowing who I'm talking to. Everything so far is just vague & insubstantial. Why not declare it openly? Safer doing that than telling people later.

Tom,

As I stated from more than 2 YEARS ago..Zagami is a FRAUD..do you for ONE SECOND think that IF Zagami was actually what he said he is--as far as "an exposer of the Vatican/Illuminati/blah,blah,blah"..that he would actually HAVE ANY ASSETS LEFT ?..that he would actually BE ABLE TO TRAVEL ?..that he would actually STILL BE ALIVE ? BULLSHIT ! The word that I am getting from Trevor here in Vancouver--he lives just about 5-6 miles from me--is that he expects Zagami to be here soon--Trevor's troubles with the local Royal Arch Masons started EXACTLY when Zagami was here a few years ago---Co-incidence ? I think NOT !...Vancouver is a MAJOR venue for the Illuminati/Masonic/Vatican crowd and agenda and at this point...I'm still somewhat surprised that I haven't had a "visit" yet--"they" sure as hell KNOW I'M HERE....BTW...Szymanski will have NO contact with me and he sure should..I can tell him MORE about Colorado and where he lives in Nederland (20 miles west of Boulder in the mountains) than ANYONE he could ever run into...

Leo speaks about his website being held in Silicon Valley, California. He claims its under the U.S Government etc. He makes out the U.S looks over Vets as hard working fighters of old. The U.S Government shits on it's war vets seen as pawns of foreign policy. So why would the U.S Government protect Scott Bruno etc.? I've seen many poor veterans on the street in Boston begging.

craig-oxley - December 1, 2008 01:28 AM (GMT)

Leo goes on about how he wants everyone to know about Sirus and it's alignments with such and such in Masonic Washington D.C. Basically he wants us to follow the Palmyrium Mystery Schools. Where we go around making out this is truth. In Biblical scriptures it tells us not to partake in this Saturnalian/ Luciferian system. Reminds me of that Mafiosi film 'National Treasure.' A film to predictably programme the profane.

Now, giving Leo the benefit of the doubt that he is not employed by the DMI on the understanding that he has many contacts in many fields, not all of whom he is going to know the true loyalties of & that he chose who he thought was the best man for the job technically, it is clear that his webmaster is a DMI asset and that he has revealed that they have the same tactics as the Jesuits - a military order (the Jesuits religious-military, the DMI ostensibly secular-military) that we know is responsible for untold death & suffering wishing to bring peace & religious unity to the planet. Phil,

Okay, let's go over the meat & potatoes stuff:

"integrant"

adjective
(of parts) making up or contributing to a whole; constituent.
noun
a component.
ORIGIN mid 17th cent.(as an adjective): from French intégrant, from the verb intégrer, from Latin integrare (see integrate).

Oh I get it, so you would like to have us believe that I thought that you might be a corrosive constituent… of what? conspiracy country? That's a real cute train of thought there Troy. Here, I give you an A+.

QUOTE

I have taken the liberty of restoring the correct sequence for the two previous emails to make the following readable for anyone with too much time on their hands (L.O.L.!!) who may actually want to read the exchange.

Right, now as for your enthusing about psyops, it's in the numerous recordings that you've done with Leo. End of story, so don't try to wriggle out of it by claiming I "spun" the words of your forum entry or whatever. It's not my cup of tea, so I don't go laughing along when Leo mentions it. I have questioned his use of this terminology & expressed my feelings about several things that don't exactly give me the feelgood feeling, shall we say. You've done the opposite, fine, that too is your prerogative, but I think that you are not now liking this technique, so why should others? Will you retract your statement as you suggest? I'll leave that up to you.

You pretend to know me when in fact you don't, that's unfortunate and I'm sorry to have to learn that you feel this way. I might snicker and have a laugh with Leo initially but that doesn't mean I 'enthuse' over psyops. I'm sorry if you misunderstand me but this is the truth even if it may appear to others differently. It's quite a quirky jump in deductive reasoning for me even but this might be just personal. That other people misinterpret me is not really my problem in principle. I'm hear to explain my perhaps or apparently complex character if only people (like you for instance) would ask me rather than take off with their own pretty little prejudices about me. Leo likes to have a laugh and I appreciate his humor and I hope he does mine too. It's part of a friendly relationship, wouldn't you say? You know, laughing together as friends? Or is the concept of friendship alien to you?

Now this doesn't mean that when I initially laugh about something I might necessarily agree with it afterwards. Sometimes in fact I don't, believe it or not. But you have to know that laughing is primarily a way to ventilate tension whether that tension be positively or negatively generated. That's the reason why one feels relieved after a good laugh, you see. Well, now you know. My particular health condition (for our dear uninformed audience, that condition being Candida Albicans) however brings a lot of negative tension with it and laughing is a way for me to release it but that doesn't automatically mean that I endorse everything that comes across my plate, y'all understand? If bottled up tension is not released it will eat you up from the inside, it's that simple really. Laughter is a way for me to get rid of it, as it should for most people who want to be healthy and a bit happy.

Also, it's not always easy for me to detect whether Leo is sincere, making a (sarcastic) joke, exaggerating, or passing disinformation. For bystanders such as you and also me on hindsight it is a lot easier to spot what is what but when you do it live, it's not always that easy. If you're honest I'm sure you can relate to that a bit, no? Furthermore, I want to be able to relax during the conversation because if I would be tense I would sooner or later lose interest in doing interviews as it would take too much energy and takes the fun of talking away, at least for a frail human like me.

Seriously man, although I prefer to not involve myself in the speculations & soap-opera of the LZ forum (nor does Leo & I can hardly blame him with the poorly-researched attacks made on him by his site creator/controller, who references one of my articles on Leo's family background that is if anything, supportive in the evidence presented lending credence to his claims regarding his family background), I will say that I find the suggestions entirely plausible now that Scott &/or yourself pulled that (presumably) embarrassing thread & that the excuses of technical problems appear weak & unconvincing.

Okay let me give a rundown especially for you and our little audience. Scott was too brash by leveling his accusations to Leo. Flattery will get you nowhere - seriously! Okay, I've taken similar steps & posted this to a wider field for similar reasons. Phil, I don't act as unpaid forum coordinator for a forum on a website that has been set up by a U.S. military intelligence bod (or that of any other nation for that matter), regardless of his freelancing or not. This does not make you an agent in itself, but in most people's eyes (even those who are fairly clued up) this would stack the cards your way in the agent stakes. I don't think you are now, but in the future? Who knows?

Notice the differences? If you are still clutching in the dark, here is what I meant: “people need to be honest with me. If there need to be people deceived by propaganda then that’s fine by me (since it is part of warfare), but please let this not be me [as I prefer people being honest with me]. “ I never once stated that I am “happy dishing out Propaganda.” If you think I’m wrong then prove me otherwise and I might retract my previous statement [I apparently am bipolar so I should have no difficulty doing so].

The reason I include a couple of more people in the CC is that since you started talking about Scott and Leo we should at least include them in the conversation [you may prefer gossiping but I don’t] and in the exotic case of you being an agent, I reckoned that more people should be aware of this communication exchange.

J This is getting embarrassing. J

The recording you are talking about dates from the 27th of June – timestamp 122 minutes and on. Leo said this: “And then you will ask me to marry me [grammar error by Leo, he should have said “her”] again and I will forgive you Fatma, no problem. But listen, this is not a joke you know, realize that I can see things and every single thing I have told her from the start always happen. After ten minutes I met her I told her. You are gonna be my wife and we are gonna have a child together. Do you know that? ”

Then I [Phil] asked “Are you asking me?”. J Well this may be a bit of dodgy timed question I agree, but believe it or not what I had in mind with the question was if Leo was asking me if I knew about Leo’s prior intention of having a child with Fatma already at the time the two met for the first time. If you think otherwise then please explain to me how this would even be physically possible since I am obviously a boy you silly little git…. Or should I say dodgy corrosive intrigant? LOL http://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/intrigant I have no idea what an “integrant” is other than a mathematical construction but that’s spelled with a “d”, so please do be so kind to explain to my bipolar little self, what exactly is an “integrant”?

My advice to you is, you should presume less, be a little less conceited and use a little more caution in your language and reasoning to prevent you from jumping to conclusions a bit more and consequently save wasting time and energy on irrelevant arguments. Also learn to listen more accurately, you silly boy LOL

What a shame: You cannot take a bit of philosophical food for thought to chew on regarding your attracting the energy that you put out. What has this got to do with Scott? Do you think that he has proved a good choice for Leo to have build his website & effectively control it?

Does everyone pull your words out of context? Halvor? Myself? Leo?

Regarding your following statements:

> QUOTE
>
> I thought you liked being direct and confrontational

".

I like dealing with people that I like dealing with. Over past months this has included Eric Phelps, Craig Oxley (despite our agreeing to disagree on several matters, including his thoughts on Leo), Barry Chamish, Leo, Halvor & yourself. Regarding Scott, his poorly-"researched" Leo attack - referencing one of my pieces that didn't support his stand in the slightest - spoke for itself.

I have made it clear with Leo from the outset that the only people that I trust close to 100% are my family. This Leo acknowledged & I believe respects, as he would say the same for himself, of that there can be little doubt. If Leo has played some games on you, it is because you have let him. Leo has told you the rule of that game many times & you laughed. In retrospect is it so funny? The way to gain respect is to have your own rules of engagement. People might not always like them, but it is hard not to respect someone for defining where they stand in regards to personal interaction. Otherwise you might as well go to Rome to kiss the Pope's ring! It is a matter of personal self-respect. If you have to go cap in hand for some food then that is one matter. Anything else is quite another.

You also write:

> QUOTE
>
> Maybe you should work a bit on becoming an accuracy researcher also (particularly regarding reading)

Phil: What are you referring to? This vague statement is barely worthy of comment. Oh, are you talking about my saying that you were enthusing about psy-ops games & now complain when you perceive yourself as being on the receiving end? It's all been recorded & posted on the net by you yourself! My comments above sum up my thoughts on that.

Another one on myself (these statements have made it impossible to be more restrained in my reply):

>
> You constantly raise suspicions about the integrity of other people, that's fine since it is your preogative

Phil, I have given you some good, constructive advice about being on guard & vigilant & not being played for a sucker. This doesn't mean joining ... the Con Cen trolls in making poorly-researched & emotive attacks on Leo, but it does mean questioning him regarding matters that are troubling, as I have done many times, not rolling over like a dog waiting for a tummy rub. In your latest recording with Leo you even thought that when he was talking about getting married & having babies with someone that he was talking about you! It's on mp3 - fact. Leo had to say, "no, not you. bro!" or something similar. Oh dear!

Honestly, I would be worried about someone who never raises suspicions or is willing to openly discuss varying hypotheses. It is only by these methods that you one feel comfortable that all possibilities have been considered. This is the very thing that makes accuracy possible. I would rather discuss these with someone that I feel is well versed in the matter at hand & intelligent than go running to the internet forums with bipolar reports. That has been you up till this point, but I think that you have made it very hard for us to be able to have the relaxed attitude with each other that has been conducive to facilitating any of our reserach based on Leo's information. This would be a shame. It does not discourage me from saying what needs to be said though.

Finally: Bearing in mind the points raised above, how do you get off on writing & posting to whole number of people (tactless in the extreme, when you have baselessly attacked my motives & methods below):

> QUOTE
>
> but for all I know you may be an agent too since you seem to know rather well how to act as a corrosive intrigant yourself.

I presume that you mean "integrant". That is some baseless, one-dimensional B.S. Phil. Any advice that I've given you, words of caution & a willingness to discuss all possible motivations & situations have been matters that anyone with a bit of rigour would recognize as being sound, constructive & beneficial to protecting one's integrity, while deepening understanding & providing the most solid base from which to respond to new developments. With a bit of detached reflection I am sure that you will acknowledge the soundness of such methods.

Regarding the recipients of this email, I prefer dealing with those that I have had some two-way contact with & am not soliciting nor interested in responses from all.

Phil, I am willing to discuss any of the above with you further & would be happy for Leo to tell his side of what went down (& didn't go down) at Nice (& Monte Carlo - if anything with the latter) - like I said, he does seem to have gone under the radar in recent times, but he has my Skype contact & I'd be happy to hear from him & post it on the net.

Thank you -

Troy

First off, you should address Scott instead of me since your post pertains more to him than to me. I thought you liked being direct and confrontational, so why not address Scott directly then? Secondly, you have pulled my words out of context, that's your responsibility not mine. You call yourself a reality researcher fine, but maybe you should work a bit on becoming an accuracy researcher also (particularly regarding reading). You constantly raise suspicions about the integrity of other people, that's fine since it is your prerogative, but for all I know you may be an agent too since you seem to know rather well how to act as a corrosive intrigant yourself.

Halvor,

Hmm, that's unfortunate, as it makes it look like a much lower level! L.O.L.!!

I was perusing through the Zagami forum & thought that Vivian's mentioning that some (two I'm guessing - seeing as that would be "some" of three) SMOM Papal Knights of Malta were staying at Leo's didn't sound good (if true). It had been reposted in a thread that had been deleted. I will paste relevant 2-part exchange between Phil & Vivian below. I'll also post this to Phil.

Phil,

You said that you're happy for Leo to dish out "propaganda", but you don't want to be psy-opped by him. Honestly Phil, it's unlikely that you can have one without the other. I've never endorsed this self-advocacy of "propaganda" that Leo has gone on about since April, so why do so? You attract back what you give out - this is your own claimed belief, as you've stated before, so this can be no surprise, no? Any forum that is set up by MI is almost certain to be a psy-op of one kind or another. I do not trust Scott Bruno particularly & have no interest in replying to his transparently bogus emails or post his self/agenda-promoting blog comments. His one-world appeals draw some people in, but his Zagami "expose" was pitiful, even using one of my article looking into Leo's family background, as one of his handful of sources, when in fact it does the opposite & lends weight to Leo's story! Hey, I'm all for thorough analysis, but that whole thing struck me as not just shoddy research, but some mind-playing game to sort out the children from the "grown-ups", as maybe the intention of him & whoever his MI backers are.

Thanks -

Troy

P.S.: here is the SMOM reference (as Leo seems to have seriously gone off the radar I'm not expecting to hear his explanation anytime soon, although I'd like to hear from him before making any hard conclusions):

Okay, they were officials from the Italian military, and according to Monique, some were from the SMOM.

I don't know Daniele's place. I have never been there.

Daniele is in Switzerland, he didn't have time to guest you in. Leo told me that he has too many places to take you Phil. It was impossible to stick it into his schedule, plus he was arrested again in Norway. Let it go dude! Lets forget about it. Lets shift the negativity over on that asshole Ezio. Motherfucking coward didn't have the balls to show up!

My inlaws also have spacious homes, but they are assholes. They won't let EVEN me stay there. I have been royally buttfucked by the Italian establishment, Phil. If I had residence, I would invite you. I think they are refusing me residence so that I drop my property claims.

Leo is sincere dude, he just a bad organizer. Monique will be fixing up things in the future. When I have rights here, so will I.

well...ALTAR BOY Richards..I'm THE guy to NAIL Leo Zagami as a FRAUD just as soon as he appeared on the I'net about 3 1/2 years ago by first posting on APFN--I stated this VERY clearly back then and I TOLD this to Eric and Greg Szymanski BOTH along with Bill Deagle as well--many people KNOW this of me--I TOLD EVERYONE to STEER FAR CLEAR of Zagami from that time to a several months ago when he just showed up in the US(April 13 as I recall) to open his "LIBERTY LODGE" in a number of cities--I WARNED all the people I know in the MILITIA movement after a few of them sent me emails like,"who the fuck is Leo Zagami and WHY is he initiating contact with the MILITIA" ?..even though I have NEVER been in any militia group--I have friends who are and I pretty much destroyed ANY chance that Zagami was trying to use to INFILTRATE for the clear reason of IDENTIFY and then DESTROY them ... and YOU are VERY,VERY ill-informed as to WHO I am but you prefer to SLANDER and LIBEL a REAL PATRIOT like ME from the COWARDLY position of your IDIOT KEYBOARD--ALTAR BOY--you are NOT even a MAN enough to CHECK on the REAL FACTS--ASSHOLE..so in the end--YOU can go FUCK YOURSELF....you couldn't even FIND your own ASS using both hands and a full length mirror--ALTAR BOY..I am NO "agent".."two bit" or OTHERWISE..ASSWIPE...

Words of the Militia:

"That's funny because I was in constant contact with Zagami's bodyguards the entire time he was here in the states. It was a culmination of efforts on the part of many involved that exposed Zagami for what he is. And it was the decision of the militia leadership at large to dismiss him and we all refused to put the militias under his leadership. He went back to Europe empty handed and very pissed off at the militias. White had absolutely no input in our decision. White is a spook and you can take that to the bank. That is why you will never find anything solid on him. He has contacts and support from the highest levels of government. In effect, he is untouchable. Just keep watching your six. What agency is the one that paid you a visit. My most trusted friend that gave me the scoop on White was visited by U.S. Marshals and has since relocated. I have been investigated and been under surveillance by the FBI for the last 15 years. It just goes with the territory. Know this, that there are agents in many different agencies who are on our side but must maintain a low profile in order to continue their service to "The People." But many more work for the dark side so let your spiritual gift of discernment guide you when dealing with any of them."

"That is a common tactic that they use in their psyops. They try to convince you that they are the real patriots and that by attacking them you do the patriot movement a disservice. Just remember this...By their fruits ye shall know them. Another saying is.... Follow the money! That is why I know that Alex Jones is an agent of the government because he is a profiteer making book on the patriots. They all have close ties with each other and are supported from the highest levels of government. And make no mistake about it this is a spiritual battle! Our very souls are at stake."

where we read:

This Degree is given in conjunction with the Knight of the Red Cross and the Knight of Malta, as well as a short intermediary Degree, known as the Knight of St. Paul. The York Rite Degrees are:
>
> I. Entered Apprentice
> II. Fellowcraft
> III. Master Mason
> IV. Mark Master
> V. Past Master
> VI. Most Excellent Master
> VII. Royal Arch
> VIII. Order of the Red Cross
> IX. Order of the Knights of Malta
> X. Order of the Knights Templar
>
> At the bottom of the Templar board two swords are crossed, symbolically protecting the Bible, the pages of which are, here, held open by the medal or 'jewel' of the Knights Templar Mason (a white Maltese cross suspended from a black ribbon). Center of the board is a skull and crossbones, emblematic of mortality, surrounded by a triangle of candles. The skull and crossbones – a much misused symbol – was once enormously important in European art (especially during the 16th century). Originally it was painted on the reverse of portraits, indicating the mortality of the patron painted on the front. Later they were used in the Vanita, a type of still life painting in which the corruptible nature of the world was often compared to the incorruptible nature of the heavenly, spiritual, etc. Frequently the skull was set with such objects as coins, goblets, musical instruments, etc.
> Above the skull in the Knights Templar board is a chalice used for wine or water, and to the left is a loaf of bread, these being the simple sustenance of the spiritual seeker. At the very top three crosses can be seen: the Calvary Cross center; the Maltese cross to the left, and the cross of the Red Cross Knight to the right. Like many of the higher Degrees, the narrative of the Knights Templar ritual is the unfolding of a quest or pilgrimage in which the Christian mysteries are encountered.

A typically Masonic interpretation of what constitute "Christian", but there you go. No surprise there.

I agree that some major evidence is necessary to fully concede that the Anti-Vatican movement within certain Freemasonic circles is authentic. Healthy skepticism is - well, healthy I guess. What would be the timeline on such action though? As we know, timing is everything: whether in battle or comedy. "Boom boom!"

Zagami's photo was presumably chosen to show his background in the Knighthood Orders & high-degree Masonry. As I have said to others on a number of occasions, I'm not in a position to know if Leo is still "working for the other side". It certainly hasn't harmed me studying his information - quite the opposite, in terms of having spurred me to dig deeper - & even if his aim over the past nine months or so (or even all along) has been to bring others into Masonry, then we can safely say that that has been an overwhelming flop. Then again, it could be said that keen researchers exerting large amounts of time studying what could be a Grand Psy-Op Diversion could be a grand success in itself.

My conclusion for the moment though is that I'm prepared to consider that it is possible (nothing more though) that Leo is (largely) telling the truth regarding there being anti-Jesuit aristocrats. In fact it would be bizarre if there wasn't. Thus, despite the fact that I can't abide by his pro-Masonic agenda, I'm not prepared to call him a Jesuit agent. Time will tell I guess.

BTW: One of Forerunner's colleagues (so he said) messaged me at my internet research resource, asking me to email him, which I did, then he didn't seem to have any info. I don't know what that was about, other than getting my email address. Bizarre bunch. I don't trust Forerunner though, as I have said a number of times. Leo has said he has suspicions about the guy. Transparent Psy-Op IMO. Haven't watched the videos posted above yet though.

Leo Zagami Spells Jesuit Shill

He now claims to be a prophet of Matrixism

By Greg Szymanski, JD
Mar. 14, 2009
http://www.arcticbeacon.com/greg/

Months ago the dark story about Leo Zagami took a turn for the worse. Now it has become altogether laughable.

First, the story took a blackened turn, revealing Zagami to be nothing more than a two bit Luceferian Jesuit shill.

This became known, when Zagami, who claimed to be a 33 degree Freemason and defector from the ranks of the New World Order, visited America claiming to be a high level Freemason Grandmaster of ¡°the good side of Freemas0nry.¡±

Simply, there is no ¡°good side¡± at the high levels of Freemasonry, showing Zagami to be a liar and fraud, according to truthful researchers.

Now, he claims to be a profit of a New Age religion called Matrixism.

Zagami recently said:

¡°I announce the New Religion for 2012 Matrixism, yes Matrixism is the official religion of my Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis nothing else will be tollerated amongst true illuminated beings of light working for the Science of God and the Kingdom of God in 2019.

¡°This is the only possible solution in front of all superstition and bigotry trust me Brother.

¡°And I¡¯m glad to announce to you I am the Prophet of Matrixism because I am sure it worksas it is tested to perfection.¡±

And with these words Zagami shows himself to be nothing more than another Vatican tool, spreading false ecumenism under a slick New Age guise.

He is no more of a prophet than Lassie or Rin Tin Tin. He becomes laughable with his latest statement and nothing more than a small time megalomaniac who disrespects the authority and word of God every time he opens his mouth.

Here is what Wikia says about another idiotic religious creation from the annals of Jesuitism:

Matrixism or The path of the One is a new religious movement inspired by the motion picture trilogy The Matrix. Conceived by an anonymous group in the summer of 2004 it has attracted over 16,000 adherents.

Matrixism is described as a syncretic or ecumenical religion. Though Matrixists cite references to ¡°the matrix¡± from an obscure text of the Bah¨¢¡¯¨ª Faith, called ¡°The Promulgation of Universal Peace¡±, to make a connection with broader world religious history, The Matrix trilogy, along with related mass media products such as video games, is generally considered to be the ¡°sacred text¡± of the movement.

Matrixism carries with it four main beliefs that are described as ¡°The Four Tenets of Matrixism¡±. Briefly these are: belief in a messianic prophecy, use of psychedelics as sacrament, a perception of reality as multi-layered and semi-subjective, and adherence to the principles of at least one of the world¡¯s major religions.

The Matrixism website indicates April 19th as a holiday known as Bicycle Day. This day marks the anniversary of Albert Hofmann¡¯s 1943 experiment with LSD. Matrixism also observes the anniversary of the passing of Aldous Huxley, John F. Kennedy and C.S. Lewis, November 22nd 1963, as a holy day called the Day of Remembrance and Reflection.

Religious laws specific to Matrixism include; The abrogation of the use of the human image in advertising, the legalization of file sharing, the abrogation of pornography, the legalization of same-sex marriage, the abrogation of professional sports and the legalization of both polygyny and polyandry.

The adopted symbol for Matrixism is, ³à, the Japanese Kanji symbol for ¡°red¡±. This symbol was used in the video game Enter the Matrix. The color is a reference to the redpill, which represents an acceptance of and ability to see truth, as established early in the movie Matrix.

Hi Doug

The story about the delay in my posting the VVIII audios revolves around a few things.

In order for the recordings to have worth as listenable, reference research resource material I had decided to edit out my persistant cough that I had, which sounded like explosions throughout the recordings. Also the Skype connection was the worst that I'd ever had. VVIII lives near the Tiber (in view of the Vatican) & Craig states that proximity to water can adversely affect these things.

This had been delayed by a number of things. In the wake of a flu that I had in December & January, I had found myself experiencing a strong feeling of fatigue from dealing with so many disinfo agents, especially those who posted me their psy-ops via their mailing lists, & need to distance myself to regain some perspective & appetite for dealing with things again. I would prefer to spend more time reading books, researching & not having to deal with responding to comments on my blog postings, etc. that are time-wasting, energy-sapping diversions by agents of Rome (either witting or otherwise). Preparing oneself mentally & spiritually for the long distance is more important than indulging in every little sparring match & opportunity to "pontiff"-icate that comes one's way. I also recommend maintaining one's physical & perceptive health by taking the time out to go on long walks & breathe in some fresh air in large parks, listening to some interviews of others discussing various matters of interest, while trying to be attuned for any agendas being subtly promoted.

I also have been selling a few surplus to requirements material possessions (nothing too major - as I don't own a house or car! - LOL!!) too free up some liquidity. This takes time too. Let's face it, I don't get paid by anyone for sharing the fruits & efforts of my research & few in "Conspiracy-land" are likely to to care much about my personal welfare - whether mental, physical, emotional or spiritual. Working five days a week is time & energy-sapping too, but I'm getting some in while I can.

Being wary of the possibility of being used for some unknown aspect of Rome's agenda, I have also considered it prudent to put these out in my own time & in a low-key manner. This also gives me some time to see how things develop & what additional material comes to light.

I have been asked by one of my few trusted parties to comment on a letter that a friend of theirs received with matters that relate to "the City" of London & the UK. As I have said that I would dig out what material I have on the matters referred to I'll do that first. Then I'll prepare the audio of part three for posting. It is the most interesting of the three parts & will be worth waiting for.

If you wish to talk via Skype about any these matters of interest to us then please feel free to send me an email & I'll give you my contact.

Godspeed -

TS

Three minutes into the excerpt at the above URL of the movie "The God That Wasn't There" we find the following lies being promoted:

"If Jesus had been on earth, he would not even have been a priest." Hebrews 8:4 (supposedly)

What does the real verse say?:

"For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest..."

Hebrews 8:4, King James Version.

BIG difference. The true verse is saying if Jesus was on Earth at THIS moment, the moment of Paul's writing that is.

This "The God That Wasn't There" is pure Jesuitical/Masonic propaganda, using Jesuit-contrived mistranslations/(per)versions.

Hi troy i cant use skype at the moment.But you still havent told me when you will be bringing out the next audio.Please answer the question i asked.I mean in terms of approximate time it will be ready for download.You told me all that info i didnt need to know and forgot to answer my original question. :D

soulinspiration - March 16, 2009 10:29 PM (GMT)

Doug, I don't work to timetables. If I have other stuff that needs to get done then that gets done. I told you my reasons for any delay as the conspiracy research crew are a suspicious lot as you well know! What's he hiding from us? etc... LOL! If I charged subscriptions for "members only" extra parts like Red Ice then it would be out sooner.

So I'm letting you know that I have had a lot of things that have contributed to this delay. The closest that I can say is: Soon.

Thanks -

Dearest Brother Leo,

For the sake of prudence and integrity I, Moziah Armstrong, withdraw myself from acting as your "spiritual adviser." It has come to our attention, over the past week that you have devised a self-sabotage project taken from the Hollywood movie, In order to prevent any more shame upon you then you have already placed upon yourself, I will refrain from sharing the unified opinions concerning your recent actions and activities. However, we knew that you were Sandra Anderson the entire time because your fake agent/prophetess has the same English misspells as you do....DUH!!!!! That is hilarious that in all your intellect, as "messiah" that you did not foresee this! I mean, come on, don't you think a MESSIAH would be enlightened enough to at least know how to use spell check??!!! You call me a peasant yet I live in a beautiful 2 story home filled with peace and joy...you have been here. My parents do not pay for my rent or anything else. You however live in an one bedroom apartment/flat that belongs to your parents and you have no job, no income! LOL! You are a grown man and still get allowance, petty cash from your mommy and daddy, yet your brother has a respectable job, wife and child! He does not live off of the bread of your parents. I have witnessed with my own eyes how you mooch and use black magic against women that are mentally and spiritually weak. That is not a master at all. You have lost your wife, your son Issac, close colleges and now me to your stupidity and self-indulgent lunacy. Maybe it is the "knock on the head" bullcrap that you want people to believe is the reason for your irrational behavior; personally I think that a knock in the head is what you need right now to even begin to think rationally. What is wrong with you? Haven't you lost enough by now? Look at you Leo, you life is pitiful. You are empty....spiritually bankrupt. Your time is filled with meaningless interviews to fulfill your need/desire to be heard, respected, etc. What is there to respect? That you are a good father? or a good husband? Oh wait, you are a faithful & loving fiance to Francesca right? LOL! Lucifer is very cunning and I must admit he has got you really good this time. He did even need a contract for what he is doing in your mind and soul because you gave him legal entry through the door of your own EGO. What comedy to the real Masters of the White Lodge. Don't you see, the wisdom of man is foolishness to God and the foolish things of God are incomprehensible to man! If you do not have the heart and spirit of a child you will

We are fully aware of Christy and the black magic you have used upon her soul. Such unspeakable things you have done! There is video footage of your disgusting sexual behavior on web cam that the world would just love to get their hands on; recorded conversations of you sounding so pitifully deranged as you rant and rave to this sweet girl of how you will make her your sex slave in your harem as you supposedly guide the world into Matrixism. Does Franceca know about your relationship with Christy? I highly doubt it. What do you think she would do if she heard the conversations with Christy and viewed your strip tease web cam incident of masturbation in your flat in Rome? To hear you say such foul things as was recorded, caused my heart to break, Leo. There is an extremely immense amount of demonic darkness upon you. The Lord Jesus was so kind and merciful to set you free in May 2008 and now this is how you show your gratitude to Him?

You are a far cry from the TRUE MESSIAH! Messiah simply means "anointed one" and I do agree that you are anointed; a lady at IHOP called me several days ago and informed me that there was a vision given with you in it. You and several other men were being anointed by Satan with fire to sway men and women's hearts from the TRUTH. I was on skype with Phil at the time the call came from the International House of Prayer. So you see, dear Leo, all of your plans and schemes are constantly before the eyes of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. It is written that all that is hidden shall be revealed and that is done in darkness shall be brought into the light. Christy called me and spoke to me and Phil and Sister Keri at length and we have tons of evidence of behavior that is far from rational. The Vatican and your enemies love hard evidence to discredit and shame those who oppose their institution. With all the people you have angered around the world I would have thought that you would apply some wisdom on what you say and how you act, but after speaking with Christy and IHOP it is clear that you are not capable of using Wisdom because you cannot apply what you do not have. Intellectualism is Luciferian, Wisdom is holy and of God the Father.

A great teacher of the twentieth century made some profound statements about people like you Leo. It is with his words that I will close this letter and it is with sorrow that I sever all communication and relation with you henceforth; for you are not of the Brotherhood of Light for the Testimony of Jesus Christ.

"Under the shelter of the divine phrase "Universal Fraternity" the worst crimes registered in the penal code are committed. It is distressful for us to state this, but complacency with crime is also a crime. It is as bad to be silent when one must talk as to talk when on must be silent. We would like to be silent, yet one not only pays karma for the evil things that were done, but also for the goo things that were left undone when these things could have been done. Therefore, we cannot be silent about this. We love humanity very much, thus, we need to point out crime, to touch the wound with the finger in order not to fall into the crime of being complacent with crime. If we would not say these things we would put a horrible karma (the karma of accomplices and cowards) on ourselves. So, the truth, although harsh, is our best friend.

All spiritualist schools, orders, and lodges are delectable gardens within which are the nests of dangerous vipers and poisonous flowers filled with perfume. Ineffable enchantments that lead us to the abyss as well as sublime theories that can lead us to the precipice, and sweet smiles that carrby us to disgrace exist within those schools where devotees are filled with hypocrisy and fanaticism. Indeed the opium of theories is more dangerous than death.

Spiritualists devotees hug with one hand and with the other they stab the back with the sharp dagger of treason.

Spiritualist devotees always cover their worst evilness with smiles and very sweet words. We do not have the intention of criticizing any person in particular because that is wrong; this is why we speak in a general manner for the good of the Great Work of the Father.

We have known horrible cases, for example, we knew the case of a hypocritical pharisee who passed himself off as Jesus Christ and founded an order of black magic and later he alleged that he was uniting all the schools, orders, sects, creeds, and lodges within a universal fraternity, and he was the center of it all, naturally. We knew about another subject who took the name K.H. in order to declare that he was an Avatar, and that he should unite all schools under his scepter. All these types of opportunist subjects usually found black lodges under the shelter of the beautiful phrase "Universal Fraternity."

We cannot remain silent about this because complacency with crime is also a crime. Almost all the spiritualist devotees are totally petrified by their intellect; almost all of them remained frozen with the theories of spiritualism of the nineteenth century and reject filled with PRIDE, FEAR, and ARROGANCE, the secret doctrine of our Lord the Christ.

Therefore, we advise to be very careful, it is better to withdraw from these types of gentlemen, because they are dangerous and deceitful. Whosoever betrays the Christ falls into the abyss.

In these times many false Christs appear, and those who affiliate to them commit the crime of high treason. Jesus Christ is the leader of all souls; this Great Master lives in Oriental Tibet.

To state that this is good or that is evil,is an easy matter, yet, to have cognizance of the good from the evil and the evil from the good is very difficult. Many enter the path and thereafter they no longer want to continue working in order to fulfill the needs of every good citizen. Those wretched beings neglect their own duties to their own family, the world and their own selves. The one who enters the path must first be a model spouse, a model father/mother, a model child, a model citizen, a magnificent grandson/daughter, and a patriarchal grandfather/mother, etc. The one who does not know how to fulfill his duties as a simple citizen cannot tread the path of the great mysteries. Many disciples forget the good manners of a sincere and honorable gentleman/lady and become truly irresponsible and even dangerous individuals.

Under the shade of the word "fraternity" all the crimes mentioned in the penal code are committed. There are those who take other people's money and allege that the money is for good deeds. This is how devotees close the path that leads to the great mysteries to themselves.

On the path, there are many devotees who commit adultery, justifying themselves with phrases like these: "My spouse is refractory to the spiritualist teachings," "The other partner I have agrees with my ideas," "The other is spiritualist, and is the only on with whom I can practice sexual magic in order to attain in-depth realization," etc., and a thousand other so called mystical phrases. This is how ADULTERERS shut the doors of the temple unto themselves.

Many devotees of the path use sexual magic as a pretext to seduce many naive devotees; this is how these mystical adulterers withdraw from the altar of initiation and fall into the abyss. Sexual magic can only be practiced between husband and wife in legitimately constituted homes." --- Samael Aun Weor, The Major Mysteries

Monique Moziah Armstrong

Dear Leo,

I know you probably think that I betrayed you, but I didn't. You betrayed me and everyone else dear to you with your sudden and stupefying change for the worse. I know you are in a great deal of pain Leo, and that's entirely understandable since you are human after all (in spite of what you try to have us believe). But you cannot transform your grief into anger and project it onto other people, even the ones who you consider to be your enemies. If you are truly a great man then you should know the saying that the greatness of a man is not measured by how much hurt he can inflict on other people but by how much hurt he can take and still be able to love people in return. This is Jesus' way. Jesus was able to absorb an excruciatingly tortuous beating and gave his life in a state of pure agony but, in spite of it all, he still was able to love us. This is what Jesus is all about, pure forgiveness borne out of pure love.

If we truly want to change the world for the better, we must accept Christ's way; the way of forgiveness and love. We must all work hard to become the best shock-absorbers of all the rampant and debilitating psychopathy of the world. This is the only way to heal humanity. Christ was the ultimate shock-absorber as he managed to absorb all the sins of the world while he still succeeded loving us. Retribution and hatred will only perpetuate the misery and suffering of the world and we will never transgress to a better world. Humanity will forever stay in a state of spiritual dementia and retardation as long as we keep on hurting each-other. We will never break this wretched vicious cycle without love and forgiveness.

I had high hopes you would be different Leo. But now I've discovered that you've gone back to the Dark Side and are animated by grief masking as anger and frustration. For crying out, you’ve now become part of the very reason why I became interested in you and what you stood in the first place! How do you expect your original supporters to keep up with this schizoid and lunatic change of heart for the worse?

I know you miss your wife and son, but you are mistaken if you think that you are the only one experiencing grief in the world. There are millions of people who not only have lost their wife and son but their entire families and who do not have the luxury of the possibility of ever seeing them back again. Many people suffer Leo but many are also strong and wise enough to just give it a rest.

Your hubris and your thirst for revenge leaves you drunken with delusions of grandeur as well as leaving you exposed to demonic forces. You must cease your demonic activities now for the love of God. This is not the right way Leo. You'll lose everyone and everything if go down this path of Darkness. You are breaking all the Divine Laws. Cease your spiritual double-dealings and self-betrayal now. Ask the Lord to forgive you and let it quench your thirst for revenge. This is the only way before it is too late.

For the love of God man, a few weeks ago you condemned Andrew Chumbley for the Satanic activities he did and now you've succumbed to go down the same path as he did. Cannot you see where that will end?

Now is the time to be humble Leo... I deplore you to make use of it.

TROY SPACE: STATEMENT ON LEO ZAGAMI'S APPARENT SELF-SABOTAGE & THE POSSIBLE AGENDA BEHIND IT

Phil

Wow!

What can one add to that??!! (besides saying that I guess that Phil meant "implore"?)

My gut feeling is that this "self-sabotage project taken from the Hollywood movie" as Monique Armstrong puts it may have much more to it than anyone has considered.

I have stated once before that IF Leo had an ulterior agenda beyond promoting Masonry then the only one that I could think of was being the major part of a long-term project that will reach some kind of apotheosis in the release of the cinema adaption of Dan Brown's (or the Jesuits) novel "Angels & Demons" working towards bringing about a false awareness of the Illuminati as being a fictional network - which is the basic premise of the book.

This to me makes the most sense. Reveal virtually the whole game plan (obviously with certain key components left out in relation to the plan's existence itself) with the intention of following this up by completely & utterly discrediting it.

There will be no reappraisal from myself of the likes of Fethullah Gulen, Ezio Giunchiglia, Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri or others. Most of the time Leo - when speaking of others - told it like it is & often confirmed what I had either already deduced or was to verify independently by following up on his leads. Take Leo out of the picture that he portrayed & it still largely stands up. I'm referring to alliances & agendas here. For whatever reason, known perhaps only to himself - or perhaps to certain others VERY high within the Occult network - Leo has indeed embarked on a spectacular "self-sabotage project".

Think deeper people. This is not just some soap opera, though it does seem to have been largely presented as such.

In fact I am always wary in these kind of circumstances of going along with taking any accompanying hand-washing statements at face value, especially when the whole momentum of events seems engineered to bring about maximum credibility damage. In this case that credibility is not so much about one man, as the information that he has brought forth.

Can anyone who has examined the likes of Scott Bruno, who put Leo's site together, not smelt the whiff of the Jesuits & be surprised by this turn of events? The postings on his own website are part of the reason why I never participated on the forums at that site.

Monique Armstrong & her friend "Sister Keri" - who was herself first introduced to the internet by Greg Szymanski if I'm not mistaken - both vigorously maintained in an interview with Phil that Rome had "gone wrong" in contrast with the Biblical facts of Revelation 17 & 18 that reveal that she (Rome) was & is the one & the same as the Babylonian mystery religion - with Keri then going on to assert with Monique's enthusings that Eastern Orthodoxy is true Christianity & not under Rome's rule.

This is demonstrably false & I have proven for a fact that Gregorios Theocharous, the Archbishop of Thyateira and Great Britain, i.e. the Head of the Greek Orthodox Church in Great Britain (the Church of Greece being within the communion of the Eastern Orthodox Church) is a member of the Franco-Neapolitan Constantinian Order's counterpart body the Royal Order of Francis I, a Catholic lay order loyal to the Pope & presided over by the Duke of Castro with its Grand Prior being the Jesuit Cardinal Vanhoye (see: http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/10/05...ncis-i-members/). The International House of Prayer (that Monique Armstrong is apparently a leading member of) was supposed to be having a massively expensive "church" built in Dallas, that if Leo's descriptions of its agenda are accurate at all would seem to be a modern-day version of the (essentially Theosphical) Temple of Understanding which was exposed in 1964 in the brilliant booklet "The Cult of the All-Seeing Eye". (see: http://www.hiddenmysteries.com/xcart/produ...&cat=487&page=1). So I'm not too keen to buy into their (false) version of Christianity. Suckers & gullible-types: Beware! Ignorance has rarely proved to be eternal bliss. "Good" Illuminati = Good Cop Illuminati; "Bad/Evil" Illuminati = Bad Cop Illuminati. No more, no less. BOTH are ultimately stage-managed/"executively produced" by the Jesuits. "Wakey-wakey, hand off Snakey!" ;D

How do we know that any of the more extreme acts attributed to Leo have actually happened at all? Perhaps this is part of a greater psy-op?

I have never portrayed Leo as either a saint or a demon. Doing either can play into the hands of an agenda beyond one's awareness. When he was being attacked from one corner or another in the past & I defended him, then I can say with dignity that that was the right thing to do at that time based on the available information. Regardless: Keep your eyes on Rome my friends there is something most strange emanating from there indeed.

I send a prayer for Leo that he may be able to eventually cast all of his demons aside, but this will only happen when he fears (& loves) God more than Satan. None of us are likely to ever be sure that this moment has truly come to pass if it does. This would truly be a shame, but Leo's story has taken so many twists & turns that this state of affairs would be inevitable.

In the plot of "Angels & Demons" we see it revealed that an agent provocateur infiltrator who has embedded himself into the highest level within the Vatican in order to destroy its credibility & to unwittingly reveal that the Illuminati network is a fiction. Now we possibly see the opposite: one who has embedded himself within the NWO conspiracy research scene possibly in order to destroy the credibility of the notion of an actual Illuminati network that is & has always been ultimately directed from Rome & is her offspring.

Bruno & most of the others mentioned above are almost certainly too.

Phil I give the possibility of being credulous - rather than blatantly, intentionally deceptive. On the number of occasions that I spoke with him I did warn him to be on guard at all times dealing in this arena. I hope that he is sincere above & that he retrospectively understands the integrity of my intent, even if I might have appeared as being perhaps bordering on abrasive at times. Be wise too to the spiritual power games coming from all directions, not just those that are over-obviously of the Dark Side.

I'm not a member at leozagami.com, but has anyone considered testing the censorship by posting any of the above material there? I find it surprising that Phil posts such strong comments on Leo to his email list (presumably, I seem to have been removed from it some time back, so wouldn't know who'd received the above epistle besides Craig), but "serious discussion" of "Matrixism" holds sway over there amongst the "awakened".

Here's the forum address there:

http://leozagami.com/index.php?option=com_...board&Itemid=57

It would be interesting to see if anyone gets anything through there.

I think that we can safely assume that the alleged offending video footage is unlikely ever to be posted at:

http://leozagami.com/index.php?option=com_...&id=7&Itemid=60

IF it exists. So who's word is Phil taking this on? Monique "Agent JJP" Armstrong's?

As for Leo being charged with having a "Messiah complex", so what's with "JJP"'s "Moziah" moniker? Moses + Messiah = Moziah? I don't buy that or the "saw the face of God" story.

More distraction. The "Latino" healer youth figure who accounts of are dropped in "JJP"'s recorded phone calls that Phil has posted is another piece of Jesuitical psy-ops from where I'm standing.

Thanks to Halvor of Norway for reposting at leozagami.com's forum Monique A. & Phil J's statements & my commentary on them & recent turns of events related to Leo Zagami:

http://leozagami.com/index.php?option=com_...28&id=2787#2787

It will be interesting to see who & what any comments may appear in response to this posting. I have always had a great deal of respect for Halvor's unbiased, yet still questioning analysis of the information thrown up by Leo Zagami in Leo's interviews & am very grateful for the hard work that he selflessly put in transcribing my first recorded interview with Leo in full, which I am sure that he did in the spirit of sharing knowledge with interested parties & those to come, as a research resource. I have used this for such a purpose in my communications responses with others a number of times.

For selected links to Halvor's work see:

http://leozagami.wordpress.com/2008/05/08/...at-xiandosinfo/

I would also like to thank Halvor for following up some of my email list posts a few months back in which I appealed for others to join me in establishing who were the current hierarchy of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre, as conflicting (due to not being up-to-date) "official" website sources were for a while the source of as much confusion as clarification on these particulars.

The accurate info has now been available at:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/about/

For some time now. If anyone can help keep this list up-to-date by informing me of any verifiable changes in position of any concerned parties then please let me know.

*Yesterday I arrived in Rome for an emergency visit to Leo. After a tiring 4-hour Eurostar high-speed train ride, to my displeasure I found him in a tight security prison with barbed-wire and metal nets. The Jesuit Hospital founded by Ignatius Loyola on the Isle of Tiberina is called 'Fate Bene Fratelli'. They gave him shots of electricity and later a shot in his buttocks of some kind of calming agent. Jesuit priests were present! His head rattled and he was held down. After this he was given some milk to drink. I was able to record videos of him in prison, which I will release tommarrow. My wife was moved to tears. This time the Jesuits won! -Count Vivian Vivaldi III

I'm having some doubts here, this all sounds kinda scripted. I guess we'll see when these videos come out...

Alex - March 25, 2009 12:02 AM (GMT)

Just found a bit of info on what Vivian Vivaldi said on Fate Bene Fratelli

Jul 15, 2002
room with a view
For the past 10 days Pierluigi has been recovered at the Ospedale Fatebenefratelli located on the Tibertina, the Tiber Island. And, if everything goes well, he will FINALLY be coming home tomorrow!
I would like to thank those who sent me emails of support. The positive energy really helped me and I will soon be getting in contact with these special friends. Grazie ancora!

Well the first few days Pierluigi was in the hospital, he was feeling fairly humble and Happy To Be Alive. Plus he had so many tubes stuck into his body that he looked like some kind of Madly Mutated Porcupine that moved with difficulty. But now he's tubeless and restless and itching from his stitches. Obviously our vacation plans have been obliterated (we were to go to Corsica and to Crete) making Pierluigi even more irritated. So I've suggested that we pretend to be Audrey Hepburn and Gregory Peck in A ROMAN HOLIDAY and act like tourists in the city we live in. I mean, we're talking about Rome and not Poteet, Texas!

Thus our tour begins with Pierluigi's hospital, Ospedale Fatebenefratelli. The hospital includes the annexed monastery of Benedictian monks who's members were nick-named "Fatebenefratelli", because, when they used to beg for alms, they'd say fate bene, fratelli which means "do good, brothers".
Pierluigi's room has a little balcony that overlooks the Tiber and the Cestio Bridge. From the balcony you can also see the church of St. Bartholomew of the Island. This church was built on the remains of the famous temple of Esculapius, the Greek god of medicine.

The hospital is on the Tiberina, a tiny island that sits in the middle of the Tiber River. Originally this part of Italy belonged to the Etruscans but, when the Romans overthrew their king, Tarquinio il Superbo, they threw his surplus of grain into the river thus creating the island.

The island, less than 400 yards in length and no wider than 100 yards, was arranged as a ship: a travertine facing resembling a vessel's prow and stern was added by the banks, and an obelisk stood in the center of the isle, as a mast. Much of this Ship Look has been lost today because of added constructions (even tho' some idea of it can be seen from Lungotevere) but an 18th cen drawing by Giovanni Battista Piranesi clearly indicates original intentions.

Every summer, the Tiberina hosts an international film festival, l'Isola del Cinema.

In the evenings, when I leave the hospital, I cross the island's other bridge, Ponte Fabricio (62 B.C.), which leads directly to the Synagogue and the Ghetto where the Jewish community has been living since the first Century B.C. It was exactly in this area that the Germans, in 1943, arrested over 2000 Jews and sent them to concentration camps. Today, however, there's always a group of armed carbinieri near the Synagogue and some adjacent streets have been blocked off because of terrorism. The Ghetto has many tavernas specializing in Roman-Jewish food such as artichokes "alla giudia". There's also the Fornetto that serves kosher pastries.

Here there is also the impressive Portico di Ottavia (undergoing massive restoration), my favorite visual on my walk home. The Portico was reconstructed by Augustus in honor of his sister (the abandoned wife of Mark Antony) Octavia on the site of the ancient Portico di Metello (27-23 BC). Ottavia was so "good" that she raised not only her son, Marcus Claudius Marcellus, but the children that her ex-husband had with Cleopatra as well. She deserved a monument!

Without even trying, my return home from the hospital is a Walking Tour of Rome straight out of a guidebook.

craig-oxley - March 27, 2009 04:59 PM (GMT)

Leo has been destroyed by the Jesuits. It became clear to me that they had him by the cojones once he started praising Fra Nicholas and Fra Michel on his Facebook pages.

[7:09:05 PM] Vittorio Vivanus Vivaldi III says: My wife is telling them that I was just joking
[7:09:14 PM] Vittorio Vivanus Vivaldi III says: and that Leo has nothing to do with me

Joseph - March 28, 2009 02:30 PM (GMT)

I don't trust Leo, nor do I trust Vivaldi.

What valuable new pieces of information did Zagami unearth since his 'appearing'?

And does not Vivaldi try to diminish the Knights of Malta and their true power?

According to EJP, Zagami is the leader of a new religion called 'matrixism'..
All this is just weird, meant to focus our attention off real information.

EJP, TR, GS all doubt Zagami's validity, and for good reason.

Title: Thoughts on Glenn Becks topic

RazorD - November 20, 2010 07:26 PM (GMT)

Every morning I ride with my dad to work and he listens to Glenn Beck on the radio. My dad is one of those guys that knows a bit of entry level type stuff like, the federal reserve, CFR, 911, as well as things like GMO's, Flouridation ect. He doesnt get real deep but he will listen when I rant on other topics as found on this forum. Back to my point, So as I ride with him to work, Im listening to Glenn Beck and hes talking about how we need to get close to god, and that we have to start storing food for coming collapse. And so right away it just really rubs me weird. Like why would somebody on a major network, so well known be talking like that? Whats the angle? It just doesnt feel right but at the same time we all know that we must prepare. I would love to hear some opinions on this matter. Thank you!

treadingserpents - November 21, 2010 08:55 PM (GMT)

It is highly suspicious. I figure they just want us to revolt for an excuse to slaughter us. Either that or while the government is busy dealing with the revolution, Russia, China, etc, will attack and destroy us. Strange indeed.

Keith - November 21, 2010 09:48 PM (GMT)

i don't think glen beck is a patsy. i think he's a truthseeker, however he's surrounded by mainstreamers so i don't know if he'll ever break free. at least he's trying supposedly. i turned it on glen beck once, and he said talking to himself: "glen, you gotta stop talking about THIS AND THAT-- cuz you're scaring the old people!".... i thought that was kinda funny. picture an indoctrinated 80 year old trying to grasp and believe conspiracty theories. LOL+

willcobbett - April 9, 2011 01:11 AM (GMT)

Beck is a Mormon, and now unemployed. LOL.

willcobbett - April 9, 2011 12:53 AM (GMT)

Just an angry man, who in a different time, would have been a Negro hater, Woman hater, or murdering redskins claiming they were savage beasts.

He lost his faith and is angry because of it, and wants someone to blame.

Funny enough, Oracle Broadcasting has many hosts who see the Jesuits / Vatican as at least part of the NWO, without linking them per se with Jews.

For example hosts such as :LEE ROGERS, Michael Vail, Doug Owens. However ... they are into all kinds of garbage too, especially Stichin, Tsarion and Maxwell.

Insurgent - April 9, 2011 01:09 AM (GMT)

Yep, I am kind of down on Lee Rogers. I would think with him talking about Jesuits and Vatican he would at least mention Eric here and there or any other writers of the past who wrote many books on the Jesuits. But in two months or so that I have been listening to him, I have not heard him even once mention them.

It is all about Council for National Policy and Josh Reeves.

And of course he is lost with his love of the above mentioned by you Tsarion, Icke type nonsense. Aliens made us or earth is millions of years old. Plus he doesn't know what the solution is, or what to do about it. Wasn't it just yesterday that he was saying we need to wake people up and teach our kids so they would teach theirs etc. Because when this generation will get older there might be nobody left to preach the truth. Haaaaaa..... sadly this is how 99% of conspiracy/alternative media hosts/followers think, talk, talk, talk, "infowars" blah blah blah

That is my beef with them, is that all of us young folk who are the majority of the awakened once, will get to our 50's, 70's, 80's and we still will be talking about "THE CONSPIRACY!!!!"

"Ohhh did you hear, that the flight to Mars was all faked?!?!?!?! Just like they faked the Moon landing!!! THEM BUMS!!!!!"

Let us remember and try to repeat the great acts and deeds of our dear and glorious obstinate, accursed and perfidious heretics or we shall slowly but surely perish.

Ok

I was just showed a page about someone called Khanverse,it seems he also joined in the smear campaign against Alan Watt what is our stance on him,he's a muslim too?

soulinspiration - August 22, 2010 09:32 PM (GMT)

Alex

Surely it is more beneficial for the interests of determining the truth to have your own stance. It doesn't say very much for one's concern for individual discernment when one starts asking for "official stances". If I were Khanverse I would be laughing out loud reading the above. It's all very well asking for others' thoughts on different matters, but "official stances" are best left to followers of Canon Law, Sharia Law or the Talmud.

When Craig puts up a page of "Official Stances for Unhived Mind forum posters" accompanied by a "FAQ's on Official Stances for Unhived Mind forum posters" section, then we will all know what to think, say & argue. Until then let's enjoy arguing, discussing & reasoning amongst ourselves.

soulinspiration - there's a call for you from Freeman, want's another of your special tours of the hotspots of London ..... the man asked for an opinion, you sounded like an Anglican minister asked a question about sodomy - no proper answer to avoid giving a solid statement.

Moslems are a creation of the Vatican, via "Saint" Augustine, and controlled by MOSSAD, MI6 and CIA, so therefore by the Jesuits. None can be considered at all trustworthy, they are encouraged by the pederast prophet to lie about their intentions in their Satanic Book of Beliefs.

Wow, pederasty, lying, and false religion, sounds just like the Vatican :)

They are the dumb and bestial muscle of the SJ's, and will be the uniformed mass killers of white Europeans in Great Britain when they are activated.

Khaniverse? Just a useful idiot. Evil? Most likely as an individual, not. Poisonous shill? certainly.

There you are soulinspiration, an opinion. perhaps others can give opinions,for or against what I have said, and just as with Alex Jones, an "official" i.e. accepted opinion here will emerge.

About Freeman

Freeman is an internationally known, award-winning TV producer in Austin, Texas. He graduated Interdisciplinary Studies with honors and studied Ancient Architecture at Kansas University. Freeman has made it his life's work to unveil the mysteries on planet earth. He devotes his life to love, patience, and information. His research has led him to make films on corporate logos and their magical meanings, Columbia, the Illuminati goddess, ancient astronauts and ETs, HAARP and chemtrails. He hosts and produces "the Freeman Perspective", a live local broadcast on Channel Austin.

Freeman admits to it all. He is bloodline of the Illuminati, son of a worshipful master that built nuclear missiles and chased flying saucers for Project "Blue Book". Freeman is witness to many of the high strange events currently manifesting on planet earth and wishes to share what he has learned on his synchronistic path.

Freeman is currently working on a new film and book project entitled, The Sorcerers of Atlantis which will take you from Y2K to 2012 with film from all over the country and beyond.

RazorD - October 15, 2010 10:35 PM (GMT)

I used to watch Freemans vids back then. He believes that everything has something to do with this space thing. One thing that never really sat well with me was this Seminar he was giving. He pulled out a drawning he supposedly drew when he was a child. He drew this symbol as a child that ended up having this huge meaning. I wish I could remember more, but It was kinda far fetched. That along with his dad being a Freemason that supposedly chased flying saucers makes me think that Freeman is Disinfo..Just my opinion

Anybody schmoozing and fraternizing with David "oneness- conciousness" Icke, has got to be on the same payroll. I bet they swap stories of what thier Daddy's contributed to the Craft and the Alien agenda. "The shape shifting Aliens did it"! haha.

I listen to his radio shows, they are interesting, and theories are cool, like Akhenaton - Obama connection, and whole pharaoh family being Obama's family, plus all the interesting space war, teleportation, alternate realities, but of course he is short on many things.....

He does sound like Icke and Tsarion with his hippie attitude, love, peace, and soul... He always preaches this whole New Age shtick of "don't be mad at them, don't answer to violence with violence" etc

It's all good and dandy, but Jesuits and Co. do no deal in love, peace and soul

He does not point any one being at the helm, but instead mixes in the whole bunch

Yes, Freeman & his girlfriend stayed at my place for two nights in spring 2009 & were most intelligent, interesting & charming company. I showed them around the City of London "square mile" (photo of Freeman & myself in "the City" here: http://www.myspace.com/freemantv/photos/61857168) & around parts of the West End - specifically St James' & Mayfair.

We walked straight into Mark Mason's Hall. Cheekily asked the Tyler if we could see the temple/lodge meeting room. We were asked if we were members of the fraternity. We both replied no, but Freeman told the Tyler about his father being a Mason & I stated that my mother's father had been Grand Royal Arch - one of the chapters beyond the blue lodge degrees. More info at the following links for the interested:

http://www.grandlodgescotland.com/index.ph...task=view&id=50

http://www.grandlodgescotland.com/index.ph...=171&Itemid=137

http://www.supgrac.com/

http://www.ugle.org.uk/about-ugle/recognis...-british-isles/

Well, that seemed to do the trick, as this photo of me speaking with the Tyler confirms (I only came across it when I saw it on Freeman's Myspace page!):

http://www.myspace.com/freemantv/photos/62180390

Here's the temple from another angle:

http://www.myspace.com/freemantv/photos/62180384

Some symbolism just above the door leading to the temple:

http://www.myspace.com/freemantv/photos/62180395

The "rough ashlar" just outside it (still within Mark Masons Hall):

http://www.myspace.com/freemantv/photos/62180401

Believe it or not, this is one of the most important lodge rooms in the world - let alone London! It still makes me laugh that we got in without any funny handshakes. When leaving the Tyler said that he hoped that we would one day join the fraternity. Freeman said some suitably ambiguous mystical phrase that eludes me at the moment. This seemed to please our host & we went on our way - although Freeman did buy some white Master Mason gloves with "MM" embroidered in blue IIRC. Completely lacking in funds (as often is the case) I passed up any such opportunity for acquiring any such paraphernalia!

We also walked up the few steps & straight through the open door of the Jesuits' UK London HQ's at 114 Mount Street. There was a woman at reception (Oh the shock! A woman working in the Jesuit UK Provincial's office! Ha!!) who slammed the slider shutter on us. Not too much to see in the small white-painted entrance room. There are some photos of the Jesuits' Farm Street Church (right next door to 114) scattered throughout the London pics section of Freeman's Myspace page. I took some more of the inside of that church & of 114 on the Friday of the UK Papal visit in September that I will post online sometime. I'd gone to a bunch of places around St James' & Mayfair that day to see if there were any special signs to mark the event, There weren't, but I got some great shots anyway.

Going back to spring 2009: Freeman had dropped in at the Alternative Views Conference near Heathrow to sell some DVD's to help fund his trip to the UK. It seems that he got to do an impromptu talk there by popular request - after Len Horowitz was eventually persuaded to stop singing & playing the guitar! At least that's my recollection of the story. Like most of these type events it was for the reasonably financially comfortable. I didn't go! :D Anyway, the weather was fantastic in London the weekend of that event - which is a rarity, so I enjoyed that instead.

This whole notion that he is "bloodline of the Illuminati" is - as far as I know - complete bunkum. Fritz Springmeier's bogus list of "the top 13 Illuminati bloodlines" includes the Freeman family. But Freeman of "the Freeman Perspective" is not his family name - it's a nickname!

Freeman is - to put it mildly - less critical of David Icke than I am & has time for some other researchers that I consider dubious. However, that is the case with most researchers that I have had any kind of contact with, whether online or in person, so I don't hold that against him.

As for Freeman not "doing Jesus Christ as LORD" - well the Jesuits do (propaganda-wise that is) - & we know that they are the vanguard of the Roman Catholic institution that is not based around either the Bible or personal experience of God, but around the Papal Antichrist. At least Freeman's honest about his thoughts, not claiming to have all of the answers though either. We disagreed on a number of points but took that in our stride. I was happy to be showing enthusiastic fellow researchers around dozens of places & symbols that I had come across in London over the years & to tell some of the accounts that I had gathered about them.

Personally I would like to see more people do some "real world" films like those that Freeman has put together on a shoestring budget. It is a pity that he hasn't done a London documentary, as I showed him some places that he filmed & photographed & would make a very interesting presentation. When I can afford some spare camera batteries for my newish digital camera & have ironed out the juddering issue that I had with the Anti-Papal protests clip that I posted at Youtube then I'll do a London one myself.

I'll have to check out that Youtube clipped mentioned by the OP:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6j-5kt8xfi8

"RazorD"'s comment (also above) reminds me of thoughts that Chris White voiced once. I don't think that I've seen the clip that is being referred to. Feel free to post a link.

While I think of it, I'll add that just after I met up with Freeman & his girlfriend for the first time at Tower Hill we had a very interesting incident with three helicopters (including two proverbial black ones). I posted my account about that at the time at UHM.

Was George Washington Baptized Catholic?

A picture of Virgin Mary found in his personal belongings and his early writings have Jesuit origins

By Greg Szymanski, JD
Oct. 18, 2009

A report surfaced from a 1952 Detroit newspaper article that a picture of the Blessed Virgin Mary was found in George Washington's personal belongings, adding to reports in an 1860 book that he was baptized Roman Catholic on his deathbed by a Jesuit priest from Georgetown University.

It is further reported as a 16-year old youth Washington wrote, making emphasis on the "one hundred and ten "Rules of Civility and Decent Behaviour in Company and Conversation," which were first written by Jesuits and not as first reported by French scholars.

According to researchers, these maxims were so fully exemplified in George Washington's life that biographers have regarded them as formative influences in the development of his character.

In an article written entitled Washington's Copy of Rules of Civility & Decent Behaviour

In Company and Conversation (reprinted in its entirety at the end of this article), the following conclusion was drawn, giving us further evidence that Washington ws influenced by Jesuitism at an early age:

“Here, then, is the conclusion of the whole matter as it now stands: The Rules of Civility were composed originally, or compiled, and published in France, by the Jesuits, about 1595; they were translated into English by Francis Hawkins about 1640, and passed through no fewer than eleven editions down to 1672.

“From the Hawkins book the one hundred and ten Rules written by Washington were selected, simplified and arranged by some person at present unknown. One copy came into the hands of George Washington, who from it wrote out the manuscript that is among the Washington Papers purchased: from the family by Congress in 1834 and 1849, and held in the Department of State until 1903, when they were transferred to the Library of Congress.”

Returning to Washington’s alleged Roman Catholic Baptism, the Denver Register reported the following on May 11, 1952:

“A picture of the Blessed Virgin Mary and one of St. John were among the effects found in an inventory of the articles at Mount Vernon at the death of George Washington, first president of the U.S.A. The Rev. W.C. Repetti, S.J., archivist at Georgetown University, reports he has discovered this information in an appendix to a biography of Washington.

“The book is a Life of George Washington by Edward Everett, published by Sheldon & Co. in New York in 1860.

‘”The fact that he had a picture of the Blessed Virgin is rather unexpected, and, to the best of my knowledge, has not been brought out, ” says Fr. Repetti. The long report among slaves of Mount Vernon as to Washington’s deathbed conversion would be odd unless based on truth. These were not Catholic Negroes; it is part of the tradition that weeping and wailing occurred in the quarters that Massa Washington had been snared by the Scarlet Woman of Rome, whom they had been taught to fear and hate. Supposedly, Father Neale was rowed across the Piscatawney by Negro oarsmen; and men often talked freely when slaves were nearby, confidently ignoring their presence.

On Feb. 24, 1957, the Denver Register added the following post:

“It was a long tradition among both the Maryland Province Jesuit Fathers and the Negro slaves of the Washington plantation and those of the surrounding area that the first President died a Catholic.

“These and other facts about George Washington are reported in the Paulist

Information magazine by Doran Hurley. The story is that Father Leonard Neale, S.J., was called to Mount Vernon from St. Mary's Mission across the Piscatawney River four hours before Washington's death. Washington's body servant, Juba, is authority for the fact that the General made the Sign of the Cross at meals.

"He may have learned this from his Catholic lieutenants, Stephen Moylan or John Fitzgerald. At Valley Forge, Washington forbade the burning in effigy of the Pontiff on "Pope's Day." Several times as President he is reported to have slipped into a Catholic church to hear Sunday Mass"

Further, there is a Notre Dame University story supporting that Washington may have died a Roman Catholic, as reported by a Notre Dame publication by a Fr. J"

"The Notre Dame angle on the story supports it (Washington being Catholic.) Fr. Sorin in the 1870's built Washington Hall on the campus. It still stands today. He would not have named the building after a non-Catholic but named it for the first president considering his conversion a providential sign of the eventual conversion of this Protestant nation to the Catholic faith.

The naming of Washington Hall fits with other signs on campus of Sorin's belief that faith would prevail (and that Notre Dame would be at the heart of the Church in America) including the construction of a domed bicammeral main building reminiscent of the state capitols under construction throughout the nation at the time and a series of murals dedicated to the discovery of America by CC under her Catholic Majesty, Isabella.

At any rate, Sorin believed the Jesuit story of a call to Georgetown University for a priest to baptize the president on his deathbed. I have heard from several Jesuits that the story has credence.)

Besides if Washington was so opposed to the Papacy why would he have overlooked the importance of the 1605 Gunpowder Plot and issue the following statements which seem to support the papacy instead of warning Americans about the Beast in the Book of Revelation:

Here is his Order in Quarters issued by General George Washington, November 5, 1775 pertaining to Guy Fawkes Day ("Pope's Day" in the United States):

"As the Commander in Chief has been apprized of a design form'd for the observance of that ridiculous and childish custom of burning the Effigy of the pope–He cannot help expressing his surprise that there should be Officers and Soldiers in this army so void of common sense, as not to see the impropriety of such a step at this Juncture; at a Time when we are solliciting, and have really obtain'd, the friendship and alliance of the people of Canada, whom we ought to consider as Brethren embarked in the same Cause. The defence of the general Liberty of America: At such a juncture, and in such Circumstances, to be insulting their Religion, is so monstrous, as not to be suffered or excused; indeed instead of offering the most remote insult, it is our duty to address public thanks to these our Brethren, as to them we are so much indebted for every late happy Success over the common Enemy in Canada."

As promised earlier, here is the article about Washington's Copy of " Rules of Civility & Decent Behaviour In Company and Conversation" written by Charles Moore, Washington, D.C. May, 1926:

Among the hundreds of volumes of Washington Manuscripts in the Library of Congress, two contain the school exercises of George Washington, written before he had reached the age of sixteen years. The one devoted to mathematics exhibits a wide range of subjects, combined with sureness and accuracy in working, and clearness and neatness of presentation. Few graduates of colleges to-day, unless they specialize in mathematics, become so well trained in that subject. The problems in surveying show that at sixteen Washington was fitted to earn his living in the field.

The second book begins with legal forms, such as every planter should know: bills of sale and exchange, contracts, conveyances, deeds, leases, and even wills. The middle portion contains a Christmas poem, and also one entitled "True Happiness," which strongly suggest that the boyish love poems attributed to his pen were taken from some book, now unknown. Probably they expressed his feelings at the moment, and he copied them.

The remaining ten pages of the second book are occupied by one hundred and ten "Rules of Civility and Decent Behaviour in Company and Conversation," about which much has been written and little is known. These maxims were so fully exemplified in George Washington's life that biographers have regarded them as formative influences in the development of his character.

During the days before mere hero worship had given place to understanding and comprehension of the fineness of Washington's character, of his powerful influence among men, and of the epoch-making nature of the issues he so largely shaped, it was assumed that Washington himself composed the maxims, or at least that he compiled them. It is a satisfaction to find that his consideration for others, his respect for and deference to those deserving such treatment, his care of his own body and tongue, and even his reverence for his Maker, all were early inculcated in him by precepts which were the common practice in decent society the world over. These very maxims had been in use in France for a century and a half, and in England for a century, before they were set as a task for the schoolboy Washington.

That romantic and stimulating scholar, the late Moncure D. Conway, was born in Falmouth, Virginia. The Falls of the Rappahannock made music to his boyish ears, as they had sung to the young Washington. Mr. Conway's knowledge of times and places and people in Colonial Virginia stimulated his zeal for research and gave food for his vivid imagination. He was the first to trace the origin of the Maxims to a treatise entitled "Bienseance de la Conversation entre les Hommes," prepared, in 1595, by the "pensionnaires" of the French Jesuit College of La Fleche, and sent by them to their brothers at Pont-a-Mousson.

One of the recipients, Father Perin, translated the Maxims into Latin, adding a chapter of his own on behavior at table. The Latin edition appeared at Pont-a-Mousson in 1617, at Paris in 1638, at Rouen in 1651. It was translated into Spanish, German, and Bohemian. A French edition appeared at Paris at least as early as 1640. [Author's note: George Washington's Rules of Civility Traced to their Sources and Restored, by Moncure D. Conway; 1891. See also Backer's Jesuit Bibliography).]

Just as he had completed his comparisons with the French work, Mr. Conway found in the British Museum an English version of the Maxims, "purporting to be by a child in his eighth year," first printed in London in 1640. "The translations are indeed rude," he writes, "and sometimes inaccurate as to the sense, but that they were the unaided work of a child under eight is one of the "things hard to be believed" which a Maxim admonishes us not to tell." Mr. Conway's conclusion is that "A careful comparison of Washington's Rules with the Hawkins version renders it doubtful whether the Virginia boy used the work of the London boy. The differences are more than the resemblances."

Yet admittedly Washington knew no French. As easily as the young Washington himself threw a stone across the Rappahannock, Mr. Conway overcomes this difficulty by having the Maxims translated from the French and made into copy-book form by the Reverend James Marye, who was born within the pale of the Catholic Church, at Rouen, but who came to Virginia with the first Huguenot Colony and was the minister of St. George's Parish, Spotsylvania County, from 1735 till his death in 1767. His home was at Fayetteville, eight miles from Fredericksburg. There he lived and was buried. [Author's note: Documents, chiefly unpublished, relating to the Huguenot emigration to Virginia. Edited and compiled by Robert Alonzo Brock. Richmond, 1886. History of St. George's Parish in the County of Spotsylvania, by Rev. Philip Slaughter, D.D. Edited by R. A. Brock. Richmond, 1890.]

The fact that James Marye was born in France and was educated as a Jesuit makes plausible the theory that he had knowledge of a work on manners known throughout the civilized world. He might have been Washington's teacher; but there is no proof that he taught in Fredericksburg or elsewhere, or even that there was a school in Fredericksburg in his day, then little more than a name. Indeed we are by no means certain that George Washington went to school. His father, Augustine Washington, died in 1743, when the boy was eleven years old, and thereafter, until he was sixteen, he lived with his half-brother, Augustine, on the ancestral acres in Westmoreland County, forty miles from Fredericksburg. He was often at his mother's home, at Ferry Farm, across the Rappahannock from Fredericksburg; but we are not certain who his teachers were or whether he was taught outside his own home.

A comparison of texts furnishes proof positive that the Maxims copied by George Washington came from the Hawkins version, and not from the French. The doubts thrown on the Hawkins work because of the author's youth are unfounded.

Francis Hawkins was born in London in 1628. His father, John Hawkins, M.D. (Padua), was a brother of Sir Thomas Hawkins and of Henry Hawkins, all members of an old, active and influential family. Dr. John Hawkins had pub fished five books before his precocious son Francis, at the age of eight years, turned into English the French version of the Maxims. The pleased father took the manuscript to the printer, William Lee, who published it about 1640. The troubled state of the country kept the book from being reprinted until 1646, when a second edition appeared. Then followed in quick succession nine other editions before 1672.

A second part, entitled "Youth's behaviour, or Decency in Conversation amongst Women": with a portrait of Lady Ferrers, was added by the Puritan bookmaker, Robert Codrington, in 1664. This shows that Puritans as well as Cavaliers, Protestants as well as Romanists, regarded Hawkins's Maxims as stepping-stones to favor. Indeed, so thoroughly was Hawkins's English version accepted that Hawkins is regarded as the author of the book, and mention of the French authorship does not go beyond the expression on the title-page: "composed in French by grave persons for the use and benefit of their youth."

Meanwhile Hawkins, at the age of twenty-one, entered the Society of Jesus. In 1662 he was professed of four vows; ten years later he was confessor at Ghent, and from 1675 till his death in 1680-81 he was professor of Holy Scripture at Liege College. [Dictionary of National Biography.]

The open questions are: who condensed, and arranged as exercises in writing, the Hawkins Maxims; and, second, who taught George Washington penmanship by the use of them ?

In any event, and whoever the teacher, it was the Hawkins English version and not the French version that was the source of the rules Washington copied. Is it not probable that the Hawkins book was one of those compilations that "no gentleman's library could be without," notwithstanding the fact that no such title appears in the catalogue of the library of William Byrd of Westover, reputed to have been the finest in the Colonies? Is it not possible that either Washington's father or one of his half-brothers, all three of whom were educated in England, brought back a copy of one of the Hawkins editions?

One copy of the edition of 1663 has survived in the Library of Congress. The New York, Harvard, and Richmond Libraries report no copies. But the British Museum has the editions of 1646, 1651, 1663, and 1672; and also a Latin translation of the same work, London, MDCLII. The Bodleian Library, Oxford, has the seventh impression, 1661; eighth impression, I 663; ninth impression, I 668; and eleventh impression, 1672. Trinity College Library, Cambridge, England, has at least two editions-1663 and 1672. Dr. James H. Penniman of Philadelphia owns a copy of the edition of 1651,–the only copy of any edition I have found in this country, except the one in the Library of Congress.

The Library of Congress copy has been used as the basis of the comparisons herein made between the Washington and Hawkins texts. With its aid the Washington Rules have been restored, in cases of mutilation, with an accuracy more complete than the conjectural restorations of Dr. Toner [Author's note: Washington's Rules of Civility and Decent Behaviour in Company and Conversation. Copied from the original . . . and edited with notes, by J. M. Toner, M.D. Washington, D.C., 1888.] and of Mr. Conway. Of the one hundred and ten Rules in the Washington manuscript, not all are in the French version. Among them are a number that were added by English writers in the later editions of the Hawkins book. All the Rules are in the 1663 edition.

The hiatus of three quarters of a century between the latest known edition of Hawkins and the date which Washington himself placed upon his manuscript of the Rules is still unclosed. The Rules are not found in The Young Man’s Companion, by W. Mather, a copy of which school-book, with the name of George Washington and the date 1742 plainly written on the title-page, has been on the market. It is not established that the writing is his or that he owned the book, although it is contemporary with him. Nor have the Rules yet been discovered in any other like publication from 1672 till this day.

Professor E. K. Rand, of Harvard University, has called my attention to Dr. F. J. Furnivall’s collections of texts on Early English Meals and Manners and Queene Elizabethes Academy; and to the modernization of these texts by Edith Rickert, under the title of The Babees’ Book: Medieval Manners for the Young (1908). Many rules naturally are similar to those to be found in both the French and the English versions, but identity is lacking. Moreover, although mention is made of compilations so late as Richard Weste’s School of Virtue, printed in 1619, no mention is made of Perin’s work, or of Hawkins’.

Here, then, is the conclusion of the whole matter as it now stands: The Rules of Civility were composed originally, or compiled, and published in France, by the Jesuits, about 1595; they were translated into English by Francis Hawkins about 1640, and passed through no fewer than eleven editions down to 1672. From the Hawkins book the one hundred and ten Rules written by Washington were selected, simplified and arranged by some person at present unknown. One copy came into the hands of George Washington, who from it wrote out the manuscript that is among the Washington Papers purchased: from the family by Congress in 1834 and 1849, and held in the Department of State until 1903, when they were transferred to the Library of Congress.

I am indebted to Mr. R. F. Sharp, Keeper of the Department of Printed Books in the British Museum; to Mr. S. Gibson, Secretary of the Bodleian Library, Oxford; and to Mr. H. M. Adams, Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge, England, for painstaking investigation in their several institutions, and for their prompt and courteous replies to inquiries.

Miss Emily B. Mitchell, long connected with the Division of Manuscripts in the Library of Congress, has prepared the manuscript of this work, and has aided in the research involved. Mr. Levin C. Handy has photographed the Washington Rules in such manner as to bring out the very best that in them is.

It doesn't say SJ for Society of Jesus. It says JD. I think this issue was covered in the old unhived mind blog somewhere. Let me see if I can drag it up and find it. Bear with me.

Edit:
He started adding JD to his name early last year as I show near the bottom of this old page.

If you look at the Story/Wanta thread, and the Heneghan thread in AGENTS, you will be aware of how the Wanta thing has made its way back into the alternative community. Basiaclly, Story says that Wanta is a fraud - which I agree with. Story also says Wanta is hiding behind a fake principality in Australia called SNAKE HILL. I say Story though correct about Wanta being a fake, is wrong about Snake Hill when he denies it exists. I also say that even Tom "NSA" Heneghan is correct about how bad the Queen of England is and therefore Story is again pimping some lies that Szymanski busted him on such as the Queen of England and the Vatican wanting to repatriate some lost funds to America as far back as 2007. Nevertheless, Story has some interesting words for Szymanski in his WANTA A FINANCIAL TERRORIST report.

THE C.I.A. LIE SURROUNDING WANTA'S EXIT FROM JAIL
On 9th September it was alleged on another website that Janet Napolitano, Secretary for Homeland Security, had been arrested along with eight other officials and extradited to Europe. When Janet Napolitano appeared on TV screens within a brief period of time, it was postulated that the sources in question could not be relied upon and that this service and one other were the only Internet sources on the underlying crisis to which attention should be paid.

While undeservedly flattering, this Internet source asserted words to the effect that 'Story came comparatively late onto the scene, having paid for Wanta's exit from jail' – thus recycling a subtle, reckless and potent CIA lie (although the ANONYMOUS person who posted this lie was probably innocent of anything more than repetition, a likelihood that we gladly accept as true).

DELIBERATE OBFUSCATION OF THE TIMING WANTA'S RELEASE
This single, subtle LIE covers up the fact that Wanta, and therefore the US Government and its controlling Intelligence Power (the CIA and its myriad dependencies, which include the Federal Bureau of Investigation), knew all about 9/11 before the abominations occurred.

It follows that all the above, and all elements of the US structures that have continued the 9/11 cover-up, are co-conspirators in mass murder and have blood on their hands. If CIA-'President' Obama-Soetoro were genuine, and not a controlled operative-puppet of the criminalized, money-chasing and murderous Intelligence Power (with apologies to its 'white hats' if such phenomena exist these days, which we doubt), he would have dropped everything on assuming power and his first job would have been to demand, even at the risk of his own life, a proper, public accounting of the 9/11 mass murder, orchestrated at the behest of George, H. W. D. V. D. Bush Sr.. But he didn't. He's done nothing but connive in the cover-up, like his predecessor who presided over it.

THE RECYCLED LIE AND WHY WE EXPOSED IT
The Editor noticed the recycled lie immediately before leaving for the United States on the 11th September. By the time he had cleared airport security, he finally realised the significance of this repeated lie, and, finding an Internet location at the airport, posted this Update to our report dated 6th September. The text below has been slightly expanded:

• UPDATE, 11 SEPTEMBER 2009:
IT HAS BEEN INACCURATELY ASSERTED ON ANOTHER WEBSITE THAT THE EDITOR PAID FOR WANTA'S RELEASE FROM JAIL. THIS IS AN OLD C.I.A. LIE THAT HAS BEEN PROMULGATED FOR TWO YEARS OR MORE. The Editor did NOT procure Mr Wanta's release from jail which of course is impossible. The Editor loaned Leo/Lee Wanta $35,000 for two years on an arms'-length basis at 7% compound per annum, effective 10th June 2005 and repayable on 11th June 2007.

• He did not repay the Editor's $35,000. He has STOLEN THE EDITOR'S LOAN FUNDS.

The purpose of the loan was to settle Court 'Restitution' plus fees in respect mainly of State Tax of $14,129 plus interest that Wanta had already paid twice, in May and June 1992 (we hold copies of the relevant transaction documents). The Editor's private loan funds paid this tax bill for the THIRD time. Full details of this scandal were exposed in our final report on that subject, dated 6th August 2007 [see Archive]. But that is NOT the main point of this insert, necessitated by the repetition of this old CIA LIE, exploiting the timing of the loan. The LIE masks a colossal hornets' nest of evil.

The main point is as follows. The subtle CIA-originated LIE that the Editor paid for Wanta's release from PRISON presupposes (deceitfully) that Wanta was released in 2005 WHICH IS NOT TRUE. On the contrary, Wanta was released from jail eight or ten days after 9/11 (on 19th or 21st September 2001). But by reiterating that the Editor's funds procured Wanta's release from JAIL, the FALSE impression is given that Wanta emerged from U.S. prison FOUR YEARS after 9/11: A FABRICATION.

Wanta was collected from jail shortly after 9/11 by Gerald Salchert, resident in the United States, of Austrian extraction, and taken to the home of a relative in Wisconsin.

WHY would the C.I.A. promulgate this LIE (and we will explain later WHO started this LIE)? In order to answer that question you need to be aware of the real reason Wanta was held in jail during the run-up to 9/11. The reason is that, since Wanta had been scammed and badly treated (which maybe he deserved: but that's a separate point), the CIA had concerns that he might divulge the 9/11 plans AHEAD OF THE ABOMINATION. So they held him incarcerated until afterwards.

• What does this tell you? Work it out for yourself! Mr Wanta KNEW ABOUT 9/11 IN ADVANCE of the event, and they had to make sure that he didn't spill the beans because of his dissatisfaction at the way he had been treated. SO THEY HAVE EXPLOITED THE DATE OF THE EDITOR'S LOAN PAYMENT, WHICH OBTAINED WANTA'S EXIT FROM PROBATION (gaining him five years and two weeks, to be precise, as his scheduled probation end-date had been 28th November 2010), TO COVER UP THE FACT, EXPOSED BY THIS LIE, THAT THE C.I.A. AND THE U.S. GOVERNMENT KNEW ALL ABOUT 9/11 BEFORE IT HAPPENED. Because as Leo/Lee Wanta, who worked for the Government and the Bush Crime Syndicate, knew about 9/11 BEFORE the event, SO DID THE U.S. GOVERNMENT and the CIA. If you think this is DYNAMITE, you are 100% ACCURATE. (1)

DETAILED BACKGROUND TO THE EDITOR'S $35,000 WANATA LOAN
And it gets very considerably worse. To begin with, here again are the simple outline facts, for the record, concerning the Editor's arms'-length private LOAN of $35,000 to Wanta for two years to pay for his Court-ordered Restitution, which Wanta has STOLEN:

(1): Having extensively investigated some of the background to the financial corruption developed by the US Intelligence Power and exported so that it affects the whole world (hence the Editor was NOT investigating US DOMESTIC issues, but rather the American dimension of a vast international Fraudulent Finance crisis entailing a subversive attack by foreign powers on the United Stastes itself), the Editor concluded, after much thought and consideration, that Leo/Lee (who has two names for a reason: see below) Wanta held a (if not THE) key to exposure of this corruption.

(2): In early 2005, at Wanta's suggestion, the Editor visited Richmond, VA, to meet one of Wanta's (controlled) Attorneys, Steven Goodwin, who was born in Düsseldorf. Over dinner (which the Editor paid for, like everything else), Goodwin revealed that he had 'negotiated' an arrangement with the Wisconsin Department of Corrections, whereby if Wanta's Court-ordered 'Restitution' and other fees were paid, they would 'use their best endeavours' to have Wanta's probation period, then scheduled to end on 28th November 2010, shortened.

• It transpired that a sum of more than $30,000 was needed for this purpose.

(3): After careful consideration, the Editor decided, in view of the hideous corruption perpetrated by the Wisconsin Department of Revenue in charging Wanta THREE TIMES FOR THE SAME TAX (we surely do not need to repeat the sordid details, which are accessible from our final report on that subject dated 6th August 2007: see Archive) that he would be the 'wildcard' and would raise $35,000 to UNLOCK the situation by effectively purchasing a shortening of Wanta's probation.

Under the documented arrangement, the Editor LOANED Leo/Lee Wanta $35,000 for two years at 7% compound interest (terms applied by Messrs. Goodwin and Wanta without consulting the Editor), repayable in full with interest on 11th June 2007. The loan plus interest has never been repaid and has been STOLEN. Wanta never followed through with an explanation of why he has defaulted on this loan. Steven Goodwin is a co-conspirator in the defrauding of the Editor of his $35,000 loan plus interest by knowingly framing the text of the loan papers using duplicitous language which almost resulted in us backing out on being asked to 'sign here' by Wanta on 10th June 2005.

(4): On 10th June 2005, the Editor arrived at Wanta's family member's address in Wisconsin. The loan papers had been prepared by Steven Goodwin. Mr Wanta was sitting there in a somewhat unfriendly mode, effectively saying; SIGN HERE. When the Editor read the convoluted language of the loan document, he didn't like the text at all. However, after some hesitation, he signed it for two reasons: first, if the Editor were later to conclude that the loan papers were deliberately worded to provide Wanta with the apparent freedom to do what we now know that he always does – renege, like his master, Bush Sr., on all his undertakings – the Editor could abort the loan.

And secondly, the Editor had made the long journey up to the 'boonies' and didn't relish aborting what he had determined would UNLOCK the keys to the financial corruption, epidemic, which is worse than any such outbreak in human history.

(5): The Editor then spent six weeks in the United Kingdom (a) wondering whether he had done the right thing and (B) waiting to see how agitated Wanta would get if the funds were delayed for a few weeks. Sure enough, Wanta was repeatedly on the phone, asking what was happening. The Editor raised the funds (from proceeds from a successful sale of our private London residence) and send a bank draft by courier to Goodwin's office in Richmond.

• The Editor's covering letter requested that Goodwin travel in person to the local office of the WI Department of Corrections to obtain a RECEIPT – a demand that Mr Goodwin initially resisted but finally concurred with. On 21st July 2005,Goodwin presented a cheque for nearly $32,000, using the Editor's loan money, to the local Wisconsin Probation agent, obtaining a written formal receipt.

• On the following day the agent generated a computer print-out confirming that Wanta had nothing further to pay by way of this Restitution. The Editor holds copies of both documents.

• FACT: All this information has been in the public domain, on this website and in our financial journal International Currency Review, for several years. All relevant foreign Governments and their intelligence agencies are well aware of these details.

(6): Instead of Wanta's probation being terminated promptly, the 'entirely unexpected' satisfaction of the Wisconsin Court's Restitution and fees, incorporating THE THIRD PAYMENT of the same State tax of $14,129 by Wanta [see the Archive: 6th August 2007] – a gross abomination in itself – absolutely nothing happened. The Editor later found out that a painful debate had ensued behind the scenes, given the awkward reality that someone had emerged to pay Wanta's Court-imposed Restitution and fees, which (as again we later discovered) all US personnel had been explicitly instructed NOT to do. This CIA instruction did not, however, cover the Editor of this service.

(7): The internal debate was resolved when, well over four and a half months later, it was finally determined that the Wisconsin authorities could not take the money and give nothing in return – as a consequence of which Wanta's probation was formally terminated and he was given an 'absolute discharge' from probation period effective 14th November 2005 – five years and two weeks ahead of the set date for the ending of his probation (28th November 2010).

(8): As indicated, Wanta has failed to repay the Editor's $35,000 plus interest and has taken NO STEPS to rectify this omission. He has not written to the Editor to explain his default. In June 2006, he left a couple of angry messages on our voicemail (both of which we have recorded and made hard copies of), in one of which he said that 'the reason you haven't been repaid IN FULL is that…'. But the Editor hasn't been repaid AT ALL!

• The man is absolutely unreliable, twists facts to suit his own preferences, routinely engages in gratuitous deception, changes his mind all the time, and makes things up as he goes along.

HE'S STOLEN SMALLISH AMOUNTS BEFORE
Nor is this the first time that Wanta has stolen comparatively small sums of money. The Editor has on file a communication from another party who complained that he lent Mr Wanta $25,000, which Wanta stole. When the party who lent the money phoned Wanta to demand his repayment, Wanta feigned that he could not continue the conversation because his communications were bugged, and abruptly terminated the call.

Given these two instances (out of many, we understand) of Wanta stealing money from others – in these two instances, by fraudulent conversion of loan monies into gifts without the consent of the lenders – it is crystal clear that Wanta cannot be trusted to handle ANY MONEY AT ALL; and, as he remains a felon (given not least that Mr Steven Goodwin, on CIA instructions, failed to obtain the necessary final exculpatory document from the Wisconsin Court), he cannot open a bank account, either. As a convicted felon who has continued to steal money, he is not a fit person with whom any party can or should deal under any circumstances. And anyone who may be so foolish as to entrust this man with sums of money, whether large or small, would, on the basis of our knowledge and experience, be double-crossed and financially raped.

NOTHING TO DO WITH WANTA'S EXIT FROM JAIL
As can be seen, the foregoing sequence has NOTHING WHATSOEVER to do with Wanta's release from jail. The LIE that the Editor's LOAN funds made available in June 2005 procured Wanta's exit from jail (an impossibility anyway) was first promulgated by the US disinformation operative Greg Szymanski in 2007. When the Editor asked him to correct this error on his website, Mr Szymanski responded arrogantly: 'Jail, probation, what's the difference?' – and then proceeded to REITERATE THE CIA LIE that the Editor's funds procured Mr Wanta's release from jail, which of course implied erroneously that Wanta was released from jail in 2005, rather than shortly after 9/11 2001.

When Mr Szymanski reiterated this LIE having been asked by the Editor to make the necessary correction, the Editor exposed his uncooperative and aberrant behaviour on this website. It so happened that the Editor's report in question was finalised and posted on a Sunday. Within about 45 minutes, Szymanski revealed his true nature – dispatching an angry email to the Editor along the following lines: 'How DARE you libel me! I have my lawyers working 24/7 to take you to court!'

• However lawyers' offices tend to be closed on Sundays.

As stated in our 11th September Update, Wanta' s exit from jail occurred shortly after 9/11, when he was collected from jail by Gerald Salchert, who is of Austrian origin. Since Leo Wanta answers the phone in German, and Bush Sr. has dual US and German nationality, being head of the pan-German long-range strategic deception 'Black' agency DVD, Dachau (Deutsche Verteidigungs Dienst), this fact is of importance as this rats' nest, fundamentally reflecting a foreign offensive against the United States, progressively unravels.

Once again military intelligence agent, Greg Szymanski is showing his trickery and backstabbing. This is the same guy who was trying to turn everyone off my work and site. The same guy that lied in his article exposing Horowitz as a Knight of Malta after I had informed him and others of this via email. Lying that I'd not wanted to be named etc. I also heard he was up to something much different to his claims down at the Alamo Ministry during the recent incidents. Do not trust this man or any of his buddies. So now Eric has been suppressed of speaking freely and having freedom. Sounds great coming from 'Liberty' radio, what a real joke that is. Remember folks that liberty does not mean freedom. I'd rather Eric dumped this two faced shithole show and didn't speak again or found another station elsewhere. Once suppression starts it increases. Right now the sheople are so brainwashed they simply do not understand terms any longer they only know the Jesuitical gatekeeper trigger censors as Eric speaks about. This is the doublespeak/think in a different fashion. -Craig

Liberty Radio Live Roundtable: “White Supremacy”

Posted by EJP on Nov 18th, 2009
http://www.vaticanassassins.org/?p=1938

Today, Nicklas Arthur, Greg Szymanski, Tom Friess and myself participated in an open discussion concerning my use of the term “White Supremacy.” In previous email exchanges between Nicklas and myself, I was given the ultimatum to cease the use of said term or be dismissed from Liberty Radio Live. Remembering that I have always taught the supremacy of the White Race in a linguistic and cultural fashion, that I have blamed my White Race for producing the most evil men in history—as well as the best, especially when serving the Lord Jesus Christ in fulfilling the Great Commission—I agreed to cease using that firebrand term “White Supremacy.” For that term has been hijacked by the White, hateful racists aided by the Pope’s CFR-controlled press and American academia so that it cannot be employed without exciting knee-jerk reactions in the listeners—regardless of their race. (The same exact hijack has been accomplished concerning the flying of the Confederate Flag—as though it historically stood for the fight to preserve slavery rather than denote the Second War for American Independence and the rights of the States to lawfully secede.) I will address that topic in another forum, as I must lest the hatefully, anti-Black, anti-Jew, Neo-Nazis/KKK/etc., New Right Fascists be given the field of debate over the present, Jesuit-induced, White/Black racial agitation without a fight. True 19th Century White Supremacy as defined by John Clark Ridpath and other non-hateful, 19th century, White historians must be defended against that redefined, hatefully-racist, hatefully anti-Black, hatefully anti-Latino, hatefully anti-Asian, New “White Supremacy.”

Meanwhile, I will continue to teach the history of the Lord's Bible-based, Protestant Reformation and the Devil's Jesuit-led Counter Reformation. I will continue to preach Biblical repentance and faith in Christ primarily to my own beloved White Race; to advocate voluntary, non-hateful, racial separation in forming a new White nation somewhere in North America as one of the solutions to the Black Pope's forced miscegenation policies that both the Black and White races have suffered under since Francis Cardinal Spellman's "Uncivil Rights Movement;" and will continue to attempt to be honest on all previous and forthcoming topics without compromise. To this end, I need your prayers.

I believe my decision of concession was in the best interest of continuing the exposure of the Jesuit-led New World Order and its intended mass-murder of hundreds of millions of Americans—of every race—within the American Empire. You can listen to the two-hour dialogue below.

Greg,

Meus Atrum Hostilis Inimicus, when will you learn and stop drinking this alcohol? You'll have a red nose like Thomas Heneghan soon if not already. You continue to try to make me out as a Jesuit Coadjutor which makes you look entirely stupid. I'm about as close to a Jesuit or their wishes as the late great Oliver Cromwell. I do not have military intelligence connections like yourself and have a dodgy background with the CIA boys at GCN etc. I despise the Divine Dragon of Lucifer and when I despise something as much as I do with these then I wish them removed. What did Cromwell do to the Jesuit short robe, Charles I on January 30 1649? Yes murdered him by order with his beheading. Nothing more than he deserved. You may wish to pussy foot around but do NOT DARE imply I've got a double agenda and have anything to do with Saturnia. I gave you the oportunity to apologise in the past which you did not. If you wish to have complete war between us then I will commence at the battleline and see you too no differently than my Jesuit enemy. I will hope Zagami also comes for you. Whilst you were fraternising with the Craft member Leo Zagami, I called him out to the forefront and he showed his true agenda. For all I know you also knew his agenda but me and Thomas made Leo change plans.

Their all full of shit my friend. Do they expect people to never wish someone dead or assassinated? I came out in a couple of messages and said I wished someone would assassinate the Pope. Big deal, so what! People say things all the while and about Bush, Blair and all sorts. But Greg has a problem with me because I've sniffed his ass out in the past with his made up thoughts in his writings as have others. I only explained to Troy who was confused by Slats, that it was a fictional character which Greg is doing harm with using. Then he took the huff and cried attacking me for violence all of a sudden. My point was proven when yet another questioned who this slats was haha. I also wouldn't go on his radio when he asked me via Eric Phelps as Eric would tell you if asked. I then decided I would but didn't specify when and then decided I wouldn't bother as I don't like his radio show. I haven't listened to Greg for a long time now, even when Eric is on there, I just cannot be bothered with the guy. Slimey opposame dealing with shady characters and short robes like Frank O Collins and his Jesuit Soldier brother. I personally believe now that Eric should drop these idiot radio shows with these jerks and stick to his own or some new future independant shows. Anyhow you don't need a radio show or your own website with hosting to get the message out via audio or video. You can make your own audios at home and put them out on these sharing host links which we use. What I'm saying is the way Alan Watt used to do his audios talking to himself. Time for the United "Corp" States branch of British Secret Intelligence Service to take a hike once and for all. They created shortwave and have controlled most these phony Christian Conspiracy stations ever since. Using them to help socially engineer the intelligent people first before the implementation for the Profane to still not see. All a game, all boring and all virtually visible to anyone with a brain cell. The Alex Jones game is the most pathetic U.S soap opera around, remember their soaps are dire in acting compared to English and Australian which doesn't say a lot. I think British Intelligence are started to quake in their military boots somewhat these days. Some of us who are totally independant somewhat no bodies are no longer being easily swayed and have become too clever. Now with the net as it is right now we can go our own route and do away with others of the robe. Greg Szymanski can go to hell and I hope Leo Zagami destroys him P2 style for any devious tricks he's been up to whilst masquerading as a good guy. I have no time for these ever changing lizards of Lucifer. So let them fight one another as they always have done. Lets all donate via paypal and buy him and Thomas Heneghan a bottle of Vodka so we can see two red noses together giving the new beginnings/infinity symbol (8) haha.

RIGHT TIME FOR SOME FACTS

DEALING WITH TWISTING AGENT

GREG SYZMANSKI

So we hear him claim I launched an attack to agitate him recently. What he's doing is twisting what really went on for all those who do not know the truth. Whats funny is how he forgets how the following people know the truth as they all had the emails;

Eric Jon Phelps, Barry Chamish, Troy, Alan Watt, Nelson Thall, Boris Groenemeyer, Douglas Willinger, Leo Zagami, Freeman Fly, Jack Chick, Jim Rothstein and Pam Schuffert.

So now whats it all about folks, well hears the truth.

Where can we see a scan of this letter?

Adolfo Nicolas asking one to cease and desist from writing negative things about the Jesuits and the Vatican, with an offer of 500,000 EUROS, all in writing, with an official seal!

I want to see a scan!

Douglas Willinger

http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

Now does this look like a man whos been confused by an article of fiction? Does to me folks. So I correspond back to Douglas and inform him this:

If you don't keep up regular with the information and just come acosss these then it isn't good. So sorry no large Euros for you my friend haha.

Now Greg Szymanski get's angry because I highlighted the above and after he's saw that both Douglas and Troy weren't getting his Slats articles. Which I find personally discrediting if the truth now be known.

I do not understand this reply exactly. To be honest I see it as an attack on myself and I don't think we would want that do we? Sometimes we need to face facts and I've highlighted facts from a few of my users. They and I myself do not entertain reading the slats articles upon your site. They read all the rest. So what does this tell you exactly? It would suggest to me that I may need to pull that idea or do it within another manner. We've witnessed two members of these lists already totally confused by them and this is NOT good.

While we're on the subject I think I may interject and question why when I highlighted Leonard Horowitz first joining the Maltese Knights you lied? Do you remember this quote "Another patriot who wanted to remain anonymous sent this comment and email to the Arctic Beacon:"?????? I never recall telling you to keep my anonymous? I never even knew you were going to use my words. So explain this? I also have no worries about myself and info going anywhere. I've called for the Pope's assassination publically and the torching of Jesuit colleges/universities. I'm not afraid of the HIV cliques who hate me for being a heretic. So why would I want to remain anonymous again? Heres the article to remind you:

Like I said, I see maybe you wish to attack somewhat? I hope this is not the case.

He then goes and tells people that he does not like me and does not read my mails and that I should be dropped. Why is this folks? Is this because I'm a threat to the Vaticans infiltration and agents? Is it because I'm a free spirit who sniffs out these people and highlights them to the World. Is it because I'm a uncontrollable Pit Bull who the Jesuits believe can't be bought into the fold and bought off?

Who or what is this 'Slats' character? - RE: University of Hidden History "Slats" on Jesuit Coadjutor Leo Zagami•
From: Philip A E Jonkers
Sent: 07 May 2008 18:20:45
To: [EMAIL LIST REMOVED]

Greg,

With all due respect but it would seem to me to be a bit rich that you were able to reproduce this alleged conservation you had with this mysterious ‘Slats’ character with such detail and accuracy as reflected in your writing. In other words, it would seem that you must have recorded this conversation before you would be in a position to write it down seemingly in a verbatim rendition. Therefore, not only for my sake but for sake of the truthseeking community it would be only but fair if you would submit the audio recording of this conversation you presumably must have had with ‘Slats’. Since this elusive Slats character makes all kinds of accusations regarding Leo (and his would-be associates) it would be of tantamount importance to first objectively establish the authenticity of ‘Slats’ himself.

On a previous occasion, I’ve humbly requested you to bring out into the open the original letter the current Superior General of the Jesuits, Adolfo Nicholas, allegedly were to have written to 'Slats' a few months back and you presumably reproduced on your website. However, you failed to do so, thus making it impossible for us to ascertain the genuineness of 'Slats', whose existence thus sadly remains but based on good faith and good faith alone. So Greg, unless you can submit the existence of this letter and/or prove otherwise the existence of 'Slats', I am forced to leave undecided the accusations and allegations 'Slats' supposedly directed at Leo in the most recent article written under your name. Furthermore, one step beyond would be to propose that it was actually you and you alone who penned down the whole dialogue, thereby insinuating the fictitious nature of Slats. Once step beyond still would be to assume that, in preparation for your article, you would have drawn at least part of your inspiration from the Total Onslaught audio lectures of Prof. Walter Veith.

So at it stands, it's quite an eloquently written and entertaining story Greg but, as of yet, its authenticity still hangs in the balance. Therefore, I ask quite plainly, is it but a story or is it a true account? Fiction or factual, which one is it? The tension is killing me. However, if it's not fictitious you could at once cast away doubts and suspicions by, once and for all, verifying the real and authentic nature of this elusive 'Slats Grobnic'. Over time, Leo has submitted quite an impressive collection of persuasive pieces of evidence establishing the authenticity of a good number of people he associates with and by virtue of symmetry, and in all fairness, the same criterion should apply to his (newfound) detractors too such as yourself. If this were a Court of Law, this would be but a standard procedure and less a rigor would simply be not acceptable, you as a self-proclaimed Juris Doctor would probably know this better than I do. Until now, all you have given us are second-hand 'hearsay' testimonies of some person whose identity yet has to be established. Therefore Greg: show me/us the evidence of the existence of Slats. If you fail to do so, I'm led to believe that slanderous and presumably fictitious stories I assume yours to be, have a far better place in some bewildering tabloid, an Illuminati tabloid if you will, but not a repository instituted for truth-seekers.

Sincerely,

Philip Jonkers

Brother Eric,

I listened to the "roundtable" debacle from the link you sent me until 3 am this morning. Those three are nothing more than JESUIT UNIVERSALISTS. We are being attacked in a different way than our brethren were in the past centuries. The only thing that stuck out in Nicklas' spiel was his concern for his loss of funds. I saw nothing but a verbal gang bang by those three on you. I respect your actions in reply to those three coadjutors during this so called "roundtable". There was a constant harrange and interruption of whatever you had to say, by all three of them. Did you notice Nicklas mentioned my phone call to him but didn't have the guts to use my name, or any of what I confronted him about? I still believe that you should continue to find another venue to educate white men. As you said to me on the phone, they all hate themselves and what God made them to BE - white. How come Nicklas didn't bring up the fact of Greg's phone call to my house at 1:30am drunk, and offering me money and weapons from his friends in Italy to start a revolution here in the U.S.? The only purpose for this debacle was to TWIST what you have been saying, and re-enforce the LIE that the JESUITS have created, by their redifining the your phrase "white supremacy". They all work for ROME. Their false romish doctrines prove what they really ARE, JESUITS. The ONLY REASON for this debacle was to get you to HEEL and DESTROY you. The big question is what PROVINCIAL is financing their farce?

Your Brother in Christ,

QUOTE

True Patriot Slats Grobnik Comes to Rescue Calling Zagami a "Lying Black-Robed Italian Stallion"

"What a joke this Leo the Lion is," said Slats. "How could you fall for his lies, Greg?"

By Greg Szymanski, JD
May 7, 2008
http://www.arcticbeacon.com/articles/7-May-2008.html

Slats Grobnik had a big belly laugh when he heard Leo Zagami finally showed his true Vatican colors after recently arriving in America for his bogus "Freedom of Hope Tour."

Slats, as you may recall, is a true patriot fighting the Vatican-led New World Order while Zagami, changing like a chameleon with every passing season, has exposed himself as a true Vatican agent, working inside and out of high level Freemasonry controlled by the sons of Lucifer better known as the Jesuit Order.

Slats recently called the Arctic Beacon and had this to say about Illuminati agent Zagami or as he calls him, the "Lying Black Italian Stallion."

"What a joke this Leo the Lion is," said Slats. "How could you fall for his lies, Greg?"

"Well, in the beginning," said Greg, "he provided what appeared to be some truthful inside Illuminati information from the Monte Carlo P2 Lodge, saying he was an ex-highlevel 33 degree Freemason who defected."

"Then he pulled the switcheroo on you, right?"

"Right, Slats."

"I read about it, Greg. Right before he comes to America for his bogus "Freedom of Hope Tour" he switches from being a devout bogus Muslim to a devout bogus Christian. He's a Luciferian plain and simple, get it?"

"No."

"Let me tell you how they operate and drive it into your silly head, Greg.

"Wait a minute, Slats, how do you know this stuff?"

"Greg, while you were listening to his, let me say it kindly, listening to his bullshit for the last year on all your radio shows, I was doing someone background checking and talking to some people in Rome who knew the real "Leo the Liar" and he isn't the nice Illuminati truth telling defector he claims to be."

"OK. Go on, tell me more."

"I found out from people in Norway and Rome, he still hangs out with Jesuits and their contacts. He was always a Luciferian propaganda tool for them, going back to his Satanic music days. A guy in Rome called me the other day and said Zagami has never changed and is working undergound, taking on a different role, so to speak.

"For what?"

"He was assigned to infiltrate the last remaining enemies of the Luciferian Jesuits here in the States, people such as yourself, Eric Phelps and others who follow your work. By getting on the inside for over a year, he chose you first, Greg, as you are rather naive and gullible."

"Now, wait one second, Slats!"

"Just shut up for a minute and I'll explain. By the way, he said he was a 33 degree Mason?

"Yah."

"Did you ever ask him for his secret book, Morals and Dogma by Albert Pike, the one only given to high level initiates of the 32nd and 33rd degree?"

"No."

"Greg, see how stupid you are. Did you ever read the book? Well, I have and if Zagami cannot present an exact copy of the Pike's secrets then he is a fraud, because nobody is supposed to read it but the high level initiates. You see, there is one thesis given to the chosen Lucifer worshippers like Zagami and another given to the low level Masons or what they call the cattle of goyim like you and me.

"Too cool. Tool cool, Slats, but how sick is this?"

"It's very sick but think about it's also very brilliant since nobody in American knows anything about anything concerning Jesuit Hegelian strategy.

"First, added Slats, "let me give you some history and let me say it plain and simple. The Jesuits took over where the evil and occult Knights Templar left off, the Templars of course being the original Pope's army as well as the Pope's bankers. The Jesuits are steeped in the occult and Lucifer worship and Zagami, I assure you, is still one of their boys. So, the Jesuits take over as the new Knights when they are formed in 1543 or 1541 and begin to destroy the Protestant Reformation.

"While doing this, they create and control Freemasonry as basically the Protestant arm of the Papacy. Why would the Jesuits need to make a Protestant Order? The Bible has revealed that Rome is the Anti-Christ and everybody is looking at them through a magnifying glass. So if persecution does not work, join them. Now Freemasonry is doing the dirty work for the Jesuits and the Jesuits do the work for Rome. The sad thing is that some Freemasons really think that they are working for the true God of Heaven and find out when they receive higher degrees that it is Lucifer worship.

"Look at some other researchers work and the Jesuit connection:

'It is curious to note too that most of the bodies which work these, such as the Ancient and Accepted Scotish Rite, the Rite of Avignon, the Order of the Temple, Fesslor's Rite, the 'Grand Council of the Emperors of the East and West Sovereign Prince Masons', ect., etc., are nearly all offsprings of the sons of Ignatius Loyola. The Baron Hundt, Chevalier Ramsey, Tschoudy, Zinnendorf, and numerous others, who founded the grades in these rites, worked under instructions from the General of the Jesuits...." Found in Isis Unveiled, H.P.Blavatsky, (Los Angeles, Ca: The Theosohy Company, 1968; org published in 1977). p. 390.

'There are still old ladies, male and female, about the country, who will tell you, with grim gravity that, if you trace up Masonry, through all its Orders, till you come to the grand tip-top, head Mason of the world, you will discover that the dread individual and the Chief of the Society of Jesus are one and the same person!" By James Parton, 1855, American Historian.

"Are you now getting the picture, Greg?"

"But how does Zagami fit into the picture?"

"I'll get to that, just listen, Although on the outside, Freemasonry claims to be a Christian organization in any country where that is the main religion, it is anything but Christian to the high level initiates of the 32nd and 33rd degree. For these enlightened or chosen ones, Pike and the Jesuit Luciferian secrets are revealed. This can be easily seen if you know what you are looking in the many occult symbols used by the Vatican, Jesuits and Freemasonry.

"They always operate using the Jesuit statements and oaths from the Hegelian Principle which is rather brilliant if you think about.

"What's that?"

"Statements in this oath come from Hegelian Principle used by the Jesuits. The Hegelian Principle was formulated by George Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel, German philosopher. It is a process intended to produce Oneness of Mind through a process of 1) thesis: embodying a particular view or position; 2) antithesis: providing an opposing or contrary position; and 3) synthesis: which reconciles the two previous positions and then becomes the basis of a new thesis…in accordance with the laws of dialectical materialism, You can find that in Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary. In theory, through a continual process of evolution, Oneness of Mind is achieved. This process can also be used to 1) create crisis, 2) opposition to crisis, to 3) effect the wanted solution. And because of these oaths, ceremonies and principles, the Jesuits were have been kicked out of more than 81 countries and I hope Zagami and the Jesuits are kicked out of America soon. And always remember this, Greg, the synthesis the Jesuits want to achieve is a one world fascist government and a one world Luciferian religion because for them, the ends always justifies the means."

"Those are big words, Slats. Make it simple."

"The Jesuits always control both sides. They control both the Left and Right in politics, both sides of religious debate and both sides of all the wars that have transpired. That's why the American election is nothing but a joke and why all the wars have been orchestrated. This is true because the Jesuits rub both sides together, according to Hegelian principles in order to achieve the synthesis is they want to achieve and that synthesis is a New World Order. Now let me explain this little rat, Zagami's, brilliant New World Order Jesuit scheme."

"Can you do it quick, Slats, because he's only a little Jesuit fish in their Luciferian pond.

"Yes, little but just goes to show you how they don't like to control everything and everybody, even with little truth tellers like yourself, Greg.

"Tell me, Slats, the pasta is cooking!"

"I'll make it fast and clear so you can eat. Zagami first says he's an ex-illuminati and converted Muslim, defecting from Freemasonry and his Catholic roots to get on the inside of real Vatican resistance in the States. Then right before he comes to America for his bogus two-month Tour of Hope, he becomes Christian and says he is now the Grand Master of the European Illuminati as well as the Grandmaster of the U.S. Illuminati. However, he qualifies it by saying he represents the "good side" of Illuminati. See how brilliant deceptive this is?"

"No."

"How dumb can you be. There is no good side of the Illuminati and all their other organizations, including Rosicrucian's and the like are evil as well. You see, Zagami infiltrates saying he's "good" when it's all controlled by the Jesuits for their final synthesis: destroy Vatican opposition by advancing their New World Order goal.

"So what does Zagami have to gain by saying he is the new good Grandmaster of Freemasonry?"

"Greg, sometimes I think I have to hold your hand and teach you everything! Listen, by teaming up with Zagami now you are affiliating yourself with Freemasonry and the Illuminati. This is exactly what they want because in the future the Vatican will say that they have ben infiltrated by the Illuminati and Freemasonry, which they already openly denounce on the outside and support on the inside.

"The beauty of their strategy is that Zagami leads the final Vatican resistance here in the States down the exact road they want. You see, in 2009, the blockbuster Ron Hanks and Ron Howard movie, Angels and Demons is coming out. This Jesuit propaganda movie will tell Americans the Vatican is fighting the evil Illuminati and Freemasonry who are trying to destroy the Mother Church. The people will believe that and this will put anyone associated with Zagami on the crazy evil side since they now claim to be following a Masonic Illuminati Grand Master. Good and bad will get lost in shuffle as the Vatican will even claim there is no good side of of the Illuminati and Freemasonry. By controlliing both sides in the end they win and in the end Zagami was one of their boys playing his small part to advance the Vatican-led New World Order. So what do you think, Greg, pretty brilliant?

"Pretty sick and slick, that's what it is! But let's eat our pasta, Slats, before their Hegelian principles ruin my appetite."

A little earlier back in the old topic, we saw this.

RIGHT TIME FOR SOME FACTS DEALING WITH TWISTING AGENT GREG SYZMANSKI

So we hear him claim I launched an attack to agitate him recently. What he's doing is twisting what really went on for all those who do not know the truth. Whats funny is how he forgets how the following people know the truth as they all had the emails;

Eric Jon Phelps, Barry Chamish, Troy, Alan Watt, Nelson Thall, Boris Groenemeyer, Douglas Willinger, Leo Zagami, Freeman Fly, Jack Chick, Jim Rothstein and Pam Schuffert.

So now whats it all about folks, well hears the truth.

Now does this look like a man whos been confused by an article of fiction? Does to me folks. So I correspond back to Douglas and inform him this:

Now Greg Szymanski get's angry because I highlighted the above and after he's saw that both Douglas and Troy weren't getting his Slats articles. Which I find personally discrediting if the truth now be known.

Greg,

I do not understand this reply exactly. To be honest I see it as an attack on myself and I don't think we would want that do we? Sometimes we need to face facts and I've highlighted facts from a few of my users. They and I myself do not entertain reading the slats articles upon your site. They read all the rest. So what does this tell you exactly? It would suggest to me that I may need to pull that idea or do it within another manner. We've witnessed two members of these lists already totally confused by them and this is NOT good.

While we're on the subject I think I may interject and question why when I highlighted Leonard Horowitz first joining the Maltese Knights you lied? Do you remember this quote "Another patriot who wanted to remain anonymous sent this comment and email to the Arctic Beacon:"?????? I never recall telling you to keep my anonymous? I never even knew you were going to use my words. So explain this? I also have no worries about myself and info going anywhere. I've called for the Pope's assassination publically and the torching of Jesuit colleges/universities. I'm not afraid of the HIV cliques who hate me for being a heretic. So why would I want to remain anonymous again? Heres the article to remind you:

Like I said, I see maybe you wish to attack somewhat? I hope this is not the case.

So folks where was the explanation for his comments on the Horowitz article about me? None came forward and none will. Why? Because he was devious and just decided to write what he wished and claimed what he wished. This has occured in the past and we know this from a user of my site who highlighted someone else having words taken by Greg. I will get my user to supply that information asap hopefully again. Anyhow I replied the following and never corresponded in a conversation with Greg since as I had no reason to:

I have since sent emails to Greg which I sent to others on my list about general issues and news articles. This will immediately stop from now on I can assure you.

So we see how he decides to use what he sees as a weakness possibly of mine against me with his lies. He decides to use my anger against the enemy. Vatican and try and win him some favours maybe. He then goes and tells people that he does not like me and does not read my mails and that I should be dropped. Why is this folks? Is this because I'm a threat to the Vaticans infiltration and agents? Is it because I'm a free spirit who sniffs out these people and highlights them to the World. Is it because I'm a uncontrollable Pit Bull who the Jesuits believe can't be bought into the fold and bought off? I assure you yes to all those questions. I'm the real thing folks and I don't claim to be something I'm not. I don't have photos taken of me with high end Jesuits whilst claiming to be opposition to Jesuits. I wouldn't dream of lowering myself even If I hide it. Yet Leo Zagami a bloodline and always a bloodline can do just that only in May 2007 as I've highlighted and yet your supposed to trust him and anyone highly promoting him, such as Greg?

Come on people don't lower your intelligence to an all time low. Vibrate that brain for once and see through these people constantly playing mind alchemy on you. It's called controlled opposition. The Vatican controls almost all the alternative media but knew they would have to have some deeper agents to succeed in controlling the Vatican exposure. So what do we see? Yes people like Greg and Leo especially all of a sudden just out the woodwork. The problem occurs when Leo isn't as smart as they would like or we're not as dumb as they would like us to be. Fancy giving out a picture of himself with a high level Jesuit only back in May 2007. It's comical! So now people are to not trust me and to keep trusting them when infact it's themselves exposing themselves.

I don't get paid for anything I do. I don't beg people for money to keep my information coming. Does Greg? Of course! You'll see him say I need this contribution or my show cannot go on. We've seen this now since as long as I can remember his website and show. Is the site still going? Of course, another Ron Paul give me your money you sheople. This is what they think, they get off on it. Now ask yourself what would Greg have been doing on a Central Intelligence Agency controlled radioshow with the Alex Jones crew? Why would they choose him exactly. Then all this bunkum he's now opposition because the clique didn't want Vatican talk. Yet another spin on things to try and keep the illusions going. The same now occurs with Leo Zagami as he trys to worm his way out of the Jesuit picture incident. Eric Jon Phelps sees something very wrong with whats gone on and so he should, Eric's not stupid. So Leo claims it's so we should always be able to talk to our enemies and deal with them so to speak. Give me a break! Alberto Rivera could have done this but alas where is Alberto? In a wooden box. Where is Milton Cooper? In a wooden box. Where is Fritz Springmeier? In a small cell room. Where is Jim Arrabito? In a wooden box. Where is Gary Webb? In a wooden box. Where is Brian Downing Quig? In a wooden box. Where is Joe Vialls? In a wooden box. Where is Phil Schneider? In a wooden box. Where is Paul Wellstone? In a wooden box. Where is Paul Gilmor? In a wooden box. Finally where is Ernst Zundel in his Zionist fight? In a small cell treated like shit.

So where are these true oppositions to help have dialogue with the enemy haha? It's comical I tell you. Where are they? All dead and as will all opposition be to the standardisation of the globe to the British system being implemented Worldwide. You stand in their way, your out of there period. So do we honesly think we can have dialogue? Of course not! You'd only end up agreeing to be bought out by them and therefore joining them. Theres to be no compromise with the New World Order, British standardisation. Please do read the literature out there from the real powerful elites like Russell for Godsake.

Gregs also got a bee in his bonnet because he's a Christian and I'm not and I highlight it's occult meaning. What many Christians don't realise is that infact they're their own worst enemy in reality and that everyone is used. Can someone explain why only recently around the end of December that Greg included a link to my site on one of his articles? If someone can supply this, then great.

Now folks just how long have I mentioned about burning down Jesuit Colleges and assassinating Popes and their Queen? I've done this since day one here as many people know. So why is it that only now I've hit a raw nerve with these people that they come out with the attacks on me in this arena? Why is it they lie and make out they don't email me and so forth? I'm sure I've been speaking viciously about my ENEMY and I can assure you, their an ENEMY for such a long time now? So why is it that I've received mail from Greg a few times and infact he wanted me on his show as most know? Why did he ask Eric Jon Phelps a few months ago if I'd come on his show? If someone can reprint this, in this thread then please do. I denied him this when Eric asked me for Greg as Eric, will rightfully tell you. I then decided a good while later that I may do something:

Dear Greg,

I may be interested in your offer of an interview at some time. I would want to command it somewhat via pre knowledge of questions etc. I can then come on and really go to town on what I know across the board. I don't normally do interviews and therefore would need time to make my presentation of the highest quality. I do not wish for mistakes and things missed out. Let me know what your thoughts are and what you would like to speak about. Personally I'd like to speak across the board from Jesuits, Agents, Bird Cage/Matrix control, health and life in

I replied to this but lost the email. I basically said I could not fit that dateage in so I would let him know when. I never did! Remember all this is public to a list or to another such as Eric Jon Phelps. So it's all on record.

So folks I'm disliked because my site now and then has a large verbal attack on the ENEMY! Yet for a while I've had no hassles from this agent? Sneaks my friends, thats all I can say. I see Leo has had a good chat with Greg before hand and I suspect he's bought up my wishing for the Knight of Malta to be burned at the stake. Well I do not care or hold my words back. Do you think this damn enemy can be spoke to and conferred with people? Hell no, it's their way or the highway. Did the opposition people of old sit on their backsides and put up with what we do today? Hell no, they'd be out their and in America they'd be following their CONSTITUTION. You see folks these agents want you to stay calm and talk. Talk gets you no where. The longer you talk and put yourself under illusion the more time the Elite have in building their surveillance network and weapons against the people. Once they complete this then theres NO ESCAPE period! So hey let the Jesuits keep this game going until you can do NOTHING about it. Question for you all, what do the French people do when their unhappy? The French will get out striking and they mean business. This is a mentality of old and how things get done and changed. It's about time the people of Scotland, England, Wales, Ireland and America got this backbone. Leo if you think that someone like myself and Eric Jon Phelps aren't already labelled as Terrorists and on red lists then please give me a break. It makes no odds wether you attack violently in words or peacefully. You are what you are and thats an enemy to the Jesuit, well I and Eric are at least.

So my friends out there, are we going to put up with this intelligentsia charade all the time? Are we going to see through the controllists and their agents or are we going to be suckered by them and stay as sheople? I for one will not! It's one big mind game out there and it has to stop. Again just listen to the people like Milton Cooper who've spoken of the control of the so-called alternative media. Greg Szymanski thinks he will try to quickly step in and put people off my information and HIGHLIGHTING. Greg Szymanski is petrified at the prospect of being caught out by myself and getting highlighted as a liar as I've just completed above. Greg knows that I will destroy him and have some clout amongst many Vatican researchers new and old. Their petrified that real people will soon fight instead of backside talk about it.

Yes Greg you'd better watch out and Leo you're finished now I can assure you this. With Leo there was many people who were against him from day one claiming he was a stooge. Then the few suckered in by him are seeing his true colours including Eric Jon Phelps as is highlighted on this site. So Leo is gone and the intelligentsia is panicing. Greg is a tizz because his main squeeze has ousted himself. It's a classic how he did this to himself and no one had to go investigate him. Well folks I'm not scared of speaking my mind and what I feel. I'm not afraid to highlight these buggers and to tell the truth. If it means the destruction of 50% Vatican exposure then so be it. In order to keep out the rott and infestation I will destroy 50% in order to regrow organic not inorganic slop back. We don't need these lackies and both coming out of Rome by the way haha. Listen to Greg's words at the beginning of the show carefully and it says it all I can assure you.

Who or what is this 'Slats' character? - RE: University of Hidden History "Slats" on Jesuit Coadjutor Leo Zagamiþ
From: Philip A E Jonkers
Sent: 07 May 2008 18:20:45
To: [EMAIL LIST REMOVED]

Greg,

With all due respect but it would seem to me to be a bit rich that you were able to reproduce this alleged conservation you had with this mysterious ‘Slats’ character with such detail and accuracy as reflected in your writing. In other words, it would seem that you must have recorded this conversation before you would be in a position to write it down seemingly in a verbatim rendition. Therefore, not only for my sake but for sake of the truthseeking community it would be only but fair if you would submit the audio recording of this conversation you presumably must have had with ‘Slats’. Since this elusive Slats character makes all kinds of accusations regarding Leo (and his would-be associates) it would be of tantamount importance to first objectively establish the authenticity of ‘Slats’ himself.

On a previous occasion, I’ve humbly requested you to bring out into the open the original letter the current Superior General of the Jesuits, Adolfo Nicholas, allegedly were to have written to ‘Slats’ a few months back and you presumably reproduced on your website. However, you failed to do so, thus making it impossible for us to ascertain the genuineness of ‘Slats’, whose existence thus sadly remains but based on good faith and good faith alone. So Greg, unless you can submit the existence of this letter and/or prove otherwise the existence of ‘Slats’, I am forced to leave undecided the accusations and allegations ‘Slats’ supposedly directed at Leo in the most recent article written under your name. Furthermore, one step beyond would be to propose that it was actually you and you alone who penned down the whole dialogue, thereby insinuating the fictitious nature of Slats. Once step beyond still would be to assume that, in preparation for your article, you would have drawn at least part of your inspiration from the Total Onslaught audio lectures of Prof. Walter Veith.

So at it stands, it's quite an eloquently written and entertaining story Greg but, as of yet, its authenticity still hangs in the balance. Therefore, I ask quite plainly, is it but a story or is it a true account? Fiction or factual, which one is it? The tension is killing me. However, if it's not fictitious you could at once cast away doubts and suspicions by, once and for all, verifying the real and authentic nature of this elusive 'Slats Grobnic'. Over time, Leo has submitted quite an impressive collection of persuasive pieces of evidence establishing the authenticity of a good number of people he associates with and by virtue of symmetry, and in all fairness, the same criterion should apply to his (newfound) detractors too such as yourself. If this were a Court of Law, this would be but a standard procedure and less a rigor would simply be not acceptable, you as a self-proclaimed Juris Doctor would probably know this better than I do. Until now, all you have given us are second-hand 'hearsay' testimonies of some person whose identity yet has to be established. Therefore Greg: show me/us the evidence of the existence of Slats. If you fail to do so, I'm led to believe that slanderous and presumably fictitious stories I assume yours to be, have a far better place in some bewildering tabloid, an Illuminati tabloid if you will, but not a repository instituted for truth-seekers.

Sincerely,

Philip Jonkers

AntiSionist - November 19, 2009 09:49 PM (GMT)

Okay, just to clarify:

The Slats thing stunk to high heaven & was when I started to have doubts about where Greg was coming from. There was no confusion, this was a clear fictional character being presented as the opposite. I was being tactful in my email to Greg, as although I was appalled by the credibility-undermining use of such a badly-disguised fakery I was hoping that he'd admit that it was a tactless device and move on. Of course he did no such thing and got all ambiguous in his responses to yourself who called him out on it. I'm pretty sure that Doug was employing a similar approach but I can't talk for him.

It is a shame that he still flaunts this Slats character, even on his current homepage article, which is getting to be like an old wallpaper.

I don't know what his current situation is & haven't listened to any archives from the past few months, as they haven't been sorted, named & maintained as promptly as they used to & Greg never has an thorough, detailed list of upcoming interviewees.

I do enjoy his Eric Phelps interviews though, as Eric is at his best I feel when he has an interviewer to bounce off. Szymanski works well in this situation.

My other problem with Greg (& he's not alone here, ditto this for most interviewers out there) was that he always took on face value what Zagami said. He then goes & totally rejects him.

This is like a teenage girl having a crush & then feeling spurned when some illusion is destroyed. There are others who have acted like this who I'll leave unnamed at this point. I have been criticised by some blog comment & forum posters for rigorously questioning Leo & not just going with everything, which is weird, as I think that I've been fairly restrained!

So I always wished that Greg had pushed him a lot harder & asked him about points that people had raised concerning potential credibility issues on forums & in comments. To Zagami's credit, on these matters he had rarely, if ever, gave a less than plausible, credible reply. Which is one of several reasons that I'm still prepared to hear what he has to say & let people make up their own minds. I think that in radio-land where ratings rule the roost, regardless of the target audience, interviewers are worried that interesting guests will be scared off. This is not true investigative journalism & makes for a less intellectually satisfying than if it were otherwise.

If Greg (& others did) adopt this approach then it would make for a dramatically more vital listening/researching experience. I'm not saying that my interviews with LLZ have been better as overall listening experiences, as Greg has a good radio patter & can employ his decent knowledge & personal experiences to useful ends in his shows & they do bring new people (& a wider variety of people) into understanding just how important Rome's place is as the head of the Beast. Thus they are better going on out there, than not.

I even wish that he'd push Eric Phelps - whom I respect more than any other researcher - harder. Asking him more for sources of evidence verification, etc. This would benefit everyone.

In truth & awareness -

Troy

Whats this that I heard that Eric Hufschmid claimed Greg Szymanski has a handler within the U.S Military? Anyone got the interview I'm told about where Greg Szymanski said "I still think the Roman Church is the true church of Jesus Christ."?

Folks, I would like to say that I was the one who told this to Craig. I still haven't found that Szymanski interview where he said that. I had forgotten for a long time to listen to every interview he did to find it. But I'm sure I heard him say that. Let's continue on with this Szymanski stuff. Now I'm no fan of wingtv and they were exposed as an ADL psyop by Eric Hufschmid. But they had some good points on Szymanski.

GCN Exposed Big-Time:
Insider Speaks Out
by Victor Thorn & Lisa Guliani

We knew it would only be a matter of time until another GCN "Insider" came out and exposed the whole stinking network for what it is – a cesspool of greed, lies, and deception. That insider is none other than Daryl Bradford Smith, host of The French Connection.

On the morning of February 6, 2006 Smith was told by GCN that, "He would no longer be doing the French Connection on GCN because he was creating too many problems with his programming."

As far as we know, GCN did not specify what these "problems" were, but since Smith is undoubtedly the most outspoken broadcaster in regard to the Zionists, could it be that his program was CENSORED into oblivion because of this stance? Or, could it be that an article entitled Alex Jones' Zionist Protection Racket began with a quote from Daryl Bradford Smith (January 6, 2006) where he said of Jones: "His handlers are the Jews." Since everyone knows how much power Jones wields at GCN, could this dismissal be an edict from Alex Jones' Zionist handlers? Whatever the case, who needs the government to play Big Brother by silencing voices in the alternative media when you have GCN owner Ted Anderson and Alex Jones doing their dirty work for them!

Anyway, during Daryl Bradford Smith's first independent broadcast, he took the much overdue opportunity to expose how his former network has been infiltrated and corrupted. And please remember, these are Daryl Bradford Smith's own words … those of a GCN Insider who has finally come clean.

TED ANDERSON

Smith began by saying that he had been kissing up to people for a long time that he shouldn't have been kissing up to, and that GCN owner Ted Anderson was backed into a corner because he didn't know what to do with him. Smith then went on to say that "it has always been about the money with Anderson" and that Anderson's biggest concern was the "bottom-line" and "getting money from his advertisers." He also added that Anderson often did this "to the exclusion of the truth."

Smith further announced that "the people working for him [Anderson] are not truth-tellers," and that just one week earlier, someone at GCN told him to start pushing Alex Jones' videos! Considering this type of strong-arming, Smith stated that he had to "work under conditions that were very difficult," and that he had been "held hostage by the management of GCN." Last but not least, Smith made this conclusion about GCN: "It's a whole shithouse over there, and they should be cleaned-out."

JEFF RENSE

Smith said that Rense's site was "designed from the very beginning to be a lie factory," and that Rense "lies by omission, he lies by deception, and he lies by pseudo-authority." More specifically, Smith told his listeners that Jeff Rense "puts people in positions of 'expertise,' then has them spout lies." He also added that approximately "75% of the writers on Rense's site are Jewish or crypto-Jews," that "his step-mother works for the Zionists [Si Newhouse]," and that "the stories on Rense's site push you away from the truth."

ALEX JONES

An exact quote from Daryl Bradford Smith: "Mr. Jones lies through his teeth through omission." Smith also added that Jones "doesn't point to Israel as the masterminds behind the plot," and that he is a "disinfo specialist." He also added that he would "stand by these statement with his life."

Also, as mentioned earlier, Smith revealed that the management at GCN told him to “start promoting Alex Jones’ videos.” Smith also admitted that the statement he made to us at WING TV was accurate, except, according to Daryl, he said of Jones, “His handlers are the Zionists.” In this same vein, Smith said that Jones was “pushing listeners down the road that Israel wasn’t behind 9-11,” and that “he will never point his finger where all the evidence leads, to Israel.”

In addition, Smith also declared that he “bets Jones is being handled by Paul Joseph Watson.” Adding fuel to this argument was Eric Hufschmid, who joined Smith during this broadcast. Hufschmid weighed in by saying that “someone is behind Jones pushing him to put out certain information to push people away from Israel.” Hufschmid continued by saying that Watson was “suspicious” and wondered aloud, “why doesn’t anyone check this guy out?”

JACK BLOOD

Verbatim quote from Daryl Bradford Smith on Jack Blood: “He would sell his grandmother for a meal for himself.” Smith also called Blood a “sell-out,” “disinfo,” that he once “broadcast a positive show on the Kabbalah,” and that “this guy is bought and paid for.”

GREG SZYMANSKI

Lastly, Smith revealed that Greg Szymanski is “working for a guy named Greg Ziegler” who is a “self-described undercover agent for military intelligence.”

Keep in mind that Hufschmid worked closely with Daryl Bradford Smith around 2005 and 2006. So they thought the same way pretty much since Hufschmid basically designed Smith's site for him. Now look at what Eric Hufschmid wrote on Zeigler in 2006, February.

Greg Zeigler
Most people don't know of Zeigler because he remains behind the scenes.
However, he is in contact with some of the people in the "truth movement", such as Kee Dewdney, Leland Lehrman, Phil Jayhan, and Morgan Reynolds.

Furthermore, he defends some of the suspicious people, such as Judy Andreas, Scott Ritter, and Wayne Madsen.

His behavior suggests that he is a crypto Zionist in a management position. His job may be to supervise a group of Crypto Jews and Crypto Zionists. He may be helping them to infiltrate the truth movement, produce propaganda, deceive the honest people, and collect blackmail material.

We should be cautions of all of Zeigler's associates because they may be part of the Zionist Mafia. Key Dewdney, for example, admits to being partly Jewish, but denies being a Zionist.

Dewdney created the web site physics911.net. Is Ziegler in contact with Dewdney to help him expose 9-11? Or is Zeigler trying to manipulate, blackmail, or bribe Dewdney? Or is Dewdney a Crypto Zionist who works with Zeigler?

Who is Greg Zeigler? Military Intelligence PhD: U of California LA. How do we know? This website. Zeigler appears on a list of people halfway down who 'question' 9-11. But at the top of the page, the date is October 2005.

Notice how Hufschmid was associated with Zeigler at one time in 2005. And then he turns on him in 2006.

So basically we have Smith claiming that Greg Szymanski has a handler. Do we trust Smith on this one? Smith was correct in that this guy was military intelligence. However, we know that once you are in, you never leave unless you're in a wooden box. We know the Universities are the bases of the jesuits.

Capt. Gregory M. Zeigler, PhD

A former U.S. Army Intelligence Officer. In a 2006 statement to this author, Capt. Zeigler wrote, "I knew from September 18, 2001, that the official story about 9/11 was false. That was when I realized that the perpetrators had made a colossal blunder in collapsing the South Tower first, rather than the North Tower, which had been hit more directly and earlier. "Other anomalies poured in rapidly: the hijackers' names appearing in none of the published flight passenger lists, BBC reports of stolen identities of the alleged hijackers or the alleged hijackers being found alive, the obvious demolitions of WTC 1 and 2 and WTC 7, the lack of identifiable Boeing 757 wreckage at the Pentagon, the impossibility of ordinary cell phone (as opposed to Airfone) calls being made consistently from passenger aircraft at cruising altitude, etc., etc., etc."

Dear Eric,

My thoughts on your show tonight are fully embedded within my thread:

You will also see how it's been brought to my attention of Greg Szymanski having a possible Military Intelligence handler named Gregory Zeigler of California.

I will of course expect Greg to dismiss this charge as simply Zionist haters wishing to discredit his Vatican arena. I believe there may be something in it. Mr Heneghan has Al Gore Jr connections but alas some of his work is SPOT ON as highlighted recently with Antoine Rezfo and Obama connections etc. Now remember he was speaking of those two together way back in 2006. So we shouldn't dismiss these things immediately.

That's a pretty damning indictment. Can Walt Williams elaborate on this? Where's the quote from? Can Walt say who these friends are & when this call was?

Some additional info needs to be brought forth here for sure.

I listened twice to the Round Table discussion, and it reminded me of my youthful days, watching a group of Maiosts go through a self critisism exercise with an aberant comrade. It was disgusting and shocking to me that Phelps was put through this byu people he considers his fellow fighters.

Syzmanski was vile, and confirmed exactly why I rarely listen to his show. Freiss (his co-conspiritor) was just like a sqeaky door in support of Syz. It was obvious that the three had hyad a round table before speaking to Eric - a typical Red trick, and I'm sure a Jesuit trick too: " Let's get our game plan together, and we'll crush him"

THIS HAS MORE TO DO WITH THE MORAL AND CHRISTIAN GUTLESSNESS OF THE OWNER OF LRL IN THE FACE OF THE HATE LEGISLATION GOING THROUGH THE USA AT THE MOMENT. SYZMANSKI THE VATICAN ASSASSIN WAITED HIS TIME, STABBED AND STABBED ERIC IN COZY CHATS WITH LRL, FRIESS AND HIMSELF, AND THEN - STRUCK, FORCING THE BLADE DEEP (with the assistance of Nick Arthur and Tom Friess) INTO ERIC'S SHOULDER BLADES LAST NIGHT. Greg served his Black Pope well.

I pray that Eric's eyes are opened to the truth of Syzmanski.

Still, Eric sounded good tonight (19/11)

That's an interesting observation. The whole founding fathers being humanist freemasons is all a bunch of propaganda. If the foundations be destroyed, what shall the righteous do? The Jesuits (and their spiritual controller, Satan) know the Bible inside and out. By having Americans brainwashed with false history they will believe that the elites were always in control of every civilization and that they as laypeople cant do anything about it. This way no uprisings or revolutions take place because morale and faith (not to be confused with belief) in God is low.

AntiSionist - November 20, 2009 06:41 PM (GMT)

In other words, what Craig is saying is that Szymanski wrote this article a month ago about Washington. Then Phelps corrected him. And then Phelps was ambushed on a radio show recently whereby he was threatened to stop using the term white supremacist. Funny how they only care about it now after Phelps corrected Szymanski since Phelps has talked like that for a long long time and no one made a fuss until now. Very convenient timing.

Bible Warns George Washington’s Family Crest Is Sign of Babylon And

Mark of the Beast

Bible Warns George Washington's Family Crest Is Sign of Babylon And Mark of the Beast

He displayed this crest, identified in the Book of Daniel, proudly throughout the revolutionary war

By Greg Szymanski, JD
Nov. 14, 2009

Those who deny George Washington's connections to the Jesuits and being involved with a hidden Luciferian New World agenda need to read the following article reprinted below from a Catholic publication.

Those critics need also examine the Washington family crest, which Washington displayed proudly on his uniform during the American Revolution.

It is the contention of researchers, who consider Washington nothing more than a traitor like Jefferson and Franklin, that he had been hand picked by Jesuit General Lorenzo Ricci and Jesuit Bishop and land baron, John Carrol, to carry out the Order's hidden agenda and dirty work.

Washington's family crest is quite revealing and shows his true colors and since symbols are important to the occult, does his crest reveal his hidden agenda was tied together with the Jesuits?

Let God's word in the Book of Daniel be our confirming authority.

"The first was like a lion, and had eagle's wings: I beheld till the wings thereof were plucked, and it was lifted up from the earth, and made stand upon the feet as a man, and a man's heart was given to it." Daniel 7:4.

This refers to the Babylonian Empire, which reigned supreme in Daniel's time. Washington's family crest remarkably is what Daniel warned us about.

As explained on a Washington memorial website, here is a description of the crest now imprinted on Washington artifacts such as fine china plates, sold for profit to the public:

George Washington's Family Crest features a griffin, a mythical beast with the head and wings of an eagle and the body of a lion.

The crest was part of the Washington family's full coat of arms. Washington used the crest on his silver throughout his life.

The crest was also cast into four iron firebacks that Washington purchased in Philadelphia in 1787.

Three intelligent Bible readers were contacted regarding Washington's family crest and its significance according to the Book of Daniel.

John Daniels and Tom Freiss agreed with the above interpretation that it was remarkably similar to what Daniel prophesized while Eric Jon Phelps disagreed, saying:

"Babylon has nothing to do with the Washington family crest any more than the Lion of the Tribe of Judah has any relation to Babylon."

Here is another interpretation, agreeing with Freiss and Daniels and disagreeing with Phelps. The following is taken from http://biblicalstudies.ozwide.net.au/mark_..._beast_666.html

The description of a beast is given in the New Testament book of Revelation chapter 13:14-18. "And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast; saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast, which had the wound by a sword, and did live. And he had power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed. And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six."
Identifying the Beast

Now that we have read the quote we need to identify the beast, but before we talk about the Beast we need to understand the back-ground and history preceding the Beast. The best place to begin is in the book of Daniel, which deals greatly with prophecy, from the 6th century B.C. down to the end of time.
Lion Beast

The interpretation of the symbols used in Bible prophecy has not been left to human guesswork. Prophecy is history written in advance, and the book of Daniel provides the key to understanding it. A beast in prophecy symbolizes a king or kingdom. "These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, which shall arise out of the earth." Daniel 7:17 and "The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth," Daniel 7:23 indicate this. Note that 'king' and 'kingdom' are used interchangeably. Daniel 7:3 states that these four kings "came up from the sea", and sea or waters in prophecy represents "peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues." Revelation 17:15. In chapter 7 of Daniel we have the then current, and future kingdoms of the world presented to the prophet. "The first was like a lion, and had eagle's wings: I beheld till the wings thereof were plucked, and it was lifted up from the earth, and made stand upon the feet as a man, and a man's heart was given to it." Daniel 7:4. This refers to the Babylonian Empire, which reigned supreme in Daniel's time.

The Bear
Bear beast

"And behold another beast, a second, like to a bear, and it raised up itself on one side, and it had three ribs in the mouth of it between the teeth of it: and they said thus unto it, Arise, devour much flesh." Daniel 7:5. This symbol too is the same as the one found in Daniel 2:39. The kingdom which followed Babylon was Medo-Persia. This was a dual monarchy with the Medes ruling first, the later the Persians. The prophecy indicates this aspect by noting that the bear 'raised up itself on one side'. The three ribs represented other powers overthrown in its rise to dominance, namely Lydia, Babylon and Egypt.

The Leopard
Leopard beast

"After this I beheld, and lo another, like a leopard, which had upon the back of it four wings of a fowl; the beast had also four heads; and dominion was given to it." Daniel 7:6. This symbol also represents the same power as the one presented in Daniel 2:39. It was the Grecian empire under Alexander the Great which overthrew the Persians, and when he died his kingdom was divided into four parts, as symbolized by the four heads.

The Fourth Beast
Roman beast

"After this I saw in the night visions, and behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns." Daniel 7:7. This symbol is again the same power as the one represented in Daniel 2:40. The fourth universal power to rule the world after Daniel's day was pagan Rome. It was so different from any beast Daniel knew that he was unable to name it. It was indescribable. The ten horns are noted in Daniel 7:24 as "ten kings that shall arise". It is in fact that the Roman Empire was split up into ten smaller kingdoms between the years 351 and 476 A.D.

Their ancient and modern names are:

1. Alemanni – Germany
2. Franks – France
3. Anglo-Saxons – England
4. Burgundians – Switzerland
5. Visigoths – Spain

6. Suevi – Portugal
7. Lombards – Italy
8. Heruli
9. Vandals
10. Ostrogoths

The Little Horn

"I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of man, and a mouth speaking great things." Daniel 7:8. This verse gives two identifying marks to locate the 'little horn' in history. It came up 'among' the ten horns (kingdoms) and 'three' of the original ten were overthrown in its rise to power. Later, in Daniel 7:24, another identifying mark is given. The little horn would come up 'after' the ten horns. There is only ONE power in all history that fits this description. In Rome itself in the very centre of the fractured empire there arose after 476 A.D. the PAPACY, the one-man government of the Catholic church. In its rise to power three of the Gothic tribes, the Heruli, the Vandals, and the Ostrogoths, were overthrown and disappeared from history. The reigning power of these kings passed to the Pope. The power of the Papacy was established by the decree of Justinian in 533 A.D. and was carried out by force of arms in 538 A.D. with the overthrow of the Ostrogoths by Justinian's general, Belisarius.
Conclusive Evidence

More identifying marks are given in Daniel 7:25. It says that he "shall wear out the saints of the most High", indicating great persecution. No reader of history will deny the role of the Papacy in this. The dreadful persecution of the Dark Ages have indeed blackened the pages of history.

Then he shall "think to change times and laws". This the Papacy has done by disposing of the second commandment (forbidding the worship of idols) and changing the fourth (the only one dealing with time). A false day of worship has been set up in place of the original seventh-day Sabbath kept by Christ and the apostles.

1,260 Years

The next identification leaves no doubts, as no other power on earth could fit the prediction. That is, he shall reign for 1260 years. This is mentioned twice in Daniel and five times in Revelation, as follows: "time, times, and an half" (Time = 1 Bible year of 360 days, times = 2 Bible years, an half = 1/2 Bible year; totalling 1,260) in Daniel 7:25, 12:7 and Revelation 12:14; "forty and two months" in Revelation 11:2 and 13:5; and "a thousand two hundred and threescore days" in Revelation 11:3 and 12:6 (A prophetic calendar year of 360 days, or 12 months of 30 days each, is used in Bible chronology).

This power, then, would reign supreme for 1260 days, each day standing for a year, or 1260 years (Ezekiel 4:6, Numbers 14:34); from 538 A.D., when the last of the opposing 'horns' was uprooted, till 1798. In that year Berthier, one of Napoleon's generals, took the French army to Rome, made the Bishop of Rome, Pope Pius VI prisoner, and carried him to France where he died. The civil power of the Papacy finally ceased and a republic was set up in Rome.

1260 year time line

But the prophecy regarding the Papacy didn't end there.

Look at a few references regarding the Papacy's 1260 years of supremacy, in the book of Revelation. Starting at chapter 13 we find verses 1 to 10 talking again about the Papacy's rise to power out of the fallen Roman Empire, its great power during the 1260 years, and the deadly wound it received at the end of that period. Verse 3 says, "And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beast." We see from Daniel 7:21, 22 that this power would exist right up until Christ's second coming.

We have now positively identified the Beast of Revelation 13:14 – 18 as the Papacy or the Roman Catholic Church, but who is the image of the beast that is mentioned?
The Beast With Lamb-like Horns Makes The Image To The Beast

In between its deadly wound and its rise back to power another beast is brought to view in Revelation 13:11, 12. "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon. And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed."

'Then I saw another BEAST . . .'
The Symbols The Meaning
Arises out of the earth. Rev.13:11 Arises in some new vacant or sparsely populated land.
Arises about the time the sea beast is falling. Rev. 13:10 Grows into a nation about the time the Papal overthrow – (1798)
Has two lamb-like horns – verse 11 Two Christ-like principles give it strength (civil and religious liberty)
Has no crowns on the horns – verse 11 Not a monarchy – some form of republic.
Exercises power equal to the first beast. Rev. 13:12 Becomes a formidable if not supreme world power.

This "beast coming up out of the earth" is a nation that comes up in a wilderness area. It is a country discovered, not conquered. It has "two horns like a lamb" indicating youth, gentleness and represents civil and religious freedom. But "he spake as a dragon," "exerciseth all the power of the first beast" and "causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast."

Only one power in history meets these five prophetic specifications, namely the United States of America. We see from verse 14 that it began with a humble nature but turns arbitrary towards the end of time. We see that it makes an Image to the Beast – an exact copy of what the Papacy was during its 1260 year rule. When the leading churches of the United States, uniting upon such points of doctrine as are held by them in common, shall influence the state to enforce their decrees and to sustain their institutions, then Protestant America will have formed an image of the Roman hierarchy, and the infliction of civil penalties upon dissenters will inevitably result.

Prophecy reveals that America will exalt Sunday sacredness, which is the Mark of the Papacy's authority to make up its own laws; and that the whole world will follow! It is the boast of the Papacy that it can change the Law of God, the ten commandments. This will become the deciding issue in the future, even to the point of death (Revelation 13:14, 15.). The LAW of GOD or the laws of men?

Note that at this time "he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men" "insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect." (Revelation 13:13 and Matthew 24:24).

The Papacy claims the change of the Sabbath to the first day of the week was her act and is the mark of her authority in religious things.

'Question: Have you any other way of proving that the Church has power to institute festivals of precept?'

'Answer: Had she not such power she could not have done that in which all modern religionists agree with her; she could not have substituted the observance of Sunday the first day of the week, for the observance of Saturday the seventh day, a change for which there is no scriptural authority.'

('A Doctrinal Catechism', by the Rev. Stephen Kennan, p.174)

'Of course the Catholic Church claims that the change was her act . . . and the act is a mark of her ecclesiastical authority in religious things.'

'If Protestants would follow the Bible, they should worship God on the Sabbath Day. In keeping Sunday they are following a law of the Catholic Church.'

(Albert Smith, Chancellor of the Catholic Archdiocese of Baltimore, replying for the Cardinal in a letter of February 10, 1920.)

The following article taken from a Catholic website and forum reveals more interesting connections between Washington and beast in Rome:

George Washington's Conversion to Catholicism

By Ben Emerson

George Washington, the first president of the United States, served from 1789 to 1797 in that capacity. A popular slogan concerning him was that he was "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

On December 13, 1799, Washington (aged 67 years) was exposed to a storm of sleet and developed a cold. He rested in bed at his home in Mount Vernon, Virginia.

On the morning of the 14th at 3:00, he had a severe attack of membranous croup. At daybreak, Mrs. Washington sent for the only physician, Dr. Craik. Two other physicians also came, but all three together could not save him. Washington died between 10:00 and 11:00 that night.

About four hours before Washington's death, Father Leonard Neale, a Jesuit priest was called to Mount Vernon from St. Mary's Mission across the Piscataway River. Washington had been an Episcopalian, but was baptized into the Roman Catholic Church that night. After Washington's death, a picture of the Blessed Virgin Mary and one of St. John were found among the effects on an inventory of articles at his home

George Washington had an interest in Roman Catholicism for many years. His servant Juba stated that the General made the Sign of the Cross before meals. He may have learned this practice from his Catholic lieutenants, John Fitzgerald or Stephen Moylan. At Valley Forge, Washington had forbidden during "Pope's Day," the burning in effigy of the Roman Pontiff. As President, Washington slipped into a Catholic Church several times to attend Sunday Mass.

Pope Leo XIII (1878-1903) praised George Washington highly in an encyclical Longinque Oceani of January 6, 1893, to the bishops of America:"We highly esteem and love exceedingly the young and vigorous American nation, in which we plainly discern latent forces for the advancement alike of civilization and of Christianity… Without morality the State cannot endure – a truth which that illustrious citizen of yours, whom we have just mentioned ['the great Washington'] with a keenness of insight worthy of his genius and statesmanship perceived and proclaimed… Thanks are due to the equity of the laws which obtain in America and customs of the well-ordered Republic. For the Church amongst you, unopposed by the Constitution and the government of your nation, fettered by no hostile legislation, protected against violence by the common laws and the impartiality of the tribunals, is free to live and act without hindrance." Washington was a student of the writings on political philosophy of St. Robert Bellarnine and St. Thomas Aquinas. George Washington, James Madison, and some of the other Founding Fathers incorporated into the Constitution in 1787 some of these two saints' ideas about how to set up a Republic.

In a like manner, Thomas Jefferson had studied these saints and incorporated some of their concepts into the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

A question, therefore, the reader can pose to friends is as follows: Who was the first man who served as U.S. President, who was at the time of his death a Roman Catholic? Most people will say John F. Kennedy, but the correct answer is George Washington, the Father of our Country.

It makes interesting reads.
A hot topic.
And John Daniel in not a nobody, his website was once the only official outside link that Vatican Assassins provided. I would just read the mail correspondence on this subject at Vatican Assassins. May all the Planet go follow this new Hegelian Dialectic. When looking for the synthesis profiting from the thesis and antithesis, just follow my link. If it was posted. My previous comment on this topic was not.

Well first of all, this article ends with the most unreliable source one can think of: A Roman Catholic forum. If you decide to go believe anything there, you end up kissing the popes ring. Or want to, first get an expensive necktie, become a pervert, and confess your perversion to certain Roman Catholic Priests. And if you obey them, than maybe you may Kiss the popes ring. I'm not going help you here. I don't carry a ring myself, I would advice to kiss the wedding ring of your wife.

ShaneCMuir, Greg is not attacking the Constitution, but wants the truth.
I am here, because I want my constitution back, that was sabotaged some 200 years ago. I'm not an American, I am Dutch. My Constitution was set up by William Silent, who was a former Catholic, just as Greg Szymanski is. I am also worried about the American Constitution, because I have Sunday law now, while under my legal Constitution, the Sabbath was kept. My Constitution was Sabotaged by the Roman Catholics, to be more precise, by Jan Roothaan, who became the Jesuit General as a reward for sabotaging my Constitution. I very much doubt whether Greg is interested and to be rewarded as becoming the Jesuit General, neither does John Daniel. After listening to The Investigative Journal for 3 years, sacrificing my time, it's like a part-time job, I know what Greg is about. And also, the majority of programs this year where on Tony Alamo Ministries, go take your complaint some where else ShaneCMuir. I am grateful very much to Greg, and have written several articles myself in Dutch on Alamo Ministries, where I was able to link to Arctic Beacon's Tony Alamo interviews as a reference.

My comment on the article is:
The difference between the Dutch Constitution from the 1500's and the American Constitution in the 1700's is so huge, that I at the start had a hard time understanding why my Constitution would have inspired the American Constitution. The Dutch Constitution would make Roman Catholicism prohibited, the American Constitution did not, contrary, Roman Catholicism was prohibited in some of the States of the Union, while the American Constitution in 1776 made Roman Catholicism legal in all States. This is an argument in favor of John Daniel's position here, because why a Constitution, if such a Constitution allows hostile foreign infiltration?

I compare it to Churches. A Tony Alamo Church, when Tony is preaching the truth on Antichrist, will be a great experience to me. Preachers that tell truth on Antichrist, I never would hear or saw in Holland, where I live. The only European preacher I know, is Ian Paisley. I'm a big fan of his sermons of the 1960's. A young but loud voice, having no need for a microphone. Also his media interviews are interesting, where he exposes the lying and cheating BBC. BBC is more terrible as FOX in America on these issues. Any way, I'm not interested in a Congregation, that denies Pontifex Maximus, who is also the end responsible for the killing of Jesus Christ Himself, is antichrist. All people know that the Roman Emperor, who was named Pontifex Maximus before the Pope was created by bribing the Bishop of Rome, would kill the students of Jesus Christ in the Roman Circus. As Tony Alamo is persecuted today, by the same subject, Pontifex Maximus, antichrist.

I will try to stay neutral now, and follow this debate.
I tend to always agree with Eric Phelps, because I experienced he is usually right on these issues. Maybe Eric Phelps cares to explain, why the American Constitution, would change laws in American sovereign States, that expelled Roman Catholicism, that where in that case sabotaged, as my Constitution was sabotaged around the same time.

Way to go Greg.

The Baptism of George Washington in the Hudson River by his favorite chaplain, Baptist-Calvinist Pastor and Army

That the reader may have a better understanding of the exchange, Greg believes George Washington was a Freemasonic Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor during the American Revolution; after the Revolution when presiding at the Constitutional Convention; and during his two terms as president of the United States of America (1789-1797). Greg holds this position, along with John Daniel, F. Tupper Saussy and other authors of note while EJP believes Washington was a low-level American Freemason, a Baptist-Calvininst having no ties whatsoever to the Order's Bavarian Illuminati. This subject is of great concern for the Reformation AV1611 Bible-believing patriot; for, if Washington was an agent of the Order then underground due to its suppression by the Pope, the federal government from its inception was under the secret control of the Company via its Illuminati then seeking to re-unite a divided Freemasonry. If Washington was not an agent of the Order via Illuminized Freemasonry, then the federal government was not a creation of the Society of Jesus—just as the Constitution reflects in its separation of powers legislative, executive and judicial. For the absolute separation of powers flies in the face of Jesuit absolutism be it in the form of socialist-communism, socialist-fascism, radical socialist democracy, socialist Labor Zionism as well as Islamic Sharia Law.

Dear Eric,

How should we deal with this interesting piece of information, my good friend.

I recall the Vatican having to paint over some of Michelangelo's obscene paintings… shall we do the same with this…I guess we could say someone was slandering Washington, but I think he was what you call a Jesuit shill!!

Dear Greg,

Three beautiful videos!

I will post them on the site.

Again, we must remember this Shrine to Washington was created by American Illuminized/ Jesuitized Freemasonry. The IHS in the background proves this. The Shrine was planned in 1909, during the presidency of that tool of Rome and dear brother conspirator of James Cardinal Gibbons, 33rd Degree Freemason Theodore Roosevelt. Ground was broken in 1911 during the presidency of another Jesuit-controlled Masonic stooge for Gibbons, 33rd Degree Freemason William H. Taft. It was completed in 1923 during the presidency of Coolidge, another CFR-connected politician. The statue of Washington was dedicated in 1932 during the presidency of CFR Bohemian Grover Herbert Hoover. In short, this shrine, modeled after the shrine of the Jesuit Reduction in Ascension, Paraguay, was erected to make a “super-mason” of George Washington who had been converted to the true Jesus Christ of the Reformation AV1611 Bible and baptized by his favorite Chaplain, Baptist pastor and Army Captain John Gano. The exact same thing has been done inside the Capitol Dome in DC, portraying Washington to be a god.

The George Washington portrayed in these temples of Satan is not the same George Washington of American history. Thus George was not an agent for the Order, but was its enemy for which he was poisoned on his deathbed with anthrax. Dear George was the first president to be given the Order’s “poison cup.”

Lord Bless,

Brother Eric

Dear Eric,

His close connections to the Carrol family need closer scrutiny…I remain as always open to discussion but feel you are off base on this one.

Greg

Dear Greg,

Washington’s acquaitence with the ex-Jesuit/Freemasonic Carroll family is no more siginficant thanis association with Freemasonic Hell-Fire Club-member Benjamin Franklin or Illuminatus Thomas Jefferson, two other pro-Jesuit conspirators in addition to the Masonic Carroll family (Charles Carroll was a Mason also). Washington worked with them to establish the Republic as he was the father of the Constitutional convention. But to insist that he was a conscious Jesuit coadjutor working with the Jesuit Order via Illuminized Freemasonry to establish a new, Jesuit/Masonic kingdom here in North America is not historically accurate.

You must not forget that the first Great Masonic schism of 1753 was in full force and effect here in the colonies. Throughout the entire 19th century, American Freemasons were anti-Rome/anti-Jesuit (look at the “Know Nothings”) as American Freemasonry was not yet Illuminized. Even ex-priest turned Bible believer in Christ, Charles Chiniquy, joined the Freemasons in the 1880s thinking the Craft was anti-Jesuit/anti-Vatican. But by the time the George Washington Masonic National Memorial in Alexandria, Virginia, was proposed in 1909, finished and dedicated in 1923, American Freemasonry was fully Illuminized/ Jesuititzed.

This dialogue is much appreciated.

Lord Bless,

Brother Eric

Dear Eric,

Lower level politicians and clergy would of course join freemasonry thinking it was a wholesome and good organization. They still do.

However, men like Washington had to know what was going on "Behind the Scenes." As you know, history can be twisted. Let's keep unraveling the Jesuit ball of twine and see what we find.

Greg

In 1908 Rev. E. T. Sanford of Manhattan's North Church commissioned a painting of Washington and Chaplain Gano waist-deep in the Potomac. The painting was taken to the Baptist Church at Asbury Park, N. J. where it hung until 1926. It was then presented by Chaplain Gano's great-granddaughter to William Jewell College (Baptist) in Liberty, Mo. for the dedication of a John Gano Memorial Chapel. (Time, 1932)

Is Greg Szymanski another Tom Heneghan? Just a closet Catholic? If what this user posted comment says is true, then it would be another person besides me who has heard Greg say that despite his attacks on the Jesuits, he's still a Catholic inside. Or does the user comment mean that Greg USED to be catholic but since left the church intellectually speaking? I REALLY need to find that audio of what I'm sure was Greg saying he still thinks the Roman church is the true one. It will take me months. I guess I can get started. Hopefully I'll find it before the year is over. - AntiSionist

It makes interesting reads.
A hot topic.
And John Daniel in not a nobody, his website was once the only official outside link that Vatican Assassins provided. I would just read the mail correspondence on this subject at Vatican Assassins. May all the Planet go follow this new Hegelian Dialectic. When looking for the synthesis profiting from the thesis and antithesis, just follow my link. If it was posted. My previous comment on this topic was not.

Well first of all, this article ends with the most unreliable source one can think of: A Roman Catholic forum. If you decide to go believe anything there, you end up kissing the popes ring. Or want to, first get an expensive necktie, become a pervert, and confess your perversion to certain Roman Catholic Priests. And if you obey them, than maybe you may Kiss the popes ring. I'm not going help you here. I don't carry a ring myself, I would advice to kiss the wedding ring of your wife.

ShaneCMuir, Greg is not attacking the Constitution, but wants the truth.
I am here, because I want my constitution back, that was sabotaged some 200 years ago. I'm not an American, I am Dutch. My Constitution was set up by William Silent, who was a former Catholic, just as Greg Szymanski is. I am also worried about the American Constitution, because I have Sunday law now, while under my legal Constitution, the Sabbath was kept. My Constitution was Sabotaged by the Roman Catholics, to be more precise, by Jan Roothaan, who became the Jesuit General as a reward for sabotaging my Constitution. I very much doubt whether Greg is interested and to be rewarded as becoming the Jesuit General, neither does John Daniel. After listening to The Investigative Journal for 3 years, sacrificing my time, it's like a part-time job, I know what Greg is about. And also, the majority of programs this year where on Tony Alamo Ministries, go take your complaint some where else ShaneCMuir. I am grateful very much to Greg, and have written several articles myself in Dutch on Alamo Ministries, where I was able to link to Arctic Beacon's Tony Alamo interviews as a reference.

My comment on the article is:
The difference between the Dutch Constitution from the 1500's and the American Constitution in the 1700's is so huge, that I at the start had a hard time understanding why my Constitution would have inspired the American Constitution. The Dutch Constitution would make Roman Catholicism prohibited, the American Constitution did not, contrary, Roman Catholicism was prohibited in some of the States of the Union, while the American Constitution in 1776 made Roman Catholicism legal in all States. This is an argument in favor of John Daniel's position here, because why a Constitution, if such a Constitution allows hostile foreign infiltration?

I compare it to Churches. A Tony Alamo Church, when Tony is preaching the truth on Antichrist, will be a great experience to me. Preachers that tell truth on Antichrist, I never would hear or saw in Holland, where I live. The only European preacher I know, is Ian Paisley. I'm a big fan of his sermons of the 1960's. A young but loud voice, having no need for a microphone. Also his media interviews are interesting, where he exposes the lying and cheating BBC. BBC is more terrible as FOX in America on these issues. Any way, I'm not interested in a Congregation, that denies Pontifex Maximus, who is also the end responsible for the killing of Jesus Christ Himself, is antichrist. All people know that the Roman Emperor, who was named Pontifex Maximus before the Pope was created by bribing the Bishop of Rome, would kill the students of Jesus Christ in the Roman Circus. As Tony Alamo is persecuted today, by the same subject, Pontifex Maximus, antichrist.

I will try to stay neutral now, and follow this debate.
I tend to always agree with Eric Phelps, because I experienced he is usually right on these issues. Maybe Eric Phelps cares to explain, why the American Constitution, would change laws in American sovereign States, that expelled Roman Catholicism, that where in that case sabotaged, as my Constitution was sabotaged around the same time.

Way to go Greg.
A brave path.

I heard a replay on FAR/LRL Sunday 29th Nov. of Freiss's show, Inquistion Update and there were the pair - Syz and Tom - slobbering over each other whilst talking sweet nothings to each other about Washington. Funny how it was this pair (along with Nick Arthur as the third stooge) who hamstrung Phelps before letting rip on this subject. Great weight is put on Tupper Sausay's work - which appears to raise EJP's ire
The cap upon the of the conspiracy to silence EJP .Saussay : EJP indicts him in writing of Jesuit lackey and enabler status.

Syzmanski,, as others have said, is completely untrustworthy.

THANK YOU for contacting me.

I would be happy to list the most important charges one by one.

Please give me a day or two to assemble them.

August 14, 2002

Dear Friends,

I will not be able to forward emails for about a week, as I am debating F. Tupper Saussy concerning some major errors, which I consider deliberate, in his book on the Society of Jesus titled Rulers of Evil.

I have accused Mr. Saussy of being a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor and thus will bring up my charges based upon quotations from his book. You will be privy to all the debates between us. We all should learn much - most of all me.

Sincerely in Faith,

Dear Mr. Saussy,

I apologize for not beginning our exchange sooner.

The attachment sets forth my Three General Charges causing me to conclude that you are a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor.

Please let me know if the terms of exchange are acceptable to you.
If so, I shall begin with my first charge to which then you may respond.

Thank you for your time and effort in this important matter.

Sincerely in Faith,
Brother Eric

Augusts 20, 2002

Mr. Phelps,

Your attachment cites various passages and ideas in my book with which you agree and disagree.

But I am confused by the "Three General Charges" which have led you to declare me publicly, in advance of your having received my answer to said charges, a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor under oath to the Superior General. This is a grave accusation, and should be attended by personal knowledge of relevant facts.

I cannot possibly answer your charges until you list them one by one, as I requested in my letter to you of August 10. Please state them clearly. Don't oblige me, or any other reader, to guess what they are. And please recognize that a mere difference of opinion does not constitute a valid charge.

I cannot consider this exchange a "debate" in any sense of the word. You seem to be accusing me of an act of conspiracy and deception against my brethren in the biblical Christian faith. I am responding to your accusation. This is not a debate. It is an inquisition, to which I am gladly submitting in order to give an answer to every man that asks a reason of the hope that is in me.

Sincerely yours,
Tupper Saussy

Webmaster's note: Eric Jon Phelps, author of Vatican Assassins, has yet to respond to Tupper Saussy's request for specific charges, yet continues to refer to Saussy as a covert Jesuit operative. July 28, 2003.

To be fair, Eric's "Three General Charges" are not charges of any kind.

See: http://www.tuppersaussy.com/museum/html/wr...pschallenge.htm

Eric makes one charge, that of Tupper Saussy being a "Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor".

What Eric refers to as his "Three General Charges" are in fact reasons, not charges.

QUOTE

This leads me to now list my Three General Charges sustaining the accusation that F. Tupper Saussy is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor. According to Rulers of Evil:

1. The Suppression of the Jesuit Order in 1773 by Pope Clement XIV was a secret and deliberate work of Jesuit General Ricci -a 'ruse' to which Pope Clement XIV was a consenting party. The fabrication of this historical lie was necessary to promote yet another false conclusion; that the American War of Independence was entirely a work of Jesuit General Ricci and his 'disestablished' Jesuit Order.

2. The Declaration of Independence and U.S. Constitution are essentially Roman Catholic documents inspired from the writings of Jesuit Cardinal Robert Bellarmine, and that all of the leading characters of the Revolution being Freemasons, including George Washington, were thus under Jesuit control.

(There is no mention in ROE of the poisoning of Pope Clement XIII the night before he was to suppress the Jesuit Order in 1759; no mention of the 1773 Suppression of the Jesuit Order by Pope Clement XIV as being a terrifying act on his part; no mention that the Pope declared, after his signing of the Bull (called a 'Brief' by the Order) Dominic ac Redemptor, that 'This suppression will be my death;' no mention of the Jesuit 'prophecy' that in September of 1774 the Papacy would be 'vacant;' no mention that the Pope was indeed poisoned evidenced by the inability of the morticians to proceed with embalming, as the Pope's flesh fell of the bones necessitating a closed-coffin funeral; no mention that the Jesuit General's own nephew, Bishop Ricci, believed that the Order had poisoned the Pope; no mention of the thousands of Jesuits brought back from South America who were detained on the island of Corsica —the island from which arose the Order's great avenger, the Roman Catholic Freemason of the Grand Orient Lodge of Paris, Napoleon Bonaparte; no mention of Napoleon taking vengeance on all of the Catholic Monarchs, including the Grand Master of the Knights of Malta, who dared to expel the Order from their dominions; no mention of Napoleon breaking up the Spanish and French Empires and ending the Protestant Dutch Republic, those nations having aided the American Colonies in their Revolution against the Jesuit Order's English King George III; no mention of the purpose of King George III's re-attack on America with his War of 1812; no mention of the Holy Alliance and the ensuing Secret Treaty of Verona; no mention of the Monroe Doctrine, its purpose being to counter the Secret Treaty of Verona; and no mention of the purpose of the War Between the States, with its resultant martial law inflicted upon the Southern States for two years until the forced ratification of the Fourteenth Amendment.)

3. The conclusion of the book is that it is unbiblical for a Bible believer to resist political tyranny with the sword, 'the sword of Just Defense' as John Knox called it; and, in ending his book, he declares that there is 'Truth' which could lead one to disbelieve the Bible.

These reasons of Eric's are essentially his refutation of assertions made by Saussy in "Rulers of Evil" which are the result of differing conclusions. Whether these conclusions were derived from Saussy being a Jesuit asset or from independent reasoning can never be proved.

The bracketed sentence beginning "There is no mention in ROE of..." is a very dense & lengthy interspersion that would have been better placed in a different part of the text & broken up with bullet points.

My jury is out on the true facts behind the American Revolution & the truth behind "America's Secret Destiny". As a non-American & as someone who has no desire to ever set foot in the place, I obviously have less of a vested emotional attachment to or interest in preserving any longheld beliefs regarding the origins of & intentions for the place.

I do find it interesting that Craig seems to have abandoned his former stance that was virtually indistinguishable to Saussy's. I am correct in my observation or not? If so, what was the determinant that made you reject that earlier position?

Why does anyone critical of Rome wish to defend the Federal system that (to give Saussy some credit, he does point out - see below) does permit "Roman Catholics to reach the highest political offices":

http://www.tuppersaussy.com/museum/html/wr...ialvol3no1.html

>
> I know the federal system was chartered, orchestrated, and brought to life by protestant zealots unwittingly doing the muscle work of the Society of Jesus so that an English-speaking protestant nation could be established on a constitution that permitted Roman Catholics to reach the highest political offices.

Eric advocates secession & I personally think that this is a better solution than defending a fundamentally flawed document.

This is a totally separate issue to the recent radio "roundtable" court case & using it to defend either Eric or Greg depending on one's sympathies is ill-advised at best & ultimately a straw man argument which can only serve to confuse matters whose waters scarcely need further muddying.

I have just been reading through some documents posted to me by a fellow researcher which include the following excerpt from John Daniel's "Grand Design Exposed" (that was also kindly sent to me - & which excerpt I have just found posted on the internet - conveniently), I would like to get the bottom this matter, but am prepared to not rush into any definitive conclusions too early. Posting at forums & emailing research is a double-edge sword as it makes finding the time to read whole books very difficult. It's a potential minefield area & worth looking into all contentions. I didn't approve of the way that the "court case" was handled overall, but will not use that as a reason to chuck out any or all research that doesn't agree with the work of my most respected researcher/author (EJP). I'm not saying that Eric is wrong on this matter (as I have made clear in past correspondence), but I am saying that we need to look at the evidence more directly & to draw conclusions accordingly (or remain open-minded if overwhelmed by info that can be interpreted varied ways):

CONSIDER HISTORICAL RECORD:

Charles Pierre L'Enfant — City Planner for Washington D.C. — Roman Catholic

Daniel Carroll — One of three commissioners appointed by President George Washington to survey and acquire land for the new government. The land where the capitol building stands was donated by him. He was the brother of Archbishop John Carroll and was also Roman Catholic.

Charles Carroll — Wealthiest man in the colonies at the beginning of the American Revolution. A signer of the Declaration of Independence and in 1776 was appointed as one of a committee of three, along with Benjamin Franklin and Samuel Chase, to visit Canada to secure their alliance. His cousin Jesuit Father John Carroll, accompanied them. He was educated by Roman Catholic Jesuits.

Robert Brent — The first and appointed mayor of Washington D.C. A nephew of Bishop John Carroll, and was Roman Catholic.

Constantino Brumidi — Hired painter of occult pictures in the Capitol Dome. He came from Rome where he had gained a reputation for restoring the Vatican frescoes. He was Roman Catholic.

John Carroll — Became a Jesuit Father in 1753. Became the first Bishop of the hierarchy of U.S.A. and first Bishop and Archbishop of Baltimore Maryland. Founder of Jesuit Georgetown College 1789.
Interesting note: In 1669, the surrounding land which is now Washington D.C. belonged to a gentleman named Francis Pope, who called the area "Rome" and its river inlet "Tiber". He was the sheriff of Charles County Maryland.

On another info sheet that I was posted was a reading of Revelation that states the beast that rises up out of the sea is the Vatican & the best that rises up out of the earth is the U.S.A. I found a similar explication of this info here:

An amazing fact that MANY miss is we can actually see the makings of a SATANIC TRINITY in the way the Dragon, the Vatican and America all come together as one in agreement for the final desires of Satan himself. To enforce the mark of the beast.

Revelation 13:1-2, 11,12 "And I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, ... and the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority. And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon. And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast..."

The trinity of hell ...

The Dragon (Satan)
The beast rising from the sea (Vatican)
The beast rising from the earth (USA)

Here is something MANY people miss regarding the Dragon, the Vatican, and the USA.. Notice these three tables that illustrate the actual TRINITY OF HELL...

He sends 3 demons to gather the kings of the whole world. (Rev. 16:14)

His wrath goes against those that follow the Father. (Rev. 12:12,17)

He wants to be like the Father. (Isaiah 14:14)

He is the father of lies. (John 8:44)

 The Son of the True Godhead

He is the image of the Father. (John 14:7-9; Col. 1:15)

Well, well and well, what do we have here? We have Russell Pine (Jordan Maxwell) blaming the Jews for the Big Bang Theory. What Jordan Maxwell forgets to tell you is that this exact theory came from a Society of Jesus soldier by the name of Georges Henri Joseph Edouard Lemaitre. The same Belgium, Jesuit soldier who the village idiot, Albert Einstein really looked up to. So Jordan who were these Jewish physicists exactly? -CRAIG OXLEY

QUOTE

August 2008

While listening to William (Bill) Coopers famous "Mystery Babylon" series I noticed that Bill was reading something, like he normally did,, but this time he didn't say what it was he was reading. I found out it was Jordan Maxwell's book "That Old Time Religion"
After I made that connection Cooper did all the debunking.

This presentation will show the following:

1.) Cooper makes it very clear that he believes Maxwell to be spreading the "mystery" religion

2.) It will also show that Maxwell is NOT showing us what "they" believe, but that he is telling us (in essence) to believe what "they" believe.

3.) Cooper clearly implicates Zechariah Sitchin in relation to Maxwells work.

4.) It will explain Coopers position, which has been misrepresented by people that failed to realize that he would read Masonic literature often in order to expose it to the public, he clearly seems to think Maxwell book is Masonic as well.

5.) I break down the interview of Maxwell on The Hour of The Time.

soulinspiration - November 3, 2008 11:27 AM (GMT)

People went ballistic when I posted Chris White's debunking of Jordan Maxwell back in March. For those who would like to have a bit of a laugh at the militant responses this raised, check out the following thread & read all four pages. Where's the Maxwell Defence Force gone? I'm glad to see that some are open-minded enough to allow for modifications of views upon further examination & contemplation of the information but I'm amazed at how the MDF seem to have dropped away.

I had a few of them post on my repost of the same CW info here:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/06/18...axwell-exposed/

The MDF also seem to have stopped posting there despite the fact that that's still a popular page at my blog. Check out the comments there for some real chuckles! :D

Ha!

Looks like I spoke too soon by posting my above comment before remembering to check my incoming comments.

To Alpha0:

Thanks for your comment but I'd like to clarify some matters.

I didn't write the above piece or collate the info & evidence at the links. This was Chris White's work & I give credit as it is due to him at the top of this page. However I do agree with him & those other intelligent critical analysts of Maxwell's work on the i-net.

Also I don't think that any of us who are questioning Maxwell's agenda & information are under the impression that there is anything other than a relatively small percentage of the world that has been aware of Jordan Maxwell. That is not the point, for several reasons:

- JM is one of many such Aquarian Agents (in my assessment based on the above evidence & utilising the methods of observation, contemplation, deduction) & so the combined effect is what we should be focused on.

- What the Profane think about at the present moment is of little consequence for their worldviews are largely formed by a ragbag of hand-me-down selections. I do not dismiss their importance in terms of sheer numbers & as witting & unwitting goons for the elite & so do not wish for them to be misled by their deeper-looking aquaintances. For those who do actually have an inquisitive mind & are sincere in their search for the truth & are looking around to see how the pieces of the big picture fit, it can only be a service to them to leave some information that if they do come across JM (or even for those who already have become influenced by his work) to be aware that something's amiss with JM's modus operandi.

- These truth-seeking people that I have referred to DO have a major effect on the views of those not so awake around them & so must be presented with all of the available facts on others who claim to be revealing what is claimed to be suppressed, vital knowledge. Then all of us are in a better position to make up our minds.

The two Unhived Mind links above have some more sources critiquing JM. The second link above is mostly JM defenders for the first couple of pages but things get more interesting after that.

I don't hate JM, he's probably just mind-controlled like Alex "CIA" Jones & David "Aqua" Icke. I feel sorry for him as he does seem to have served his purpose for the elite & now they have others that they use more effectively, but that's how it works. His one-time head-nods to the Jesuitical control of the pyramid have drifted into silence on the matter for years now & if JM had ever broken away mentally from the system, he has for some time now firmly been doing its full bidding.

And finally, he obviously (like counterintelligence agents Jones & Icke) does have some genuine & useful info, but we have to know where he is misleading & what the evidence is that he is an asset of the Jesuit's Illuminati agents.

Jordan Maxwell, "Godfather of Secret Societies" and New World Order Shill

[dohtml]<embed id="VideoPlayback" src="http://video.google.com/googleplayer.swf?docid=-1155202722043130535&hl=en&fs=true" style="width:400px;height:326px" allowFullScreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" type="application/x-shockwave-flash"> </embed>[/dohtml]

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-1155202722043130535

Yes, Im getting tired of the "exposed" thing too, but hear me out.

From Jordan Maxwell:

"There are people on the earth that are divinely ordained in there positions of power"

"I am smart enough to accept that"

They have "extraordinary wisdom, power, and knowledge"

Jordan believes that these hybrid god/men are "ordained to give order" sometime very soon
I.E. world government/religion

Jordan believes that his god communicates only to those that understand symbols, and that when they come back to set up their "order" they are going to reward him and others who have illumination to these mysteries and symbols.

These are just a few of Jordan Maxwells statements and beliefs (watch the video) please do watch this 30 min video, It details some of the above statements and asks some serious questions about the similarities of Jordan Maxwell's bottom line, and that of the secret societies he exposes. Sure, I know he told you all about secret societies, and symbolism, and conspiracy, but lets look at some of what else he has taught you.

This will confuse you if you still think that the only goal of the illuminati types is to build a world government/police state and to reduce the population. Those are only necessary steps in that plan. Like it or not. they have a religious agenda as well, you can look at this two ways imo, either that they need the world religion to create "patriotism" for the world government (which they have been setting up with Rockefeller backed alien "space brother" propaganda to unite the world and destroy national soverenty) or that they want us to worship someone or something new for some reason, or both. From what I can tell by watching their money, and what they prop up, and who they kill, they are far more concerned with this religious agenda than they are with the nuts and bolts of the system (although that's important as well), Its so crucial that they use their own secrets as bait, This is the premise to making sense of this misinformation, and make no mistake, they do provide some of the best info out there, its one of the oldest tools in the toolbox. I know most of you understand this basic stuff so Ill move on to some of the specifics

One of the big ones for me is his blind adherence to HUGE errors in Zechariah Sitchins translations of ancient texts, which can only be made if one were trying very hard manipulate the texts. (I submit that they have a very good reason to do just that) I will refer you to some specific errors explained by Dr Micheal Heiser at http://sitchiniswrong.com

He also details why Sitchin either knows very little of the languages he says he is an exert on, or he is deliberately lying.

But Sitchin's translations have become so central to Maxwells lectures that its important to detail the specifics of how exactly they are wrong.

http://sitchiniswrong.com/dc101elohim.pdf

http://www.michaelsheiser.com/nephilim.pdf

Again watch the video I posted, it makes this quite clear that Maxwell is giddy with excitement about this new order, and for the hybrids that he believes have the "divine right" to rule over us coming back to reward him and anyone else that wants to join in on the illumination (!)

You will find this same Atlantis Theme all throughout The Theosophical society stuff, I.E. Blavatsky, Crowley, Nazi crap. I find it very interesting indeed that Micheal Tsarion who has been closely linked with the theosophical society is sooo very close to Maxwell, and Tsarion cant seem to shut up about how great Atlantis was and how much a new one would rock, same thing with Freeman seems to have this same aliment.

Anyway, Maxwell was given his start by a group called the Truth Seeker Company http://www.truthseeker.com/ which is about a hundred years old, and has been trying to debunk Christianity using anything and everything they can throw at it, regardless of how "true" it actually is, they are big Sitchin cheerleaders too, which may explain Maxwell's dependence on Zach's translations.

In any case, I think a very telling moment is when Maxwell early in his career went on the late Bill Coopers radio show during his "Mystery Babylon series" (which I highly recommend http://oneheartbooks.com/resources/audios/...ry_babylon.htm)

Cooper, who had spent a lot of time proving without a doubt that the secret societies had forced their sun/luciferian religion into Christianity not the other way around (as zeitgeist and Maxwell constantly insinuate) http://zeitgeistchallenge.com anyway, he had let Jordan tell his "sun gods are Jesus" thing until he stopped him and got him to admit that that isn't actually "real word" history, but symbolism forced on Christianity by the elites after failing to kill them off. Here is a short clip I edited. The first part is Cooper saying he only met Maxwell that same day http://conspiracyclothes.com/nowheretorun/...maxwellclip.wav

If you have been around in this conspiracy world for any length of time you probably have a figured out a few people in it that you for sure, or have a hunch, that are cointelpro or disinformers. I bet you that you can find Jordan hugging on one or two of them in his "friends" list on his website

http://www.jordanmaxwell.com/gallery.html

Look at Jordan's website and his affiliations

http://jordanmaxwell.com/bio/2_affiliations.html

Red flags all over the field here

Like Icke, and Tsarion, Maxwell claims to have been guided buy other dimensional spirits to do the things He is doing. They all claim to have had specific paranormal experiences dealing with these entities early on that led them to the “truth” Maby that’s why he is such a lover of occult practice and rituals.. that’s funny though because, I know of a group that’s trying to kill most of the worlds population that loves that stuff too.

I find it interesting that they have zero opposition, and a guy Like Bill Cooper was killed and while people like Fritz Springmeier are locked away for life while the people who say the exact opposite are paraded around on Coast to Coast, and the Discovery Channel, and the Scifi network, and Rense and the rest.

I promise to get off the “exposing” thing soon, but I feel like im in that movie “they live” and I think its high time we started mass producing these specs.

BLURB ACCOMPANYING THE VIDEO AT THE TOP:

Jordan Maxwell claims to represent the truth. He claims he’s not the world’s expert on anything, but then rants about his 40+ years of research that somehow justifies his belief structure, which seems to be the idea that all religions have truth and through the use of symbols, Maxwell can in turn, enlighten you.

Maxwell claims to present truth, but in reality… he is functioning as the “rational” thinking mans explanation for the unexplained. Maxwell refers to himself as “The God Father of Secret Societies”.

The two are interlinked and Maxwell is indoctrinating truth seekers into the ancient mystery schools by offering partial truths, quoting sporadically from the Bible and mainly from various other ancient texts, this hybridization and bastardization of the Holy Bible is what the New Age Movement is all about.

Jordan Maxwell… “The Godfather of Secret Societies”. This statement says it all.

Maxwell is the mouthpiece of the New World Order. The man that will help bring religious and political chaos so the mystery schools can be unleashed to usher in order… The New World Order.

Keith - November 19, 2008 01:14 AM (GMT)

whether jordan is a agent of deception or not, he still emphasized a key phrase that i'll try to to live up to: "remember to do your homework"

Cormac - November 19, 2008 01:48 AM (GMT)

Good point. I take what I can from all the people that are in this supposive truth movement and discard what I cannot use. Do our own homework and see for ourselves and eventually the bullshit meter becomes pretty accurate. Early on I learned quite a bit from Maxwell that has remained true to this day. He may be a Jesuit coadjutor, but if so, he's the first one I know of that understands and teaches biblical scripture just as the ancient Irish, Egyptians and Greek philosophers did; as a beautiful metaphorical and allegorical text.

craig-oxley - November 20, 2008 04:01 AM (GMT)

Jordan Maxwell perverts Biblical text. He does this to aid the very Jesuitism he had mentioned as his veil in the past. Yet another trying to destroy the King James AV1611 Bible covertly. Just as the Jesuit wishes and has been doing since it's very creation under this Society of Jesus badge. Those Knights of the Virgin will be destroyed shortly. How do you know what he's told you is true which you think is true? It may be true by the Palm Mystery schools but not by Adonai teachings of Biblical Scripture.

Forerunner does a good job refuting the notion that the "sons of God" mentioned in Genesis 6:2 are alien beings of some kind.

http://uk.youtube.com/watch?v=r4GxJb4OQJc

There were never any alien beings on the earth, it's all a man-made deception. The "giants" in Genesis 6:4 are just bullies and tyrants that are human.

soulinspiration - November 24, 2008 08:27 PM (GMT)

I believe that "Forerunner" is a US intell operative & diversion agent. See my comments below.

This is no endorsement of Maxwell's specious ideas, but until you read the Book of Enoch then you will never understand Genesis 6. These "sons of God" were fallen angels.

This is essential reading & her is the book in downloadable pdf format:

http://christianelibrary.googlepages.com/schodde_enoch.pdf

This book was referred to in the Bible. It is also well worth reading the Wikipedia entry on it:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Book_of_Enoch

The book is referred to, and quoted, in Jude 14-15:

And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these [men], saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints, To execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him.

Compare this with Enoch 1:9, translated from the Ethiopic:

And behold! He cometh with ten thousands of His holy ones To execute judgement upon all, And to destroy all the ungodly: And to convict all flesh Of all the works of their ungodliness which they have ungodly committed, And of all the hard things which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him.

I was previously of the same opinion as mentioned above, that Genesis 6 referred merely to certain men:

http://www.ancientdays.net/sonsofgod.htm

This however I now have no doubt is false.

Here's some questions that were put to me & my response in a series of comments on Forerunner at my blog:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/05/17...gami-4-65-mins/

"We discuss this Forerunner character, whose latest video is - quite frankly - a bit ludicrous."

DefCon1 5.23.08 / 4pm

Troy, I have seen a comment that you made regarding the Forerunner. I also watched his latest videos on Leo Zagami and would like your opinion on why you think the Forerunners views are ludicris. He’s gathering quite a following on YouTube and elsewhere. I’ve been in contact with both him and Thomas Richards and they both agree that Leo Zagami is the real deal in some respects. Whats your view?

Beefroid 5.23.08 / 4pm

Hi Troy, I've seen the Forerunners videos on YouTube and have contacted him about them. He say's Leo Zagami is the real deal but is wary that he could be influenced by the Vatican to carry out their intentions. Whats your opinion on this?
Cheers…..

troyspace 5.24.08 / 9pm

Do you really think that Forerunner is just some guy like me & you who just happens to be concerned than most about the plight of his country & his faith? Anyone using a set that looks like even vaguely like a TV studio, no matter how shoddy, is ultimately working for the SMOM (Knights of Malta), although almost always - like in his case - indirectly.

As for ludicrous, well that's my value judgement, but put it this way: His acting will win no awards. Thomas Richards thinks that Leo may be the Antichrist. That's fine, that's his opinion. When Forerunner implies similar, he is clearly IMO reading from a script.

Thomas has criticized Forerunner too, but just for his approach. Forerunner has that "Crazy Eddie" approach that Thomas (rightly) criticizes Alex Jones for. I would go one further & say that upon reflection, although I gave him some length originally - & even have a blog of his videos under my "videos" category - that I think that he's a paid actor.

Seriously: The biggest problem with most of the anti-Vatican/anti-Jesuit crowd - which I count myself a part of - is that they don't seem to grasp that the Jesuits would be most effective at infiltrating them by acting & speaking like a Bible-believing Christian. Thomas Richards & Eric Phelps, I believe, are genuine. As for Forerunner? I don't get that vibe. Study his videos for yourself & make up your own mind.

There's to many people asking "the experts" what they think. Use your intellect & intuition/instinct & have a conversation with yourself. Pray for guidance, but don't go asking men for guidance, just information. Ask them for facts, not opinion. Research widely & use your own powers of reckoning. Converse with others, but don't let consensus opinion sway you.

beefroid 5.25.08 / 2pm

Thanx for the response. By the way, the reason forerunner may seem a bit dramatic in his approach is because he said he used to work in the movie industry until a few years ago. I forget which company but it was one of the bigger ones. That probably explains the CG backdrops and enthusiastic delivery's. Just a thought.
Cheers

OKAY, BACK TO THE UNHIVED MIND:

Seriously folks: Did Forerunner write out some template & send it to his mailing list to comment me on? There's some unmistakable prototype behind those email comments.

Anyway, check out Enoch:

Giants did indeed live and multiply on the earth.

The lawlessness and chaos was why the Lord caused the Flood. To wipe this filth from the face of the earth forever and ever Amen!

This giants and aliens bit is toooooo much....all a juvenile distraction from the True meat of the matter....

No one has to read the Book of Enoch to understand Genesis 6. The Bible speaks for itself..

http://www.ancientdays.net/sonsofgod.htm

The closing from that site is enough...

Now the holy anger of God is disclosed from Heaven against the godlessness and evil of those men who render truth dumb and inoperative by their wickedness. It is not that they do not know the truth about God. Indeed He has made it quite plain to them. For since the beginning of the world the invisible attributes of God, for example, His eternal power and divinity, have been plainly discernible through things which He has made and which are commonly seen and known, thus leaving these men without a rag of excuse. They knew all the time that there is a God, yet they refused to acknowledge Him as such, or to thank Him for what He is or does. Thus they became fatuous in their argumentations, and plunged their silly minds still further into the dark. Behind a facade of "wisdom" they became just fools, fools who would exchange the glory of the eternal God for an imitation image of a mortal man, or of creatures that run or fly or crawl. They gave up God: and therefore God gave them up - to be the playthings of their own foul desires in dishonoring their own bodies.

These men deliberately forfeited the Truth of God and accepted a lie, paying homage and giving service to the creature instead of to the Creator, who alone is worthy to be worshipped for ever and ever, Amen. God therefore handed them over to disgraceful passions. Their women exchanged the normal practices of sexual intercourse for something which is abnormal and unnatural. Similarly the men, turning from natural intercourse with women were swept into lustful passions for one another. Men with men performed these shameful horrors, receiving, of course, in their own personalities the consequences of sexual perversity.

Morever, since they considered themselves too high and mighty to acknowledge God, He allowed them to become the slaves of their degenerate minds, and to perform unmentionable deeds . . .

From the book of Romans, chapter 1, verses 18-29.

I believe that "Forerunner" is a US intell operative & diversion agent. See my comments below.

This is no endorsement of Maxwell's specious ideas, but until you read the Book of Enoch then you will never understand Genesis 6. These "sons of God" were fallen angels.

This is essential reading & her is the book in downloadable pdf format:

http://christianelibrary.googlepages.com/schodde_enoch.pdf

This book was referred to in the Bible. It is also well worth reading the Wikipedia entry on it:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Book_of_Enoch

The book is referred to, and quoted, in Jude 14-15:

And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these [men], saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints, To execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him.

Compare this with Enoch 1:9, translated from the Ethiopic:

And behold! He cometh with ten thousands of His holy ones To execute judgement upon all, And to destroy all the ungodly: And to convict all flesh Of all the works of their ungodliness which they have ungodly committed, And of all the hard things which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him.

I was previously of the same opinion as mentioned above, that Genesis 6 referred merely to certain men:

http://www.ancientdays.net/sonsofgod.htm

This however I now have no doubt is false.

Seriously folks: Did Forerunner write out some template & send it to his mailing list to comment me on? There's some unmistakable prototype behind those email comments.

Anyway, check out Enoch:

http://christianelibrary.googlepages.com/schodde_enoch.pdf

That's interesting. Forerunner's argument seemed pretty sound to me. I noticed in the book of Daniel, chapter 2 it says:

And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay. (Dan 2:43)

So it's God's followers compromising themselves to the Roman Empire there, if the interpretation of this prophecy is correct (4 kingdoms). What do you think?

Compare with this:

That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they [were] fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose. (Gen 6:2)

And yes, I too was surprised when I saw the video of Forerunner hanging out with Leo Zagami.

No one has to read the Book of Enoch to understand Genesis 6. The Bible speaks for itself.

What I think is that the Bible wouldn't have referenced the Book of Enoch for no reason.

Also consider this (from an email to Craig last night in response to his pro-Geocentricity email), especially the last paragraph:

Craig

My jury is out on it. I've read the two passages in the KJV & consider them open to interpretation.

I'm quite happy for people to endorse geocentrism & by the same token, I don't knock most people for rejecting it.

I haven't seen any videos on it & until I do, it is a hard concept to grasp, as Eric demonstrated in that lecture from a year or so ago, when even he - an endorser - was unable to properly remember how it worked while atttempting to demonstrate how it works. This hasn't helped its credibility - or Eric's - when viewed by detractors.

It sounds plausible, but I need to see a clearer demonstration of its mechanics in order to fully endorse it as a scientific principle, or else I open myself up to attack for not understanding the concept fully, if nothing else. That corkscrew thing that Eric was doing when he was talking about the Tropic of Cancer & Capricorn got me confused.

I'd also like to see someone demonstrate the solar harmonic-nuclear detonation theory more clearly. I think that that makes a lot of sense, but again, I don't understand the full principles of it. I don't endorse any science unless I have some confidence in understanding it enough to relate to someone else who's asking me to explain myself. As far as I'm concerned most of it is theory anyway, whether mainstream or alternative & I explain this to people.

There's nothing in the Bible that doesn't refute that everything isn't perceived inside out anyway, so all of what we perceive of as "out there" may well be "in here", which makes a lot of this moot anyway. The mechanic of eyesight confirms this to a ertain degree. This isn't "gnostic" theory - which essentially teaches that all matter is evil. I believe that matter is under the kingdom of evil, but can be transcended via spirit. This is entirely Biblical. The problem is that most Christians have a false & Roman-derived view of materiality anyway. The problem is compounded by the likes of Teuilhard de Chardin, who may well have mixed in some truth with his agenda & so we throw out the baby with the bathwater in fear of being labelled a Jesuit. Things like this can be done as a great bit of reverse psychology.

What I'm getting at is that if say, T de C liked Baked Beans then that doesn't mean that Baked Beans are bad, although it might mean that it is considered desirable by his masters that we do do. I know that T de C wasn't the brains behind Heliocentricity per se, but I hope that I make my point clear. I'm sure that he was a big disinfomer of his day, but that there was no doubt some useful info that was in there too. As we know, the Vatican has hoarded much or eve most true knowledge (outside of that revealed in the Bible).

Also consider that if God wanted us to not learn & grow spiritually & mentally, then everything would have been found in the Bible already. So some of the hoarded stuff, plus that hidden in plain sight, etc. will one day be uncovered.

And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, [which come] of the giants: and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight. (Num 13:33)

Ok, so they were big in size. But it doesn't say they were aliens from outer space. My Strong's Concordance says the word "nefilim" means tyrant or bully.

Is there any credibility to the alien stuff? Is Phil Schneider's story true?

I've also got to reply to some essay-length "comments" to my blog, based around questions of why I maintain the Papacy is superior to the British Monarch in terms of the New World Order totem pole of cretins. I've had it for tonight though.

And please don't forget to check out the top two links above!

craig-oxley - November 26, 2008 05:40 AM (GMT)

Taken from that pathetic site attack on me:

I use this Masonic term Profane for a reason. To annoy little blinkered sheople such as yourself. Someone on the gerbal wheel biteing his own Ouroboros tale of un-clean grime. I have no time for sheoples of your minor calibre. Keep listening to your British Intelligence controlled Texe Marrs and rich friends. Keep in the darkness of El, thinking you have the wisdom of Astarte haha. Dream on little boy! Keep listening to those famous Tell-a-lie-Vision conspiracy British Intelligence stars. The same ones on Maltese media, Fox News and CNN controlled by both Maltese Knights, Rupert Mudoch and Ted Turner.

The Pontifus Maximus will slay you even though you help shield him like the good little sheople you are. You will of course be after our slaying for being the real enemy of the Pontifus Maximus and Dragon system. By the way Sheople, who are you in this arena anyhow? What have you done for people exactly? Your a nobody and certainly no one to come near my bootlaces thats for sure. A mere profane pion causing more problems than good. I leave you with the fact that William Cooper exposed Alex Jones and company. The same liars who've attacked Eric and myself! Who would the more than one brain cell people follow for truth? Enough said sheople! So Azad sheople, please tell me why the Pope has control of Jerusalem thanks to Jesuit trained Shimon Peres in 1993 onwards? Please tell me why it was all held in Spain exactly? Silly little pion you can't! Why? Because then you'll have to agree that the Vatican Dragon rules the roost and Israel is not under it's cloak as you and other idiots think.

To dear Troy, why do you bother with these pions? These profane sheople only see what they want to see. They fear the fact that their idols are truely intelligensia under British Intelligence. They fear theres a more potent reality of facts out there. Many fact which could blow their mind open. They wish to stick to safe bets set up for them by Rome and it's Maltese intelligensia. So no matter what facts you put forth, these sheople will bar bar all the way to the phallic pens for slaughter as usual. Chewing shit out their own Ouroboros arses and thinking it's nutritious! One day they will finally see what we've said is true, but then it will be too late to talk about it. Once again whilst the Dragon sleeps behind the veils, the conspiracy continues with wrong enemies by sheople idiots.

These idiots continue to blame Prince Bernard for Bilderberg Group whilst ignoring Jesuits Fr' Joseph Rettinger SJ & Fr' Alcide de Gesperi They forget the Jesuits Fr' Francis Xavier SJ & Fr' Edward Jenner SJ, behind the inoculations whilst profane promote Pasteur haha. They probably don't understand what inoculation actually means. Simple to inject disease which we see by the Maltese controlled AMA and it's WHO done daily. The same master of poison being the Society of Jesus continuing the poisoning of the Borjas. The same poisons still today that can't be analysised correctly and re-created in the lab. They forget Fr' Francisco De Borja being a co-founder of the Society of Jesus. Nope they want to run around after little Hofjuden slave boys whilst not knowing their Hofjudens. How conveniant for them to forget those re-conquestors of north Spain. They forget that little area of Aragon in Spain so easily. Who else came from this area exactly? Oh it was the Borja's. Who started the Spainish Inquisition with Queen Isabella I? Why it was King Ferdinand II of Aragon back in 1480. But again facts and real history is blinkered in the eyes of disbelieving sheople profane.

The problems with the SHEOPLE and the outcome they will face

A.Ignorance-people like Azad on that forum that Craig just talked about are trained gatekeepers for the British SIS and do not wish to know the truth,British SIS will continue to put out false truth so no one will blame the Sovereign Military Order of Malta who get off SCOT FREE,they will continue to be led to the slaughter when finally the Jesuit Order reopen the torchure centres and also the Inquisition centres

B.Truthsayers-We all know about the truthsayers,the ones that I know out there are Tlthe5th,Eric Jon Phelps,Troy and Craig Oxley and also William Cooper (dead)

c.Disinfo Agents-These pied pipers have either been through heaps of disinfo sites like Google and Yahoo,the most well known are Daryl Bradford Smith and too much to name

D.The truth hurts-The Sheople cannot face up to the truth,when you give them truth,they become scared and sometimes try to dispute which sometimes involve Jew-Baiting disinfo which can also be refuted and when the truth hurts,it can sometimes be totally fatal to the sheople

theresa - November 26, 2008 04:53 PM (GMT)

Troy, Genesis 6 is not 'open to interpretation'. You need to look further into scripture.
The Bible always explains itself further.

No God fearing Christian is going to believe the alien/ufo lie. No body needs the Book of Enoch.

Neither would a reasonable intelligent person who denies Christ.

Jude 6 says "And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation....."

Apparently the church fathers did not find Enoch's 'prophesy' significant to include in the AV1611. We have major, reliable persons who already did that.

I think this Book of Enoch is highly suspect, for the New Agey people into numerology and all that anti-christ filth are too excited over it. Anything they push is demonic. Just google it and see what pops up. Waaaaayy too many sites for it not to have some Mystery School connections.

As MAJOR prophet Daniel said in 7: 28

HITHERTO IS THE END OF THE MATTER![I]

AntiSionist - November 27, 2008 12:39 AM (GMT)

Hahaha. What profane sheople on that board. I could not believe it. I really think these guys want to hate Jews. :lol: If Jews ran it all, then how do you explain the Roman-British conspiracy that is Maritime-Admiralty Law? How do you explain the fact that there are two us of a's? How do you explain the fact that that so called American flag is actually the flag of the corporation called the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, which is really the British East India Company under a different name? You can't explain those in the Jews run it all view because the Jews run it all world view doesn't even take into account or study how law really works.

Craig, I will confess that I was about to consider signing up to school them but I realized two things.

1. If they didn't listen to you or soulinspiration, they wouldn't listen to me.
2. You posted a warning in the general section not to sign up and waste time on the sheople.

Daryl Smith tried to claim that. So did Jim Condit Jr. I think even Michael A Hoffman II goes down that route. He says that kabbalism infiltrated the Vatican. What a joke. Eric Phelps put that nonsense to bed years ago. The Vatican had the best intelligence in the world. They knew exactly who was a Jew and who was not. The sheople have even tried to say that Kolvenback was a Jew. HE WAS A DUTCH GENTILE who spoke eight languages and flashed masonic hand gestures in public and ran the whole world before Adolfo Nicolas.

Maxwell is not only a terrible disinfo agent but he's also mentally challenged - can't be one without the other afterall.

He goes on again calling Manly P. Hall, "a brilliant man".

Had to stop at part 7 (ouf of 10), when he said - "all of this stuff is connected by secret societies operating out of New York and London". He goes on about more stuff .. (modern Babylon) sun symbolism, picking on Christian sun symbols (err Roman Catholicism).

Rate 0/5.

Ognir's response to Eric Jon Phelps and Craig Oxley
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NHWkABieNzA

Notice how Ognir refuses in his rant to name Eric Phelps' website because he doesn't want to give him publicity. In other words, he reminds me of Jones and Marrs in their spiel against Phelps purposely not naming Phelps' name although Texe did give a link to Zionist champions which DOES name Eric. They leave out certain things and twist things. In my view, Ognir is just an ignoramus but Jones and Marrs are on the payroll.

joeblowman has an interesting page. I need to ridicule this clown...is he related to another nut named 'worm_can_opener'.

http://www.youtube.com/user/JoeBlow0TIU

Claims he's from 'Israel'.
Dresses like a black rapper to speak out about an EYE-talian - Leo Zagami (P2 Lodge member) and the Illuminati. (Interesting necklace....great for orange leisure suits or wilted polyester shirts with stiff collars and plastic buttons.)
Smears another Christian man like Thomas using lies and deceit.
Good at photo-shopping and creating little 'rigged' polls.

Looks like joeblowman is a tad confused about who the enemy is. Intellectually challenged. Morally bereft.

Did I read correctly he's from Texas? Hmmmm....? If so, is he in Alex Jones neck of the woods.?

Actually, my opinion <_< is he's a powerless redneck who hasta latch onto a weasel like Ognir/Ringo.....like those two guys in my high school class who never amounted to anything.

tlthe5th - November 4, 2008 04:49 PM (GMT)

I blocked that JoeBlow character and i block anybody like him. my youtube channel isnt for debating or being a platform for the enemy to spew their propaganda and lies. My channel is there for people who are ready for the information. If they accuse Tony Alamo then i consider them on the same team as the FBI. They are FBI, intelligence stooges. period. Intelligence have to play the fool now to seem more legit. they will seem like a regular "JoeBlow" but in fact they are not. they are groomed to disrupt and attack and pull you away from your work and pull you into a worthless debate.

Post subject: REPLY TO OG:IRREFUTABLE CONFIRMATION OF ROME'S N.W.O CONTROL

Thanks Ogir for your pearls of wisdom.

I will have to post you Craig Oxley's hand-me-downs, as I'd recently been questioned by him about my use of Wikipedia, after I had posted a piece on Nadhmi Auchi, Billionaire Knight of the Papal-loyal Royal Order of Francis I & who has received honours from that body's sister order, the Franco-Neapolitan Constantinian Order, that had some most excellent Wikipedia info that he tried to get censored but was totally legit, about his fraud activities. This guy has been pals with former CIA puppet Saddam Hussein & more recently current CFR puppet Barrack Hussein Obama (& pawn of Edward Cardinal Egan, the Archbishop of New York, who is known as "the American Pope" & is a Knight of Malta, Constantinian Knight & Knight of the House of Savoy's Order of Sts Maurice & Lazarus, which is controlled by Vittorio Emmanuele, Prince of Naples & notorious P2 member. Small world ain't it?

As for Wikipedia, its actually more accurate & presents more dissenting voices of opinion than Encyclopedia Brittanica & what's more has all the original sources listed. As I encourage others to do their own follow-up research, it makes more sense to publish the WikiP links than their sources most of the time as it enables people to get more of an overview of individuals & groups & has those always useful links to every other name mentioned.

So to save myself the bother here's the bulk of an email that I posted Craig. Bon appetite! (Fret not I do post some fresh material below that):

"Right, first off: I post to a wide range of people, as I don't believe in "preaching to the choir", a number of these could be categorised as "Conspiracy Profane". Wikipedia is easily-accessible to anyone who uses the internet & most importantly cross-referencable. Those pages have links to organisations own websites, whether in this case its the bank in question - BNP Parabas - or the business in question - in this case General Mediterranean Holding. It is thus more credible than the page of any conspiracy researcher in the eyes of 99% of people. They can also go to the links of the company sites & verify it for themselves.

Now I could provide links for their official websites, etc, etc, but I provide enough to online newspaper articles, etc. in the quotes from things like the Franco-Neapolitan Constantinian Order database.

There's no problem using Wikipedia 99 times out of 100, as the info is often hidden in plain sight, i.e. if you don't know the connections it's meaningless. So we have the Wikipedia list of the Bank of America's major shareholders. If there's some major companies missing it's going to noticed pretty damn quick by thousands of people. Now few of these same people would even consider whether or not there's a Jesuit connection & if they were aware of one, then even consider that this might be sinister. That's how stuff is hidden in plain sight.

So did anyone else out there in conspiracy research land know until I showed them that Auchi is:
* a Knight of the Order of Francis I who's been awarded the Gold Benemerenti decoration by the French Constantinian Order?
* one of the richest men in the UK?
* a convicted fraudster?
* a Knight of the Order of St Sylvester selected by the Pope?
* an "inter-religious dialogue" charlatan?
* not to mention a major shareholder along with the Belgian government of the 5th-ranking bank in the world - BNP Paraban - the top bank in the Eurozone, that's the 13th ranking business (both ranks on Forbes 2000)?

More likely everyone would have gone "who?" & shown not much interest, if I hadn't made the connection to the Constantinian Order, which in itself would have elicited a "what?" a year ago almost universally outside of the world of chivalric orders & the aristocracy, despite not exactly hiding on the net. I had tried to expose their stated agenda on Myspace for about 6 months before that to almost total non-reaction & that was even I had my original account with about 1300 contacts on it. One of the main (though several) reasons why I can't be bothered with it anymore.

Yes most of this can be found out via Wikipedia, but I found out about this guy originally by researching the various Constantinian Order websites & have discussed him with Guy Sainty, which caused me to dig deeper on Auchi. There may well be far richer families that we can suspect of being richer than X,Y & Z, but at the end of the day verifiable evidence is what counts. Also, although the info is there, it often takes quite a few articles to show the whole picture.

Am I worried about Wikipedia being "CIA"? Maybe it is, maybe it isn't. It's almost irrelevant. How many of your posters at the forum or people on your email lists are CIA? One maybe two on the email list, a number over time at the forum. It wouldn't be outside the realms of likelihood. In fact, we might as well say that the New World Order agenda is complete bunkum, that the intelligence agencies are completely inept & go back to watching the television.

While everything has its faults, Wikipedia is as good a resource as any for some otherwise very disparate & obscure information.

Also - unlike any researcher out there that I can think of, I have gone to the knighthood & masonic orders' websites, pdf's, online magazines, etc. to get some otherwise impossible to obtain info - & much of it seems to have been useful to at least a small number of other interested parties."

Back to Noel:

As you can see from my previous post, in fact I do "do better" than Wikipedia repeatedly. Source links to several pages on the Franco-Neapolitan Constantinian Order's own website, links to Archive.org for no longer available or subsequently heavily updated pages, etc, etc.

"Bullshit", "morons", "fuckin", "idiot".

Og, you seriously have a base vocabulary. Is this to make up for your lack of veracity & scrupulousness when it comes to presenting a coherent portrait of a verifiable if largely covert global power structure?

Leaving out the Jesuit/Vatican/Catholic Knighthood Orders nexus of Rome (let alone Le Cercle, the P2 & others), leaves you clutching at straws when it comes to the spurious "Zionists" ruling everything.

Never any mention of the "Zionists" being Labor Zionists & ultimately crypto-Frankist Sabbataians/Sabbateans. Never any mention of the history that goes back centuries linking them to the Vatican, the Jesuits, Jesuit-created & controlled Masonic systems or to the Catholic & Papal Knighthood Orders. Like today's (false) Rabbis Mordechai Waxman & David Rosen or Pave the Way Foundation's Gary Krupp being Knights of St Gregory.

http://www.ptwf.org/Projects/MissionToVatican/PhotoPage1.htm

http://www.ptwf.org/Projects/MissionToVatican/PhotoPage2.htm

Not too mention those Arab Knights who are members of the French/Italian House of Bourbon-Two Sicilies' Papal-loyal Orders like Nadhmi Auchi (referrred to above), Mahmoud Khayami, Nasser David Khalili, et al who were also made Papal Knights of St Sylvester. A right bunch of crooks with hands in big finance & dodgy deals from the Arab Peninsula to Britain via places like Luxembourg.

See:

http://www.constantinian.com/news-2004.html#papalknighthood

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/10/09...am-obama-links/

The fact that this guy is along with the Begian Government, the owner of the largest bank in the Eurozone, BNP Parabas speaks for itself. This is the 5th largest bank in the world! Owned by a Arab Papal Knight!

Rome controls both sides of this Arab-Israeli tragedy. The Vatican has had PLO offices within its walls since 1994:

http://www.tenc.net/docs/vis.htm

The true Torah-faithful Jews & the non-elite Muslims pay the price for Rome's gains (as do true dispensational & non-Catholic Christians) at the hands of their corrupt Babylonian Mystery Religion (i. e. the Vatican/Masonic beast system) observing elite leaders.

The Palestinians will not be let alone by Jesuit/Vatican-asset Shimon Peres, nor be allowed to enter Jordan by the King, Abdullah II. Why is this? Why would an Arab King not let Muslim Arabs live in peace among his people?

Well let me see:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Abdullah_II_o...military_career

Oh dreaded Wikipedia! Ha! I can see why you don't like it. Once again we find the hand of the Jesuits at play when we realize that this Arab King was trained at Jesuit Georgetown University:

"In 1987, he completed an advanced studies and research program at the Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University. He took full command of the Jordanian special forces in November 1993, becoming a Major General. He instructed the special forces until 1996, when he was instructed to reorganize the special forces and other special units under the special operation command SOCOM. Upon assuming his constitutional powers, he became the commander-in-chief. King Abdullah holds the ranks of Field Marshal in the Jordan Arab Army and Marshal of the Royal Jordanian Air Force."

What a surprise!

Or do you think that he's controlled by "Zionists" too?

Rome trains & controls your false-flag "Zionists", as well as its Masonic & Knighthood Order Arabs. The story is the same in Europe, the UK & the US, as the following photos confirm:

This is a reply to DISinformationist noel aka ognir and his lies and schemes to divert truthseekers from getting to the truth. He continues to push the Jews rule the World whilst totally ignoring the facts of the Vatican control of these Hofjudens. A man who uses Google search for all his research whilst ignoring info that was at one time not privvy to the internet like all the British Intelligence disinfo. The same disinfo spread on purpose to divert people from the true leadership of the World conspiracy. The Temporal Power of the Pope and his masters the Spainish Inquisition, The Society of Jesus military order. The truth shall always be set free and will always overcome Luciferian lies.

Correct, Alex. They also own/run Switzerland, or Sweden or wherever those guys live.

I consider them morally bankrupt anyway. They slip up, could be wormwood for them like the Jesuit priests.

BLACK WITCH CIA BARBARA HARTWELL DEFENDS SATANIST MICHAEL AQUINO

Saturday, March 6, 2010
Ted Gunderson's Outrageous Lies Refuted by Target, Michael Aquino

NOTE: Here, a letter from Michael Aquino, refuting the falsehoods being promoted by Ted Gunderson. Remember who else has been involved with Gunderson in promoting (and also fabricating) such black propaganda: accomplices John DeCamp, Ken Adachi, Pam Schuffert, and government stooge and fed snitch, Tim White...just to name a few.

I (and numerous others) have been targeted for the outrageous lies fabricated and promoted by this criminal network.

Oh what a tangled web they weave, when first they practice to deceive.....

By their fruits shall you know them.

Letter to Ted Gunderson by Michael A. Aquino
March 5, 2010

Dear Ted:

My attention has just been called to a paper of yours entitled the “Rusty Nelson/Kelly Ford Report – 28 June 2000″ published on the Internet.

Without any attempt to even ask me about such topics, you have included as “facts” – even without the journalistic dodge-word “alleged” – numerous lies concerning me. I am surprised and disappointed at this. I thought we had sufficient mutual trust and respect to preclude such conduct.

The passages in question are quoted and annotated below. I would appreciate your removing them from your paper, on that website and elsewhere, immediately. A published apology to me would also be appreciated, and would speak to your professional ethics.

- ——————————————————————

“Michael Aquino split from Antoine La Vey in 1975 and in the same year, founded his own satanic organization known as the Temple of Set, according to a document of the California ‘Office of Criminal Justice Planning: Research Update, State of California, Volume 1 (6), Winter, 1989-1990′ entitled ‘Occult Crime: A Law Enforcement Primer’.”

- ——————————————————————

The name is spelled “Anton LaVey”. The Temple of Set does not believe in “Satan” [or any other element of Judaeo-Christian mythology], as has been made exhaustively clear in numerous interviews and public statements.

Your citing an “Occult Crime” document as a reference concerning the Temple of Set and myself, without any clarification that neither the Temple nor I have committed any crimes, is misleading and defamatory. You could fairly have quoted the Temple of Set’s 1975 incorporation papers from the California Secretary of State’s office if you wished a California government reference to the Temple’s founding.

-——————————————————————

“Noreen Gosch found out that Michael La Vey was involved in the crimes perpetrated against her son, Johnny when Noreen Gosch met with Paul Bonacci in the Nebraska prison in 1991.”

- ——————————————————————

[I assume that you meant to write "Michael Aquino" rather than "Michael LaVey"; there is no "MLV".] This presents Noreen Gosch’s lie as unquestioned truth, when it is pure fiction.

- ——————————————————————

“Bonacci told Noreen Gosch that 14 days after Johnny was kidnapped, known Satanist Colonel Michael Aquino came to the house outside of Sioux City Iowa, where Johnny had been kept since the kidnapping. Michael Aquino, then a Colonel in the Army, paid several thousand dollars to the kidnappers, took Johnny and left for Colorado with him.”

- ——————————————————————

A complete lie by Bonacci [if in fact Gosch did not fabricate this herself]. I never made any such trip or visit, never paid any money at any time in my life to kidnappers for any reason whatever, and have never had any contact whatever with any Gosch, nor with Bonacci.

- ——————————————————————————

"In March of 1998, when Johnny Gosch came to his mother's home in the middle of the night, he told his mother about his abduction and named Colonel Michael Aquino as a central perpetrator. Aquino was then an officer in the military reputedly in charge of 'Operation Mind War' for the U.S. government. 'Operation Mind War' was a sub-project of 'Project MK-Ultra' which grew out of 'Operation Paperclip'. 'Operation Paperclip' was a covert operation in which large numbers of Nazi scientists were brought to the United States from the Nazi death camps of World War II to learn from their techniques of torture, drugs, hypnosis, mind control, and genetic experimentation for covert operations."

- ——————————————————————————

A complete lie by whichever Gosch invented it. There is not/never has been any "Operation Mind War" in the U.S. government. Back in the 1970s I co-authored a paper entitled "MindWar" as an entirely open, nonclassified discussion on the U.S. Army's psychological operations capabilities. During the "SRA" hysteria of the 1980s, assorted cranks tried to make a public issue out of this paper just because of its catchy title. There was no "issue" to make.

That paper had no connection to MK-Ultra, nor Paperclip, nor any crazy Nazi experiments.

- ——————————————————————————

"Aquino has claimed to be the son of a Nazi S.S. officer."

- ——————————————————————————

I have never claimed this anywhere, anytime. My father, Michael Aquino Sr., was born an American citizen and is of Italian ancestry. For your information he served as a sergeant in Patton's 3rd Army in World War II, and received the Purple Heart for wounds in combat against the German Army.

Sincerely,

Michael A. Aquino

Got Disinformation? If Not, Get Some Here...

This report exposes but a few of the many websites and radio programs which are known to promote disinformation on a regular basis; and which have established a track record of libel/slander of legitimate persons; while also 'employing', supporting, endorsing, promoting government stooges and shills, charlatans and malicious liars, even criminals. Those who write, post, publish articles, reports, comments which are indicative of government-sponsored disinformation.

A few words about "disinformation". Disinformation may be defined as purposefully fabricated false information about a person, organization, subject, issue, which is publicly disseminated.

Disinformation is most often carefully crafted and disseminated in an organized manner by government agencies. It is then fed to government stooges, minions and shills, who spread the disinfo among their cohorts and accomplices.

It ends up published on many websites and message boards; broadcast over the airwaves, and of course, spreads like wildfire. On its way, as it burns up the phone lines and blazes through the computer circuitry, it is embellished by the loudmouthed fools who are seeking fame and fortune as conduits of the government-sponsored lies.

The spreading of disinformation is most notably connected to COINTELPRO and similar operations, and the basic agenda is to foment confusion, suspicion and distrust among special interest groups; to muddy the waters; and ultimately to discredit --and thus neutralize-- any and all dissidents, legitimate critics/protestors against government tyranny and corruption: whistleblowers, journalists, sincere and genuine patriots and Christians.

The key to "credible" disinformation, is that it must attach itself to at least a few ideas generally accepted to be true. These ideas may be true --or not-- but belief in them is the key, not their actual veracity.

Of course, some disinfo is just too stupid to be believed. But still, unless one possesses the spiritual and intellectual discernment, honed through regular use of these faculties, along with a basic knowledge of the tactics of government disinformation programs such as COINTELPRO; and unless one is dedicated to finding the truth through his/her own research, one can easily be led astray by the pervasive and ever-proliferating lies.

For this report, I have focused on the websites/radio programs themselves, rather than the individuals who run/own them; although these individuals are named, as well as those being promoted by them.

I have not provided links, nor URLS, for these offensive websites. I refuse to enable or encourage them in any way. Readers who want to visit the sites of these lowlife characters will have to find them on their own!

As for the government stooges, minions, shills, liars, charlatans and criminals, I have defined them simply as "Suspicious Persons." True, as far as I am concerned, most of these individuals are far removed from the category of mere "suspicion" --as I KNOW them to be bad guys, or at the very least, charlatans and grandstanders. But for the sake of preserving some degree of objectivity, I'll stick with that label for now.

I've only scratched the surface here, considering who all, and what all, is out there. The lists of subjects and individuals promoted are far from complete, and are only meant to serve as examples, simply the most salient ones I could think of.

Look for connections. Meaning that the same criminals, liars, charlatans, keep turning up and are often featured by the same websites/radio programs listed here. It is like a mutual defense pact. One bad guy defends and supports another and the favor is returned. This is no coincidence. I don't believe in coincidences, at least not of of the unconnected variety.

The truth is, there is a loose network of criminals, liars and government stooges, shills and minions who are all working together for the same goal: To discredit/destroy anyone and everyone who will not compromise in the defense of Liberty; who will not sacrifice Truth for material gratification or other petty personal gains.

And, as you may have guessed, most of these sites/radio programs (and associated persons) have targeted Yours Truly, Barbara Hartwell, for their libel/slander, black propaganda and disinfo, as well as my friends, colleagues and Brothers and Sisters in Christ.

As always, the readers may make of this report what they will.

By their fruits shall you know them.

from CIA HARTWELL..."I have a particular disgust for this lowlife character, Craig Oxley

I have a particular disgust for this lowlife character, Craig Oxley, and his moronic website, The Unhived Mind. This slug is obviously concerned only with himself and how he can use people for his own ends. In addition to reeking of dishonesty and corruption (witness his alliance with Tim White); he's obviously an opportunist (and not a very bright one), as he is clearly swayed by every wind of doctrine, and reverses his position on a number of issues (and people) whenever it suits him. Evidently he does this without realizing that his credibility has been destroyed by his lack of consistency and his moral bankruptcy.

Why is Barbara Hartwell going around attacking Seventh-day Adventist Hospitals trying to have the Department of Justice in on the act? Well she promotes the Universal Healthcare you see, now does it make sense? Remember you were always told she was an active agent and now we see it clearly. One of her handles used in this latest attack is 'Barb Clark'. Beware of these agents working for the Government. Please take note of the use of Hartwell's face on this 'Bakersboyz' account on youtube; LINK please note the background of the Channel attacking the SDA health system. Ok

I was reading a link about someone called Terry Melanson until I found something highly disturbing about him.Link below shows how he is promoting some Jesuits

http://www.conspiracyarchive.com/Blog/?p=3118

AntiSionist - July 21, 2010 09:25 PM (GMT)

Terry Melanson is well read and has a lot of resources at his fingertips. However the jesuit bashers have just a little more. Terry is so goddamn gutless however, that he wouldn't even acknowledge that it was TIM WHITE on "a bunch of yahoogroups boards" trying to connect Weishaupt to the jesuits. He just said some fool, or something like that. I have already dealt with this jesuit coajutor on other places on this board.

Alex - October 10, 2010 02:54 AM (GMT)

Why is Terry Melanson publishing and parrotting that Weishaupt was not a Jesuit?

1st the title on his webpage makes him a suspect immediately,we already know about the papal bloodlines,take a look at the title and it will really give him away

Orientation: The Bavarian Illuminati were the antagonists of the Jesuits, and vice versa

http://www.conspiracyarchive.com/Articles/...onspiracy_2.htm

He also promotes the Collins Brothers which promote Evolution from the Jesuits

Alex - January 2, 2011 07:52 AM (GMT)

I have found something more disturbing about Terry Melanson,it seems he promotes Alex 'CIA' Jones as well

Also Terry Melanson lists on his amazon page a book is written by Bill Clinton's Jesuit Mentor Carroll Quigley this dude kicks butt. i'd say the vatican wouldn't mind if he would just stop talking. but i'd also say the vatican doesn't really care because he is not popular. i sense genuine in this man,. and if i'm not mistaken, most of his books are free on the internet as ebooks.

Halvor - December 28, 2010 12:27 PM (GMT)

I also sense genuine in him, but I'm afraid that is pretty much all any of us are going to do as far as integrating his information. When one watches and listens to him it's hard not to become fascinated, but he talks "above the heads" of everyone. He's like a guru with a group of followers who think he's awesome but that don't quite understand the nuts and bolts of what he's talking about. If you try and actually read any of his web pages you'll understand that this guy's mind works in mysterious ways.

Keith - December 31, 2010 12:34 AM (GMT) yeah, also, he's not your typical asshole who becomes "educated" only to become an atheist. i always saw things like, the more you become a "jack of all trades" then the more you would be able to recognize god's touch, so to speak. however, i've noticed a trend while growing up, that the so called super educated experts are moslty atheists. what a shame!

Right. Take Ken Wilber as the most pre-eminent specimen of the type which you describe. Intellectually he understands so much of how the spiritual dimension converges all the most recent advances in consciousness studies and esoteric doctrines, yet he himself has no sense of the divine, other than that of being a technocrat who loves to pry open and look underneath the hood, and be adored by his pseudo-spiritual cohort.

Even someone as spiritually evolved as the late Robert Anton Wilson I would venture to categorize similarly, although he was much more religiously anchored than Wilber. There's a missing connection with God (or the divine) on the deepest level, on the level which makes you both feel and understand that you have a relationship with God, even though it may be largely unexplored and enigmatic. Because if you possess this realization then you will inevitably be driven by a desire to develop this relationship and always improve your ability to carry out the purpose which God has for you. In philosophical and theological terms that higher purpose is called 'telos', and without it, any spiritual endeavor, no matter how advanced, becomes indistinguishable from a hobby, the best definition of which would be "whatever you do to occupy yourself employing your skills and likes in the absence of having realized your true vocation".

In fact, having written the above, I do get a stronger realization that Winter also may lack this "telos". That would make his enterprise all the more dangerous and insidious as his vulnerability lies at an even deeper level. What I mean by this is that he has apparently discovered and developed applications that can attune one's heart to the spirit of love using fractal bio-resonance technology which is surely most effective for this purpose. However, he does not present himself as having a sense of telos. He is more like an inventor who has stumbled onto some spectacular technology and marvels at how awesome it works. Yes, he understands his technology and in large part due to it he is able to refine his senses and understanding of its potentialities and ramifications. But he is also limited in his spiritual advance by the cutting edge of his own technology. As he progresses in his "heart tuning" work he and his customers are inevitably going to encroach on esoteric communities and realms which he did not anticipate, but which would anticipate him before he could sense them being there. That would give these spiritual vested interest groups ample opportunity to infiltrate his milieu and steer his activities out of "harm's way" as perceived from their perspectives. Or something much more nefarious even, depending on their inclinations.

Christina Kanas had a long relationship with Webb and when Webb found out that Christina had inherited 100s of thousands of dollars from her father,he pestered her to marry him..he "proposed" to her 7 times and she spurned him because by this time, Christina had REAL concerns about Webb and WHY he wanted to marry her.She realized-FINALLY after I and numerous others warned her,that Webb is a LYING PARASITE who is an FBI deep cover snitch who is PSYCHOTIC to say the very least.Webb is responsible for more than 20 people being killed and numerous others set up for arrest and discredit and I say this from PERSONAL experience with this SNAKE and TRAITOR.Webb solicited my own murder but his FBI friends never wanted to do ANYTHING about it.I agree with Christina Kanas 1000%..Webb is NO Christian and is NO real "whistleblower"..Webb is 100% FRAUD and a dangerous TRAITOR to stay far from.

I also know Stew Webb in ways that he sure wishes I didn't.What you have on him is FIRST PERSON and is NOT "anecdotal" or "heresay" so you need to understand that you-at this time-have him,to put it in graphic terms,"by the balls" and don't take this explanation as being "un Christian" or untrue..it is FACT.Are you aware at all that Webb is DIRECTLY responsible for more than TWENTY(20) people being killed and many more compromised of their "credibility" and many set-up for prison?THAT is indeed WHY he is "allowed" to do what he does because he is a FEDERAL...IE,CIA/FBI ASSET...his FBI handler in Las Vegas was Robin Sandoval and Webb was ID'd by a SYMBOL which is ONLY used when a "deep cover" asset is used..all other FBI "informants" are ID'd by a number or codename.Pass this to Wolfgang and I'd love to be in contact directly with him too as I have info on Webb that neither of you do.GET WEBB because he's on the DARK SIDE for sure.Are you aware that Al Gore is a practising Satanist and is a known WITCH/WARLOCK in the very highest circles of power and that Webb and Heneghan are indeed controlled by Gore?Get a copy of Fritz Springmeiers' book,"Bloodlines of the Illuminati" and read in that book about Gore-you should find it at the library or check metaphysical bookstores for it.Webb,as a "Federal whistleblower",sure should know this but ya know,Webb is UNEDUCATED by is a despicable con man of the worst sort..a true SNAKE in the grass.

STEW WEBB EXPOSED-

DANGEROUS COINTELPRO FOR THE FBI AND

INFILTRATOR INTO THE PATRIOT COMMUNITY

by Pamela Schuffert, January 1, 2009
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Due to many of my readers and radio listeners being concerned about the writings appearing on the internet, falsely accusing me of many things, written by COINTELPRO agent STEW WEBB, I have finally decided to write a report explaining to my readers THE TRUTH ABOUT STEW WEBB.

I first encountered Stew Webb in DENVER COLORADO, in 1998, while he was staying at the home of a radio listener of mine (Jack and Cyndra Brunner.)

Stew Webb was busy infiltrating (spying for the FBI) the PATRIOT COMMUNITY of the DENVER AREA at that time.

When I encountered him, I began to realize what a very sick man he was physically and mentally/emotionally. Extremely unstable and psychotic.

In fact, I found out after I had encountered him, that he had been in a mental ward for many months because of his many problems. I knew he was on medication for his psychotic behavior at the Brunners, however.

I prayed for God to enable me to minister to him while we both were visiting the home of the Brunners.

Typically, Webb would take me out in the vehicle he had at that time everyday, pouring out his tale of woe, and drive erratically all over the highway and interstates near that home, allegedly trying to evade the henchmen of Leonard Millman, powerful CIA drug money launderer and member of the satanist community of Denver as well.

It seems that WEBB had married into the MILLMAN family, and this produced a child called AMANDA, who he told me he was desperate to get back, since he divorced his wife. One day, returning to the Bruner's home, he showed me where he had spliced some telephone lines together with some other strange equipment. "This will FRY the lines of Millman's henchmen whenever they try to call or monitor me..." he explained.

He told me of his experiencing horrific visions and encounters with evil spirits, that he thought Millman was sending after him. This included Webb's encounter with a demon spirit that called itself "BAPHOMET," of which he admitted to me HE WAS TERRIFIED. In truth, my further research DID confirm that Millman WAS indeed a satanist and very powerful, and was indeed the CIA drug money launderer and involved in much darkness.

Which brings up an important question: WHAT was WEBB DOING marrying into a powerful satanist family with known ties to the CIA and corrupt drug money, eh??? Surely he knew all this when he married the daughter of MILLMAN... surely he knew about the satanic symbols tattooed on her body, since he married her? WHAT kind of warped personality would marry into THIS type of satanist family?

Webb admitted to me that his wife had satanic symbols tattooed on her arms, and that the whole family was involved in satanism. He also told me he would do anything ANYTHING to get his daughter AMANDA back.

And it turns out that this ANYTHING that he is willing to do, has finally become FBI COINTELPRO ops, spying especially against the Patriot/NWO resister community, and putting out MISINFORMATION for the FBI to discredit valid Christian journalists like myself exposing the NEW WORLD ORDER.

Admitted one source who kept in contact with WEBB in 2008, "...I talked to WEBB over the phone, and he admitted that he did evil things, but HE DID IT BECAUSE HE WANTED AMANDA BACK." (Summer 2008, Montana)

Apparently the FBI has promised him that IF he will cooperate with them, HE WILL SOMEHOW "GET AMANDA BACK."

For several years after I met WEBB, I tried to be his friend, knowing he needed Jesus Christ desperately in his life, and attempted to minister and pray with him repeatedly. I knew many things he was doing was wrong (according to Biblical standards,) and hoped that God would use me to reach him.

STEW WEBB: CRIMINAL THEFT FOR THE FBI-

I was utterly shocked one night when I called him, when he was staying in the home of former FBI TED GUNDERSON in Las Vegas, to hear him huffing and puffing as if he were in the midst of moving heavy things, and then to hear him say jubilantly, "I GOT the boxes...Gunderson is GONE and I am getting the boxes!!!" Wondering what THAT meant, he explained that TED GUNDERSON WAS GONE, and he was taking the 35 or so boxes of VERY IMPORTANT FILES containing Gunderson's research exposing FBI CORRUPTION AND SATANISM and more.

TED GUNDERSON, former FBI, is a fine man of integrity, who has roused the wrath of the corrupt elements of the FBI by exposing corruption in the system, the child sex/porn rings in the FBI, and the satanism as well. This makes GUNDERSON, in turn, a TARGET for FBI COINTELPRO slander and libel manufactured him to discredit his excellent work exposing them.

Sadly, both STEW WEBB and BARBARA HARTWELL have both proven to be COINTELPRO by writing and publishing the libelous, fictional and untrue "reporting" against both Gunderson, myself and many other truth-tellers on the scene.

Webb then justified this by trying to portray GUNDERSON as "the BAD guy" and Webb as "the GOOD guy" taking his files on behalf of the FBI (or more realistically,for the CRIMINAL elements of the FBI who did not LIKE Gunderson's exposing of their corruption in his reports!) In fact, Webb bragged to me on the phone, even as he was stealing GUNDERSON'S BOXES OUT OF HIS HOME AND MOVING THEM TO WEBB'S VEHICLE, what a GREAT HAUL THIS WAS!

Unfortunately, I had been previously brainwashed by WEBB'S misinformation and misportrayal of GUNDERSON, and said nothing to GUNDERSON after the theft by WEBB. It was not until several years later that I became INFORMED and caught on to COINTELPRO and WEBB'S ROLE IN IT. THEN I contacted GUNDERSON and told him all about Stew Webb's infamous night of rampage and theft at his home in Law Vegas.

Sadly, the statute of limitations had expired however, and the information came TOO LATE to be used to successfully prosecute STEW WEBB FOR CRIMINAL THEFT.

Webb did not begin his FBI orchestrated COINTELPRO attacks on me, UNTIL I finally began to understand THE TRUTH and I then began to expose Webb's dark activities in my reporting.

Immediately, he THEN began the typical COINTELPRO character assassination, publishing untrue and unproveable libel/slander against me in his website and newsletters, working at the time with BARBARA HARTWELL, proven CIA COINTELPRO infiltrator in the Patriot/Christian NWO-resister community.

The list of WEBB'S criminal activities continue. WEBB has falsely accused many others at the behest of the FBI, he has even solicited for the murder of innocent people. Strangely, after he stayed with my friends the BRUNNERS in the Denver area, JACK BRUNNER turned up dead under strange circumstances. His wife Cyndra remains traumatized.

Many other writers have investigated and exposed WEBB, and there are several reports on the internet confirming my findings as well. I will continue to publish further findings regarding STEW WEBB and other COINTELPRO agents being paid to deceive the American public.

The American people deserve to know the truth, and the innocent victims of corrupt COINTELPRO deserve to be fully vindicated.

Several examples of WEBB BEING EXPOSED:

CIA SOURCE CONFIRMS PRIVATELY:

Now that elections have been allowed to take place and OBAMA has been elected, IT IS TIME for the major disasters to take place...LOOK OUT!

-as reported to Pamela Schuffert in Northern Montana by a contact-

I was recently visiting a progressive Amish community in Montana, to both warn them of impending martial law dangers and to pray for them, when they gave me startling information also. A trusted man of God and prophetic source told them that he shared how he felt the SPIRIT OF GOD had revealed that THE BIG DISASTERS ARE ABOUT TO COME ANY TIME NOW, and this would be America's final election.

After leaving his Amish community, musing on this revelation, I went to a regional airport and talked with a man working there. He wanted all my information of coming MARTIAL LAW, because of what his friend told him.

HIS CIA CONTACT TOLD HIM THAT ALL THE CIA HAD BEEN WARNED FROM THE INSIDE: LOOK OUT! IT IS NOW TIME FOR THE MAJOR DISASTERS LEADING TO MARTIAL LAW TO COME DOWN, now that the elctions are over.

And if ANYONE in the intelligence community should know, it is the CIA...major players and masterminds in the MARTIAL LAW/NWO AGENDA. The "BOYS WITH THE AGENCY AND THE AGENDA" as they are konwn by many insiders, have long been involved in CIA/NWO/MARTIAL LAW black ops.

BE FOREWARNED! BECOME PREPARED! SEEK GOD NOW FOR WISDOM AND PROTECTION!!

And REMEMBER...

PRAYER CHANGES THINGS!

I know my information is CORRECT since I met RED DOG on May 28,1998 when Stew Webb was hanging on me like the parasite that he is--RED DOG was in Denver that day to be in 10th District Federal Court before Federal Judge Zita Weinshenk--Otis Johnson had been involved in some nefarious criminal CIA operation that was to get him Federal prison time or lengthy exile to some far off island such as DIEGO GARCIA but it seems that "certain photos" of US Senator from Nebraska,Bob Kerrey,were threatened to be exposed and "curiously" all charges were "dropped" after Sen Kerrey called Judge Weinshenk...after this performance in court in the early afternoon...Webb came by my shop about 4 pm to pick me up then telling me that he wanted me to meet a friend of his--this turned out to be RED DOG--someone who Webb had told me plenty about in the preceding 3 months...Webb and I went to pick up Johnson at his mother's apartment in the South Capitol Hill area of Denver and all 3 of us then went to go find a restaurant/bar to go celebrate RED DOG's victory--RED DOG picked up the tab for everything that evening--dropping about $600....it is RED DOG who is feeding Webb and Heneghan the DISINFO that both of these alcoholic LYING slimeballs put out...I can sure add LOTS more details to this evening... The book that will change American Politics Forever

My name is Tom Heneghan. I am with the FBI. Mr. Gary Koniz has been ordered to stop selling this book as a download. This book is to be sold only as a paperback.

President Albert Arnold Gore Jr is not happy that Mr. Koniz is disobeying direct orders from Ezra Folson. Ezra is with Interpol.

Mr. Fisher has been notified that he is also going to be nominated soon to have a second position with the United States Government.

He is going to be the First Secretary of Peace and also the acting U.S. Attorney General for the Gore/McKinney Administration.

President Gore and Vice President Cynthia Anne McKinney are looking forward to seeing justice done in this nation.

Attorney General Jeff Fisher is going to imprison George Bush, Richard B Cheney, Hillary Clinton and Nancy Pelosi along with Mark Foley maybe by Christmas of 2007.

Jeff is quite upset because Patrick J Fitzgerald and Ezra Folson and I also wnat to place charges on Mr. Koniz as well. Jeff is telling us that we must give Gary a chance to take it down.

Since Al Gore is going to win the Noble Peace Prize I will for now comply with Mr. Fisher's orders.

Mr. Fisher is very Christ like. Mr. Koniz's other books will be addressed after Constitutional Crisis has happened.

Yep. Tom Heneghan and Stew Webb are both FBI. Tom is like a female Sibel Edmonds if you want to use an analogy.

TOM HENEGHAN, REUTERS RELIGION EDITOR, WINS JOHN TEMPLETON EUROPEAN AWARD FOR RELIGION WRITING

The Office of Communications of the Conference of European Churches (CEC) is pleased to announce that Tom Heneghan, Paris-based Religion Editor for the news agency Reuters, has been named as the winner of the John Templeton Award for the European Religion Writer of the Year 2006.

The award is administered by the Office of Communications of CEC on behalf of the USA based John Templeton Foundation. The aim of the award is to honour journalists who write about religion in the secular press with accuracy, impartiality and in a spirit of ecumenical openness. The prize was inaugurated in 1994.

Born in New York in 1951, Heneghan holds dual U.S. and Irish citizenship. He studied modern languages in New York and Göttingen, and international relations in Boston. Since joining Reuters as a trainee in 1977, he has held positions as correspondent and editor in London, Vienna, Geneva, Islamabad, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Bonn and Paris. From Paris, he now directs the agency's coverage of religion worldwide and writes mostly on Christianity and Islam in Europe.

Mr Heneghan's entry for the Templeton award included three stories on Islam: a portrait of the French cartoonist René Pétillon, whose book "The Headscarf Affair" has been praised by French Muslim leaders; an interview with Sheikh Adnan Ibrahim, a Vienna imam who "says yes to Europe, no to Euro-Islam"; and a feature story on Muslim creationists in Turkey.

"The three articles Tom Heneghan submitted", said one of the judges, "are very informative in regard to Muslim communities and their relation to Christians, and he provides real insights in a tight space". "Writing on the French cartoonist Pétillon", stated another judge, "Heneghan underlined his contribution to more understanding and dialogue: this applies to Heneghan's work as well".

"We are very proud that Tom has won this award", said Sean Maguire, Editor for Political and General News, Reuters. "Tom does a marvelous job exploring how differing beliefs interact with each other and with society. His work illuminates issues of faith and the broader cultural, ethical and social challenges facing our world. We are particularly pleased that the award recognises those who write about religion with accuracy and impartiality, values which we strive for throughout Reuters Editorial."

The award carries with it a prize of 5,000 Swiss Francs. The award ceremony will be held in Paris on 27 November at the Maison du Protestantisme, in co-operation with the French Protestant Federation. *****

(I'm not saying I believe this stuff and i'm not posting this trying to attack anybody. I found this stuff doing a search for

"Thomas Heneghan" " FBI" It seems strange that the writers are saying Heneghan is FBI and then saying Tim White is also.)

Just found this,

"Obviously both you and Tim White have worked in your respective FBI offices and out of them for a long time. However, we know several honorable agent operatives including Tom Heneghan. Now they have left temporarily the division and become whistleblowers on FBI corruption. But they still honor the badge.
They say you are betraying the oath and are deceitful, thus we do have enough motive to have them arrest you. Tom would arrest you right now Favita, if you are literally never going to admit what happened. Of course they are in another state. All the people are. "

I guess someone named "Roger Rancourt" said the above.

Here's more stuff mentioning Heneghan and White.
